It's here...

From Rachel Embry:
Wow.
It's here. After 12 long years of suffering and studying and walking 5 miles uphill in 10 feet of snow all in the name of education (I figure as fast as time is going for me lately I better start practicing on those stories) it's really here.

We got our graduation announcements the other day and I spent probably 30 minutes just starting at my little namecards. Every year, we get announcements from seniors, but it always seemed so far away until that would be me. But it is me. It is my name on the little cards. We are the Class of 1998.

I remember in kindergarten looking up at the older students in awe. They were the "big kids." They were practically as ancient as mom and dad. Now that I am a "big kid" I still feel like a little one.

I never really thought too much about graduation. It was always so far away. I guess deep down I never really believed it would actually come. Sure we talked about how great it was going to be to grow up and move away so we didn't have to eat our green beans and go to bed at 9 p.m. but somehow I never really pictured doing anything but getting up in the morning and going to Farwell Schools and writing notes to Chelsi all day long.

But suddenly it's here. It's still exciting but to my surprise, it's also very scary. I never dreamed it would be scary. But it is. And even a little bit sad too.

As the last few weeks slip away, I find myself constantly thinking, "Well, this is the last time I will ever... (fill in the blank- whatever it is, I've thought it!) And you know, that's just kind of depressing!

I always kind of liked, (well, that word is a little strong) rather, tolerated school at Farwell. I don't know anything else. I've never done anything else, been anywhere else. And all of the sudden, in just a few weeks, I have to leave it all behind. Scary!

But at the same time, I'm ready. I really am. I'll miss Farwell. After all, it is the only home I know. I'll miss my friends and classmates. After all, I've spent every day of the past 12 years with them. I'll miss my parents. After all, my mom does my laundry. (Just kidding, she makes me breakfast too!)

But there comes a point when you realize- Hey! It's here! Suddenly, it's not weird. It's not scary. It's life- life that is just beginning. And its great.
Wow.

From Judy Pomper:
The Texico Chamber of Commerce invited Dan True, weatherman, author, photographer and ornithologist, to address this year's Chamber banquet on April 21.

True spoke and showed slides of his hummingbird and eagle research.

Now, I have to admit that I have always thought of bird watching as an old lady sport, something for people much, much older than me. But in ## Foreign exchange student sees lots of differences in the U.S.A.

by Rachel Embry

"It's different."

This is Eric Haselkamp's No. 1 observation after spending almost 9 months in the United States and although it may be a brief description of his impressions, it nonetheless encompasses fully his experiences.

Eric, a foreign exchange student from Liege, Belgium, came to West Texas to stay with the Jerry Monk family and attend Farwell High School. So far he has really enjoyed his stay in America, though he finds it so different from his home culture.

"Everything is different- the way the teachers teach, the education program, sports, everything," Eric said. "For example, in Belgium, schools are all academics. There are no sports. If you want to play sports, you join a team outside of school and practice after school hours and the games are mostly on the weekends."

Of course coming to the plains of the Panhandle must have been a shock for Eric, who grew up in a European city. In America, the cities are more organized as far as the way they are laid out and there are a lot more of them.

"In just 10 years, Belgium has gone from having quite a bit of open country to being mostly cities," Eric said.

Eric has been able to see more of the United States than just the immediate area however. He has traveled through interesting sites in Colorado and New Mexico, and visited our nearest "big city," Dallas. Even Dallas is not like European cities. The streets are wider and buildings smaller and less people. The population density is 900 people per square mile- something hard for people in this area to fathom.

The education system also poses some changes for Eric, but nothing he can't handle. In Belgium, the schools are divided into elementary school (grades 1-6) and then a secondary school consisting of grades (6-12). After finishing three years of secondary schools, students can choose to receive a diploma and then attend a technical school to receive instruction in a specific trade and then enter the work force. The other option is to finish all 6 years of secondary then attend a college or university.

"I graduated after the 3rd year and went to a technical school for accounting and finished that," Eric said. "I could go to work when I go back but I'm going to go to college first and study nautic architecture (designing boats)."

Eric has also had to learn how to fit English into his expansive grasp of languages. Belgium has 4 official languages, Dutch, Flemish, German, and French. Sometimes, especially when tired, he invents a language of his own incorporating all these!

Sports in America are somewhat different for Eric, mainly because since he lived near an ocean, many outdoor and extracurricular activities involved the water, such as sailing and surfing. Soccer, tennis, and summer hockey (played on grass) are the most popular sports.

Mealtime has introduced a few adjustments for Eric. Fish is the major meal condiment in Belgium but in West Texas, the availability of fresh fish is obviously quite limited. Instead Eric eats a lot more actual meat- beef and chicken.

The major cultural difference Eric has encountered is the way America views alcohol use among young people. In Belgium, there is no drinking limit and children grow up with liquor as just an aspect of their culture.

"For fun, everybody just goes downtown on the weekends where there are all the pubs," he said. "That's where all your friends hang out and that is just where you go to find them. It's much different in America. There are no downtowns. There is just no one place everyone gathers in the cities. And of course here you get in trouble for drinking."

Basically, Eric finds the whole American outlook and attitude much different than the European way of thinking.

"Belgium is much more open-minded," he said. "They really don't care about your beliefs or anything. They are more relaxed."

Although Eric has missed his home in some respects, he has really enjoyed being in America and is not particularly over-anxious to return to Belgium.

"I like it here," he concluded simply.

Video slot machines come to Farwell

Parmer County Attorney Charles Aycok is studying the legality of a new business in Farwell.

Border Games, featuring which is popularly called 8-Liner video slot machines, opened on Avenue A last weekend.

According to Randy Knight who opened the store Monday morning, the business has three partners -- Darryl Cook, Bob McAfoos and himself.

The slots cost a nickel to play and winnings are paid out in the form of coupons.

According to Knight, the coupons are redeemable for merchandise and discounts at Wal-Mart and its grocery department.

Each video slot machine carries a license from the State of Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts. Knight said the business is also permitted by the Texas Coin Operated Machine Division.

Border Games is open seven days a week. You must be at least 18 years of age to play, said Knight.

Aycok told the Tribune that the Texas Attorney General has given an opinion that such gambling violates state law.

Eight-liners have become available in other communities and law enforcement officials have closed them down. But some businesses have received restraining orders pending the outcome of an official court ruling on their legality.

Court rulings are pending in Levelland, Lubbock and Brownfield, for example, said Aycok.

Also studying the legality of 8-liners is Farwell city attorney Jeff Actkinson, who was asked to check into it by Mayor Jimmie Mace.

Aycok said that if determines that Border Games violates criminal law, his office will act on it.

Charges under a "Class A misdemeanor" call for a fine and/or imprisonment if a guilty verdict is returned, said Aycok.

A problem facing legal authorities involving this type of gambling is that state statutes are somewhat vague on such activity.

And the attorney general's opinion is just that, an opinion.

It appears that a final decision on whether 8-liners are legal or not will not be made until the case finishes a lengthy run through the court system.

Shari Swenson is the new Texico city clerk-treasurer. She has begun her new job and plans to move to Texico this summer.

Brophy named Texico marshal

Kelley Brophy, an acting lieutenant in the Clovis police department, was unanimously picked as the new Texico city marshal by the Texico city council on Tuesday.

Brophy takes his new post on May 11. He has had 15 years in law enforcement. He and his wife have two children. In other business, the council:

Lazbuddie students raise funds for 'Make-A-Wish'

The Lazbuddie National Honor Society has completed a month-long fund-raiser for the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

After choosing a "wish kid" to adopt, NHS members sold "Caps for Wish Kids" tickets every Friday during April to students. For $2, the students could wear a cap during school and that money went into the fund.

Students in grades 1 through 4 participated in "Coins for Wish Kids," bringing change from home to fill up jars.

Adeana Carlyle's first grad class raised the most money and each 1st graer received a pencil pouch, pencil and eraser.

The 5th grade class raised money by buying the right to wear a cap in the classroom or to chew gum.

All told, Lazbuddie raised $483 to help their wish kid, Valentin, a junior high student in the Panhandle whose wish is to play one-on-one with Michael Jordan.

Valentin had planned to be at Lazbuddie on the day of the awards but he was in the hospital. He still plans to come to Lazuddie to say thank you before school is out.

Mrs. Carlyle's first grade class holds the check to the Make-A-Wish Foundation, the school plaque and their pencil pouches.

just a few minutes, True captured my attention and interest.

He is a very short diminutive man. He could easily have been a jockey instead of a weatherman. Perhaps, that is why he developed such an intense interest in tiny, swift hummingbirds.

He has studied and photographed hummingbirds from Central America to Canada, but the exciting thing is that he has spotted many of them right in our area. He studied eagles in Pal Duro Canyon for years. He says Arizona considers itself the No. 1 state for hummingbirds, but he expects New Mexico to surpass them this year.

True has the photographic expertise needed to photograph critters that fly past at incredible speeds, and which are capable of flying backward if they desire.

His cameras use electronic beams that open the shutters each time the beam of light is broken.

He estimated that some hummingbirds flap their wings 60-74 beats per second (not minutes) -- that's fast! He must have a very fast shutter speed and film that records action instantly with his still camera.

As a writer, my ear tuned into True's vocabulary rather than the content of his scientific research.

He talked a lot about "rufous" hummingbirds. I was surprised to learn that "rufous" means dull red or rust colored.

Also, I didn't know that the colored throat patch of a bird is called a gorget, which he pronounced with the Old French long "a" ending, rather than the American jit sound.

The word that he used that took me three dictionaries to find, though, was used in conjunction with eagles circling an area.

I wasn't sure if I had heard "burkeling" or "burgling."

"Burgling" didn't make sense in this situation. But one dictionary told me that "burke" means "murdered by suffocating" or "to surpress quietly."

That didn't make sense to me, either.

The last dictionary I checked said that "burke" means the same thing as circumvent, bypass, circumnavigate, detour, sidestep or skirt. That seemed closer to the meaning I had heard.

True's study of eagles has proven that they raise and lower their wingtips to slow down, turn, rise or swoop down. He called the wingtips "spoilers" and he says he has proven that eagles have spoilers which operate like the flaps on an airplane. As a pilot, he recognized this phenomenon which others had missed.

Sheriff's Report

Here is the weekly report from Parmer County Sheriff Rex Williams:

On April 23, Ruben Orozco, 36, of Friona, was arrested by the sheriff's office on a charge of violation of probation. The case is pending in district court.

On April 26, Richard Pinkerton, 40, of Hereford, was arrested by Friona police on charges of resisting arrest and possession of a controlled substance. The case is pending in county court.

On April 26, Angel Vasquez, 22, of Bovina, was arrested by the Texas Highway Patrol on a charge of DWI felony. The case is pending before the grand jury.

Both directors up for reelection ran without opposition -- Ernest Riley, in District 2, and Paul Quintana, in District 7.

General Manager Lance Adkins reported a successful year for the co-op.

Total revenue was $1,456,254 with a margin of $1,390,548. The board of directors approved disbursing $417,164 in patronage capital refunds.

Over the past 60 years, the co-op has grown to serve almost 11,000 electric accounts over some 10,000 square miles of service territory.

Embry heads to Austin for third time

Farwell High School senior Rachel Embry has accomplished a fantastic feat - she will be attending the state UIL meet in Austin for the third time in writing events.

Considering the number of students who participate in Texas in UIL, this is a real achievement.

The meet will be May 7.

The regional UIL contest was held in Levelland. A region consists of 10 districts, with an average of nine teams in each district. From the districts, three may advance in each event to regionals, so 30 students compete in each event. To just get to regionals is an achievement, also.

Here are Farwell's results at the regional contest:

Editorial -- Rachel Embry, 2nd.

Computer applications -- Chelsi Kaltwasser, 4th.

Math -- Matt Taylor, 11th.

Current events -- Farwell team, 3rd, Aaron Christian, Jordan Nichols and Grant Opliger; Nichols finished in 7th and Opliger was 8th in individual competition.

Informative speech -- Kirk Gober.

Poetry -- Sabrina Gonzales.

Feature writing -- Rachel Embry, 6th; Lorisa Littlejohn.

Sponsors were Patsy Camp, Marrison Hudson and Jimmie Mace.

Peabody recognized

Phil Peabody, a student at Texico High School, was named as a winner of the Discover Card Tribute Award program for New Mexico.

Peabody was a $2,500 state Gold winner in the Trade and Technical Studies category.

State Gold winners compete on the basis of their original application at the national level for a $20,000 Gold, $15,000 Silver, and $10,000 Bronze scholarship.

The program recognizes students who demonstrate accomplishments in 4 of the 5 areas of leadership, obstacles overcome, unique endeavors, special talents and community service, and maintain a minimum 2.75 grade point average.

Nationally, nearly 11,000

applications are received each year.

Lazbuddie cites pupils

Center offers variety of services for Parmer County residents

Robert White, of Farwell, is the Parmer County representative to the Central Plains Center for Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse in Plainview.

He pointed out that the center offers many services to Parmer County residents and folks need to be aware of them.

For example, the center has opened a ROPES Challenge Course which is open to everyone on a fee basis. This is an experiential process that increases self confidence and a sense of personal achievement through challenge and risk-taking in a controlled environment, while improving problem solving skills, teamwork and trust in others.

The center can be called at 1-800-687-1300.

Here are some of the services also offered:

Mental health services

-- 24-hour crisis hotline is a staffed telephone service providing information, support, intervention and referrals to individuals in crisis. The number is 1-800-687-1300,

-- Mental health outpatient clinics provide psychiatric services in Friona and Muleshoe.

-- Rehabilitation services provide skills and supports in the person's chosen environment for people with psychiatric disabilities.

-- Case management services are available for people who need coordination and linking of services with a variety of service providers.

-- Dual diagnosis unit serves folks who have a diagnosis of both mental illness and substance abuse.

Children's mental health services

-- Outpatient prevention/intervention services provide the person, group and family counseling to assist individuals with problematic issues.

-- Case management functions provide assistance in coordinating services.

-- Day treatment provides day-long programming for persons who are not functioning effectively in their school environment. The program consists of an educational as well as a skills training component.

Early childhood intervention services

This is an infant education and stimulation program. The program's trained personnel are committed to providing education for children from birth to three years of age who are developmentally delayed, have a medical diagnosis which has a significant risk of developmental delay, or display atypical development. Family-centered services are a staff priority.

Transdisciplinary assessments are provided for each child.

This may include psychological, educational, medical and sociological evaluations, with physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech therapy assessments given as needed. Nutrition, hearing, vision and assistive technology screenings are provided.

Substance abuse services

The Plainview Women's Center is a comprehensive intensive residential treatment program for women and their children. Groups, lectures and process groups are held to address the special issues women face in recovery.

The Institute for Adolescent Addictions is an intensive residential treatment program for alcohol and drug addiction. The program provides treatment services for adolescent males, ages 13 to 17.

The W.W. Allen Treatment Center is an intensive residential treatment program that combines structural, strategic alcohol and drug counseling based on a foundation of the 12-step model of treatment and reality therapy concepts. The program serves men and women ages 18 and above.

Mental retardation services

-- Case management services help identify and arrange for needed services for clients. It matches clients with the appropriate staff who assist, coordinate and monitor services and care.

-- In-home family support provides financial aid related to the clients' disability for prevention of institutionalization.

-- Residential services coordinate residential placements and provide guidance to help select the most appropriate, least restrictive residential environment for clients.

-- Vocational services provide training to develop skills needed for employment. Supports are provided to help find and maintain a job.

Cancer often causes symptoms that you can watch for.

THE WORD CAUTION

Can remind you of the most common warning signs of cancer

- Change in bowel or bladder habits,
- A sore that does not heal,
- Unusual bleeding or discharge,
- Thickening or lump in the breast or any other part of the body
- Indigestion or difficulty swallowing,
- Obvious change in a wart or mole,
- Nagging cough or hoarseness.

These symptoms are not always warning signs of cancer. They can also be caused by less serious conditions. It is important to see a doctor if you have any of these symptoms. Only a doctor can make a diagnosis.

A biopsy is the only sure way to know whether a medical problem is cancer. In a biopsy, the doctor removes a sample of tissue. The tissue is examined under a microscope to check for cancer cells.

Cancer is a group of more than 100 different diseases. Cancer occurs when cells become abnormal and keep dividing and forming more cells without controller order.

All organs of the body are made up of cells. Normally, cells divide to produce more cells only when the body needs them. If cells divide when new ones are not needed, they form a mass of excess tissue, called a tumor. Tumors can be benign (not cancer) or malignant (cancer).

The cells in malignant tumors can invade and damage nearby tissues and organs. Cancer cells can also break away from a malignant tumor and travel through the bloodstream or lymphatic system to form new tumors in other parts of the body. The spread of cancer is called metastasis.

Cancer is caused by both external (chemicals, radiation, and viruses) and internal (hormones, immune conditions, and inherited mutations) factors. Casual factors make act together or in sequence to initiate or promote carcinogenesis. Ten or more years often pass between exposures or mutations and detectable cancer.

Many causes of cancer can be prevented by not using tobacco products, avoiding the harmful rays of sun, and choosing foods with less fat and more fiber. In addition, regular checkups and self-exams can reveal cancer at an early stage, when treatment is likely to be effective.

DON'T WAIT TO FEEL PAIN: EARLY CANCER USUALLY DOES NOT CAUSE PAIN

Cancer is treated with surgery, radiation therapy, chemotherapy, hormone therapy, or biological therapy. The doctor may use one method or a combination of methods. The choice of treatment depends on the type and location of the cancer, whether the disease has spread, the patient's age and general health, and other factors.

The way to do a great deal for Christ is to keep on doing a little.

Don't Spend A Dime!
Not until you consider using this year's profits to buy "crop insurance" for the next 20-30 years.
Watch out for the dry year that's bound to come. Protect your investments in seed, fertilizer, pesticides, herbicides--you name it--and yes that includes protection from the most debilitating of all--drought.
No other farm equipment can offer you the assurance of protecting, and growing, your bottom line. It may just take one dry year for a Valley to pay for itself--and then some.
So when it comes to making any major purchases this year, don't spend a dime. Not until you fully consider the safety net we offer you and your farming operation.

Recipe of Week

German Mushroom Strudel

Pilzen Strudel

Vegetable oil spray 1/4 teaspoon salt
 8 ounces button mushrooms, sliced Pinch of black pepper
 1/4 cup chopped onion (about 1/2 medium) Pinch of ground nutmeg
 2 cloves garlic, minced 6 sheets frozen phyllo dough,
 1 ounce low-fat cream cheese thawed according to package
 1 teaspoon chopped fresh dill or 1/4 directions
 1 teaspoon dried dill weed Vegetable oil spray

Spray a large skillet with vegetable oil spray. Heat skillet over medium heat. Cook mushrooms, onion, and garlic for 10 minutes, or until mushrooms are tender and liquid has evaporated. Stir in cream cheese, dill, salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Remove from heat.

Preheat oven to 375° F. Working as quickly as possible so it won't dry out, stack phyllo dough on a clean dish towel. Leaving 1/2-inch edge, slightly mound mushroom filling at one of the short sides of phyllo dough. Fold in sides and roll up phyllo and filling jelly-roll style, using the towel to help you roll.

Spray a baking sheet lightly with vegetable oil spray. Place strudel on baking sheet, seam side down. Spray strudel lightly with vegetable oil spray. Bake, uncovered, for 30 minutes, or until phyllo is golden brown and mushroom filling is heated through.

Transfer warm strudel to a cutting board. Cut into 8 slices. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Serves 8; 1 slice per serving

THE CHRIST-O-CENTRIC LIFE

Too many people have yet to learn that one cannot travel the wrong road and arrive at the right destination.

One is on the right road when he follows the teachings of Christ. His teachings are set forth in the New Testament. Christ is not "a way" of life. He is "the way" (John 14:6). One must allow Christ to occupy the place of primacy—the central place in his life, if he would live fully and have assurance of eternal life.

1. One must hear Christ. God said, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear ye him" (Matt. 17:5).
2. Come to Christ. Jesus said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Matt. 11:28).
3. Come into Christ. It is not enough to simply hear Christ; it is not enough to say, "Lord, Lord." Nor is one justified by just believing in Christ. One's faith must act and move him to obedience. The only way to get "into Christ" is by baptism. Paul: "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ" (Gal. 3:27). One cannot possibly be baptized "in Christ." Rather, baptism brings one "into Christ."
4. Enjoy the new life in Christ. "Wherefore if any man be in Christ...all things are become new" (2 Cor. 5:17). The new creature wears a new name; has a new relationship; rejoices in the new hope. He has access to all spiritual blessings (Eph. 1:3). The Christian graces will adorn his life (2 Pet. 1:5f). He will bear the fruit of the Spirit and grow up in Christ (Gal. 5:22,23; Eph. 4:15).
5. Abide in Christ. Jesus said, "Abide in me and I in you...If a man abide not in me he is cast forth as a branch and burned" (John 15:4,6).
6. Die in Christ. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord..." (Rev. 14:13).
7. Live eternally with Christ (Phil. 1:23).

Travel the right road and reach the right destination.

You are invited to visit the church of Christ that meets at 5th & Ave C in Farwell. For information call 481-9153 or 481-3833. Welcome.

Youth job project on tap

The Texico-Farwell Rotary Club is sponsoring a Youth Employment Project for the summer.

Local youths interested in after-school or summer employment are encouraged to complete application forms which are available at the Texico and Farwell schools' counselor's offices. Applicants should be currently enrolled in the Farwell or Texico school districts.

The project's purpose is to assist area youths in acquiring work experience. Whether a student intends to pursue a vocation or higher education, employment experience is a valuable asset. The skills and responsibilities derived from a job experience can create improved financial capabilities, a greater work ethic and improved abilities to work with others.

All applications must be completed by the youth and signed by his parents or legal guardians. The applications will be collected in a file which will be available for potential employers. Any local business or person interested in hiring area youths are asked to call Gary Patterson at 481-9580 or any other Rotary Club member to review applications for potential employees.

This activity is sponsored by the vocational service committee of the Rotary Club.
