Germany— Local insiders understand that Schachts' decision to reduce cash payments to American holders of German obligations was not due to a shortage of foreign exchange funds. Rather it was intended a subtle reminder to Germany's American creditors that the and Nazi boycott is not healthy for their interests. Schacht usually starts negotiations by sayin he will pay nothing and giving ground from that point so the bondhold-ers may not be as badly off as they think. But some additional handi-cap will be imposed on collections. It is noticeable that countries where virtually no boycott move ment has been attempted, such as witzerland and Holland, are getting much better treatment. It is also worth noting that the American banks whose friendship the Nazis are anxious to cultivate are not affected by the move. Germany will continue repayment of their credits as rapidly as possible. The bondholders are the goats.

Experts say that Germany is not worried about the possible effect on her credit standing because she knows she can't float loans he. e for
