FACT

Kicking The Habit

The 1990's is proving to be the decade of change for America and much of that change is focused on health, nutrition and living our lives to the fullest. And as the battle between the tobacco companies and the government is played out, the attitude towards cigarettes and other tobacco products are also changing.

The majority of "full-time" smokers in the United States have, at least, the desire to quit smoking. Of this group, at least 56% have tried one or more ways to kick the habit.

Fortunately, smokers today have more resources than ever before to help them achieve their goal of quitting.

There are currently two types of Over The Counter products available at drugstores. "Nicotrol" Patches administer a controlled level of nicotine through a band-aid like patch that is worn throughout the day.

"Nicorette" is a chewing gum that is available in both 2 mg. and 4 mg. The gum is advantageous to the most seriously addicted smoker because it allows the user to control the amount of nicotine they receive and at what times of the day they need it the most. Both Nicotrol and Nicorette are available without a prescription.

Prescription remedies are still available for those smokers that need stronger forms of cessation intervention. Currently a prescription nasal spray is being administered by doctors across the U.S. as well as a prescription patch with a much stronger dosage of nicotine intervention than the over the counter patch.

If you, or someone you know, is serious about kicking the smoking habit, please consult your doctor or pharmacist concerning these products. Smoking is a serious health hazard to both the smoker and the people around them who inhale their smoke.

Texico city council meeting cancelled due to lack of quorum; rescheduled for July 30

The Texico City Council's meeting Tuesday was cancelled due to a lack of quorum.

Officials said Wednesday the council has scheduled its next meeting for July 30 at 6:30 p.m. mt.

At 6:30 p.m. mt, the only elected officials present were Mayor Nathan Tharp and councilman Oran Jay Autrey.

Tharp said he would wait one minute and if no other councilmen showed, the meeting would be cancelled. And it was.

Two councilmen were needed to constitute a quorum.

At 6:35 p.m., councilman Art Salguero appeared. And five minutes later, councilman Rick Queener showed up. Councilman Ronnie Warmuth didn't appear.

By the time Salguero appeared, the mayor, members of the audience and others already had left City Hall.

About 10 persons attended the planned meeting, most of whom apparently were in support of Jose and Rene Martinez.

At the last council meeting, the council voted 2-1 to deny a variance request by the Martinezes to place a home in town. The house was brought into the city but didn't comply with cit ordinances because of its size; it's under 800 feet. Mrs. Martinez said a piece would be brought into the city to add on to the house to make it larger.

At that July 12 meeting, Tharp said 45 percent of the responses for nearby property owners were unopposed and 27 percent were opposed.

Voting to deny the variance at that meeting were Autrey and Queener. Salguero was opposed. Warmuth was absent.

There were many other items on Tuesday's agenda

-- A report on the community building construction. Tharp is unhappy with the extent of repair work done on the low areas in the floor.

At the last council meeting, Tharp had announced he has issued a stop order on the construction there because he said some sections with problems needed to be cut out and replaced.

But architect Eldon Smith proposed to the council that the contractor use a product to smooth out the slabs. The council approved his patching recommendation.

-- Plans to re-advertise for a third police officer. This post has been vacant since early this year.

When it was first advertised, there were many applications but no one was picked.

-- A request by David Brigham and J.R. McIntosh to mow the cemetery.

-- Cleanup at the city landfill.

-- Aesthetic review permits for H.W. Moore and Wes Cockerham.

-- Pot hole problems on West Hereford Street.

-- Drainage problems at the Town & Country Food Store.

Farwell band to rehearse for parade

Important notice for all Farwell and Junior High School band students from new band director Roslyn Vastano:

Rehearsals are scheduled for Thursday, July 25, and Friday, July 26, from 3 to 4:15 p.m. at the Band Hall.

All band members are urged to attend and meet the new band director.

Fire Calls

Farwell firemen were called out four times.

On July 15 at 11:40 a.m., they were called to a motor home fire at U.S. 84 and County Road 1731.

On July 16 at 4:40 p.m., the ambulance was called to 612 1st St. but no transport was made.

On July 18 at 2:33 p.m., the ambulance was called to the Fifth Street Church of Christ and made a transport to Clovis hospital.

Early Wednesday, Farwell firemen helped Bailey County firemen at a large fire on CRP land near Progress.

Lazbuddie plans pupil registration

Boling had a deeper calling

by Teresa Mesman

When Michael Boling walked across the stage to receive his diploma in 1980 from Farwell High School, he was ready to take on the world. With one of the highest grade point averages ever achieved in Farwell, he had proven his academic ability. He was now setting out to make his dreams a reality.

He had always dreamed of being a doctor and the sciences that were involved in practicing medicine were his favorite subjects. To his family and friends that grew up with Michael, the medical profession seemed to be the perfect calling for him.

But Michael had a deeper calling; one that went further than just "being a doctor." He was called to be a missionary to bring the Word of God and healing to remote countries around the world.

During his teen years, he began to seriously think about going into the mission field.

"I felt God's calling for me, but I wasn't clear as to the exact direction I needed to take," Michael explained. "I thought about going into the seminary, but my calling was in some other way; there was some other way I was to help."

He graduated with a B.A. in Chemistry from Baylor University and then went to medical school at Texas A&M University. He received his M.D. in 1988 and did his residency in Family Practice through a clinic and hospital that was part of the University of Oklahoma. The entire time he was in college and medical school, Michael did short term mission work between semester breaks and in the summers.

The last month that he was in medical school, he travelled to Kenya with the Medical World Mission. There he stayed two months, treating the sick and sharing God's word. This organization is the interdenominational mission outreach program that was founded by Franklin Graham. Through this experience, Michael's interest in Community Health was stirred.

He wanted to see more in the areas of community health and the other mission groups that were involved. He then travelled to Equatorial Guinea and caught up with W.E.C. This stands for Worldwide Evangelization for Christ and it is a large interdenominational missionary organization that has mission posts all over the world.

Michael stayed in Equatorial Guinea for 15 months working with missionary nurses and doctors among the tribes. Then the national government of the country began to throw out the missionary doctors. Before Michael left he was training community health workers from the villages to help take care of their people.

"I saw through this experience that, as a doctor, I was working all day long with the people, but only as a doctor. There was no time or chances to deal with the people on an evangelical basis. The villagers were animistic, yet they were very curious about God. I felt I needed to do more than just practice medicine," he said.

In Dec. 1992, Michael came back to the states. He practiced medicine in the Dallas area, but he was bound and determined to discover the way that he was to help in the mission field. He soon discovered his niche.

Bible translation was an area of religion and mission work that was of interest to Michael. He saw the need for Bibles written in the native language and text of the villagers in Kenya and in Equatorial Guinea. He had always had an interest in languages as well, and was a pretty fast learner when it came to picking up a new language.

He enrolled in August of 1993 in the Wycliff Bible Translation School. He took one year of classes and then found out about a program between the Wycliff School and the Dallas Theological Seminary. It was a two year program that was shared between the two schools. One year was spent at Wycliff learning how to analyze languages around the world and the other year was spent at the Seminary learning Hebrew and Greek and their foundations. In August 1995, Michael graduated with a Master of Arts in Biblical Exegesis and Linguistics.

He was now prepared to translate the Word of God into the many languages around the world that have never had or, in some cases, never seen a Bible.

He went overseas to the town of Bishkek in Kyrgyzstan (pronounced Keer-shek-stan) which is located in the Russia, near the the western border of China. Here he participated in a Prayer Walk. With other missionaries,

What impression will you leave on our environment?

The first step in learning how to protect our environment is to learn to appreciate what we have.

Take a close look at the environment around you. It's very special and it takes special attention and care to keep it that way. That's why, since 1961, we've utilized recycled effluent, or waste water, rather than fresh drinking water in our cooling towers.

You, too, can help preserve our environment and natural resources by cleaning up litter, recycling, and by making Smart Energy Choices. Consider energy efficiency when purchasing a new electric appliance. Weatherize your home. Conserve energy where you can.

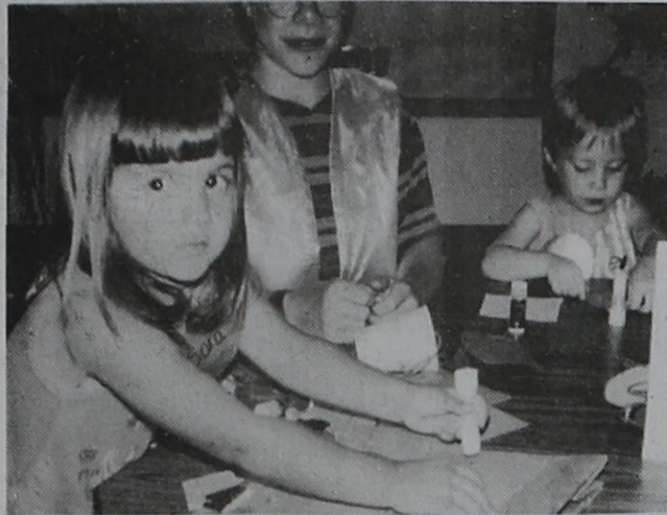

And never forget where you live. The impression you leave will be a lasting one.

30th annual Border Town Days kick off Saturday!

The 30th annual Border Town Days celebration kicks off Saturday in the Twin Cities.

The day begins with the decorated bicycle contest at 9:45 a.m. on Anderson Street, directly west of Texico City Hall.

The street will be closed to traffic during the contest and police will be on hand to help folks cross the highway.

The deadline for entering is today (Friday). All participants will get tickets for free rides on the Border Town Days Express. Cash prizes will be given top placers in each category. And the "Best of Show" winner gets a new bicycle.

At 11:00 a.m., the big parade kicks off from Griffin Street in Texico. The parade proceeds down the highway to Farwell, turning south on 5th Street and ending just past the Farwell Convalescent Center.

Willie Dannheim will be at the ending point of the parade to direct participants to the park. He will also direct parade participants on where to park their vehicles. Fourth Street heading into the park will be closed to southbound traffic for a short time. This will allow parade participants to exit more smoothly. Parade entrants are to form at 10:30 a.m. in Texico. A map showing where they should line up is elsewhere in today's Tribune. A lineup of the parade will be alongside it.

In charge of the parade is the Texico-Farwell Lions Club. Parade marshals Hal Helton and Beth Harrington will be at the beginning of the parade lineup to assist entrants.

After the parade, folks will congregate at the Farwell City Park for a large variety of food and refreshment, highlighted by the annual Texico-Farwell Rotary Club barbecue. A story elsewhere in today's Tribune lists all the concessionaires.

After lunch is over, the opening ceremonies start at 1 p.m. at the gazebo. Emcee will be Fred Chandler. Musical entertainment will be provided throughout the afternoon.

The national anthem will be sung by Nancy Miller. Greetings will be given by the Texico and Farwell mayors, Nathan Tharp and Jimmie Mace, respectively. A certificate of appreciation will be given this year's Honorary Parade Marshal, Red Lonsdale.

Then Ann Cooper, Linda Moss, Judy and Mike Pomper will give out the cash awards and trophies for the decorated bike contest, float contest and antique cars and tractors.

Providing funds for these awards were Security State Bank, Citizens Bank, the Farwell and Texico Chambers of Commerce, Dent & Co., and an anonymous donor.

On the entertainment schedule are the Billy the Kid troupe, Araceli Galaviz Vanessa Vega, the Elaine Carson family, Charles Turner and a band featuring Robert Vidaurri, Adrian Ancira, Santiago Vega and David Ancira.

Also, eight girls will compete in the queen's scholarship contest, vying for a $350 prize.

The schedule for the entertainment at the gazebo can be found elsewhere in today's Tribune.

While the entertainment is going on, the merchants giveaway will be in full blast.

The giveaway, which features 38 prizes this year, starts at 12:30 p.m. and will be run by employees of the Farwell Convalescent Center.

Names will be called out every few minutes by emcee Chandler and folks have about five minutes to show up at the gazebo to collect their free prizes. If they don't appear, other names will be drawn.

Also going on throughout the day is the arts and crafts fair. More than 30 booths are expected for this year's show. All feature homemade products.

Among the fun events for kids at the park during the day will be the Border Town Days Express, a petting zoo, special rides, dunking booth, pony rides, etc.

At 3 p.m., the 4th annual volleyball tournament will begin at the south end of the park. Richard Carpenter and Byron Mayfield are in charge of this popular event.

The day ends with the special giveaways starting at 4:45 p.m.

businesses. You don't have to be present to win.

Also as part of LTD is the annual Charlie "Sugartime" Phillips dance at the Clovis Holiday Inn on Friday night. This is the 8th annual benefit dance for the Farwell Convalescent Center.

A few special notes to folks: -- It's urged that you bring a lawn chair or blanket along with you to the park Saturday.

-- An area for handicapped parking is located in back of the county courthouse at its south side. -- Senior citizens are invited to park their vehicles in the parking lot of Hamlin Memorial United Methodist Church on 5th Street to watch the parade.

PCG notes ruling is limited

According to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) a final ruling from the 242nd District Court in Hale County will not stop the operation of the 1996 Enhanced Diapause Control Program.

PCG officials note that the ruling is limited to the ten plaintiffs in the case and does not prohibit the operation of a Program in 1996.

"The Hale County court has ruled the state boll weevil law unconstitutional," explains PCG BWSC Chairman Wayne Huffaker. "This law creates authority for the High Plains program and other producer-led efforts across the State."

Huffaker adds that the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation is in the process of appealing the Hale County decision to the Texas Supreme Court. So far there has been no effort to stop the statewide operation of 1996 boll weevil programs, including the High Plains Enhanced Diapause Control Program.

The TBWEF will continue to process and collect assessments for 1996 programs to the fullest extent possible.

"We intend to take advantage of the promising situation we currently have following our first cold winter in five years," says PCG Boll Weevil Program Coordinator Roger Haldenby. "We have a tremendous opportunity to reduce boll weevil infested acreage and it is important that producers keep moving ahead and make the most of the investment they have already made."

"During the last 3 seasons cotton producers have invested almost 19 million dollars in diapause control on the High Plains," says Huffaker. "We have made an impact and are in a position to begin the final push to rid ourselves of the boll weevil."

In 1996 many producers who have had to treat both early and in-season weevils have so far been able to scale back their efforts as a result of the one-two punch of 1995 diapause treatments and colder winter temperatures.

In the next 3-4 years the cost of the diapause program appears to be the cheapest route for producers facing boll weevil infestations.

Without an aggressive diapause program Texas Agricultural Extension Service entomologist, Dr. James Leser, predicts treatment costs and yield losses could total over $250 million each year at the farm level.

Our prayers for rain have certainly been answered, haven't they. We are truly being blessed. The rain has been wonderful!

We have been working on a craft project this month, which we are not quite finished with yet. We have been making potpourri pots for residents' rooms. They have been simple, but sweet. Residents are enjoying making them.

Exercise is very important to all of us. It should be a routine part of our lives. We have exercise groups three times per week for the general population of our residents and exercise three times per week for our special care residents, geared more toward Alzheimer's - dementia residents.

We have a new exercise video we are using for our general population. We were ready for an exercise change and have really been enjoying it. The residents are learning very fast.

We used a portable keyboard with the residents in sensory groups last week and had more fun. We had one resident that just loved it and really entertained us. JoAnn and I were just amazed. We had a lot of fun with it.

We will be having support groups again for families of residents with special needs, such as Alzheimer's - dementia, beginning in October. It will be held the last Tuesday evening of the month, and once a month thereafter. This is a wonderful support group. We hope that more families and relatives will become involved. We want to help you in any way we can with your special situation. If you have any questions, contact LaVonn Guthals, our Social Service coordinator.

Don't forget to buy your tickets for the Charlie Phillips dance being held at the Holiday Inn in Clovis on Friday the 26th at 9 p.m. Texas time. This is to benefit the convalescent home. Come -- I know you will have a great time!

Farwell Convalescent Center Auxiliary will be having a bake sale at the park on Border Town Days. They will be selling all kinds of baked goodies as well as popcorn. Don't forget to visit their booth -- you will be in for a very special treat! It also will benefit our residents.

We will be having our monthly birthday party on Friday the 26th at 3 p.m. Families are encouraged to attend. Happy Birthday to William McMahan, Ora Bell and Geraldine Jones.

See you at Border Town Days!
Have a great week!

Boling

Michael walked all through the town and prayed over local government buildings, the mosque and several other buildings. This walk was a small part of the international prayer effort called "Praying Through The Window."

This project is the call for prayer for the un-evangelized countries that are located in the 10th degree longitude and the 40th degree latitude of the world, such as India, North Africa, the former Russian Republics and China.

While Michael was in Bishkek, he was overwhelmed by the hospitality and the acceptance from the residents. He knew that the translation of the Bible was what he was called to do as a missionary because he saw firsthand the need for and the desire for the Word from the people.

He came back to Dallas and worked for a short while in a medical practice. He actively sought out groups that were involved in Bible translation projects. He eventually linked up with W.E.C. (World Evangelization for Christ), the group that he was part of when he travelled to Equatorial Guinea. W.E.C. is very active in Bible translation projects all over the world and they are also helping to establish churches in the un-churched countries. Church planting is very important to Michael, so this organization seemed to be the perfect place for him.

W.E.C. required Michael to spend five months in a candidate course for their mission projects. In this time, he learned all about the organization and their policies and goals. More importantly, he was taught how to live "cross culturally." Going to live in a far off land with a tribe of people that eat, live, dress and think differently is something that must be addressed before a person goes into the mission field.

Michael relates a funny story about being faced with a cross-cultural incident:

"It was Christmas and I was going to a remote village in Equatorial Guinea to celebrate the holiday with a church that had been established. The village was 20 miles off the main road and, along with 25 Africans, I hiked the distance to the village. We were welcomed with gifts of sugar cane and lots of singing. A villager had killed an elephant, so the food was plentiful and very good. However, a lady came up to me with a pot full of grubs and offered them to me. To refuse them would have been disrespectful. I took them and thanked her for her gracious gift. She stood there waiting for me to eat them, so I began to eat them - smiling the whole time!"

Eating grubs is just one of the cross-cultural styles of living that one must be prepared for, so W.E.C. makes it mandatory for all of the 1700 missionaries that it organizes to prepare for living abroad.

Michael finished the course in May and has been spending time with his family and friends. He is the son of Frances and the late Bill Boling. Frances now lives in Carrizozo, N. M. along with one of Michael's sisters and her family.

He leaves August 30th for Albertville, France for a 16 month stay at a mission school. Here he will learn to speak and understand French. This language is necessary to know, because he will then be sent to Cote d' Ivoire (the Ivory Coast) in West Africa. This is a small independent country, but it has a very strong French influence and the language is the primary language spoken in the city. However, from the main cities, Michael will be going out to the native tribes to live and work.

He will be translating the Bible into the native language of the tribe with the help of a national; an assistant from the tribe or area that speaks French and the native language. Michael's job is to make sure that the translation is accurate and that it is the true context of the Bible. He will

Thank You

The family of Ted Engram wishes to express their gratitude and thank you's to all the many friends for their constant calls, visits, cards, food, flowers and labors of jobs done for him and his daughter during his recent illness and passing.

Our blessings to you -- for he was truly blessed with your friendships and concerns.

& Family Members

also be developing Bible study materials to go along with the newly translated Bibles.

Approximately 2000 different languages are spoken throughout Africa and from tribe to tribe a similar language can vary to the slightest degree. This fact makes it necessary for Michael to actually live among the tribe with a family so that he can learn the differences and meanings.

Michael is anxious to begin his missionary work. He hopes to, in the future, combine his medical profession with his evangelistic calling. Michael's mission work is completely church and privately funded. Bible translation has been going on for a long time in the mission field, but it is just now being viewed as a primary mission goal. Many long hours must be spent by Michael in listening to and talking with the village people about their language and their tribal ways. Trying to also perform the duties of a doctor would not allow enough time to do any translation.

So far now, Michael is shelving his stethoscope and moving on to another chapter in his life. He will help to bring the Good News of Christ to many different tribes of people - in their own language, in the Bible. And because of this, the story of Michael Boling's life will have a very happy ending.

(Editor's note: Michael can be reached via mail in care of his sister: Michael Boling, c/o Terri Boling, 203 Rogers, Henderson, Texas 75652)

Farwell's Will Anderson

A JOURNEY INTO THE AMAZON RAINFOREST

The Jungle Towers, with bridges 60 feet above the floor of the rainforest connecting the rooms.

A visit from some parrots

The top of the Towers, where we lived.

Will Anderson in front of the Jungle Towers' main entrance. The rest of the hotel is built in the tops of trees or on free towers to the top of the rainforest canopy, with bridges between rooms.

A native guide taps sap from a tree which his people have used for generations to treat various diseases.

(Editor's note: Periodically, U.S. Naval Commander Will Anderson has written articles over the years for the Tribune from his ports of call. For the past two years, he was stationed in Brazil, before transferring this spring to Guam.)

By Will Anderson

When I was notified that the Navy was transferring me again, I decided that I would not leave South America without having seen the Amazon rainforest. So I booked a unique week up there with a friend from the British embassy. We booked a two-day excursion to Manaus, followed by four days of living in the trees in the rainforest.

Manaus was once a wealthy city, with its public buildings and opera house constructed of material imported from Europe, and money pouring into its economy from around the world because it was the center of cultivation of the rubber tree.

That golden period ended early in this century when an Englishman managed to smuggle six young rubber trees out of the country alive, and transplants from these trees were sent to Malaysia, where the production of rubber broke Brazil's monopoly.

After two days of looking at the faded glory of this huge city nestled in the midst of the Amazon, we caught a boat for a 3-hour ride up a branch of the river, up constantly narrowing tributaries, until we reached our hotel, the Arianu Jungle Towers.

The narrow stream on which this hotel sits is part of the larger Amazon system which contains fully one-sixth of the fresh water in the world. Even in Manaus, more than 1,500 miles from the sea, the river is five miles wide and deep enough for ocean-going tankers to navigate with ease, far from the seven seas in which they normally conduct their business.

The origin of the Arianu Jungle Towers was when Jacques Cousteau, the famous diver, arrived in this part of the rainforest to do one of his research films on the life in the Amazon river systems. He was awed by the rainforest, and suggested that an accommodation could be built in which the beauty of the rainforest could be enjoyed in its natural form without altering the environment.

Based on that suggestion, the Jungle Towers hotel was built in the heart of the forest, in the top of the trees or in freestanding towers, with the rooms in the top of the triple-canopy jungle cover. The rooms are connected to each other by bridges through the trees, 60 feet above the floor of the rainforest.

A huge enclosed area has been included, and when Brazil customs agents catch a smuggler trying to sneak endangered species of monkeys or parrots or toucans out of the country, the animals are brought to the Jungle Towers. In this enclosed area, in the heart of the rainforest, they are given 30 days to readjust to life in the wild, and then they are released to begin their free life again in the Amazon.

Each morning as the sun crept over the leaky roof of the rainforest, the monkeys and brightly colored birds of the neighborhood would gather outside to ensure I awoke early enough to enjoy the view. These little feathered and fuzzy creatures can make more noise than all my nieces and nephews and younger cousins can at a family gathering for the holidays, if that's possible!

The primary danger in the hotel was from thieving monkeys, who would pick up anything not tied down if you left your door open. I only lost the dogtags I have worn for about 20 years. Yes, and one beer to a monkey who could snatch up a beer and escape quicker than any creature I have ever seen, except Brett Hargrove when we were much younger (that's an in joke).

One German tourist had his false teeth snatched off his bedside table, and that made for an exciting afternoon with everyone clambering through the treetops after a spider monkey who eventually got tired of the game and dropped the teeth.

In the evenings, we would go on walking tours of the rainforest with our native guides, and they would show us trees and curious plants, all of which have had medicinal uses for centuries for these people, and which modern science is only now re-investigating.

We also got the chance to watch two villages play soccer matches in the midst of the rainforest, to go fishing for piranha (which we threw back even though they are delicious to eat), and to catch alligators and haul them into the boat for photos. We also threw them back, not wishing to offend their parents who could be much larger and much more difficult to handle.

The four days I spent in the trees of the Amazon were an astounding experience, and it's heartening to meet so many people of that part of the world who are so totally committed to preserving the rainforest at the same time that the inhabitants there are not deprived of the right to earn a living.

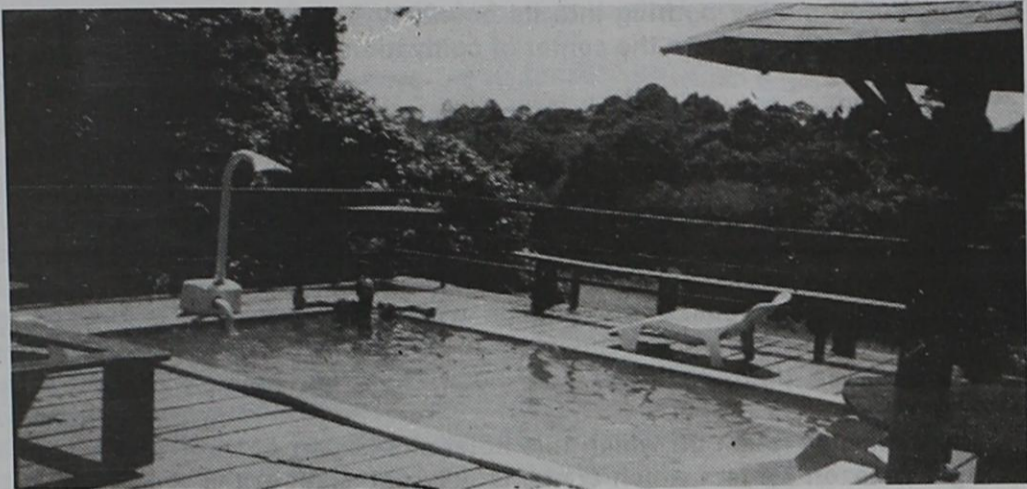

It was my only opportunity to see the Amazon region, because it was nearly time to head for Guam. In Guam, I will run a series of communications stations in the Indian Ocean and South Pacific, so hopefully there are a few more travels (and Tribune stories!) for me in the future.

'til then...

Will Anderson is the son of Robert and Carrie Anderson of Farwell.

New construction on the fringe of the rainforest, which each new tower connected to the rest of the complex by bridges.

A small pool was built on a platform 60 feet above the rainforest floor, in the top level of the trees.

Misty Stewart marries Corey Kirkpatrick

Wedding vows were read June 22 at Lakeridge United Methodist Church in Lubbock for Misty Stewart, of Lubbock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Stewart, of Farwell, and Corey Kirkpatrick, of Irving, Texas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daryl Kirkpatrick, of Bovina.

The church was decorated with Grecian columns and candle towers eloquently held the alter arrangements of gladiolas, casablanca lilies, roses, larkspur and snapdragons. The alter rail held candles draped with greenery and white tulle. The pews were adorned with tulle and bows.

Officiating was Rev. Jimmy McGuire, Bacon Heights Baptist Church, Lubbock.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The maid of honor was Kim Kirkpatrick, of Lubbock, sister of the groom. The best man was Geoff Wayne, of Lubbock.

Bridesmaids were Libby Fuller, Tracy Koons, Donna Ede, Meredith Miller, Leslie Reves, Gina Todaro and Stacey Stewart, sister-in-law of the bride.

Groomsmen were Brandon Glasscock, Tony Beauchamp and Richard Beauchamp, all cousins of the groom; Ross Stewart, brother of the bride; Russell Thomasson, Brad Potet and Greg Jackson.

Ushers were Zeke Campbell, cousin of the groom; Jeffrey Stewart, brother of the bride; Field Scovell, Kory Mitchell, Zado Campbell and Brandon Annett.

Flower girls were Amanda Simpson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Simpson, and Christen Landry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Landry.

Ring bearers were Zachary Simpson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Simpson, and Jack Scolaro, son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip Scolaro.

Candlelighters were Mark Scolaro and Kevin Scolaro, sons of Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Scolaro.

Music was provided by Jane Womack, piano; Mary Benner, trumpet, and vocalists Debra Beauchamp and Kathleen McLean. Principal selections were "There is Love", "Parent's Prayer", "The Lord's Prayer" and "I Will Be Here."

The wedding dress was white dulcette Italian satin with a bateau jewel neckline, heavily beaded with sequin and pearls. The bodice has cap sleeves finished with a beaded edge, a baseque waistline with open back, cathedral train with bow bustle piece with rosette accents. The veil of bridal tulle was waist length attached to a beaded head band.

The bouquet was a cascade of casablanca lilies, roses, larkspur, stephanotis and ivy. The bride's jewelry included pearl earrings, a gift from the parents; a pearl bracelet, a gift from the groom; and a handkerchief belonging to Corey's grandmother, the late Mrs. Tom Beauchamp.

The attendants wore black princess style dresses which featured a satin bodice and cap sleeves with a scooped neckline and empire waist. The slender crepe skirt was enhanced with a floor length train adorned with a bow. They carried casablanca lily bouquets tied with silk ribbon.

The reception was held at the McInturff Conference Center. Serving the groom's cake were Lori Beauchamp and Gina Beauchamp, cousins of the groom. Serving the bride's cake were Jennifer Ellis and Angela Beauchamp, cousins of the groom. Jennifer McWilliams handled the registry, assisted by Carrie Ryan.

The couple took a wedding trip to Maui, Hawaii. They are now at home in Irving.

The bride is a 1992 Farwell High graduate and a senior elementary education major at Texas Tech. The groom is a 1992 Bovina High graduate and a 1996 Texas Tech graduate in finance. He is employed by North American Mortgage Co. in Irving.

Charlie Phillips and the Sugartimers to entertain

Charlie "Sugartime" Phillips and the area's top western band, "The Sugartimers," will be playing a benefit dance at the Clovis Holiday Inn on July 26 at 9 p.m. cdt.

Tickets are $5 in advance or $6 at the door. Tickets are available at Rip's Western Wear, Beauty Box, Staline Drugs and Cribb's Western Wear.

This is the 8th annual benefit dance for the Farwell Convalescent Center at Border Town Days.

lescent Center at Border Town Days.

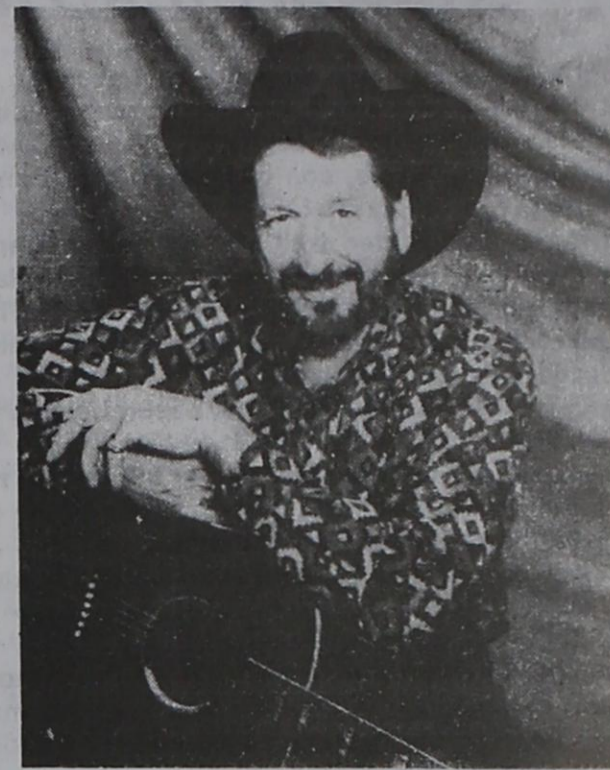

The 5-member band consists of Jimmy Young, fiddle; Vick Ashmead, steel guitar; Frank Hardcastle, lead guitar; Chet Calcote, base guitar, and Ted Czahowske, drummer. Young and Calcote once played with the legendary Bob Wills. Young is a member of the Western Swing Hall of Fame.

Phillips became famous for writing and recording the No. 1 hit in 1958 "Sugartime." His original version was recorded at the Norman Petty Studios in Clovis. Buddy Holly played the lead guitar on the original recording. It hit the top of the country and western charts, but the McGuire Sisters' pop version gave it worldwide recognition.

In September 1995, HBO cable TV produced a movie about Phyllis McGuire, one of the McGuire sisters. It was entitled "Sugartime." Phillips' music was used in this movie.

Phillips was a teen-ager at Farwell High when he wrote the hit song while driving a tractor on the family farm. Since then, he has recorded a number of country and western hits. In the 1960s, every record he made was on the national charts. He has performed on the Grand Ole Opry and toured with Johnny Cash, Willie Nelson, Brenda Lee, Jim Reeves and Marty Robbins.

Phillips extends a special invitation to all Farwell ex-students in town for Border Town Days to come out for a fun get-together.

Do you believe in UFO's?

One topic that I find most interesting is UFO's -- unidentified flying objects.

Years back, I didn't believe in them. Period. Our solar system is so far from other galaxies that I couldn't see how interspace travel could work.

But I was viewing that in terms of earth's technology.

Today, based on military reports from the past couple of decades, I don't see any other explanation than to accept that space travelers from "somewhere out there" have visited earth.

The reports from England and Belgium, in particular, cause me to be less the skeptic that I once was.

The incident in Belgium involved tracking the visitors on radar. Their speed went off the dial. Nothing we or the Russians have could have done that. Then whose aircraft was it?

And, of course, you could bring up the "Roswell Incident."

The official military response was "weather balloon." That is so stupid it's funny. Does anyone really believe that the military would threaten people to stay silent because they had seen a weather balloon?

For many years, I wondered why the military would cover up something like this. Then I read an article that noted our military didn't want folks in the U.S., in the midst of the Cold War, to realize that outsiders could come and go as they please with our military hapless to do anything about it.

That makes sense. So I've come full circle on my belief in UFO's. If an aircraft has the capability of such swift movement as has been recorded on our radar, then it definitely can speed here from other galaxies.

Why do they come? Back in the '50s, when sci fi movies were the rage, there were two central themes: they came to conquer us; or they came "in peace" to help us.

Well, it appears both those themes were incorrect. It looks like they come to check us out, see what we are up to.

Are all these stories phony? All made up? You tell me.

But why would individuals come up with such yarns when they know it only will make people laugh at them?

That doesn't make sense. The best argument against UFO's is the fact that we haven't recovered any spacecraft or alien beings (unless you believe there's a military coverup).

So the argument will continue. What's your view?

The above scores are taken from the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills given Texico pupils in grades 1 through 8. The column marked "core total" is the compilation of language, math and reading scores. Each number refers to how Texico places among the nation's pupils. For example, the 50 in vocabulary that Texico 1st graders received means they are higher than 49 percent of the nation's 1st graders on that test. Likewise, the Texico 1st graders' score in world analysis (76) means they placed above 75 percent of the nation's pupils taking that test. Texico Supt. R.L. Richards said he would like to see all Texico numbers at least at the 70 mark as a goal. He was especially happy with the math totals since a new math curriculum was introduced awhile ago.

From Muleshoe were Bobby Hudson, John Gulley, Cleo and Ruby Ward, Cecil Ward, Eveline Harris, Danny and Tawna Ward, Dacia Stewart, Kim and Marilyn Gable and son Blake, and Mikki Bowen.

Farwell grad Barry McCuan

A visit to Washington exhibit sealed his future as an artist

The paintings of Barry McCuan, a Farwell High graduate and son of Tom Paul McCuan, of Farwell, are being featured in Alexandra Stevens Gallery of Fine Art in Taos until Aug. 15.

In 1995, he married Lynne Windsor whose works also are on display at the gallery. They spent half last year traveling and painting the countryside of Great Britain and southern France.

A brochure put out by the gallery notes: McCuan was born in New Mexico on the Llano Estacado near the Texas border in 1945. His father, Dale, was an artist before starting his family, and although McCuan's youth was spent on a farm amid horses, cattle and dogs, he said his father "was very interested in keeping us exposed to art."

It is not unusual then that McCuan's early years were filled with art books, sketches and frequent trips to art museums. He later studied art and architecture at Texas Tech, and took extensive trips to South America, Mexico, the Caribbean, the Pacific and the Orient to broaden and enrich his artistic perspective.

It was a trip to the National Gallery in Washington, D.C., where he visited a French impressionists' exhibit that included paintings by Monet, Manet and Renoir that sealed his future as an artist.

The works of the French impressionists have had an extraordinary impact on McCuan, and his appreciation for their technique continues to provide inspiration for his paintings.

After arriving in Santa Fe during the mid 1970s, he became strongly influenced by the works of early Taos artists. During his period in Santa Fe, he worked and studied with Vladin Stiha, Buck McCain and Juan Dell. As well as those who came before him, McCuan's paintings reflect his understanding of the New Mexico landscape and capture the essence of the region's stark contrasts.

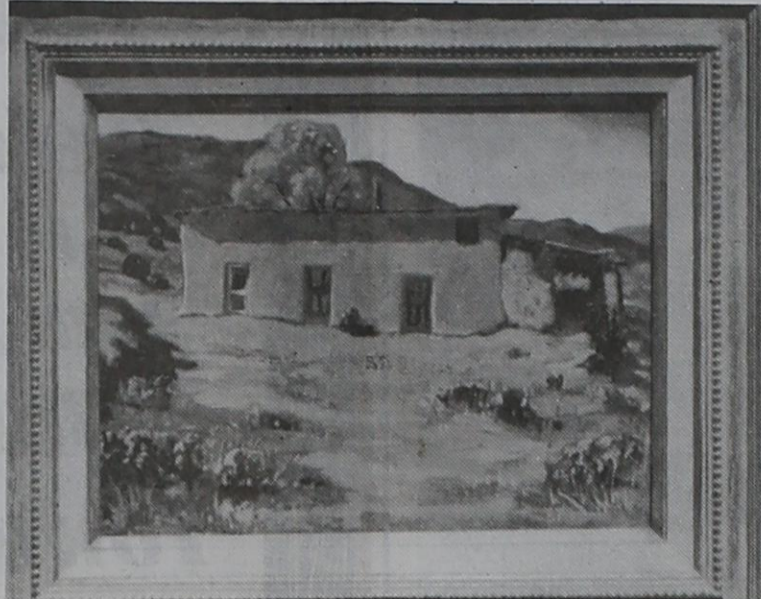

Working primarily in oil, McCuan prefers to paint on location, enjoying the beauty and spiritual quality of the land. There is expressiveness and warmth to his paintings and his use of strong brush strokes and rich color are a testament to his source of inspiration.

Don't drop it!

These kids enjoyed playing with water balloons at the Texico 4th of July Jamboree.

'Commitment to success'

Texico deputy marshal Larry Garrison attended a training session on the DARE (drug education) program in Rio Rancho, N.M., June 17-28. He is now a certified DARE instructor. Following is a poem he wrote as an exercise during the seminar:

Commitment to Success

We sit in the dark, guns ready to go
We're taking this house that's been selling kids blow
I look at my partners left and right side
We're all getting ready for a heck of a ride

Before the command to take the house down
I think of the dealers and hold back a frown
To see a boy's bike, and a small child's trike
I know for sure this RAID I'll dislike

I think of the kids that I taught in D.A.R.E.
And hope this summer they are all aware
I made a commitment to teach them to say "no"
It's not the kids fault, some parents sell "blow"

It's middle of night, we're all wearing black
I hope we find their large stash of CRACK
We get the green light, and all start to run
I think to myself, this is not fun

A window is broken, a "flash bang" is thrown
I hope to myself, the kids are not home
We break down the door with weapons all aimed
And hope these people don't think it's a game

Two children are found, a girl and boy
The look on their faces bring no officer joy
To know they will leave, with a stranger tonight
I look in their eyes and recognize fright

A phone call is made, a lady is sent
I wonder to myself, where their next night will be spent
I look at the children with tears in my eyes
And wish I had been there, to change their small lives

Later that morning I finish my report
A few weeks later, I'm sitting in court
The parents are sentenced to the State Pen
Who knows when they'll see their children again

I sit back and wonder, how the kids are,
I recall the look they gave from the car
I go home to my family and hug them real tight
I thank the good Lord, I raised my kids right

I sit in a class and start to prepare,
For kids who will come and want to learn D.A.R.E.
The teacher informs me we have a new kid
I look across the room, he his face hid

I start my lesson on ways to say "no"
I look at the new kid, his face starts to "glow"
I pause for a moment and stare at his face
I know this kid, but can't remember the place

The lesson is over, we learned to say "no"
The school bell rings out, the kids start to go
I look at the new kid who sits all alone,
I remember the night, I raided his home

He gets up from his desk and walks my way,
I think to myself, God what will I say,
The boy comes to with tears in his eyes,
He says thank you officer for saving our lives

He gives me a hug and squeezes real tight,
I realize just then, his life will be right,
I know the meaning of work called success,
By helping a child who's life was a mess

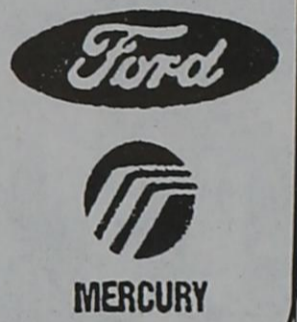

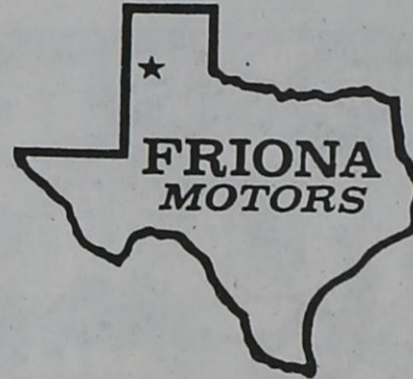

The Pereda kids of Farwell enjoyed a day at the city park recently. On the swing is Ruel, 4; on the slide is Emanuel, 6, and the little girl is Elizabeth, 1.
