Border Town Days kick off

The 28th annual Border Town Days celebration kicks off Saturday in the Twin Cities. Here are some of the highlights:

Giveaways

This year's major giveaway will be a new pickup truck sponsored by the Texico Volunteer Fire Department. Tickets cost $20 and are available at local businesses. The winning ticket will be drawn at 5 p.m. at the Farwell city park. You don't have to be present to win.

A highlight will be the 13th annual Merchants' Giveaway in which 38 merchants will be giving away prizes throughout the afternoon, starting at 1 p.m. cdt. You must be present to win.

Commemorative buttons are sold as the key fund-raiser for BT.D. At 4:45 p.m., a drawing will be held. The person whose name is called, if he or she is present, wins $50. Each button is numbered on the back for this purpose.

Arts & Crafts

Coordinator Lynne Mahaney reports a record number of BT.D arts and crafts booths this year - 36. All feature homemade goods.

Volleyball Tournament

The 2nd annual volleyball tournament will feature six-man teams. Women can play on men's teams.

If at least four women's teams sign up, a women's tourney will be held, too.

The tourney will start at 3 p.m. cdt. It will use a new format - Rally Volleyball. Under this format, a point is scored each time the ball is served. There will be no time limits because the games will go quicker.

Last year, 10 men's teams entered. If the same amount enters this time, T-shirts will be given to the top two or three teams.

The cost is $40 per team. To sign up, contact Richard Carpenter at 225-4055 or Byron Mayfield at (505) 683-5229.

Concessions

Coordinator Cynthia Thigpen reports a wide variety of concessionaires have signed up, led by the Big Barbeque put on by the Texico-Farwell Rotary Club.

Other goodies include homemade ice cream, hot dogs, fajitas, baked goods, popcorn, cotton candy and hamburgers.

Bicycle Contest

The decorated bicycle contest will be held at 9:45 a.m. cdt on Anderson Street, directly west of Texico City Hall. The street will be closed to traffic. The deadline for entering is today (Friday).

Charlie Phillips

The Farwell Convalescent Center Auxiliary will again

Commissioners tour potential annex sites

The Parmer County Commissioners Monday visited four potential sites for a county annex in Friona.

They visited the sites that had been suggested at the previous meeting by Teresa Buske, Chamber of Commerce executive director, and Bill McCoy, Chamber president.

The sites were: 1) 715 Main; 914 Main; 610 11th St., and the former Hurst Department Store building (quite a bit larger than the other three).

It appears that the commissioners are leaning toward the building at 610 11th St., currently Cattle Finance. It's owned by Billy Wayne Sisson and has 1,700 sq. ft. One office is currently being used.

County Judge Bonnie Clayton reported that the commissioners found the Cattle Finance building in very good condition while the other sites would need more work in order to make them into the kind of offices needed.

The commissioners made no decisions following the tour. There are two parts to the next step:

1) A look at the costs involved.

2) A problem involving the county tax assessor - collector's office. In a nutshell, the state is computerizing much of this office's workload.

There is a question on whether the state will allot

The Chief's Corner

by Farwell Police Chief Roy McGaa

The Fourth Amendment prevents the police from charging into someone's home or arresting them because they think a crime has been committed. They must have probable cause, and many times that probable cause is information received from the public.

Keeping a lid on crime is never accomplished by the police alone, it always takes the support of the community. By the same token, I have known communities where the citizens were fed up with crime but were unable to get the police of their southern posteriors.

Only when there is teamwork between the police and the community will crime be kept to a minimum. How much is too much crime? In the first 12 months of the Farwell Police Department's existence, citizens of Farwell were hit by crime against persons or property once every four days. That statistic doesn't mean anything to the victim of a crime, for them crime is personal. And, keep in mind that we are only talking about the crimes that were reported; many are not.

When a community gets involved in their security and when the police give full support to the community, criminals take a beating. When this happens the community develops a reputation in criminal circles. It then becomes a good idea to pick another town that is a little more tolerant of bad guys. The citizen / peace officer team works.

Next week: Neighborhood watch and why criminals hate it.

Hello again, Has everyone heard about our new flower bed? If you haven't seen it, please come by and tell us what you think of it. I would like to thank Joe Ray, a resident, and Jessie Galaviz, maintenance assistant, my husband Rick and my daughter Tiffany for helping me.

Well, we finally did it. On the 23rd, my assistant JoAnn and I finally had our first outing together. We took 8 residents to the Clovis zoo. We took our time walking around, enjoying the animals and the fresh air. Afterwards, we had a nice sack lunch in the park. Residents worked up such an appetite that some of them even had seconds. Thank you, Lupe Vidaurri and dietary staff, for making our lunches.

On July 26, we had our Pet Therapy. Marge Woods from the Clovis zoo brought in a mountain lion cub. He was 4 weeks old. Of all the animals she has brought to share with us, this one takes the cake. The cub was so precious. We all fell in love with him. Was it his cute face or that little ROAR sound he made. Who knows? We just fell for him. Thank you, Marge and the Clovis zoo, for giving us the opportunity to see and touch such beautiful wild animals.

On the 29th, we will be having our Birthday Party.

We also are getting ready for the Border Town Days Parade. Hope to see you there.

Til next time ... so long.

Fire Calls

The Farwell ambulance was called out three times last week.

On July 20, it was called at 10:43 p.m. to 205 4th St. to take a person to Muleshoe hospital.

On July 22 at 11:19 a.m., it was called 5 1/2 miles east on U.S. 60 to take a person to Clovis hospital.

On July 23 at 9:08 a.m. it was called to the Farwell Convalescent Center. No transport was made.

Texico's ambulance was called out twice.

On July 23, they were called to the Farwell Convalescent Center to assist a person, who had difficulty breathing. Farwell's ambulance also arrived.

Bank to place photos on credit cards

Beginning next week, Bank of America customers in Farwell will have the option of placing a color photograph of themselves and their signature on the form of their Bank Americard, Master Card or Visa Credit cards.

The new photo cards are designed to help reduce bank card fraud, which Bank of America says cost the card industry more than $1 billion in 1993. Almost half of their loss occurs from lost or stolen cards and another 20 percent occurs from cards stolen in the mail.

Customers may obtain the free photo card free by going to the Farwell branch, 203 Ave. D, to have their photos taken.

The photo process takes just a few minutes to complete. Customers receive their photo cards in the mail in 3 to 4 weeks.

The photo, approximately three - fourths of an inch square, is printed on the card and placed on the left side of the front of the card, alongside the customer's digitized signature.

Buses available, so Texico takes no action on crossing

The Texico City Council Tuesday discussed whether they could take any action to make Wheeler Avenue (the highway) safer for youths who cross it from the south side of town to go to school.

Deputy Marshal Larry Garrison said youths are having to dodge vehicles to cross Wheeler and asked whether a "slow down" sign might be appropriate.

And councilwoman Carolyn Burrows said a resident called her about the danger, too.

But Marshal Gil Holguin reported he had talked with school Supt. R.L. Richards about the situation. Richards said school buses are being provided for the area south of Wheeler, according to state law, and no school student has to walk across the highway.

So it was the council's consensus that there was nothing it could do.

In other business, the council:

Contracted with an Albuquerque firm for the 1993-94 audit, for $2,094.

Heard city clerk Marie Christian report the Joint Powers Agreement has been received from the state to allow the purchase of plants and trees for Lions Park. The $850 state grant had been announced last month. Planting probably will take place this fall.

Texico lady is partner in new company

by Judy Pomper

Texico resident Nancy Workman has quite a job cut out for her - she is trying to work up a design for a comfortable and practical bra for larger busted ladies.

"I've been sewing for the last 15 years, and two years ago a friend of mine came to me with an idea - the need for a bra for big busted women," said Mrs. Workman.

She and her friend formed a company, Larae Lee Designs, and they began to do some homework. Mrs. Workman continued to do sewing and alteration jobs from her home to help support the project.

During the past two years Nancy and her partner began by doing some research on the project.

While taking a course at a local college, Nancy interviewed several ladies to find out what they are looking for when they purchase undergarments. The complaints the ladies expressed included: underwire discomfort, cup size and shape, width of shoulder straps, size of back straps, and comfort of closings. She discovered that placement of underwiring or boning can also greatly affect the comfort of the garment.

Mrs. Workman wrote a report summarizing her findings for the class she took, and used it to seek financing for the project. The partners have also visited lingerie stores to see what is currently on the market. They visited every single store they could looking at designs.

"As of yet I have not seen anything close to the design we've come up with - not even down in Dallas," said Mrs.

Workman. "Hopefully by the end of the year we'll have one." Then they will begin the process of manufacturing a bra themselves.

"We're going to start mainly with cottons because cotton breathes and absorbs moisture, so it should help with sweating," she said. The ladies are also in the process of testing various types of underwire, boning and supporting materials.

"We're probably going to try round wire," she said.

Years ago, Howard Hughes put the engineers of Hughes Aircraft to work on just such a project. They designed a bra which was quite advanced compared to many of the other designs on the market at the time. In the past 30 years or so there have been many, many new materials and designs devised to support a woman's bustline. Styles have changed, too. There are new stretch laces and elasticized fabrics. There are also a wide variety of colors and fabrics on the market which were not available years ago.

"We'll also go into maternity bras," said Mrs. Workman. New mothers often need added support while they are nursing.

"There's nothing pretty available - they come in white, beige, and black," she said of the maternity bras. She would like to see more color and variety for maternity bras. "This is a matter of trial and error she noted."

Until the bra designing business is complete, Nancy will continue to sew and to make alterations. She has turned one of the bedrooms of the Workman home, 900 Lamar St., into a sewing room.

Nancy and Stan Workman moved to Texico in December. Their son Robert will attend Texico High School in the fall.

Chamber votes to buy new Border Town Days pennants

The Farwell Chamber of Commerce Tuesday voted to buy new pennants to place over the highway during Border Town Days.

The Chamber also discussed ways to help with promotion of local businesses during the annual Allsup's Cutting Horse competitions in September at El Cid Ranch on FM 3333.

A committee of Dr. Nancy Chasteen, Fred Chandler and Mike Pomper will work on this. Suggestions included coupon books, programs, a sign, leaflets, and advertising to let visitors who come to the Futurity know what services and businesses are available in Farwell.

The Chamber also discussed Christmas On Parade. It will be held on Nov. 19. Businesses will host their annual Christmas Open Houses that day. The Chamber voted not to sponsor an arts and crafts show this year during Christmas on Parade.

A committee made up of Joe Jones, Larry Cochran and Anne Norton was asked to look into getting signs for Loop 289 with its proposed new unofficial name - Aldridge Drive.

The fund-raising golf tournament which was proposed for this fall was postponed until later. Jack Allen Kirkland is in charge of this event.

Nancy Workman completes a skirt on her sewing machine.

Nancy Workman's surger uses a variety of types of threads to complete a project.

Redwine placed first in 1993 and 1994 and third in 1992 in computer science at state UIL. Also, she qualified for the state meet in 1993 and 1994 in literary criticism. She also participated in UIL Number Sense, Basketball, Track and Cross Country.

Vick Christian featured in 'Co-op Connection'

Vick Christian of Farwell was featured in a "Co-Op Connection" story in the August 1994 issue of the West Texas Rural Telephone Co-op's newsletter.

The article tells about the dwarf apple trees that Vick and Todd Christian planted. Author Jim Steiert said the Christians have planted 1/12 acre of their farm with 20 different varieties of apple trees.

The operation includes a drip irrigation system, V-trellis system and netting to protect the trees from hail. The apples can be picked by hand, and they do not need to be re-planted each year, so the initial investment may be offset by less need for planting and harvesting equipment.

Farwell, Texico bands to march in BTD parade

Both the Farwell Steer Band and the Texico Wolverine Band will march in the Border Town Days Parade on Saturday.

Texico Band students will have summer rehearsals July 25 - 29 at the Texico Band room from 9 - 10:30 a.m. mdt.

Band students who will be in grades 7- 12 will participate.

"These are short rehearsals, and students are asked to come to as many of these days as possible," said Simmons.

Farwell Band Director Pat

Henry encouraged all band students in grades 7-12 to participate.

Because of advanced preparation, the band will not meet until the day of the parade. They will practice from 9 a.m. until parade time on Saturday.

A bus will be provided to take participants to the start of the parade route.

"If band members need to check out a school owned instrument, come at 8:30 a.m." said Henry.

Those participating are asked to wear school colors, blue and white.

Farwell Schools' additions going well

The additions to the Farwell School complex are scheduled to be ready for use this fall when school starts.

Current Farwell School Board members are: Steven Kaltwasser, president; Katherine White, secretary, Tom Nichols, Teresa Ancira, Charles Christian, David Norton and Ronald Byrd. Richard Boothby is the superintendent, and the building contractor is Jimmy Taylor.

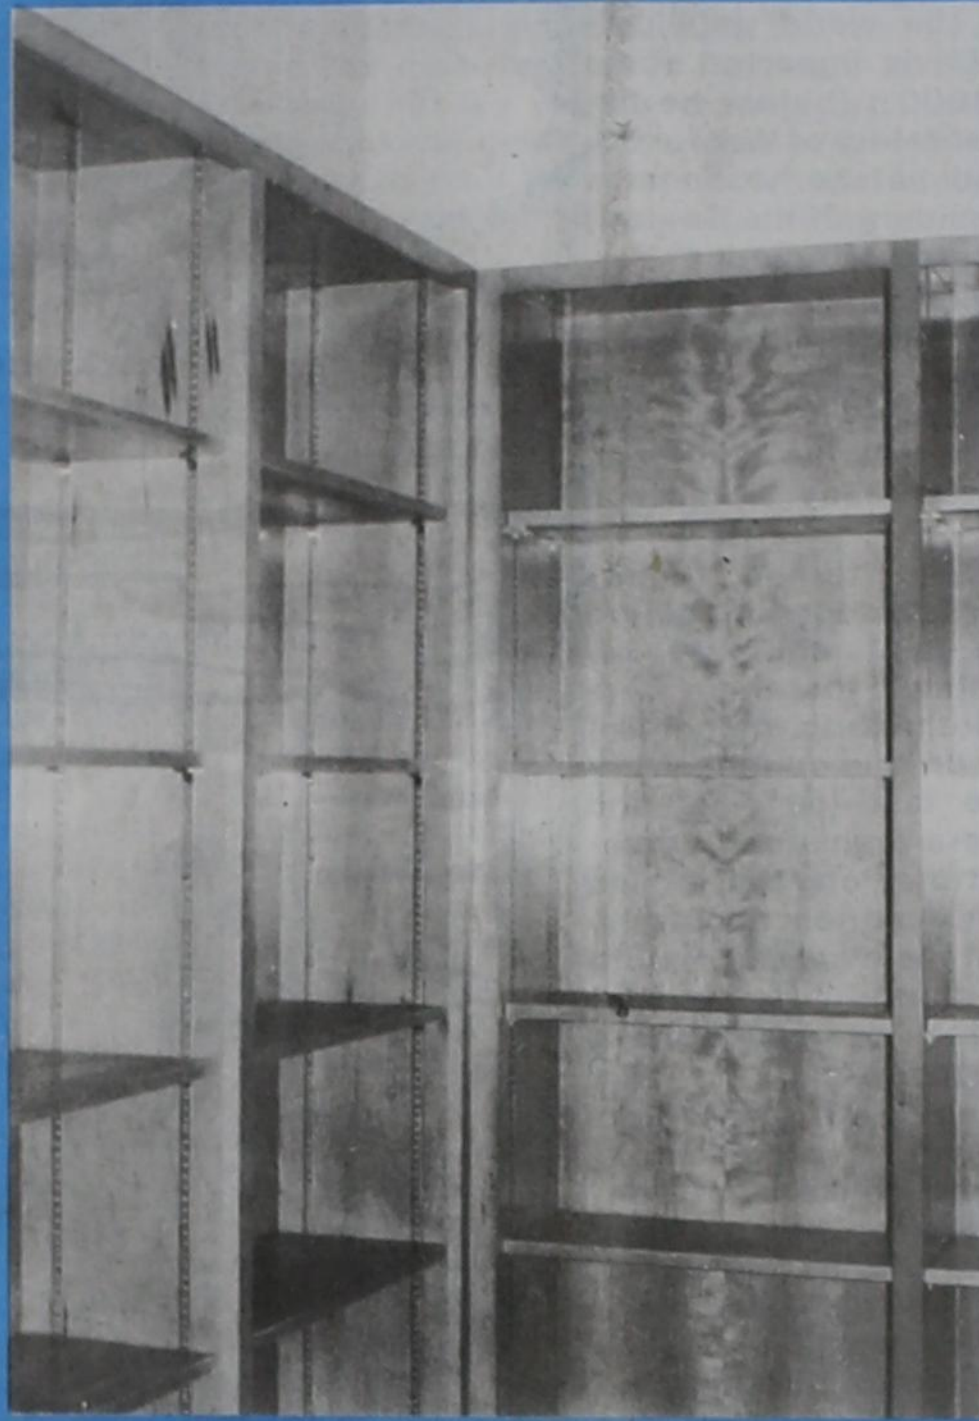

Work is under way on the new gym at Farwell High School.

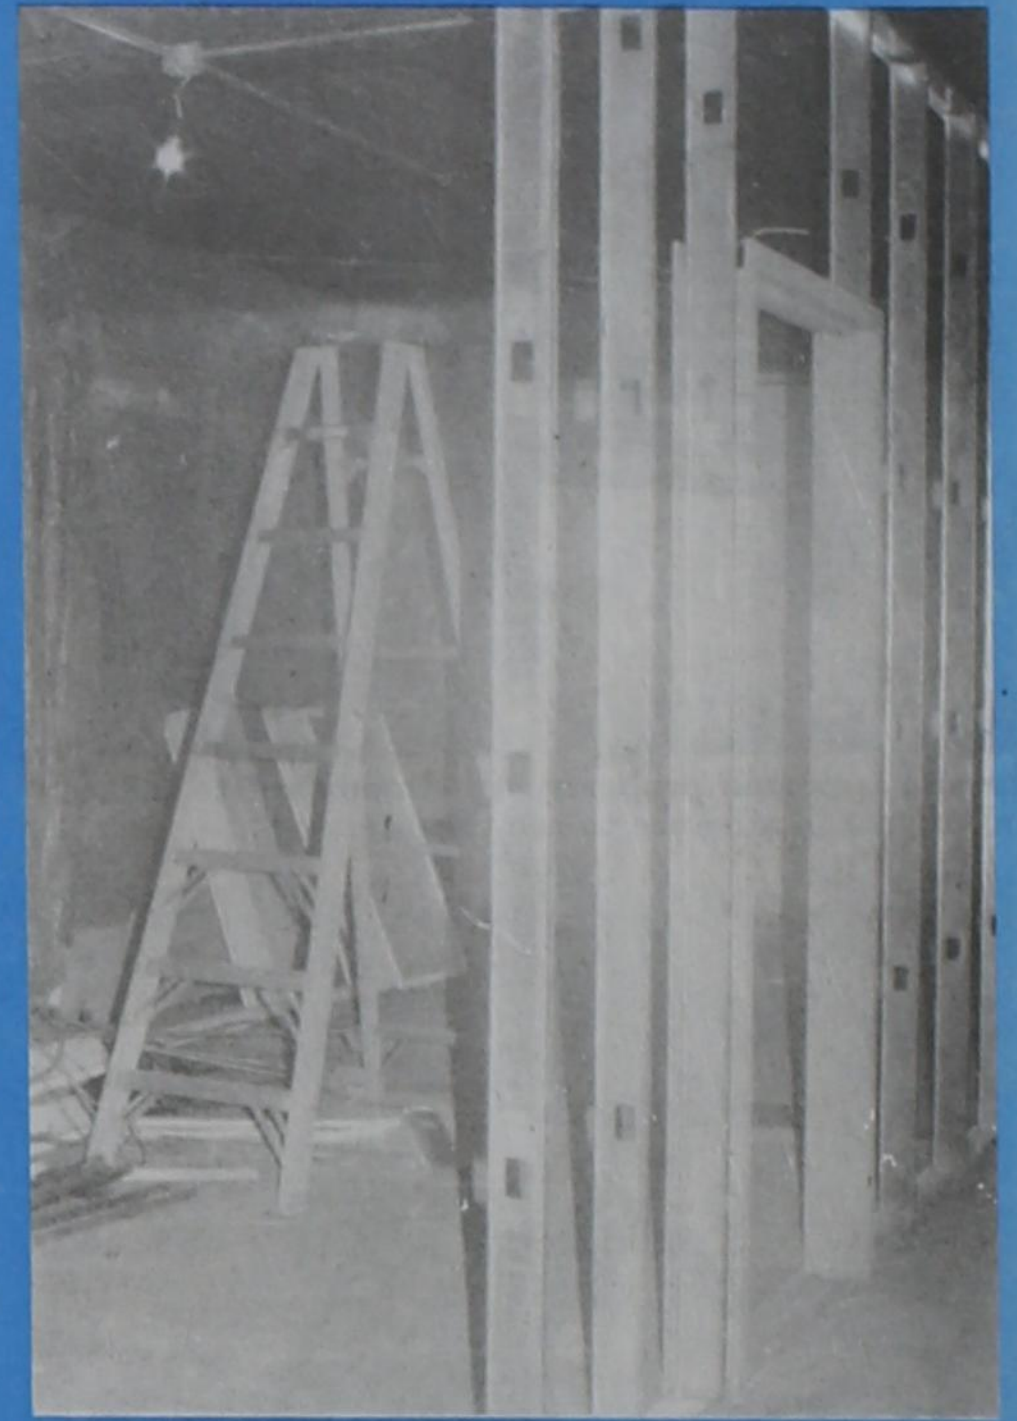

The masonry has been repaired on the drinking fountain at the Farwell Elementary School playground. It awaits the plumbing connection.

Chris Sena applies plaster under the guard rail in the new gym.

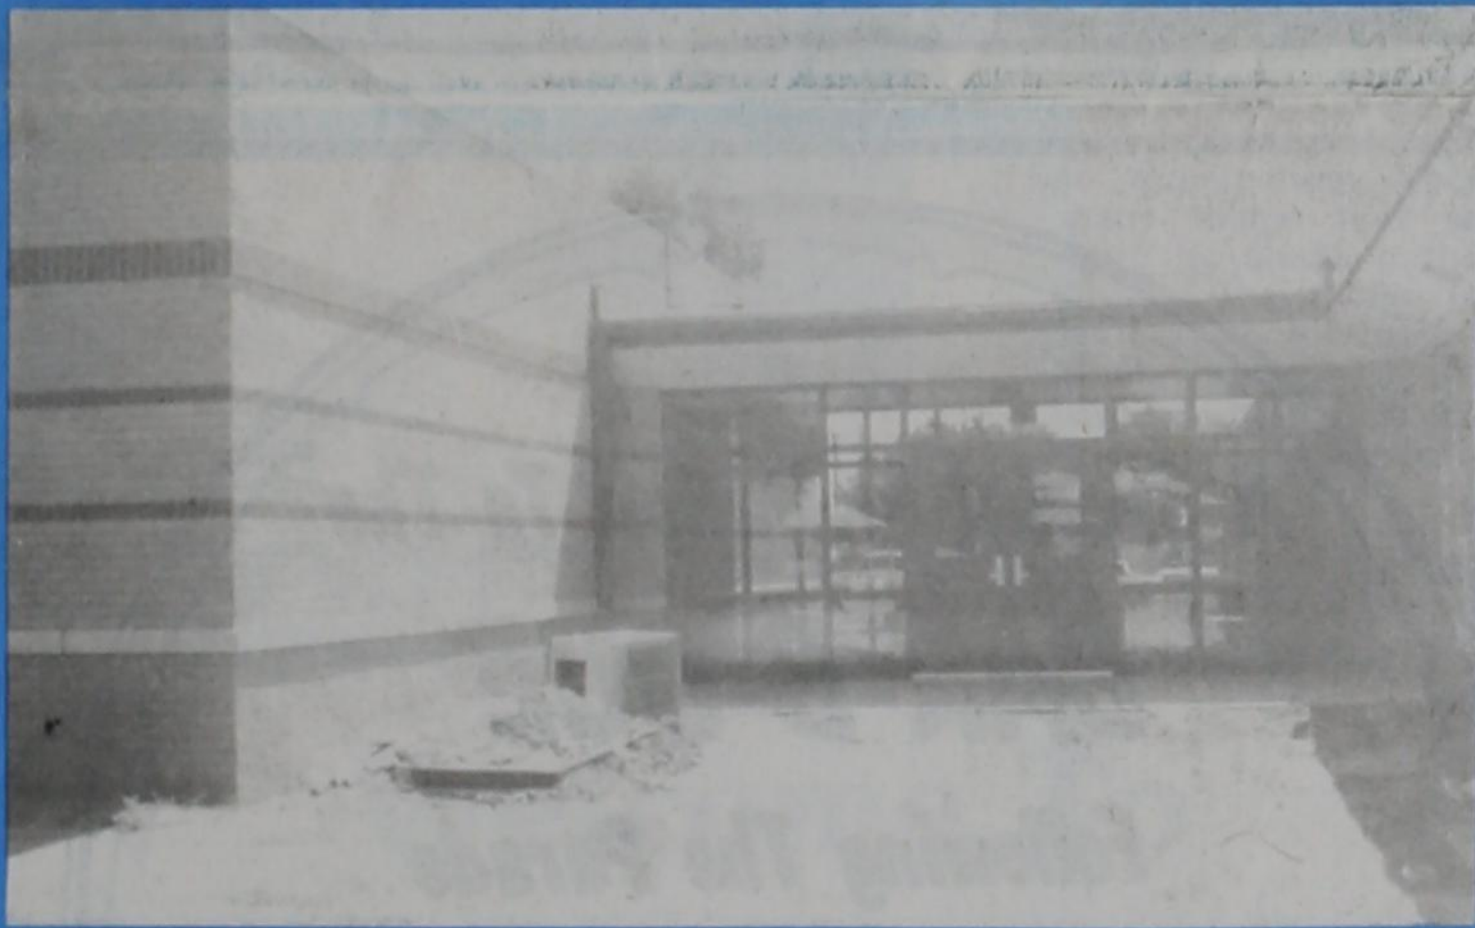

Wooden bookshelves line a new book storage room.

Metal wall studs will hold the dividing wall in the Farwell Elementary school's office area. The area had been the elementary library.

Blackwater Draw: a bit of history

by Judy Pomper

The tiny Blackwater Draw Museum north of Portales draws people from all over the world - partly because it is so near to Cannon Air Force Base which is home to airmen from many parts of the country, and partly because it houses a collection of archaeological artifacts from one of the longest excavated Paleo Indian sites in world.

On April 1, for instance, there were visitors from Minnesota, Iowa, Montana, and Texas. There was even one visiting student who is studying underwater archaeology at the University of California.

The archaeological dig site across from the museum is world famous in archaeological circles. It was home for Clovis Man about 11,000 years ago.

The site is posted property, it is important to make arrangements in advance to see the site.

Museum curator Matt Hillsman, points to a position on this map as he talks about the earliest settlers in this area.

Archaeology - an interesting science

From Judy Pomper's article: Recently, I interviewed the curator of the Blackwater Draw Museum in Portales. Since I haven't studied anthropology in the past 30 years, I was interested to hear what he had to say about the archaeological site and about new developments in the field of archaeology.

When I got back to the office and read the brochure I had picked up at Blackwater Draw. I wanted to call the curator up and say, "I found a mistake, I found a mistake!"

The brochure said that woolly mammoth, camel, horse, bison, sabertooth tiger and dire wolf remains had been found at the site. I was all ready to call him up and say, "Camels didn't come to this part of the world until Jefferson Davis imported some in the 1800's (before he became Secretary of War for the U.S., and before he became Vice President of the Confederate States of America)."

I also wanted to say that horses weren't introduced to the New World until the Spanish arrived - about 1520 in this part of the continent. Boy, I was ready to tell him off.

Luckily, I turned to my trusty encyclopedia before I made that call. My research shows that there were some prehistoric camel-like animals on this continent before the last Ice Age, and there were prehistoric horse-like critters on the plains of North America about the time that the woolly mammoth roamed these parts. At that time horses seemed to have died out in Europe.

Archaeologists look at pieces of pottery, stone tools, bones and trinkets left behind by human beings. They try to guess what they mean, and how they got to the place where they were found. They make educated guesses, but they are guesses all the same.

On my desk today I have a delightful figurine that a sorority sister gave me for Easter. It shows a darling little bunny peaking out of a cabbage leaf at a mother bunny dressed in a long dress and bonnet. The cabbage plant can be used as a candy dish or a relish dish.

Archaeologists some day may find pieces of this figurine and try to guess what the pottery signifies. I can imagine some of their astute observations as they turn this figurine over:

* Did 20th century natives of the high plains of North America worship rabbits? Did they dress the animals in clothing because the climate had changed, and it became too cold for the animals to survive without covering?

* Was the cabbage a sacred plant? Did natives ferment the cabbage leaves to make a sacrificial beverage or food?

* Are the colors painted on the fragment significant? Do they signify the coming of spring and associated fertility rites?

* What about the cryptic inscription on the bottom? Do the words "Made in China" mean that Asians had conquered America? Or, do they mean that all of Asia was a vassal state to North America? Or, do they mean that folks in the USA do business with everyone on earth who is willing to do business? Hh-mmm!

* Does the quality of the pottery show an advance in mankind's knowledge and artistic skill? Is the paint an advancement in technology? Or, do these things show a

Blackwater Draw

The display in front of the museum calls this site the 1st New World mammoth kill site, excavated in 1932; the first New World multi-component Paleo Indian site, the type site for mammoth hunting, the site of the earliest known hand-dug wells in the New World, and the longest excavated Paleo Indian site.

"Ten years ago I would have said that this definitely the earliest Paleo Indian site, but now there are some claims that may be older," says museum curator Matt Hillsman. He mentioned sites in Ore Grande, N.M., Meadowcroft, Pa., and a third in Alaska which are now contending with Blackwater Draw as the earliest Native American site.

"There have been very stringent requirements on archaeological claims," said Hillsman. So far, none of the contenders has successfully displaced Blackwater Draw as the earliest site.

What makes the Blackwater Draw site different from other sites is that distinctive tools called Clovis points were found in the same soil strata along with woolly mammoth bones. There were also camel, horse, bison, and sabertooth tiger and wolf bones found in the same level of dirt.

Archaeologists have dated the Clovis Cultural material to about 11,300 years ago. They use a variety of methods to estimate the age of the archaeological material.

One method involves measuring the depth at which archaeological material is found. The archaeologist carefully records the place where artifacts are found, and the type of rock or dirt that surrounds it. Then the artifacts are compared with artifacts found in the same type of soil or at the same depths in other parts of the world.

The most modern method of dating is radio carbon testing. It involves measuring the half-life of radioactive carbon compounds in matter such as bone. Using radio carbon testing, the archaeologists are able to date the material quite accurately.

"The precision and accuracy depends upon the quality of the sample," said Hillsman. He also noted that the skill of the people doing the tests and the equipment that they use is important in getting accurate estimates of dating.

"Oftimes samples are sent to different places for testing," said Hillsman. Comparing two or three samples gives a fairly accurate estimate of age.

Hillsman did his work at Eastern developing a method to determine the source of the rocks or stones that the earliest men in the area made into tools.

"Tools need to be sharpened," said Hillsman. Using computer analysis, he was able to identify the source of many tiny fragments of stone as either Alibates Plateau Flint or Edwards Plateau Chert. This knowledge will tell anthropologists how far the early settlers had to travel to get materials for tools.

"Archaeology spans side looking radar to discover archaeological sites" to digging by hand just as the most primitive people did.

Hillsman, who says, "I never thought I'd become a museum curator," moved to Portales from back east a few years back to study archaeology and anthropology at Eastern New Mexico University. When the museum curator's job opened up, he applied, and was surprised to get it.

"A curator is essentially responsible for the care of the material in the museum," says Hillsman. He found himself repairing display cases, arranging displays, classifying material and guiding tour groups through the facility. In his spare time he reads scientific material about archaeology. And, he visits neighboring museum sites.

The museum is open 10 a.m. mdt - 5 p.m. mdt Monday - Saturday and noon - 5 p.m. mdt on Sundays, Memorial Day through Labor Day.

The actual site of the archaeological dig is across the street from the museum on the road to Cannon Air Force Base. It is open on weekends from 10 a.m. mdt - 5 p.m. mdt and on Sundays from noon - 5 p.m. mdt.

Shawna Jennings (left) and Angela McPherson of Portales enjoyed seeing the display of artifacts that they could see, touch, and feel.

Museum

backslide into an abyss of ignorance?

As I have traveled and enjoyed the museums of the world, I have often observed the careful scholarship displayed by the curators and their staffs. But, I have also observed that different observers may draw different conclusions from the artifacts that the museums contain. They sometimes attach much too much significance to insignificant items.

Just because an item is old does not automatically mean that it is valuable or significant. It may just mean that it is old.

Sometimes the "holy objects" that we see in museum collections may be children's dolls or artistic characterizations of ordinary people. Sometimes they are odd little items that people have picked up in one place and carted to another because they were oddities.

We are very lucky to have museums, and the free time to enjoy them. There are many things that we can learn by studying the past. One of the things we can learn from the past is the ability to laugh at ourselves and to appreciate our own frail human qualities.

The Blackwater Draw Archaeological Site includes many levels of excavation.

The archaeological dig site is located beside the Cannon Air Force Road near Portales.

Recalling the first Farwell School building

The cornerstone of the original Farwell School building has been incorporated into the new Farwell gymnasium along with a photo engraving of the original building.

Junior High School Principal Jerry Dee Owen and former Farwell School janitor Foster Watkins saved the cornerstone from being destroyed when the old building was demolished. They set it aside until the new building was built.

The cornerstone lists the names of the people who were members of the Farwell Public School Board in 1910 when the old building was constructed: J.M. Hamlin, president; J. B. Younger, secretary; B.E. Nobles, Alex Shipley, J.M. Kindred, O.A. Linthicum and C.L. George.

The cornerstone of the original Farwell School includes the names of original school board members.

The architect was O.G. Roquemore.

The original Farwell School building was a two-story red brick structure with a full basement, and a windmill. It had a covered slide fire escape from the second floor to the ground. It was erected for $20,000 - quite a sum in 1910 when farm land sold for just a few dollars per acre.

The staff consisted of the superintendent, Mr. E.A. White, who earned $1,000 for the 9 month school contract, three teachers, and a janitor. Miss Mable Kinney, Miss Eva Hendricks and Miss Hazel Wilson were the first teachers, they each earned $60 per month. Mr. Vaughn was the janitor, and earned $40 per month.

The 1981 edition of the county history book, "Prairie Progress," notes that there was a constant turnover of teachers and board members in the early years at Farwell Schools.

J.M. Hamlin was the vice-president of the Farwell Development Company. He also served as Parmer County Clerk and District Clerk.

According to the 1974 edition of the county history book, Hamlin was born in Pittsburg, Pa. in 1843. He was engaged in manufacturing glass back east. He then managed the St. Louis Religious Press Association in St. Louis before moving here. He served as one of Missouri's presidential state electors before moving here. He purchased a farm about two miles from town.

B.E. Nobles was listed in the 1974 edition of "A History of Parmer County Texas" by Nelson Lewis. It says that Nobles left Deport, Texas in Lamar County to come to Farwell in 1907. The Nobles family traveled by train with all of their household goods, and settled in Farwell where they operated Daniels' Grocery. Later the business was moved next to the Old Farwell State Bank on Third Street, and dry goods were added to the store.

Nobles was active in civic affairs. He served as County Commissioner, Justice of the Peace and a school board member. He was instrumental in the formation of the first Masonic Lodge in Farwell, and he belonged to the Methodist Church. Both B.E. and Mrs. Nobles died in 1947. They were buried in the Clovis Cemetery.

D.A. Linthicum was the vice-president of the First National Bank of Farwell.

This information about Capt. J. M. Kindred comes from the 1974 history of Parmer County Texas:

Kindred was born in Kentucky, and served in the Civil War as a quartermaster. He was a sheriff in Kentucky, a hotel owner in Georgia, and a postmaster and stock farmer in Amarillo before moving to Farwell.

Kindred became president of the First National Bank of Texico. While serving in that capacity, he traveled to the World's Fair in St. Louis at his own expense to advertise the area and induce immigrants to come here.

He served on the School Board, and he was an officer in his church.

According to Zelfa Younger of Melrose, 1910 school board member J.B. Younger was her husband's uncle; J.B. ranched in this area. J.B.'s brother, W.H. Younger, taught and served as an administrator locally.

If any readers have information about the original Farwell School board members, please let us know.

Something for everyone

It's finally here - the 28th annual Border Town Days celebration.

Once again, it looks like a super family affair. Lots of stuff for kids and adults.

One important note: please don't forget to bring a lawn chair with you to the park.

And please remember to buy those commemorative buttons for $2 donations - that's how we pay for LTD. And you can win $50!

This year boasts a record number of class reunions - 13. And that doesn't count the family reunions, too!

When you think of all the great entertainment, concessions, parade, etc., I don't think asking $2 is too much.

The day starts with the decorated bike contest. Youths need to be at the contest side (Anderson Street next to Texico City Hall) between 9:30 and 9:45 a.m. cdt. The street will be barricaded shut and Texico deputy marshal Larry Garrison will be on hand to help you cross the highway if needed.

The Big Parade kicks off at 11 a.m. cdt. It should be a nifty one (watch for the miner and his mule!). We will have the antique tractors back this year and they were a big favorite last year. And both Farwell and Texico will have their school bands participate.

Then it's time to head over to the Farwell City park for the big barbecue. You can get tickets early from Rotary Club members. The cost is $5 for adults and $2.50 for kids.

After the opening ceremonies at 1 p.m., with prizes given out to parade winners, the fun begins.

Entertainers include the Billy the Kid troupe, Erlynn and Brandon Thomas, Lupe Vidaurri, Stephanie Olivarez, the Kitchen Band, and Frank Vega's band including Happy Vega, Benito Vega, David Ancira, Nino Sifuentes and David Everett.

Meanwhile, the park will be full of fun events for the whole family: the CAKE Train, dunking booth, water polo, arts and crafts show, lots of concessions, and much more!

Obviously, to put on an event like this calls for a full team effort. Here are some of the folks who made it possible:

Bicycle contest - Linda Moss and Rhonda Qualls.

Queen's contest - Sue Sciolli and her committee.

Merchants giveaway - Becky Street and Willie Dannheim.

Arts and crafts - Lynne Mahaney.

Concessions - Cynthia Thigpen.

Buttons - Rick Sullivan.

Charlie Phillips Dance - Frances Kube and the Farwell Convalescent Center Auxiliary.

Set-up - Dee and Billy Hammit and all the Farwell and Texico city employees.

Pennants - Texico and Farwell volunteer fire departments.

Police - Texico and Farwell police, plus Parmer County and Curry County sheriff's departments.

Master of ceremonies -

Border Banter

By Mike Pomper

Fred Chandler.
Parade - Leigh Ann Woods.
Antique cars and tractors - Orie Jones.
Volleyball tourney - Richard Carpenter.
The list could go on and on. Everyone helps - folks like

Dutch Quickel, Charles Christian, Hurshel Harding, Doris Herington...

All I can say is, not bad for a community of 2,300 folks!

A quick comment on the recent World Soccer games: I think soccer would be a much better sport if they started with the goal kicks and eliminated the other 90 minutes.

The game is boring.

Special note to all reunions and other groups:

The south end of the Farwell City Park will be used for the volleyball tournament, which starts at 3 p.m.

So if you have your get-together at the south end, kindly move your chairs a bit when the volleyball nets get put up.

From Judy:
I've been amazed to see some really little youngsters swimming in the local swimming pools this year - I don't mean the wading pools, I mean the real swimming pools.

They use floating devices on their arms or around them. They seem to manage remarkably well considering their age. They seem to swim or float like little fish under the watchful eye of moms and babysitters. It's incredible.

Years ago folks would never have thought of taking preschoolers into water deeper than they were tall. They simply wouldn't have trusted the floating devices.

Today, they have some mighty fancy equipment for babies. There are floating devices, and inner tubes, swim suits, disposable diapers, and heavy duty sunblocks to make an afternoon at the pool a possibility.

Now out here on the plains at the turn of the century a farmer or his family members could wade into one of the streams to clean off the mud without anyone seeing - folks were few and far between. But, swimming pools didn't exist out here in those days.

Back East, the proper folks probably wouldn't have gone to a public swimming pool at all in many places. If they did, they would have worn swimming attire that would have covered them nearly from head to toe (none of these skimpy bathing suits for them, much less their kids).

Today those little tadpoles are swimming in little more than a diaper to protect them from the hot summer sun.

Years ago when we lived in Germany, I was surprised to see local young adults strip down to very tiny bathing suits on rather cool days (65-70 degrees), go down to the Main River, and wash their cars (they didn't swim in the river). They would turn on their radios and listen to rock music as they frolicked and scrubbed their cars beside the Saint's Bridge.

On several of those days, I felt comfortable in a light jacket or a long sleeve shirt, and there were folks stripped down trying to catch all of the sun's rays that they could. I wouldn't have gone swimming or sun bathing at all that temperature.

Welcome to the 28th annual

Even Waylon Jennings stopped at our Tourism Center

by Judy Pomper

"You might not believe it, but we get more than 40,000 people per year in here," said Janice Hamilton, director of the New Mexico Tourist Information Center in Texico.

People from more than 40 countries stopped in the Information Center last year for maps and brochures and information about the state.

Working at the tourist information center has been quite a cultural experience. "We've had people from Iran, Iraq, Indonesia, Germany, Japan, and England," said Sharon Olney, a tourist information center guide. "We hear that 10 or 15 Australians who visited here last year will be back this year. They are planning to participate in the El Cid Cutting Horse competition."

As we spoke, a steady stream of visitors stopped by the adobe-looking building to take a stretch, use the rest room, and ask about local restaurants and motels. They came in cars and trucks, on motorcycles, and in recreational vehicles.

Travelers may park vehicles at the center over night, but it is not equipped with electrical plugs or sewage hook-ups.

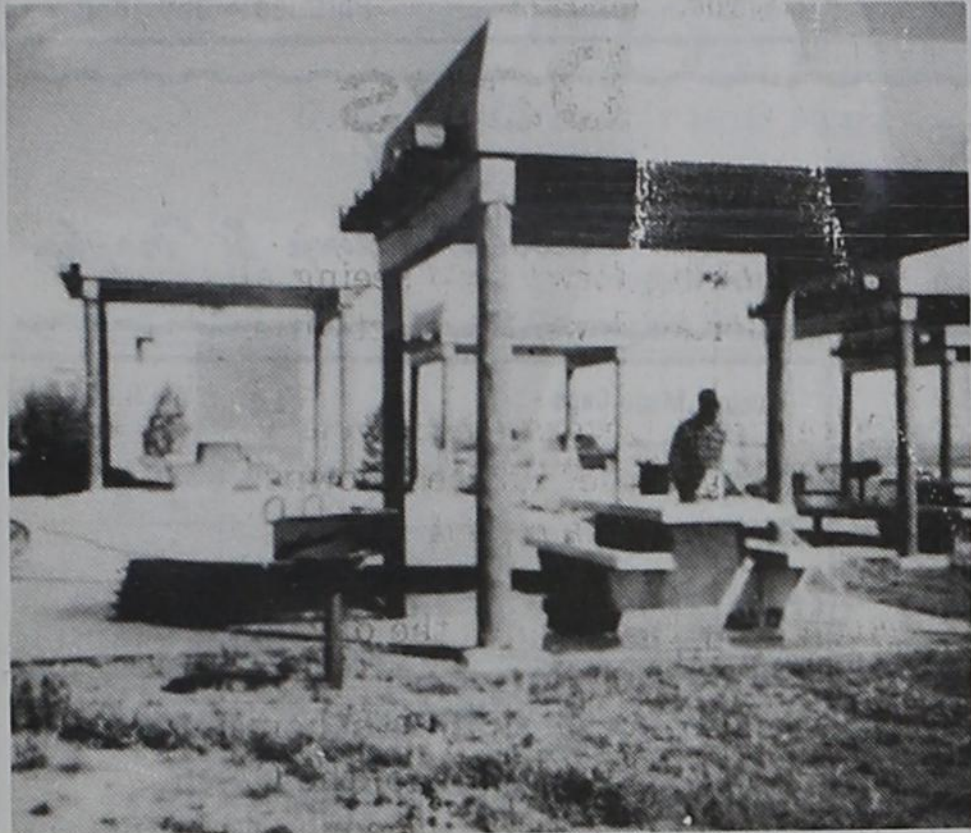

Tourists, said Mrs. Hamilton, are often awestruck by the countryside. They are often amazed by the wide expanses of open space and the big sky filled with clouds. "This is just about the flattest place in the whole U.S.," said Mrs. Olney.

"People ask about how many cattle we have per acre around here, and about the feed yards. They are very interested in agricultural information," said Mrs. Hamilton.

"We meet the nicest people in the world in here. People on a vacation are so loose and relaxed," added Ms. Olney.

"Waylon Jennings stopped by on his way to Littlefield on his way to that July 4th deal," said Mrs. Hamilton. And many travelers on their way to Cannon Air Force Base stop by on their way to use base facilities.

Maintenance man and custodian Bobby Collins hoses down area around the picnic benches and barbecue pits at the Texico Information Center.

The New Mexico Tourist Information Center in Texico is full of information about the state.

Janice Hamilton and Sharon Olney greet visitors to New Mexico with a smile and lots of helpful information.

Here are some gardening tips

by Judy Pomper

"A plant's leaves are like its clothes. Now you wouldn't want to be stripped down naked and lying in the sun in your yard in July, would you? You'd burn up in the hot summer sun, and so would a plant without leaves," answered Parmer County Extension Service Agent Brant Baugh to a participant in the County Lawn and Garden Seminar.

The lady had asked if it would be wise to prune grape vines in the spring. She was told that it is wiser to prune the vines in the winter after the grapes had been harvested. Grapes come from the new growth, on the plant.

Another participant asked if it was a good idea to use lady bugs to help control garden pests instead of using harsh chemicals.

Baugh answered that while naturally occurring ladybugs did control many garden pests, "When you buy the boxed ones in a store, they head back to the mountains they came from as soon as you open the box!"

Those questions and their answers were only a small part of the day's activities which ranged from: "Fresh from the Garden Cooking," "Unusual Plant Containers," "Native Plant Care," "Backyard Composting," and "Gardening Tips," to a covered dish luncheon.

During the session on "Gardening Tips," Brant Baugh showed slides of common garden pests in this area. He told the participants that the most important thing about controlling pests in the garden was identifying the pest. The county agent and the Texas A & M University System can often help with this task.

Once the pest is identified, Baugh cautioned gardeners to read the labels carefully. "Use the right chemical for each pest," he noted. Consulting a professional pest control person may save a crop.

Baugh also suggested pruning away dead branches and rotting fruits. "Take away a predator's food, and you won't have any predators!" he said.

Andy Williams, the Castro and Lamb County Agent, showed how to make a compost pile to naturally add nutrition to the soil.

The gardening tips presented in the program were of special interest to the participants. One lady commented, "I quit raising kids this year, and started raising a yard. I have to start learning all over."

Gardening can be a great hobby. It is fun. It is good exercise, and it can sometimes save money spent in the grocery store or florist shop.

Another popular part of the day's activities was a segment that featured recipes to use fresh from the garden produce.

Participants saw some unusual containers for displaying flowers - among the items used were, a gaily decorated sack, a tin can, a hollowed out rock, and a basket.

Parmer County Extension Service Agent Debbie Pollard demonstrated a recipe for Microwave Bread 'N Butter Pickles which were completed in 7 minutes flat.

Parmer County Extension Agent for Entomology, Brant Baugh, and Andy Williams, County Extension Agent for Castro and Lamb Counties, gave participants some great tips for summer gardening. Baugh showed some of the most common garden pests and discussed the proper way to get rid of them. Williams told the best way to make a compost pile to enrich the soil.

Parmer County Extension Service Agent Debbie Pollard completed a microwave Bread 'N Butter Pickle recipe in just 7 minutes flat. Three cups of sliced and peeled cucumbers, a cup of sugar and 1/2 c. of vinegar and some spices were microwaved for just seven minutes, and cooled. Later they were added to a sterilized jar to make a pint of pickles.

Pollard noted that most of us do not have a great deal of time to devote to cooking and preparing foods these days. Yet, a few minutes devoted to fresh garden vegetables in the peak of the season can save many dollars on a food bill in the winter that follows. She demonstrated a recipe which could be made in minutes and stored in the refrigerator.

Marilyn Neal, the Castro County Agent, demonstrated an easy Eggplant Parmesan recipe using produce that grows in abundance in a summer garden.

Neal noted that many people avoid eggplant because they had once had a bitter taste of this member of the nightshade family. She explained how to slice, salt and layer the eggplant between paper towels to remove the bitter taste before using it in a casserole. She especially liked the easy meatless recipe because it can be made the night before entertaining so that when she got home from work at 6:30 p.m. she could pop it into the oven.

"It makes a great meatless accompaniment for a meat dish, or a nice light meatless luncheon dish," she said.

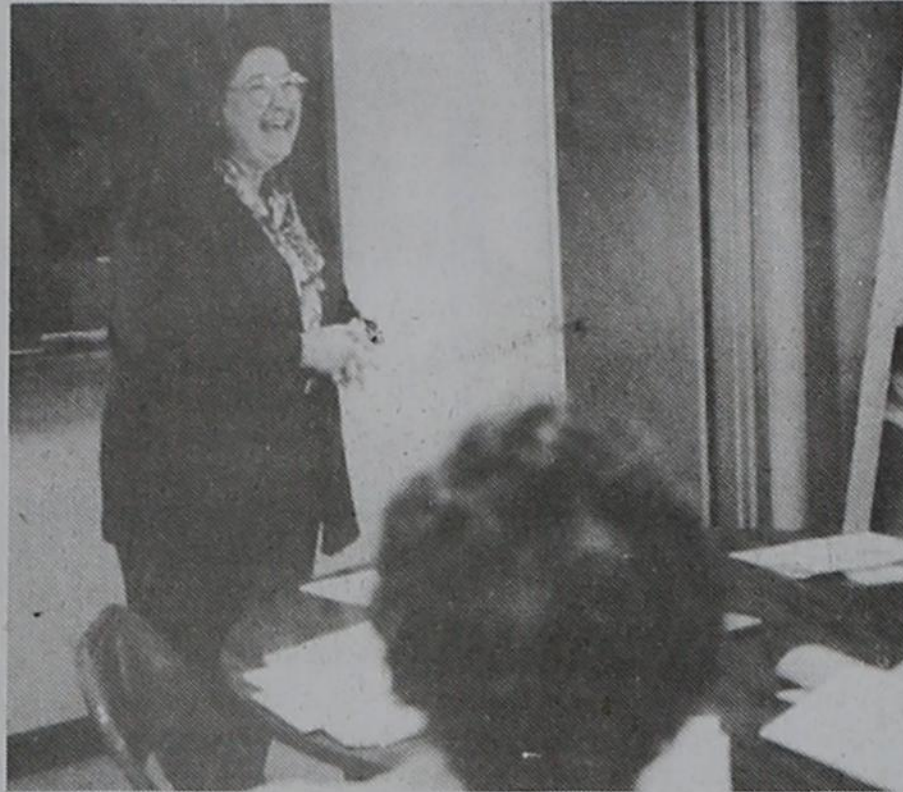

The county agents passed out leaflets which presented recipes and tips for canning and freezing to use the abundance of a garden while it is still in its peak. Recipes using microwaves, food processors, blenders and other time - saving cooking devices help to save the natural and abundant goodness that comes from a home garden.

Neal joked that, "Since moving to this part of the country, my skin looks like a lizard's, but my food stays fresh just great. Where I came from it (garden produce) all rotted because of all the moisture."

One of the highlights of the day was a demonstration of unusual plant containers to display the beautiful blossoms grown in a home garden. When garden flowers are available in abundance, homemakers sometimes find that every container in the house is full. By using a little imagination and some common containers, the lovely home-grown blossoms can be displayed many, many ways. A representative of "An Added Touch," in Friona presented this segment.

A colorful paper sack can hide a garden pot. A tin can can be tied in a bow can hold tulips and daisies. A western bandana tied around a water glass can hold blossoms. Even a hollowed out old rock can be planted with green plants.

A florist can sell a home gardener all of the supplies needed to augment items already at home.
