You can win it

The annual giveaway during Border Town Days July 25 will feature this pickup truck from Doc Stewart Chevrolet Buick. Tickets cost $20 and are available from most Farwell and Texico businesses.

New & improved

Good news, football fans. We've got a better than ever football package ready for the winner of this year's Area Merchants Football Contest.

We used to use a contest in conjunction with the Regent Hotel in Dallas. But they no longer offer a package. So we checked around and came up with a goodie.

This year, the winner of the football contest will get two free tickets and:

- A night's lodging for two at the Dallas - Fort Worth Airport Hilton Hotel.

- $50 in cash.

- Free use of all recreational facilities at the Hilton, including indoor and outdoor pools, Nautilus Center, tennis courts, sauna, racquetball courts, etc.

- Game day breakfast - brunch.

- Two welcome cocktails.

- Nightly turn-down service.

- Tour of Cowboys Center.

- Transfers to and from the game.

- Transfers to and from the airport.

- All taxes.

And the Dallas Cowboys game will feature the St. Louis Cardinals at noon Sunday, Dec. 27 - Christmas weekend.

We thought that would be neat for the winner - a holiday weekend featuring Tony Dorsett & Co.

It may only be early July, but that most-popular football contest isn't too far off. So get ready to test your football skills.

A fella stopped by the office last week to compliment Gary Cates, Larry Gregory and Rex Cumpton for using their unpaid time to work with young basketball players at the Farwell gym this summer.

Hats off to these fine teachers.

I opened a really fun letter Saturday.

It was addressed to the Tribune's box number but also to "Farwell Community Center." And it enclosed an autographed photo of actress Bette Midler.

Yes, you guessed it: it was for our Celebrity Auction! And it only arrived two years after the auction was held.

What's two years, anyway...

Rex Cumpton, Farwell athletic director, stopped by to say that the weight-lifting room at the gym is open from 6 to 10 p.m. Mondays, Tuesday, Thursdays and Fridays, and is available to anyone who would like to use it.

I'm disappointed in the response this year to nominations for Pioneer Man and Woman of the Year for our Border Town Days celebration.

Last year, we got a bunch of nominations. Alas, we can't find them so if you submitted one last year and feel you don't have to do it again this year, you're wrong. Please submit a nomination again.

The only criteria is how long the persons have lived in our area and their contributions to the community. Just send them to the Tribune, Box 25, Farwell, Texas 79325.

We've only received a couple of nominations so far and time is getting short. Isn't there someone you would like to nominate?

New Mexico: 75 years old

The following article was originally written as a column by Georgiana Cooper when she worked for the Portales newspaper, and it was reprinted in her book, "IDLE CHATTER."

Mrs. Cooper is deceased now, but her husband, Marshall Cooper, and her son, Louis Cooper, and her brother, Jess Richardson, are Texico residents today. The article is printed with the permission of her daughter, Laurie Wright, of Clovis.

We hope that you enjoy this tribute to New Mexico's statehood.

By GEORGIANNA COOPER

It was hot at Elida, New Mexico, on July 4, 1912. Although the sun still lacked a lot of being overhead, there were heat waves rising on the horizon as the four of us—Mamma and I, Daddy and my brother Jess—piled into the buggy to go to the picnic.

Piled is correct. At the bottom of the pile under the buggy seat, was our contribution to the community feast. Fried chicken, potato salad, green beans, and a coconut cake, were packed into a dishpan and a shoe-box or two, along with a plate apiece and knives, forks, spoons and tin cups.

"They're going to have lemonade, free," Daddy had said, "but you have to bring your own cups."

Next in the pile came us - the grownups on the seat on each side, and me in the middle like the filling in a sandwich, then Jess, sitting first on one lap and then another or bouncing around on our feet. The buggy top over all made an uncertain shade for the lot of us.

There was going to be a merry-go-round at the picnic. There would be band music, and speaking, and singing, and goodness knows what all. There was going to be a flag raising, for which they hoped to get a new flag with 48 stars.

"We'll be too late for the flag raising," Dad said with an accusing look.

"I couldn't get those beans done any quicker," Mamma answered.

Old Betty, fat and lazy, got her feet to moving in a shuffling little trot that raised little puffs of dust that settled in the buggy, over our clothes and into our noses. Her usually glossy bay coat was soon covered with a gray dust that showed white streaks when Daddy slapped her with the lines as she threatened to slow to a walk.

At Mother's insistence, I tried to keep from wiggling so I wouldn't wrinkle my new red and white checked gingham dress. I also tried not to mash the crown of my stiffly starched white sunbonnet, not so much for the sake of the bonnet as for the red ribbon butterfly bow that it sheltered on the crown of my head. But I couldn't keep Jess from wiggling on my lap and everybody was well wrinkled by the time we got there.

A bear-grass arbor formed a welcome shade and plenty of room. Its roof was made of poles and chicken wire, supported by rough posts, tall ones from the cedar breaks, and the bear-grass was laid solidly like a thatch on the wire to exclude the sun. It would even slow down a shower, if, please God, such a thing should happen!

Under the arbor, tables were already set up - long boards set on saw-horses. Seats had been brought out of the Methodist church. They were pine lumber benches, built by local carpenters. On the end of one table the lemonade was ready - in a tub! I climbed on a bench to see better, and, wonder of wonders, spied a big lump of ice floating in it, along with the yellow squeezed lemon rinds, put in to enhance the flavor. Somebody emptied in a whole bag of sugar, then stirred with a wooden paddle. They dipped with a tin dipper and tasted. Then they poured in more sugar. Daddy had appeared from somewhere, holding two tin cups which he gave to Jess and me before getting two more for himself and Mamma.

Somewhere an unfamiliar noise began - a loud "Phut-phut-POP-phut-phut-phut!" It sounded a little like an automobile but I couldn't see one.

"They got the merry-go-round started!" someone cried, and all the kids started running toward the sound. I started to follow the crowd, but Dad reached out with a no-nonsense restraining hand and said, "You stay here!"

"But you said I could ride it!" I began, and he said, "Not now. Later." It was just as well. The "Phut-phut" soon stopped, and the merry-go-round had still not gone around once. I stood on a bench again to see it better; it was some distance away and even to my inexperienced, six-year-old eyes it seemed a rather sad affair. The canopy over the top was faded and torn, its paint was peeling, and it was much smaller than I had expected it to be. There were three or four pairs of prancing wooden horses, one with a yellow mane that I decided I wanted to ride because he looked like the wildest of the lot. There were two pairs of seats, big enough for grown-ups. The horses looked like they were just right for kids.

Border Town meeting slated

The Border Town Days Committee will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at Luce's Restaurant for a very important planning session for this year's Border Town Days.

Border Town Days will be July 24-25.

Representatives of all community organizations are asked to attend this final session before the annual event.

"It's really important that we get a good turnout at this meeting," said committee chairman Curtis Smith. "This is the time when we make sure all the different facets of Border Town Days are going well."

Meanwhile, the list for the big parade July 25 is continuing to grow. To sign up for the parade, just call the State Line Tribune at 481-3681. The deadline is July 20 for making sure you get a position in the parade. Persons entering after that date are placed at the end of the parade.

Participants include: West Texas State University buffalo, Farwell Study Club float, Senior Citizens float, Gladys Hardage's calliope, Orié Jones and his antique car club, decorated bikes, Texico High School band.

Farwell Class of 1967, Lions Club Hooligan Wagon, ugly pickups, Farwell Class of 1937, Oklahoma Lane Class of 1937, Cannon Air Force Base color guard, Farwell Convalescent Center van.

Michael Haseloff's lawn grooming float, Past Fashion Style Show float, Shrine big and small cyles, Farwell Class of 1947 and LaDonna Cross's aerobocize dropouts.

Don't forget: a rodeo is scheduled that weekend. For more information, see Mike Snodgrass at Rip's or Vicki Milloy at Kountry Klipper.

To sign up for the Arts and Crafts Show on the courthouse lawn, call Janie Bowery at 481-3620.

To sign up for the booths for the Day in the Park, call Cynthia Thigpen at 481-3619. This is a great opportunity for local non-profit groups to raise funds, and ice cream always is needed.

For the fashion show, check with Peggy Haseloff.

Troop wins Spirit award

Members of Troop 200 of Texico-Farwell won the Spirit Award, the award for traveling the longest distance to camp, the diving award, and 58 merit badges while at Camp Tonkawa near Abilene June 21-27.

While at camp scouts worked on merit badges, went on a snipe hunt and a scavenger hunt.

They also won a contest called "Yoda's Quest." Each troop had to perform a series of tasks. At each station the boys learned something about scouting and found an ingredient for peach cobbler. Along the way they met characters like Luke SCOUT-walker and O-BSA-Wan Kenobi who helped them with their quest. The final result was a delicious campfire baked cobbler.

Under the direction of Scoutmaster Charles Aycock were: Chris Aycock, Rob Pomper, Clay Corn, Matt Foster, Cody Monk, Kevin Welch, Mark Chandler, Brian Johnson, Shawn Menning, Lance Castleberry, Eric Chadwick, Ryan Williams, Clint Austin, Jeffrey Stewart, and Brandon Kirkland.

Other adults on the trip were: Ed Corn, Steve Stephens, and Duke Kirkland.

Elected to the Order of the Arrow were: Matt Foster, Shawn Menning, Clay Corn, and Ed Corn.

AAU girls raise funds

Members of the local AAU girls' basketball team for the 13 year olds, The South Plains Dusters, are trying to raise money to help them get to the AAU tournament in Oxford, Miss.

They will be giving away a $500 prize. They are asking for $10 for each ticket. Winners need not be present to win the prize.

Texico OKs 2 variances, denies 1

Two variances were granted and one denied by the Texico City Council last Friday.

Present were Mayor John R. Hadley and councilmen Doyal LaRue and Steve Chancy.

Approved were the requests of Betty Pierce for a beauty shop and Red Pierce for a Small engine repair shop.

City officials said 12 letters were sent out to nearby property owners of the small engine repair shop. Only one response was received, in favor of the shop.

Twelve letters also were sent out to property owners near the beauty shop. Only one response came back, in favor of the shop.

But the request of Donald Lovelady for a vehicle wash facility was denied, 3-0.

Fourteen letters were sent out. Two responses were received, both against the wash. That means that 20 percent of the letters sent out opposed the business.

Chancy told Lovelady that state law said that if 18 percent or more of affected property owners opposed a variance, it would have to be automatically rejected.

This was the first time that the council had sent out letters and taken polls of the responses.

No property owners, other than the persons seeking variances, attended the meeting.

Regional berths earned

Four Texico runners earned places at the regional track meet which will be held in El Paso on July 10-12 by earning 7 first places and 1 third place at the New Mexico State Track Meet in Roswell on June 27.

Participants in the regional track meet in El Paso will compete against athletes from New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona, Texas, and Utah. Winners will advance to the National Track meet in Provo, Utah.

Keith Harrison earned first place in both the 110 meter high hurdles and the 400 meter hurdles.

Amy Chadwick came in first in the 200 meter hurdles and in the 100 meter hurdles.

Penny Pierce came in first in the 200 meter hurdles and third in the 100 meter hurdles.

Kris Cross came in first in the 100 meter and the 200 meter races.

In the 12 year old and under Division, Brent Harrison came in 6th in the 100 meter and 200 meter races.

Oscar Calloway came in 4th in the 800 meter run.

Landon Reed came in 5th in both the 800 meter and 1500 meter runs.

Jaime Estrada came in 5th in both the 3000 meter and 1500 meter runs.

Over 500 athletes from all over the state of New Mexico participated in the Roswell meet.

The Texico athletes have been coached by college students under the direction of head coach Oscar Robertson of ENMU - Portales. They are part of the Eastern Athletic Club in Portales.

Cotton contest set

The Curry County Farm Bureau will have a Cotton Extravaganza Aug. 11.

The contest will include an array of garments fashioned of cotton. Cash prizes will be given.

The deadline for entries is Aug. 8. Entries may be mailed to Donna Donahay, Route 2, Texico, N.M. 89235. For more information, persons may call her at 389-5444.

Complete contest rules and details are outlined on entry blanks which may be obtained at Fabric Mart, House of Fabrics, the fabric department at Walmart and the Curry County Extension office.

Maxine Williams

Maxine Williams

Services for Maxine Williams, 57, of Farwell were held June 27 at First Baptist Church in Farwell with the Rev. J. L. Bass and the Rev. Pat Riley officiating.

Burial took place at Sunset Terrace Cemetery under the direction of Steed-Todd Funeral Home.

She died June 25 at her residence after a lengthy illness. She had been under doctor's care.

She was born in Clovis; and had been a longtime Farwell resident. She married Don Williams on July 23, 1951 in Fairbanks, Alaska. She was a member of Farwell School Board, Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority, and Farwell Hospital District Board. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Farwell.

Survivors include her husband; a daughter, Deana Welling of Clovis; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ford; three brothers, Max Ford of Clovis, Don Ford of Fort Worth, and Butch Ford of San Marcos; two sisters, Jo Karen Carpenter of Tempe, Ariz., and Connie Welch of Sanford, and two grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Girls Town U.S.A. or First Baptist Church.

Dee Brown called to let us know that there was an old-fashioned cattle roundup on June 25 one mile south and one mile west of the end of the pavement at State Line Road.

Vandalism was caused to two lawns across the street from the Farwell Church of Christ Saturday night when a vehicle was driven across them.

The property owners involved plan to attend the next city council meeting and bring up the topic of a night watchman for the city again.

The proposal was broached by Mayor Chris Gikas last winter but I don't recall anything more coming of it.

Personally, I think it's a good idea. We have the sheriff's department headquartered in Farwell and state troopers also work out of the office here. To organize a police department is a major undertaking that also brings its share of problems.

A night watchman could be the answer to vandalism and speeders in Farwell.

Watch for details in an upcoming issue of the Tribune for the big Farwell School auction set for July 18.

Running on LP-gas can give your profits a lift.

Unlike gasoline and diesel fuel, LP-gas burns completely and cleanly in your lift motor. So the carbon and sludge deposits that can foul your spark plugs and other engine parts don't build up as quickly.

And LP-gas' high octane content gives your lift clean, efficient power so it runs longer without overhauls.

Fewer repairs will mean lower maintenance costs. And that means higher profits for your business.

You'll also get fewer fumes and noxious gases with Philgas in a well-tuned engine. So running your lift safely inside plants and warehouses is no problem and all your employees can breathe a little easier.

Come by and let us show you all the advantages of using Philgas in your engines. And all the nice things running on Philgas can do for your profits.

New Mexico

The lemonade had brought on an emergency for me. I sought out my mother and drew her head down to whisper in her ear.

"So do I," she said. She called to Dad and told him "You'd better take Jess and see about him for a little while."

She led me to a little house I had not noticed before. It was built of new raw lumber and stood at what seemed a great distance from the picnic location. There were some letters in black paint from the picnic location. There were some letters in black paint on the back of it and as we drew nearer I could read the word, "Ladies." It didn't seem to have a door. When we got to it, I discovered it was built with an extra wall in front of the door so that no one could see inside.

Once inside, I wanted out - right quick! There were cracks in the floor, and I could see right through them - into darkness! The little house was built over a deep, dark hole! What if a board should break? What if I should fall through one of those holes on the seat? They looked awful big to me. But Mamma set me on the smallest hole, and let me hold onto her skirt, and soon we were out again into the bright sunlight.

Back at the arbor they began setting out the food, first covering the boards with white tablecloths. How the women of the time managed to keep their tablecloths so snowy white I will never know - the water was hard, the soap inferior, whether home-made or "boughten." But they used lots of elbow grease with it and the sun was an efficient bleaching agent.

My mouth watered as I watched the goodies coming out of boxes, baskets, and dishpans like ours - some even brought food in tubs. Somebody handed me a "shoo-fly" and told me to get to work. A shoo-fly was a long stick with a length of newspaper tacked along one end and cut into strips of long fringe. It delighted me and I guarded my section of the table until Mamma brought me a filled plate and I turned my energies to keeping the flies off it while I ate. There was more lemonade in our cups and Dad showed up with something new.

"It's Coca-cola," he said. "I've heard so much about them I thought I'd try one. I wouldn't give a dime a dozen for more, but if you like it I'll buy you some."

He passed the bottle around for us to sample; and we agreed that it wasn't very good. I know now it was only because it was hot.

After dinner there was music. Sometime during the morning an organ had been hauled out and placed on a platform at one end of the arbor which also held the pulpit from the church and a lot of chairs. People carrying shiny horns and drums filled up the chairs - and the band began to play! I was fascinated by a fat man with a big brass horn, who puffed out his cheeks until I thought they would burst, and whose neck got so red it seemed it would catch fire.

After the band played there were speakers, who bored me, and more people came and took over the chairs from the bandmen, and there was singing.

I saw Daddy beckon to me from the rim of the crowd and went to him. He introduced me to a young man with a red moustache, just like he was a grown-up; "Mr. Vaughan, this is my daughter Georgie. Mr. Vaughan is going to take you for a ride on the merry-go-round."

I hadn't noticed that the "Phut-phut POP" had started again, and this time it was really going around and, to my delight, the horses were going up and down, almost like real ones at a full gallop!

Imagine my disappointment when I found that I was to ride in one of the seats! Daddy was afraid his little girl would fall off one of those horses, or get scared and try to get off before the thing stopped. Worse than being disappointed, I was indignant. I could ride a real horse, even at a gallop; why couldn't I ride a wooden one? Scared, Gee Whiz! But I kept my indignation bottled up - one didn't get indignant with one's daddy in those days. I sat primly on the little bench, while Mr. Vaughan sat facing me. I tried to be polite as he tried to make conversation.

He had bought me a puff of cotton candy while we waited for the merry-go-round to start. I ate half and gave the rest to Jess. That, with the overwarm Coke and the circular motion combined to make me very sick by the time the ride was over and it was a long time before I wanted to ride a merry-go-round again.

There were fiddlers on the platform by this time, and a few dancing couples. There was going to be a horse race in a little while, and Mamma said, a little whistfully, "I always liked to watch a horse race," but Jess's little nose was blistered and he was sleepy and cross so it was decided that we would go home.

Mamma sat in the arbor shade, which didn't seem all cool any more, trying to comfort Jess, while Daddy went to hitch old Betty back to the buggy. He had taken her out from between the shafts and fed her a bundle of maize at noon. He drove up beside the arbor to pick up our dishpan and dishes and the remains of the food, and soon we were headed homeward. Old Betty didn't seem all that reluctant to trot. I asked to ride in the back, standing up in the little box behind the seat.

As we crossed the railroad track I heard the gunshot signaling the starting of the horse race and looked back to see the horses streaking out across the prairie just ahead of a cloud of dust.

For me, the Elida, New Mexico, Statehood picnic, July 4, 1912, was over. The flag had stayed limply drooping down the pole, never once lifting out on the breeze so I could count the stars and see if there were really 48. (I had only recently learned to count to 50.) My red ribbon bow had come untied and Mamma had taken it off and rolled it up and put in her handbag. My bonnet crown had got mashed after all. It really didn't matter, Mamma said it would have to be washed and ironed before I could wear it again. My new shoes had rubbed a blister on my heel. All in all, it had been a disappointing day.

Mrs. Miller visits

Nofa Miller of Denham Springs, La., arrived in Amarillo on June 1 for a 20 day visit with family and friends. After a one week stay with son, Dwayne and family in Canyon, Mrs. Miller came to Clovis for a family reunion and visit with local friends and relatives.

While staying in Clovis, she was hosted in the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Clarence and Nell Brown. She was able to attend her former Sunday School class meeting of Texico First Baptist church at the home of Mrs. Allie Burris. Mrs. Burris chauffeured Mrs. Miller around to see all of her friends and to the Senior Citizens meeting in Texico.

Mrs. Miller attended the Slater-Brown family reunion held June 13 at the Texico Community Center, hosted by Mrs. Miller's sister, Ruby Heglin and niece-in-law, Patti Brown. Relatives came from many miles around to visit with Mrs. Miller and enjoy the family reunion.

After a few more days' visit in the Texico-Farwell area, Mrs. Miller was picked up by her son, Dwayne, and returned to Canyon for a few more days before leaving for her home in Denham Springs on June 20, where she was picked up by her daughter, Virginia Anderson.

Mrs. Miller enjoyed her visit and thanks everyone who came by to see her during her visit.

"I also visited the Farwell Convalescent Center. Thank the Lord for a nice place. I have some dear friends there," said Mrs. Miller.

Meeting set

Mrs. Ronald Hancock

Cline, Hancock wed

Amy Susan Cline, daughter of Roger and Brenda Cline of Kingswood, Texas, and Ronald Taylor Hancock, son of Mac and Louise Hancock, Jr. of Farwell were united in marriage recently.

The ceremony was held at Chapelwood United Methodist Church in Houston. Rev. Harry Vein officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and re-embroidered alencon lace designed by Bianchi. The lace was delicately beaded with pearls, bugle beads and iridescent sequins. It was fashioned with a v neckline and short puffed sleeves. The basque bodice was appliqued with jeweled lace, as were the sleeves. Satin leaves were featured on the sleeves and back of the bodice. The skirt was slipper length and swept to a circular court-length train. The headpiece of beaded alencon lace featured puffs of illusion at the back where a veil of silk, sprinkled with bridal pearls, fell over the back of the gown and beyond her train.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Ann White of San Antonio. Bridesmaids were: Mrs. Judy Geyer of Collinsville, Ill., and Mrs. Susan Garver of East Liverpool, Ohio.

The bridal attendants were gowned alike in dresses of cerise latique taffeta. They were fashioned with sweetheart necklines and short puff sleeves. Fitted bodices featured a large boa at the back waistline. Full skirts were slipper length, and were worn with matching shoes.

The groom was attired in a black tuxedo with white pleated shirt with winged collar. He had a black cummerbund and bow tie.

The best man was the groom's brother, Mac Hancock III of Amarillo. The groomsmen were Allen Till and Bruce Gaible of Houston. The ushers were Dr. Phil Miller and Andy Webeler of Houston. They were all attired the same as the groom was.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of pink chiffon accented with a drop waistline of lace.

The mother of the groom wore an aqua linen suit. Lace cutwork accented the lapels and matching silk blouse.

Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

The bride graduated from West Liberty State College, West Liberty, W. Va., and is employed as a dental hygienist in Houston.

The groom graduated from Farwell High School and Texas Tech University and Texas Tech University School of Law. He is associated with the law firm of Hays, McConn, Price, and Pickering in Houston.

The couple honeymooned on the Hawaiian islands of Kauai and Maui. They will make Houston their home.

Baby showers held

A baby shower was held at the Hamlin United Methodist Church in honor of H. E. Stephens III (Trey), son of Rev. and Mrs. Steve Stephens June 23.

There was a shower on June 27 at Tonya Gober's home in Bovina in honor of Trevor Smallwood, son of Rusty and Rebecca Smallwood.

Sparky the Safety Mouse Comic Book

We are offering a comic book that stars the same cartoon character that appears on all of our television safety spots. We call him "Sparky the Safety Mouse." This is a light-hearted approach to a very serious subject: safety. We want to give children a safety message they will read, understand and remember. This is the time when youngsters are most apt to be playing around power lines. So, it's the best time for them to think about safety. Pick up your free comic book now.

In all SPS offices and many children's stores.

Spotlight on Business

This week's Business of the Week is Farwell Hardware, 305 Ave. A, owned and operated by Neil and Ricky Stewart.

The Stewarts purchased the hardware store in 1975 and have operated it for 12 years.

Before purchasing the store, Neil Stewart worked there for 4 1/2 years, beginning in 1968. H worked for Clay and Irene Henson, who owned the store for 19 years.

Neil and Betty Stewart were originally from Norton, Texas, in Runtells County, which is located close to Ballinger, Texas. They were married in January, 1948 in Norton. They moved to the Oklahoma Lane area in 1956 and later moved to Farwell in 1962.

The Neil Stewarts have three children and five grandchildren. They are Ricky and Roene Stewart, Jeffery, 15, Misty, 13, and Ross, 9, of Farwell; Randy and Mary Ann Stewart, Aaron, 8, and Joshua, 5, of Stanford, Texas; and Sharla and Frank Landry of Farwell.

All three of the Stewart's children graduated from Farwell High School.

Ricky also graduated from the Denver Automotive and Diesel Mechanics Technical School in Denver, Colo. and Roene graduated from the Denver Women's College.

Ricky and Roene Stewart have worked with Neil and Betty Stewart in the hardware business, from when the store was first purchased and have continued to work there through the years.

Ricky's hobbies and interest include fishing and working at the store and Roene's interest are chiefly her children and their activities and her work.

Randy Stewart is the pastor of the Baptist Church in Standard.

Sharla Landry works at the Court House in the Parmer County Clerk's office, and her husband, Frank, works for the Farwell Feed Supply.

The Stewarts are all members of the Farwell First Baptist Church.

The Neil Stewart's main interest is in working in the store, but Neil occasionally likes to go fishing.

The store employees include, Ricky, Roene, Neil, and Betty Stewart, and Debra Boone. They also receive part-time help from David Kube, Carol Dean Huggins and Jeffrey Stewart. Roene is in charge of the book-keeping.

The store stocks general hardware supplies, paints, plumbing supplies, electrical supplies and hydrolic hose.

The store's motto is "We'll Be Here Tomorrow To Back Up What We Say Today".

Our birthday party was extra special this month. One of our residents, Joy Horne, celebrated her 99th birthday. She had family visit from Corrales, N.M. They were a surprise enjoyed by all. Nancy Broswell has a very unusual way of visiting her grandmother. She came dressed as a clown. Her pet "dog" looked like an ostrich to most of us. "Dog" was quite a hit. He danced and gave a show for everyone. Buttons, as Nancy is called, had several buttons on her striped outfit. One that caught everyone's eye was on Buttons' back. It read "I stop for chocolate." Buttons made balloon apples for everyone that were very unique. They looked like candy apples, stick and all. We would like to thank Nancy and her husband Jim for sharing their surprise gift to Joy. Nancy's mom, Mary Bresenham, lives in Clovis. Mary says (not bragging, you understand) that "Buttons" evertains at all kinds of functions, schools, nursing homes, senior citizens, etc, bringing smiles everywhere. I can say she did the same for us! Thanks, Buttons. **

Focusing On the Future

Focusing on the Future

Clovis High Plains Hospital is a 106-bed general acute care facility. It is a private not-for-profit hospital. A thirteen-member local board of trustees is responsible for its operation. An important commitment of the board of trustees is the return of funds to the community. In keeping with the hospital's not-for-profit status, excess revenues are used for expansion, to upgrade the facility, and to purchase new capital equipment. CHPH is striving continually to provide the most up to date, professional health care available today while looking to our community's future needs.

Clovis High Plains Hospital is the third largest employer in Curry County, and its economic impact on the community is tremendous. The number of employees total 340 and the annual payroll for last year was $6.4 million.

Augmenting the employee work force is a dynamic volunteer group of 100 auxiliaries and 20 volunteer chaplains who, each year, donate a record number of hours to the hospital and the patients.

Fiscal Year 1987 was an excellent year for Clovis High Plains Hospital. The years of planning, of program and service development, and of physician recruitment, have resulted in CHPH becoming the hub of medical activity for this region.

Patient activity has remained extremely high; the 36-bed medical unit has been full during the year, with census on surgical unit, intensive care unit and emergency department greatly increased.

CHPH also opened the $1.2 million day surgery unit, which provides additional space for cost efficient same-day surgery. Located in the same area is a new phase-one and phase-two recovery area. The expansion also provided a new operating room used for inpatient surgeries. The addition of this large room will allow two present rooms to be used exclusively for day surgeries.

During the last year Clovis High Plains Hospital refurbished the interior of the facility. Everything in the hospital is clean and new and designed to provide the best in patient and visitor comfort. Selections were made for noise control and to assure the best in cleanliness and durability. An added plus for the community was that most of the $450,000 spent were local purchases.

This expands the area from a 40-acre tract of land to 125-acre tract and should foster development of a medical campus adjacent the hospital.

A Quick, Easy, Life Saving Precaution

Breast cancer is a disease that afflicts one out of 11 American women. According to the American Cancer Society, 90 percent of breast cancer can be cured when detected early. Clovis High Plains Hospital staff believes that early disease detection is vital. In December of this year, Clovis High Plains Hospital honored that commitment by expanding their services to women and purchasing a state-of-the-art mammography unit. According to Mike Luscombe, department manager, the $60,000 unit is used not only for screenings, but for breast localization exams prior to surgery. All breast exams are done in the radiology department by a female technologist.

In conjunction with staff from the women's unit, monthly educational programs will also be offered. Sessions will be designed to help women learn breast self-examination, as well as answer questions.

Purchase of the unit was partially funded by the CHPH Auxiliary through their Christmas greetings advertisement. "We're always glad to ask people for help in purchasing a piece of equipment such as this," commented Helen Simms, Auxiliary founder. "The auxiliary feels that emphasis on early detection of breast cancer is vital, and this is one small way we can do our part to help other women throughout this area."

Those Feet Were Made For Walking!

The High Plains Strutters, sponsored by the Clovis High Plains Hospital and North Plains Mall, have been making tracks since February of this year. Over 75 people have registered as mall walkers, and they can be seen mall-walking at varied paces throughout each day. The mall is open daily Monday-Saturday from 7 am-9 pm and on Sunday from noon until 6 pm for mall walkers.

by the hospital. Incentive prizes and drawings are given at each meeting. For walking in warm weather in the winter and cool weather in the summer, for an exercise program that is convenient and free, consider becoming a mall walker.

There are always room for more High Plains Strutters.

A Robot in Clovis???
The Kin-Com, a computer controlled robot, was added to the physical therapy department in July, 1986. This $40,000 piece of equipment is one of only five in the state of New Mexico. The unit is in use daily on Clovis residents, as well as patients from Portales, Tucumcari, west Texas, and even Albuquerque, Amarillo and Lubbock. Over 1000 patient visits were logged last year.

According to Joe Holland, LPT, the unit is utilized for testing the major joints in the body, as well as the trunk. "The first step in treating a patient is obtaining the history and making a physical assessment of the patient's condition. Then the data is entered into the Kin-Com, based on the physical therapists determination of limitation and patient goals. Once the computer is programmed, we test to compare the strength between involved and un-involved areas. We save that data, develop and implement a patient strengthening program to restore normal function, and then retest to determine increased strength."

The Kin-Com is an extremely reliable machine, and is used extensively because of its accuracy. "In fact," commented Holland, "in Europe the same machine, with different software, is being used to determine spasticity for neurologic problems."

Better Habits Making a Better Community

Clovis High Plains Hospital received a grant of $10,600 from Association of Western Hospitals to begin a health promotion project in the Clovis area. Grant funding will be used to promote wellness using a three phase model: better nutrition, cessation of tobacco use, and exercise. Focus of the program is on long-term behavior change leading to greater community health.

The model for the project, Health Net, uses a core planning group of community leaders to develop the project, and focuses on worksites as the basis for promotion. Leaders at various worksites in the community are to develop their own customized strategies for implementation.

The first component, which targets creation of a smoke-free environment, is to begin in August. Educational programs for the general public, children, and employee groups, as well as smoking cessation clinics, are among the scheduled offerings. In addition employers will be offered assistance in developing smoking policies and employee incentive programs.

Through staff and community education and using the existing resources provided by Health Net, it is planned to make Clovis' project a model for other rural hospitals in New Mexico.
