Around Muleshoe

Members of the Muleshoe Youth Activities Committee are reminded of a meeting scheduled for Monday, at 7:30 p.m., in the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum.

To be discussed will be the miniature golf course and the skating for Friday, April 27.

Visitors will be welcome at the meeting.

Due to receiving a damaged film which could not be shown by the Muleshoe Youth Activities Committee in its entirety, Keith Pate, president of the Muleshoe Youth Activities Committee announced that youth who were given a free pass Friday night may use the pass at any future scheduled Youth Activity by presenting the pass at the door.

Pate said he regretted inconvenience to any of the parents or youth who planned to see the top-rated comedy.

Dr. and Mrs. Jerry Gregory, Mrs. Marshall Head and Mrs. Byron Gwyn left Saturday morning for Port Au Prince, Haiti with two persons from Olton and one from Bovina.

The medical team will be giving diphtheria and tetanus shots and polio vaccine in the seven Methodist schools in and around Port Au Prince during the next week.

Two members were re-elected to the Lazbuddie school board last weekend. They were Marvin Mimms and Jerry Don Glover. Also a new member, Darrell Mason, was elected.

Jerry Don Glover was named president; Gene Paul Jarman, vice president and Alfred Hicks, secretary.

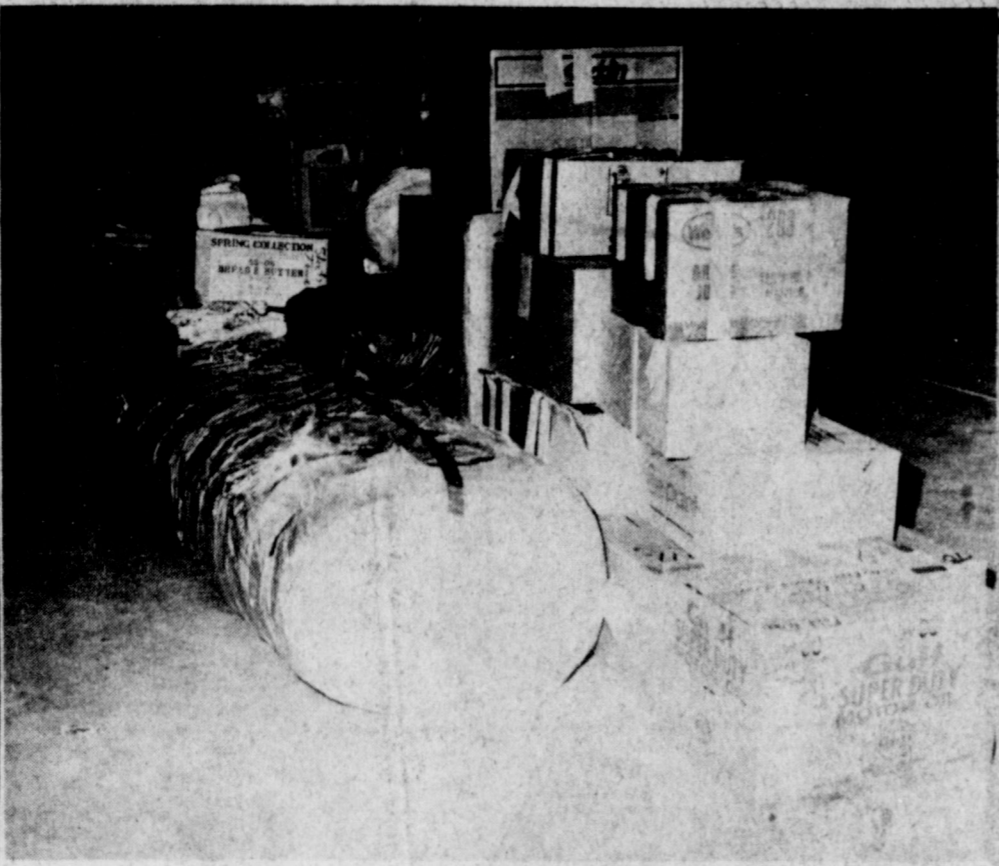

Mr. and Mrs. Buck Creamer were in Paducah Friday and Saturday for the Annual Horse Show and Old Settlers Reunion.

At Paducah, they visited in the home of her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carroll. They went on to Kirklund to visit in the home of another sister, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Key.

Mabel Caldwell and Ladonna Scott recently returned from a 2500 mile trip to Boise, Idaho to attend the wedding of Mrs. Caldwell's grandson and Mrs. Scott's cousin. They traveled by way of Cortez, Colo., where they were joined by Vickie Clay.

While in Boise, they went to McCall where they saw snow covered mountains and frozen lakes. Mrs. Clay and Mrs. Scott also went to Idaho City, an old ghost town that used to be the capitol of Idaho.

Near Durango, they ran into snow storms. At Monticello, the roads were covered with snow. They also went by to see the window rocks and other unusual rock formations in the Moab Desert. They were gone seven days.

AID FOR TORNADO VICTIMS...Pictured is but a small portion of the household items and clothing that poured into the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum to be taken to Wichita Falls to aid victims of a tornado that ravaged that city and Vernon last week. Delbert Watson took a large truckload of merchandise to Wichita Falls Wednesday morning.

Congressman Held Town Hall Meeting

Tuesday night, accompanied by brilliant lighting, and booming thunder, and predictions of a pending severe storm, U.S. Congressman Kent Hance spoke to a group of interested citizens at the Bailey County Exhibition Center and Coliseum.

Hance said the last time the nation had a balanced budget was the last year President Johnson was in office and a debt limit must be voted on before we could expect a balanced budget again.

Local Church Celebration To Conclude

Concluding at Community Church today is the second anniversary celebration of the church, according to Rev. H.D. Hunter, pastor.

Scheduled today, Sunday, is the "Celebration of Praise," with Rev. Hoke Hunter of Houston bringing special messages during the day.

Today's service is at 10:45 a.m., followed by a meal at the church at noon and special singing at 2 p.m., with concluding services at 7 p.m.

He also spoke on regulatory reforms and said he had been made to realize that federal agencies have more to say about running the government than Congress does.

He said he has helped introduce a bill in the legislature which would allow Congress to set aside any rule an agency makes, and if no action is brought within 90 days, the rule is automatically set aside, and the only way the rule would be allowed is for Congress to introduce the proposed rule as a bill.

Medicine Show Proved Popular To People Here

The more than 400 people who attended the Old Time Medicine Show, presented through the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture last Monday night, found what they termed "good, wholesome" entertainment.

From magicians, to country music, to balancing acts and juggling and slapstick comedy, the fast-paced entertainment was topped off with a local talent contest, which was won by Jama Brown.

During intermission, the CoFC sold candy, much in the manner of the true old time medicine shows, and many of the sacks contained numbers, exchangeable for a multitude of prizes.

Survey Forms Were Considered By MAIF Group

If plans work out, the City of Muleshoe will be saturated with a survey form in the very near future, to determine present services, what people think is needed in Muleshoe and possible shortcomings in the city in the form of employment, housing and other things.

Thursday morning, the Muleshoe Area Industrial Foundation met with Ken Leggett, rural planner with the South Plains Association of Governments.

The group discussed the draft and suggested some additions and deletions to the survey forms which will be distributed to both residents and businesses.

He will meet with the MAIF group again on Thursday, May 3, to present another draft of the proposed survey.

Truckers Speak Out on De-Regulation

The U.S. trucking industry said regulations proposed by the Department of Labor to protect airline employees who are adversely affected by airline deregulation offer "a perfect example of how de-regulation can create a whole new layer of bureaucracy."

"Deregulation was supposed to get the government out of the airline industry. Instead, the government plans to become an unemployment service for the entire airline business with the taxpayers footing the bill," said Bennett C. Whitlock, president of American Trucking Associations.

The proposed Airline Employee Protection Program would provide all "protected" airline employees who lose their jobs or receive pay cuts because of airline deregulation with the "first right of hire" in their occupational specialty by any certificated air carrier. They also would receive monthly assistance payments of up to $1200, assistance in job searches and reimbursement for relocation expenses.

Among other things, dislocations are resulting from service cutbacks. A "protected" employee is defined as an individual who is employed by a certificated airline, has been employed for at least four continuous years by a single airline, and is not a member of the board of directors or an officer of a corporation.

"The extra red tape and paper work that will be generated by these regulations will be tremendously burdensome because all vacancies in the airline industry must be reported to the Department of Labor. The airlines then will be required to hire whomever the Department of Labor tells them to hire, superseding their own affirmative action programs and preferred systems of hiring," Whitlock said.

"Many labor and economics experts predict deregulation of the trucking and the only word for it is 'frightening.'"

The Airline Employees Protection Program would be administered on the federal level by the Employment and Training Administration and the Labor Management Services Administration, and by the unemployment security agency of each state. The Civil Aeronautics Board would determine whether the unemployment situation of each individual was caused by deregulation.

"This proposed program would involve three layers of bureaucracy, countless hours of staff time, reams of paperwork and red tape, and untold sums of taxpayers' money," Whitlock said. "It certainly indicates that 'deregulation' can be misleading and costly."

A Labor Department official said that the budget for the program is "still being worked on." But it is estimated that funding for the benefits alone would total many millions of dollars.

Whitlock pointed out that the relocation expenses would be especially costly. According to the proposed DOL regulations, eligible applicants would receive compensation for transportation, lodging and meals for a "pre-employment interview." In addition, the applicant would be reimbursed for expenses incurred while looking for a new residence. The applicant's husband or wife who helps with the house hunting also would receive payments.

The generous relocation assistance program would cover costs of meals and lodging while in transit and the cost of moving household goods.

In addition to moving expenses, a relocated employee who feels he or she has suffered a financial loss from selling a house or breaking a lease could apply for reimbursement of the full estimated loss.

"In these times of inflation, when government is supposed to pinching pennies, I find such a proposal unthinkable," Whitlock said.

handed to the American taxpayers might be," Whitlock said.

"The bed of roses that airline deregulation was touted to bring has simply never bloomed," he said.

The American Trucking Association, Inc. is the national trade association for the trucking industry.

Travel Study Slated Through Area College

A new dimension in travel study will be in the offering this summer for high school juniors and seniors interested in science when Dr. J. Hoyt Bowers of the Wayland Baptist College Science Department offers a course in Vertebrate Ecology for 17 and 18 year old students.

"What we have planned is a mini course involving a field trip to three separate areas of the Southwest-- all of which are decidedly different, with each one offering varied opportunities for study," said Bowers.

The trip, which will be limited to 14 participants, will be open to graduating seniors, and to current juniors who have filed for early entrance into college. Each should have taken a minimum of one hour in biology. Additionally, a permission letter from the student's principal and parents will be required, explained Bowers.

"We'll be traveling by van and pick-up truck," Bowers said. "Our plans are to leave June 1, traveling to Balmorhea, to Ft. Davis, and then to Cloudcroft. In each of these areas, we will be camping while we study amphibians, reptiles, and mammals. We'll also do some bird watching, but do not anticipate any bird collecting."

All of the locales to be studied offer unusual aspects, he added. Balmorhea, located near Big Bend area, offers the animal and plant life common to the upper Chihuahuan desert. Ft. Davis, located in the Davis mountains, is an intermediary area between the desert and the mountains, represented by Cloudcroft.

"One of the most interesting areas of ecology we will be observing involves how animals adapt to their environment," Bowers pointed out. "For example, the animals in the Carrizozo lava flow living amidst the dark colored lava rock are the color of their surroundings... Over in White Sands, which we will be visiting, the same species of animals are white in color--also blending with their 'home' environment."

He noted that the Cloudcroft area also offers another area of study-- that of the manner in which nature replaces itself following a major forest fire. Trees and plant life, wiped out a number of years ago in a large conflagration, are now growing back. The process is in different stages of growth at different locales.

"Another interesting stop for our students will be the International Hall of Fame, located in Alamogordo," Bowers said.

The course, designated as Biology 3451, will carry four hours college credit, and will cost $470.00 per student. Wayland will give a $100.00 scholarship to each participant. Thus the cost to each student will only be $370.00.

On Wall Street By Bob Hill

Encouraged by President Carter's continuing political vulnerability and convinced that a recession is imminent, California Gov. Edmund G. "Jerry" Brown, Jr. is gearing up to challenge Jimmy Carter head-on for the 1980 Presidential nomination.

Brown defeated Carter in all six primaries the two men contested during 1976, and Brown is getting in position to give it another try. Brown first arrived on the national scene as a conventional Democratic Liberal in 1974, a champion for the poor, minorities and organized labor. But, after serving as Governor, he has pushed through cuts in social programs, and is now ready to confront Carter as a born-again conservative who questions Carter's competence in foreign policy and his commitment to fiscal restraint.

Brown's advisors readily admit that his line of attack sound remarkable like GOP campaign themes of past years. On the domestic front, Brown has placed himself to the right of Carter on the inflation issue with his push to get a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget. Twenty-eight states have passed resolutions supporting the amendment, just six short of the 34 needed to convene a constitutional convention. Brown plans extensive tours of states where the issue is being debated. He also is considering creation of a national committee for a balanced budget that, most observers feel, could form the nucleus of a future campaign organization.

Brown's sudden switch to a balanced budget concept has alienated him with liberal and labor members of his political coalition. A former Brown ally believes that Brown is saying he can reach the Presidency without labor.

Should Brown decide to run, he will be supported by an energetic young staff that is considered bright, but lacking in national political experience. Thus far their efforts to gain support among New Hampshire voters has been noted for the clumsiness.

The Muleshoe Chapter of WIFE met Thursday at 7:30 in the 16th and Ave. D Church of Christ for their regular meeting. The meeting was called to order by President Jo Ann McGuire; and the program was turned over to Charles Aycock, of Aldridge, Harding, Aycock and Atkinson of Farwell. Mr. Aycock, a lawyer, told about present estate tax laws, and the importance of estate planning and drawing a will. A question and answer period followed his presentation.

After the informative program, WIFE conducted their regular business meeting. It was decided that in addition to the regular night business meetings that WIFE would meet at noon the first Tuesday of each month for a sack lunch and letter writing session. These sessions will begin in May. Stationery will be provided but bring your own stamps. There are presently four bills in the Texas legislature that need the support of area residents. Joyce McGeehee was appointed to be in charge of mailing the state WIFE newsletter to each member

The Texas WIFE House Beautiful package winners will be drawn at the State Steering Committee meeting in Plainview April 21. Refreshments were served to Jo Ann McGuire, Elsie Williams, June Saylor, Joyce McGeehee, Coralyn Jarman, Jo McCray, Jane McManis, Launette Mason, Margret Kimbrough, Christine Ivy, Eunice Bales, Mildred James, Carelean Hamilton and guest speaker Charles Aycock.

Being too shy may be a handicap

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — Being too shy can have serious consequences, a University of Texas speech teacher says.

While talkative persons tend to be rated more positively, Dr. John Daly says shy people often are evaluated negatively by teachers, job interviewers and even their peers. He has found that such non-talkers are seen as being less attractive socially, less likely to do well in school and harder to train in work situations.

However, Dr. Daly says shy persons are needed for many jobs that require little communication. "Where shy people have a hard time in first impressions," he notes, "but once they get past that they generally do okay."

Two men were discussing their status in life. "I started out on the theory that the world had an opening for me," said one. "And you found it?" asked the other. "Well, rather," replied the first, "I'm in the hole now."

Mrs. Bartholf Gave Review For Study Club

Charlene Bartholf presented a book review on "Confessions of a Happy Christian" by Zeg Zigler for the Muleshoe Study Club on April 12 in the home of Sena Stevens with Levina Pitts as hostess. Blanche Johnson gave a report of the book sale held recently at the Muleshoe Area Public Library. The club made $215 from the sale and will donate the money to the library for new books.

Members of the club answering roll call with a book they had read were Vivian White, Mildred Neely, Izetta Shain, Beatrice Blackburn, Louise Agee, Alma Turner, Charlene Bartholf, Blanche Johnson, Betty Carpenter, Henrietta Pummill, Levina Pitts and Sena Stevens.

It was out on the rifle range, and the green recruits were curdling the blood of the tough old Army rifle instructor. He stomped over to the prone form of one rookie whose misses were nothing short of spectacular.

"Son, where the blazes are your shots going?" the sergeant bellowed in his finest tones.

The rookies looked up innocently. "I dunno, sir," he replied. "They're leaving this end all right."

Spouse Abuse In Texas At Major Proportions

An estimated 80 percent of the spouse abuse cases in Texas go unreported -- primarily due to fear of reprisal.

This was one of the findings of a study conducted by the Criminal Justice Center at Sam Houston State University. Dr. Raymond H.C. Teske Jr., Director of the Survey Research Program, said his conservative estimate is that 483,000 women and 88,000 men in Texas have been abused at some time by a spouse.

His figures indicate that 208,000 women may have experienced abuse within the past 18 months, with 97,500 of that number being subjected to "serious" physical abuse. The 18 month estimates for men is 37,000, with 17,000 cases considered "serious". Teske's estimates are derived from a random survey of 1,500 Texans conducted by research assistant James S. Stachura, under Teske's direction. A total of 682 persons from 138 counties returned completed questionnaires.

The study was unusual in that prior studies involved only those who reported the abuse to some social service agency. Prior studies were also limited in their concentration on abuse directed against women.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek comes up with some wry suggestions this week.

Dear editor:

I hope I've got this down right. As I understand it one of the big problems with nuclear energy is disposing of the radiation-contaminated waste that results. It is not like carrying out ashes from the fireplace.

There is no safe place to put it. They have tried burying it in barrels, but the barrels rust and the stuff is released into the ground. They have tried dumping it in the ocean but that ruins the fish. They are thinking of putting it in salt caves deep underground but nobody is sure that will work throughout eternity, since the government has not taken a survey on how long eternity will last.

I think maybe I know what to do with atomic waste. I read just last week that HEW threw a party and said it cost $15,000. Somebody in the organization said no, it cost at least $100,000, but when reporters asked for an itemized statement, nobody at HEW could find it. And a while earlier the head of HEW said it wastes around five billion dollars a year, but nobody knows where. And not even Congress knows what Congress wastes.

There is the answer to atomic waste. Turn it over to the people who cover up government waste. It will never be seen again. There is no way of getting at it. When you want to cover up waste, atomic or governmental, turn it over to the experts.

Changing the subject, I want to know how far electricity can travel down a wire. Specifically, can it travel from Alaska down to the rest of the United States? If it can, how come we are pumping oil down a nine-billion-dollar pipeline to a ship, pumping it aboard, hauling it to the west coast, then pumping it out there to generate electricity?

Couldn't we build generating plants in Alaska right up near the oil wells, produce electricity there, and send it by wire to the rest of the nation? Can't you string a highline a lot cheaper than you can lay a pipeline? Wouldn't the wild moose be no more offended by the former than the latter?

There must be something wrong with this idea or somebody would have thought of it a long time ago. Wish you would have the research staff of The Journal tell me what it is. Yours faithfully, J.A.

The most prevalent type of abuse acknowledged by persons who said they had been victims of spouse abuse was pushing or shoving, followed by slapping, striking with fist, assault while pregnant and striking with object.

Some 26.9 percent of the victims also checked "other," listing abuses as verbal or mental harassment, choking, threats with knife or acid, scratching or pulling hair, biting, kept from sleeping and extramarital affairs.

Teske said that a significant indication of the problems of identifying and combatting spouse abuse was that only 20 percent of the victims indicated that they had called the police for help.

"Many of those who did not call the police made it clear through their written comments that they thought that reporting the abuse would only have caused more violence by upsetting the spouse," said Teske.

While not wanting to involve police in most cases, over two-thirds of the victims did not try to fight back or defend themselves. Many of those who did not also said they thought it would have only made matters worse.

Another significant area of questioning concerned cause of abuse with victims allowed to list any cause which came to mind. Drinking or alcoholism was listed by 30.1 percent of the victims. Others included depression, lack of self esteem, instability, emotional problems (10.8%); temper (10.8%); jealousy (9.7%); and financial problems, stress and work problems (each 6.5%).

Another question asked more directly about alcohol, and 61.3 percent of the victims said that attacks took place either occasionally, usually, or all the time when a spouse was drinking. One of every four victims said "all the time."

"It is clear that victims perceive alcohol as a major factor in their situations along with other variables," said Teske. "Alcohol may then be a spark which sets off the abuse."

Another section of the questionnaire attempted to determine the validity of the "cycle of violence" theory, in which it is believed that abusive behavior is modeled or imitated and passed through successive generations.

Almost half of the victims reported that they had heard or seen their mother or father being abused. A number of the victims did not know whether there had been physical abuse between their spouse's parents, but 31.3 percent said they knew of such abuse taking place.

Almost three of every five victims said they had been physically disciplined by parents, and over two of every five said their abusing spouse had been so disciplined.

Several of the victims wrote that their being physically disciplined should not be construed as abuse, and that the question of parental discipline was not applicable to their present situation as victims of spouse abuse.

Senator Speaks Out Against Stability Bill

Speaking out against a bill (S 349) to extend the life of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, Sen. John Tower today said the legislation would result in a 300 percent increase in the funding for the Council so that it could carry out the President's wage-price guidelines. "Those guidelines are unwise, unworkable, and the forerunner of mandatory controls," Tower declared.

Tower said he felt justified in being skeptical about statements from the White House that mandatory controls will not be sought.

"In September, 1977, I asked the President for clarification regarding his intentions to seek mandatory controls or voluntary wage and price guidelines. I was assured at that time that the President had ruled out mandatory controls. But, the White House also stated in writing to me that 'It is our judgment that a program under which the Federal Government promulgates formal numerical guidelines such as those of the early 1960's would not be a desirable or effective remedy for inflation.' Yet, one year later the President imposed such guidelines."

The senior Texas senator also criticized the mandatory nature of the guidelines through threats of imposition of sanctions against business firms found in non-compliance. "Administration spokesmen already appear to be following the script toward mandatory controls by blaming business, and the public, for the failure of the guidelines to effectively slow down inflation. They are even including the small businessman in this latest indictment, saying that new enforcement procedures will include the smaller firms of the nation."

Tower observed further that the Council on Wage and Price Stability has appeared to be willing to relax the wage guidelines

George Meany, AFL-CIO President:
"Firms are engaged in 'profit-gouging' at the expense of the working man and woman."

for the Teamsters Union in its negotiations with the trucking industry for a new work contract, while at the same time taking a tougher stance on prices.

"According to the Council's Director, Barry Bosworth, the price standards have been 'too lenient'. This statement was being made at the same time that the wage standard was being relaxed for the Teamsters. All of this raises serious questions over the Administration's intentions to administer the guidelines fairly and the appropriateness of using the 'voluntary' guidelines in a way that resembles mandatory controls."

Tower said the answer to solving inflation lies in the form of a balanced budget, a moderate rate of growth in money and credit, the elimination of inflationary federal legislation, postponement of scheduled increases in the minimum wage, and the removal of tax and regulatory burdens which discourage private investment in job-creating capital.

Bud Shuster, Congressman (R-Pa):

"The American people have a right to know that it is the Republicans who support a constitutional limit on federal spending."

PAYS IN PENNIES

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. -- Paul A. Southland was so angry when tax collector Thomas Moon refused to accept a personal check for $120.16 that he gave the tax collector a lot more than just a penny for his thoughts. Instead, he gave him 12,016 of them for his tax bill.

Wildlife Habitat Becomes Texas Crop

Wildlife habitat in West Texas could provide an alternative "crop" for farmers threatened by declining underground water resources -- if landowners want to lease hunting rights.

Researchers with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service and Texas Tech University report that the leasing of hunting rights could provide substantial supplemental income for farmers in the area.

The tourism industry and the general public might also benefit through recreational opportunities and the added amenities, without significant demand on ground water resources.

Project leader for the research is Dr. Fred A. Stormer, scientist in the Great Plains Wildlife Research Laboratory of the Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station. The laboratory is located at Texas Tech University.

Stormer sees a new future already for the South Plains, where much research to date has been concentrated. Playa lakes, which provide as much as a quarter million surface acres of water when weather conditions permit, provide an environment for approximately one million migratory game birds, representing about 20 species, he explained. These and other birds as well as big game animals could provide additional recreational hunting. The lease of hunting rights frequently returns $1 to $3 per acre per year to landowners and, in special circumstances, as much as $20 per acre. These values justify looking at wildlife as a resource base, Stormer said. Overall mortality rates for game are not expected to increase significantly with regulated game harvesting because hunting preempts natural mortality with many game species.

In cooperation with the Forest Service laboratory, Texas Tech's College of Agricultural Sciences researchers have been studying the ecology of the region since 1977. Target animals for the research have included waterfowl, ring-necked pheasant, mule deer and pronghorn antelope.

Migration and movement patterns, food site selection and other features were explored with the help of telemetry, a radio tracking system. Researchers attach small, matchbook-size transmitters to the animals to study behavior by remote monitoring.

In addition to economic return, there are other benefits from wildlife habitat management, Stormer said. Research into the potential benefits is essential to deriving practical decisions for land management alternatives for the future.

There are many interesting and popular beliefs and legends surrounding the bobwhite quail in Texas and many of these cherished beliefs actually hamper an adequate harvest of the birds.

The mere mention of bobwhite quail at the barber shop, local meeting place for sportsmen or the cafe will begin a flurry of questions and stories concerning the welfare of this well-liked game bird.

A popular belief is that a pair of bobwhites will rear more than one brood in a year under ideal conditions. It is a rather common sight to see two ages of young quail with a pair of adults. This makes one think that the pair hatched two broods of young. Most of these young birds ages are normally less than three weeks apart, thus making it impossible for them to be offspring of the same pair of parents.

Chances for a pair of quail to raise two or more clutches a year are very slim as quail are gallinaceous birds. They scratch the ground for food, are rather long-legged for rapid mobility, and brood their young. This last characteristic is the key factor in discounting the second hatch of young.

Once a gallinaceous bird

(bobwhite) has successfully incubated a clutch of eggs (they might re-nest several times if disturbed), their only objective is to teach their young, to furnish protection, and provide them with food. When this is accomplished, even for a single chick, their instinctive desire has been fulfilled for the season and their attention reverts to other activities.

Many times, the sighting of what is believed to be a covey with two age classes of young is the result of close association of more than one covey at places such as feeding and resting area. A disturbance can cause young quail to mix with another covey for a period of time, sometimes permanently.

Since it is irrefutable that quail seek covey companions, it is not unusual for two flocks of birds to be found together.

It is ironic that many people should become so alarmed about predators such as house cats, owls, snakes, skunks and hawks catching a few birds and so passive about complete brush clearing, over-grazing, indiscriminate use of herbicides, and other activities which literally annihilate quail habitat destruction. Everyone should remember that if the quail's habitat is adequate, they can thrive very well. Even though the natural "turnover" of quail means that 70 to 80 percent of the birds die during their first year after hatching, there are many causes which contribute to quail mortality and the quail hunter is among the least significant of these.

Bobwhite quail are an annual product of the land and the numbers of quail present each year are directly proportional to adequate food and cover requirements. Closing the hunting season and releasing pen-raised broodstock have both been discredited as solutions to strengthening quail populations.

As the carrying capacity of the land (food and cover) for quail diminishes, the number of birds also will diminish, whether hunted or not. Quail, like other game birds, cannot be stockpiled from one season to the next.

So, the next time someone mentions quail mortality, don't forget to add lack of cover, food shortages, automobiles, fire, and weather among the major causes of the birds demise.

PROVISION IN THE CHURCH
The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Pioneer Gas Gives Offshore Gas Report

At the Company's Annual Meeting held in Amarillo, April 17, Pioneer Corporation President K.B. Watson announced that first sales of production from offshore drilling operations, in which Pioneer has an interest, are anticipated within 60 days.

A wholly owned subsidiary, Pioneer Production Corporation, owns varying interests in nine blocks of federal offshore leases in the Gulf of Mexico and five blocks in the Southeast Georgia Embayment. Additionally, Pioneer Production holds varying interests in six other blocks by farm-in.

Initial gross sales from this first producing Gulf of Mexico block, Vermilion 25, Watson said, will be in the range of 30 million cubic feet of natural gas per day, with an ultimate producing capacity of 180 million cubic feet per day. Another block, Vermilion 310, is being developed from two platforms with first production anticipated to commence in the first quarter of 1980 at an initial rate of 100 million cubic feet per day, Watson said. The net production attributable to Pioneer from the first five offshore blocks will be about 22 million cubic feet per day. And when Vermilion 25 achieves its ultimate producing rate, this rate will increase to 40 million cubic feet per day, Watson said. Watson said production from offshore wells qualifies for "new gas" price under the Natural Gas Policy Act which is currently $2.13 per thousand cubic feet and will be about $2.50 per Mcf when full production is achieved. E.S. Morris, senior vice president of Pioneer Corporation, and president of the Company's producing subsidiaries, Amarillo Oil Company and Pioneer Production Corporation, told the stockholders that Pioneer Production is a 10 percent participant in a group evaluating two additional federal lease sales scheduled for July and November of this year.

Watson reported to the stockholders that another wholly owned subsidiary, Pioneer Uranium, Inc. has filed an application for a joint venture 1,000 ton per day uranium mill in an area near Grand Junction, Colorado. If mill licensing proceeds as expected, Watson said, construction of the project could begin in early 1980.

At the Annual Meeting, all incumbent directors were re-elected and, at a meeting of the Board following the stockholders meeting, all of the current officers were returned to their present positions. Additionally, H.J. Wall, assistant director, engineering and transmission for Pioneer Natural Gas Company, was elected a vice president by the Board.

Pioneer Corporation, through subsidiaries, explores for and produces gas, oil, uranium, and natural gas liquids. Other subsidiaries are engaged in, contract drilling for oil and gas, manufacturing and worldwide distribution of oilfield equipment, and domestic and international sales of heavy construction equipment. Pioneer Natural Gas Company, the utility division, serves natural gas customers in the Panhandle and High Plains of Texas.
