Operators From Surrounding Territory To Hold Conference

Red and White Store operators and clerks will gather at 7:30 p. m. today in the Settles hotel. Operators from Big Spring, Stanton, Lamars, Coahoma and Ackery will be in attendance.

There has never been a stage production device that has more impressiveness or higher purpose than the Passion Play, to be given at the Municipal Auditorium this evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Every person who can possibly afford to do so should be present for the performance this evening.

Perhaps erection of the auditorium and city hall at the time they were built has proved to be a mistake in some respects. In other respects it has not.

It is difficult for a majority of us to recognize the benefits that are intangible, that come to us in some manner other than in terms of dollars and cents. If full advantage is taken of the uses to which the auditorium may be put just a few more years will pass before many who were angry because the building was erected will be finding that their pride in the building is outdoing whatever prejudices they might have had against it.

Now, if we'd just figure out some way to give Sam Goldman a fair opportunity of developing a band here we could enjoy some indoor concerts this winter in the auditorium. It seems, however, that a good municipal band is an utter impossibility for this particular town.

Remarks of the writer made recently another publication included the statement that NRA promotes and nurtures and does not stifle the "rugged individualism" America has so long cherished.

The statement was made with full realization that it is directly contrary to most folks' conception of the theory and the effect of NRA.

If individualism means that a person is not only willing but able to act independently, that he does not wish to or have to depend upon others for the ordinary blessings of existence, than it is our argument that a man employed at a living wage, or a man making a fair profit in his own business is in a far better position to exercise individualism than one who does not have a living wage or who is not making a profit from his business.

It all depends upon one's conception of individualism. In the past too many of us have considered that the "rugged individualism" of Americans could be nothing more than the achievement of hoards of money in a volume far beyond what might be termed a reasonable or fair profit; that concentration of wealth was the greatest evidence that individualism was being preserved and promoted.

Development Of The Passion Play Through Middle Ages Is Reviewed

(Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of articles by Dr. Alfred E. Wolfe, author of the English version of the Passion Play, upon its early history and development. The Passion Play will be presented at the Municipal Auditorium here Friday evening, October 13, by the original Freiburg players.)

The people of those distant periods responded in amazing fashion to the dramatization of the Life of Christ. Intellectual curiosity had grown and flowered in the Renaissance. Crusades had brought, and were bringing back to Europe with each homeward-bound company of knights, a new and broader conception of life. The crowds became more dense within the cathedrals, as man became more elevated to himself through the power of sacred stories retold by word and gesture. Christ's power no longer overcame the multitude, for they could visualize His suffering. Undoubtedly the religious dramas played a tremendous role in disclosing to men and women their individuality.

At Freiburg, Baden as in all the other medieval towns built up under soaring Cathedral towers, the rush of the people at the Passion Plays grew so great that the improvised stages were overrun. The voices of the participants could not be heard above the roar of the crowd. Even repeated requests, written into the dialogue of "Let There Be Silence," were not sufficient to relieve the situation. Finally it became the custom to erect the stage in front of the Cathedral, in the shadow of the facade. At Freiburg, the very earliest mention of the Passion Play indicated that the plot was unfolded during the progress of a procession winding slowly on the outside of the muenster. But from the time that the spectacle emerged from out the dim, glass-paned interior of the nave, the church lost its hold on the Passion Play purely as a religious ceremonial. Monks and Priests still took part in the production; but their influence decreased year by year. When the dramatized Life of Christ moved into the light of the sun, the revival of the drama as an independent art was assured. The Passion Play at Freiburg was enacted for many years before any definite script was prepared to guide the production from year to year. The monks knew their roles by heart, but when the laymen of the town first began to appear in the sacred roles, they had to be taught their parts. The two oldest existing manuscripts in the city archives and which consist of 61 pages and cover leaves. The first bears the date 1599, and the second that of 1604. In the older version there are scenes depicting the defeat of the devil, that are not to be found in the 1604 version.

Two different methods of presentation are provided for in the manuscripts. One gives the directions for the processional enactment of the drama; the scenes to be given as the actors walk around the outside of the Cathedral; the other is the silent stage version for the unfolding of the play on the facade of the Cathedral. Thus the two oldest versions of the Passion Play at Freiburg mark the whole transition from church to town council control; for it was not long before that august group of men assumed the responsibilities for the ceremony.

1st Christian Revival Opens

Unusually Encouraging Interest Marks Services Of Sunday
The fall revival at the Christian church started Sunday in an excellent way with fine attendance at all services. There were three additions to the church with a baptismal service at the close of the day. Such was the interest manifested that a business man of the city came to the aid of the pastor in the afternoon and made request that the baptistry in readiness at the evening hour as desired to confess his faith in His Lord and be baptized at the same service.

The song services were an inspiration and every one of the congregation, W. Potter led the congregation in one of the finest singings ever heard in this church. At the closing hour the pastor spoke on the subject "The Tragedy of Absence." During the experience of the Disciple Thomas, who was absent from a group meeting at a time that Jesus made some of the richest bestowals upon that early group. At the evening hour Rev. Shettleworth spoke on the wisdom of the wisdom of soul winning.

Bovine Line Beaten Down By Plainsmen

Pampa's driving backs and hard blocking line beat the Big Spring Steers into submission Saturday on the Steer Stadium turf, 20-0.

From the time Hamilton, Harvester halfback, cut back over right guard, squirmed into the open and outrigged Steer backs in a 53-yard dash to the goal, there could be no doubt of the outcome. Pampa's first score came on the fifth play the Harvesters tried. Cordill made a heroic stand for Big Spring, carrying the ball most of the time. But it was little "Gruvy" Graves, guard, that furnished the stubborn fight for the Steers.

While the Harvesters were ripping gaping holes in the Steer line, Graves was holding his own and getting tackle after tackle. Bob Flowers did yeoman service in backing up the line and Cordill got his share of tackles. In the fourth quarter after Pampa had piled up twenty points, it looked as if Big Spring had the break to bring a score. Dean intercepted Hamilton's basket pass and broke into the open with two Harvesters after him. Dean just didn't have the speed and he was brought down from behind on the Pampa forty-two yard line after a thirty six yard run.

Little Miss Mary Elizabeth Newsome Honored At Pink-Blue Birthday Party

Nine pink candles burned on top. Birthday wishes were made by the guests to Mary Elizabeth as she blew out the candles. Refreshments consisted of cake, pink and white Dixie cups and pink lemonade. The mothers present assisted Mrs. Mitchell and Bryant in serving the guests. After the refreshment hour Mr. Newsome gave the boys and girls rides on Mary Elizabeth's Shetland pony, which was a thrill for the kiddies.

Pecora Delves In Security Investments

Finds Eleven Millions Put In Stocks Only Worth Thousands

WASHINGTON (UP).—Senate stock market investigators were to press Dillon, Read & Co. for an explanation of the manner in which millions of dollars entrusted by the investing public were poured into railroad securities now valued at only a few thousand.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, has shown that the largest investments of the two investment trusts organized and controlled by Dillon, Read & Co., were in two railroad stocks.

The United States and International Securities Corporation, one of the investment trusts, bought $11,886,000 of Rock Island and Frisco securities. The stock now is worth approximately $194,000 at current market quotations.

Pecora has shown that Dillon, Read & Co. placed on the directorates of their two investment trusts men largely interested in other enterprises and in various securities. Matthew C. Brush, an investment trust director, was one of half a dozen persons summoned by the committee more than a year ago when it sought to question some really large market operators.

Charles Hayden, senior partner of Hayden, Stone & Co., bankers of New York, was a director of Dillon, Read Investment Trust when large purchases of Rock Island stock were made. He also was chairman of the board of the Rock Island road.

Frederick Ecker, resident of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was an investment trust director and likewise a director of the Frisco railroad when its securities were being purchased.

Pecora is seeking to determine whether the huge blocks of rail securities were bought at a time when interested or influential individuals were unloading.

If individual holdings of railroad securities were unloaded on the public through the medium of the investment trusts, Pecora hopes to establish the circumstances of the transaction. So far there has been no proof that such was the case.

Another Special Session Likely

AUSTIN (UP).—Talk of another special session of the legislature was common here as the present session began work with only four days to go.

Dr. Albert Walker, Vernon, said another session as early as December would be preferable to issuing at present more relief bonds than are required for immediate needs. A session to balance the state budget, was also discussed as a possibility.

The house met Wednesday morning at 9:30 to resume action on its own $5,000,000 relief bond bill which it proposes to substitute for the $5,000,000 senate bill.

When the house recessed at 10 o'clock Monday night 18 amendments already proposed to the house committee bill had not been acted upon. The principal one accepted provides that at least 25 per cent of bond funds must be spent on lateral roads and that a quarter of such expenditure may be for materials.

A provision was also inserted that nothing in the bill shall prevent appointment on the new state relief commission of any of the present commission members.

The house joined in the senate provision that those employed by county welfare boards must have resided in the county six months and in Texas a year. The proposed reduction of the bond issue to $5,000,000 was voted at the house afternoon session Wednesday.

Twins Deserted By Woman Because Family Had Only $1 Per Week For Food

NEW YORK (UP).—Carl Del Rosso, a hotel bellhop, confronted his wife, Marie, in a police station, shouting:

"Why did you tell me our babies had died?"

Mrs. Del Rosso sobbed: "I don't know. I don't know."

Mrs. Del Rosso was dismissed from city hospital, Welfare Island Wednesday where 10 days before she had given birth to twin girls. On her way home, she left one baby in a subway station and the other near the virgin's altar in a Catholic church.

Del Rosso makes $10 a week. "Now, why did you do it?" demanded an indignant Irish cop who had been charmed by the babies and who had announced to the police station at large that he was a father himself, and proud of it.

"We were poor," said Mrs. Del Rosso. At first that seemed enough explanation, but presently she looked up from her tears, adding:

"We pay $9 a week rent and my husband makes $10, so how could we keep two babies? I wrote him from the hospital that they died."

Police found it difficult to decide what to do with Mrs. Del Rosso and she was held on a charge of abandonment pending a decision.

The husband could do nothing more than pound his forehead while his wife wept on his shoulder.

For The Love of Eve

by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XXVII

Saturday evening Dick took Eve to dinner at a popular restaurant known as the Old Plantation. The atmosphere was that of the hospitable old south. Pretty mulatto girls wearing bandanas and checkered gingham dresses served Mary and Eve fried chicken and corn fritters. A string quartet played lively tunes and Eve soon found herself dancing with spirit.

Later they were joined by a group of Dick's business friends and she enjoyed the evening so much she was almost able to forget that she had lost $2000 through a mistake in her department.

The next day she and Dick went for a long ride in the country. Office cars seemed far away and Eve arrived home tired and sleepy from being so long in the fresh air.

Monday morning she was in her office as she began to get ready. Her arms would be back today and the dreaded interview must take place.

The advertising manager summoned her to his office at 9.30. Eve managed a tremulous smile as she entered but Barnes' face was grim, his voice crisp.

"I scarcely need tell you, Mr. Rader," he began, "that the price error in Saturday's coat advertisement was the worst of the kind the store has ever had. I am amazed that you should have permitted such a blunder."

Eve started to speak but he silenced her with a curt gesture. "It is one of the things that simply cannot be explained away or smoothed over," he continued.

Eve was determined to explain. She had decided to tell of Mona's treachery even at the risk of being considered "caty."

"But you don't understand—" she began.

"I understand the result of the mistake and results are what count in this department," he went on. "I feared your marriage would interfere with your interest in your work here. All I have to say now is—don't let anything of the sort happen again!" There was a grim threat in the words.

Furious that he had not permitted her to defend herself, Eve returned to her desk. Mona had scored against her at every point. Eve was tempted to go to Mr. Bixby about the affair; temped too, to resign. But she knew that was exactly what Mona had hoped might happen and therefore it was the one thing Eve determined not to do.

At 10.30 a rosy-cheeked little woman with a youthful face and graying hair appeared and asked for Mr. Barnes. Arlene escorted her to his office.

A few moments later the buzzer sounded for Eve and she was introduced to the newcomer. "This is Mrs. Penney," said Barnes. "She will take Miss Vaid's place."

Eve took the new artist into the outer office and introduced her to the rest of the advertising staff and to her new duties.

"At first I'm sorry for her," Eve told Dick that night, "but after she began to work, I knew why Barnes had hired her. That woman has genius!"

Mrs. Penney adjusted herself easily to the office routine and Eve blessed her for that. With things running smoothly again, Barnes returned to a more optimistic attitude toward his co-workers and the tension was lifted.

Apparently mild and yielding, Mrs. Penney proved to be firm and self-reliant to a surprising degree. Even Mona who usually found some means of gaining her own ends in such matters, could neither seduce nor wheedle Mrs. Penney into taking care of minor details of office routine which were Mona's responsibility or exchanging lunch periods to suit Mona's whims.

Mrs. Penney was a widow with a young daughter who was in college. Every stroke of the artist's pencil was for the sole object of securing her daughter's education. Mrs. Penney worked swiftly and untiring eight hours a day—longer when necessary. But she managed to turn out smart, finished drawings at a speed which usually enabled her to leave the office promptly at closing time.

Eve, looking across at Mrs. Penney, could be very helpful in putting the office routine on a prompt and efficient basis whenever the time came that Barnes should leave and Eve herself be in charge of the advertising office.

And then Eve's mother came to visit her. Kate had made a mistake in the apartment, then shook her head and decided to spend the morning doing the things Eve found little time for. Pinstriping she "did up" all the ruffled curtains and washed the delicate crocheted rugs. To Dick's delight, she discarded the "bachelorette" buttons which Eve had been slipping on his clothes and replaced them with button sewed on firmly with heavy thread. She spent three mornings darning heels and toes and catching runners in hose.

And she made orange marmalade and a supply of noodles calculated to last into the summer. Every noon Kate met her daughter in the ladies' lounge at Bixby's. Here, while she waited, Kate sat at one of the desks and addressed postal cards to relatives, neighbors and friends at home. During luncheon Eve planned the afternoon's entertainment for her mother—usually either a shopping tour or a matinee. Later Dick would meet her and take her home in time to prepare an old-fashioned, appetizing dinner before Eve's arrival.

"Why, I could almost forget there is such a place as home," Kate said one day, "if it wasn't for worrying whether Pa is getting enough to eat and if he remembers to feed the hens. I'll bet my plants will all be dried up, too, for want of a little attention."

At the end of a week no amount of persuasion could keep her in Lake City any longer. "I've fixed you up a bit and that will give you a good start again," she told Eve. "I'd much rather you'd stay at home and not try to do too much. No good can come of it—and I'm worried about your nerves."

When the train pulled out of the station Eve and Dick, standing before the closed window, Eve's own eyes were blurred as she waved a last goodbye.

The week had passed so swiftly that her mother's departure had been unexpected. Eve regretted that she had not found time to take her mother to the stock exchange and the brokerage office. "Mother gets such a kick out of seeing what makes the wheels go round and she's such a good sport about it. I know her new things," Eve told herself.

She was watching the activities of the market anxiously these days. Pure Soap, Inc., had fallen four points and then, following brisk selling had resumed its former high and plunged ahead. This fluctuation was a similar one to Eve's spirits. She looked at fellow passengers on the trolley with a new interest as she rode to the store each morning. She wondered if some of them were similarly concerned over the market paws. It did not occur to her that men and women still maintain their bearings.

And then Pure Soap, Inc., reached the point Eve had been hoping for. Let it take another slump she hurried to the bank that noon and arranged to sell.

She felt rich as she figured her gains. After all, one had to pay some price for success and this had cost her only anxiety. She was eager for a new venture in finance.

Eve left the office that evening promptly as the closing gong sounded. Sam was waiting at the side entrance for Eve and they of course went to take a drive. Thus it happened that she reached their apartment before Dick, who had been detained by some extra work.

Eve, still exulting over her financial gains, set light-heartedly to work to cook the dinner. It would be nice to surprise Dick by having the meal ready when he came. But she secretly had started her preparations when the telephone rang.

"Oh, I'm sorry!" They must have given me the wrong number. "The voice was Mona Allen's. That she had been given the number of Eve's telephone by mistake was possible, of course, but a coincidence almost beyond Eve's credulity. What could it mean? Had Mona been telephoning to Dick?

CHAPTER XXVIII

Eve entered the office of the brokerage firm of Sloan and Sanford with trepidation. Yet she felt no urge to turn back. She had made one investment through the bank and now was exploring new fields. Eve had decided to shift the scene for her next financial venture.

She asked for Mr. Sanford and this time he was at his desk. Her naive must have amused him, for more than once she noticed a twinkle in his large blue-gray eyes. "I'm through with Pure Soap," Eve told him. "I don't want to overdo any one thing, you see. I thought I might like to try one of the industrial. Will you tell me about them?"

Mr. Sanford told her about the industrial and agreed with her that it might be well to invest in one of them. He advocated Atlas Coupler. Eve placed her money on Atlas Coupler.

As she left the office she wondered vaguely what a coupler was. She had not felt free to ask him. At any rate, it was listed on the stock exchange. She noticed this when Charles brought the stock edition newspapers into the office that afternoon. As soon as she had time she got out the newspaper file and looked up Atlas Coupler ratings for the last two months. Yes, Mr. Sanford had told her the truth concerning the stock's value. She could dismiss from her mind any misgivings concerning her new investment.

Eve liked the atmosphere of the brokerage house. She longed to feel the same ease of manner displayed by the men she saw trading there. Yet she could not quite another sense of excitement each time she visited the exchange. She formed the habit of drinking frequently during lunch periods. Usually she asked Arlene to go with her, since she felt timid about appearing alone among a group of men devoted to watching market quotations being chalked on the board.

"I certainly get a great kick out of coming up here," Arlene assured her. "Father could only see me now. He thinks anyone who invests in stocks is bound for perdition. And he couldn't for the life of him, understand that I'd be interested in this place without investing."

Tuesday was pay day at Bixby's and the following Wednesday found Arlene in Mr. Sanford's office with Eve. Arlene was busy, but she found time to help Eve in her investment.

"I think it would be best to margin," she commented when the methods of investing were explained to her. "I'd love the excitement of it!"

So Arlene also bought Atlas Coupler. To Eve it had always been necessary to share each new experience with someone. Only after confiding in another and relieving the event did she get the utmost joy from it. Hence her spirits were greatly exhilarated after Arlene made her investment and they watched the trend of the market together. There were days when she was delighted.

"Always the bitter with the sweet, the thorn with the rose!" she murmured as she looked at the stock market.

CHAPTER XXIX

After that first evening when Miss McElhinney joined Eve and Dick on the porch, she reappeared every time they sat out of doors. "My name is Dorothy," she confided one evening, "but I wish you'd call me Dottie."

"Never!" Eve told herself savagely. "I suppose the next thing she'll want to call my husband by his given name. I like her nerve!"

And, sure enough, before long Miss McElhinney did assume that privilege. Eve gathered up several sheets of copy paper and a pencil and then went to the sports goods department to lay plans for the June campaign. When she returned Barnes was standing at Arlene's desk, taking up the letters as rapidly as she transcribed them. Poor Arlene! That act in itself was enough to make a stenographer nervous. It was just 12 o'clock when Eve hurried out to meet Dick. She would have to wait until later to talk to Arlene.

The front windows of Bixby's store were decorated with apple blossoms and that was a display of house and garden frocks, porch furniture and picnic equipment.

But Eve felt some of the urge of the spring time. She hurried across the square, oblivious of all passers-by. In another minute she must face Dick and ask him to give her $200. But her cheeks were not formulated and she scarcely knew how to plunge into all the explanations that would be necessary.

She entered the revolving door of the bank and then she saw him! Dick's face lighted with a glad smile but Eve's frown in horror. It was not because he was smoking his old briar pipe in the midst of hurrying, well-groomed men and women, Dick had the temerity to be wearing his old slouch hat, baggy trousers and blue flannel shirt. And his coat had a streak of paint on one sleeve. What was more, he seemed entirely unconscious of his shocking appearance and was coming toward her.

"Dick!" Eve reproached him. "You didn't dream you'd come down in those old clothes!"

"Well," he said easily, "there was concrete to pour today so I didn't wear my tuxedo to work. Anyhow I didn't have time to go home to change."

CHAPTER XXX

Eve tried to conceal her dismay. "Dick," she said nervously, "I need $200 and I have it today. This is my only possible!"

"I'm sorry," he told her, "but I haven't that much in the bank."

"But I must have it!" she insisted. Dick did not embarrass her by asking questions. "I've just had an insurance premium," he explained. "I could take up my policy but that is made out for your future protection."

"I'd be afraid to have you do that!" Eve said. "Well," he went on, "I might borrow on it."

valuation of Atlas Copper. And there are days when a slight decline sent them into the very depths of discouragement. Eve Allen Coupler had long lain dormant, Eve learned after looking up the price of it. After the pause had been a lengthy, uncertain delay in marketing the device, owing to the power of the holding company behind the coupler that was to be displaced by Atlas. But now contracts had been signed and manufacturing had begun. A reliable brokerage concern guided the activities of the issue and demand for it caused an extended flurry in the stock. The girls had every reason to believe quick riches were to be theirs for their risk and they anticipated their return eagerly.

And then Atlas Coupler began to recede. The first day's slump of $200, "Oh, how happy you were!" Why, she thought, Pure Soap, Inc. had done that often in the past time she had had her holding. Even four days of decline did not frighten her because she had enormous faith in the issue. OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM FACES COLLAPSE.
The next session of congress will probably be asked to vote some thing like $60,000,000 for the relief of the nation's public schools; and when the question comes up for debate we are likely to get a look at one of the most critical phases of the entire depression.
In a way, the whole business is a sample of what happens when an irresistible force meets an immovable object.
The irresistible force is the schools' need for money—a need that simply must be met. The immovable object is the fact that thousands of cities and counties simply haven't got the money and can't possibly get it. In consequence, the problem becomes one of the great number that is being based on the receptive lap of Uncle Sam.

Superintendent Charles A. Lee of Missouri, head of a committee of education officials appointed to present the schools' case to congress, lists a few of the ways in which the depression has crippled the schools.
This year will see 80,000 fewer teachers on the job in America than were employed last year—although the NRA has released at least 100,000 boys and girls of school age for further study. Teachers' pay has been reduced, on the average, by 30 per cent. In some regions the cuts are as high as 80 per cent.
Half of all the teachers will get less than $400 for their year's work. Some are actually getting less than $35 a month—the day labor wage in NRA codes. In many localities schools will be in session for only three or four months. Many high schools have had to go on a tuition basis, which means that thousands of youngsters won't get the education they are entitled to.
On the other hand, there is not a city nor a county in America that is not pressed for money. Tax revenues have fallen off, both because of the depression and because of antiquated tax systems.
Furthermore, we are beginning to hear a wave of propaganda in favor of still further economy in the schools—propaganda backed by the most part by wealthy individuals who have far less reason for complaining about school expenditures than the ordinary middleclass citizen who ays his taxes without a whimper.
It is a critical situation. The school system is in the process of collapsing, and it is supremely important that the collapse be averted. If no one but Uncle Sam can do it, it looks very much as if he would have to dig down in his pocket for whatever funds may be needed.

Location of a west offset to Skelly Oil Company's No. 1 Addis in Ector county will be staked at once by Lee C. Harrison, local operator, he has announced. Skelly No. 1 Addis is 990 feet from the north line and 2,900 feet from the east line of section 33, block 43, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey.
On Nov. 19, last year, Harrison and associates drilled in the discovery producer in southeastern Ector, No. 1 F. V. Addis estate, in section 33, block 43, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey. The well began cleaning out last week, sending up of the pay and clogging of the tubing with paraffin having reduced its flow to 175 barrels a day.
While cleaning out Sunday above the pay, from 3,903-33 feet, No. 1 Addis flowed at the rate of 210 barrels a day. It has produced around 33,000 barrels of oil. Harrison had no outlet when the well came in and led a line to the T. & P. railroad, but running oil through it was discontinued when a connection was made with Humble's

Distributors Of Beer In Houston Indulge In Cut Rate Price Practices
HOUSTON (UP)—Under the calm surface of legalized beer in Houston a bitter battle is being fought by distributors.
The spirit of cooperation that ruled over the trade for a short time has been given the gate in a large way, say those who know.
A code of fair practices entered into by 27 leading distributors shortly after beer was legalized Sept. 15 has gone into the discard

And the byword now is "every man for himself."

As a result of the tense situation, state officials charged with the collection of taxes have expressed fear of a new species of bootlegger whose object will be to cheat the state out of its due.
First skirmishes in the distributors' battle have already been fought. In less than a week the prices of various brands of beer here have been hammered down from an average of $2.65 to as little as $1.40 a case, and from $10.75 to university officials announce.

VICKS' NOSE & THROAT DROPS

been suggested, you find that they all share one factor: each one depends for its success on an honest, efficient, alert and intelligent set of officials to enforce.
Here's a sample:
The liquor control law of one of the Canadian provinces, which provides for retail stores where liquor is sold in packages, has one extremely sensible provision. No storekeeper is supposed to sell liquor to confirmed drunkards, to men who are prone to spend a undue proportion of their earnings on booze or to characters who are apt to make public nuisances of themselves when in their cups.
The liquor control commission checks up on its storekeepers very easily. If simply scans the police records for their districts. If any district shows a rise in drunkenness, a spread of poverty, an increase in crimes or any similar symptom indicating that too much liquor is being sold there, the license of the storekeeper in that district is revoked forthwith.
Every storekeeper knows that he will be out of a job if he fails to use good judgment in making his sales. Every storekeeper, consequently, has the best of incentives for running his lice as it ought to be run.
Now this is almost a fool-proof scheme, well worth copying in the United States. As much as any such plan can, it makes social considerations paramount in its handling of the liquor traffic.
But no one needs to think about it very long to realize that it would be no good whatever if its provision and enforcement were in the hands of official hacks whose first loyalty was to the machine which gave them their jobs.
Let a Tammany, a Vare machine or any similar outfit pick your commission, and your fool-proof plan is as full of holes as a screen door.
And the same thing is true of any liquor control scheme that can possibly be devised. All of them will rest, ultimately, on the local governmental unit. They will give one ability to govern ourselves an acid test.
NEARER THE LIGHT.
That there is in America a certain amount of disillusionment about the NRA program cannot be denied. The scheme hasn't brought the millennium overnight. It hasn't restored prosperity as fast as some of us dared hope. It hasn't returned men to work at the rate we would like to see them returning.
Nevertheless, it is worth remembering that its accomplishments are very genuine and very much worth while. President Green of the A. F. of L. points out, for example, that there has been a 20 per cent reduction in unemployment since March. In August fully 815,000 wage earners returned to work; the indications are that the first part of September will show an even better percentage of improvement.
In other words, if we aren't out of the woods yet we are a whole lot nearer the edge than we were before. It's too bad that unemployment hasn't been reduced by more than one-fifth; on the other hand, it is exceedingly fine that even that much of a reduction has been made.

Records In County Treasurer's Office Found Accurate In Audit

Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of articles presenting the report of F. G. Rodgers and Company, certified public accountants, covering the various departments of the County of Howard for the period beginning July 1, 1932 and ending August 31, 1933. This article presents the report on the office of the county treasurer, E. G. Towler.

Representative Burns' Resolution Adopted By Legislators

AUSTIN (AP)—The house Monday adopted a resolution offered by Rep. Burns of Huntsville, authorizing an investigation of alleged job selling in the livestock sanitary commission.

The appropriations committee will make the inquiry and was ordered to report its findings by Friday if possible.

Burns said it is "common street talk in East Texas that a member of the Livestock Sanitary Commission is selling jobs."

The auditors made the following review of examination of the treasurer's office:

"In schedules No. 11 to 24 inclusive (included in the bound file of the auditor's complete report) we present a summary of the transactions of the Treasurer's office during the 14-month period ended August 31, 1933.

"All receipts issued by the Treasurer were checked into the Treasurer's account book and were found properly entered and promptly deposited in the county depository.

"All warrants presented to the Treasurer for payment were found to have been properly authorized and executed, and appeared proper in every respect for payment.

"Schedule No. 11 is a statement of fund balances at July 1, 1932 together with receipts, transfers and disbursements. Supporting Schedule No. 12 is Schedule No. 12 which is a statement of cash receipts during the fourteen month period ended August 31, 1933. As will be observed, cash receipts have been segregated as to the year ended June 30, 1933 and the two-month period ended Aug. 31, 1933. Schedules Nos. 13 to 22 inclusive, which support Schedules No. 11, set forth by funds the nature of the county's expenditures during the period under review segregated into periods in the same manner as cash receipts.

"In Schedule No. 24 we present the total amount of commissions paid the treasurer during the year ended June 30, 1933 and during the two-month period ended August 31, 1933. As will be observed by reference to such Schedules, during the year ended June 30, 1933 the Treasurer received the maximum commission to which he is entitled.

"All bonds redeemed during the period under review were sighted by us and found to have been properly cancelled. All interest coupons paid and cancelled were presented to us for inspection as the Treasurer was unable to locate them in his files, such items no doubt having been misplaced. It is our suggestion that a bit more care be exercised in the filing of redeemed bonds and interest coupons.

"In Schedule No. 23 we present a statement of bonds and time warrants outstanding as August 31, 1933 together with the respective interest and sinking fund balances at that date. All securities owned by the sinking fund were verified either by actual inspection of the bonds or through correspondence on file which indicated ownership thereof.

"The sinking funds of the County are in a very good condition, and indicate that ample provision has been made for maturing obligations from year to year.

"It is our opinion that the duties of the Treasurer's office have been performed in a most honest and conscientious manner. The transactions were neatly and accurately maintained, all of which tended to expedite our work materially."

Western Railway Executives Vote Reductions In Passenger Fares And Elimination Of Pullman Surcharge

CHICAGO—The Western Railway Executives' association Friday decided on a sharp reduction in passenger fares as an experiment in increasing their business. They voted to reduce from 3 to 1-2 cent a mile to three cents the rate of one-way rail transportation. A 2 1-2 cent mile round trip rate was agreed upon and the present pullman surcharge of 50 per cent was eliminated.

The rates will be effective December 1 for a six months trial period. A large increase in passenger travel on cut rates during the Chicago world's fair was said to have awayed the roads toward cutting the rates.

The 3 and 2 1-2 cent rates are mandatory and the roads also are permitted to make a round trip rate of two cents a mile, within a ten day limit, the tickets on such a rate to be honored in all classes of equipment.

The agreement was reached at a meeting of the executives of 50 railroads, including all of those having offices in Chicago.

The pullman surcharge, which is one-half the regular pullman fare, has been paid to the railroads. It was put into effect shortly after the world war to compensate the carriers in part for wage increases.

Kappa Gammas Celebrate Rush Week With Gay Ninety Dance At The Country Club

Misses Pickle And Barnett Honorees At Country Club For Costume Party—Unique Dramatic Farce Presented By Hostesses

By O. R. F.

The Kappa Gammas did their best to look like their mothers and grandmothers Thursday night at the Gay Ninety bridge-dance given at the Country Club by Misses Jeannette Barnett and Jeannette Pickle. It is doubtful, however, if their papas and grandpas would have seen much resemblance, although the 1933 swims seemed satisfied.

There was too much gaiety and not enough ninetyness. Too few petticoats and not enough curves. Too much modern pep and not enough coyness.

The girls had trouble finding costumes far enough back. Trousseau of the "city mothers" provided most of what they wore. The boys couldn't find any at all.

Jeannette Barnett probably came nearest in the Gay Nineties in her lovely white silk blouse dress that was her mother's wedding gown. The dress was lined throughout with muslin and was trimmed with all-over embroidered chiffon. Pleated ruffles trimmed the skirt and the sleeves were as full as 1933. Jeannette also wore the orange blossom spray around her hair that went with the dress.

Jeannette Pickle was attired in her mother's graduation dress of lace-trimmed organdie with many girlish ruffles and tucks. There was a white Gibson girl era in its puffed blouse and a high collar.

Gibson Girl

The real Gibson Girl was Maurine Leatherwood, so far as costume was concerned. A little more buxomness would have made her a Mae West. She wore a slightly antique black taffeta blouse, belonging to Larson Lloyd's mother, with a black serge skirt from Mrs. Della C. Agnell's trousseau. Mrs. L. S. Peterson furnished her with an heirloom brooch for the collar of the high-necked blouse. She was the only one of the crowd who obtained an old-fashioned hat. It was a brown velvet thing, made something like a hamburger bun with an ornate leather curling around the side. The hat was very popular during the evening. First one girl then another wore it. When the play was put on, it appeared on the head of one of the actresses.

Mrs. Bill Turpin wore a black cambric dress she obtained from Mrs. Gus Pickle. It was trimmed with a white ruffe, and white buttons down the front of the waist. Her costume's finishing touch was a pair of narrow-pointed high-top, black shoes.

Lucille Rix, in a black silk dress from the Dix's trunks, wore another of the authentic antiques. This was a truly handsome creation in its day, heavily trimmed with passamenterie (glass beads). It reached as high as her collar bones. All it needs was a bustle and a few starched ruffles in front to make Lucille resemble her grandmother.

The history of some of the costumes was as interesting as the dresses themselves. Mrs. R. L. Weatherford came attired in a pink candy-striped chiffon that was in Mrs. Albert M. Fisher's trousseau; a skirt all puffed up and trimmed with silk lace that was just as good as new.

Lillian Shick was flouncing about in a pale lavender dress of Mrs. F. F. Gary's, another trousseau treasure. The dress was made in New York and worn when Mrs. Gary was matron of honor at a friend's wedding soon after Mrs. Gary's wedding. It was one of the most exciting dresses on the floor of the country club.

Elizabeth Northington wore her mother's wedding dress, a dainty white organdie made of miles and miles of tucks. A pink bow around the waist and a high collar edged with pink ruching gave it a distinctively antique air.

Vance Kenester was another with an assembled costume. She was proudest of her petticoat, an old rose affair with a ruffe of rose ribbon fastened onto bands of fillet insertion. Mrs. W. L. McClellan lent it for the evening. Over the petticoat was an embroidered skirt. Her blouse was also of net with rows of Val lace running up and down. A gold locket and a pink rose tucked over one ear completed her outfit.

Lallah Wright borrowed a dress of Mrs. Noble Read's, a creation in black and white. The white was bar-raised muslin. The black touches were a black ribbon block around Lallah's neck and a wide black ribbon around her waist. She also wore an interesting petticoat, one of those embroidered ruffled affairs. The chief trouble with the costume was that she could find only one petticoat. It called for at least three. On the black block she had pinned a topaz brooch that had belonged to her grandmother.

The punch table was spread with a handsome Hattenburg lace embroidered cloth in the very best social tradition of the gay nineties. This was lent by Mrs. W. C. Barnett, without whom the party could hardly have been put on successfully.

Over the punch bowl presided Judith Pickle and Mary Ruth Ditz, both of them attired in ankle-length frocks. They also acted as curtain-raisers for the playlet, "Little Nellie," which was the high peak of the evening's entertainment.

"Little Nellie"

The playlet was a takeoff on "East Lynne" written by Jeannette Pickle, wearing a gray elf hat sunbonnet, who took the part of Nellie. She was supported by an able cast. Ralph Houston, attired in boots, white pants and a black coat with

Auditors In Final Report Upon County

Audit of the books and accounts of all offices of Howard county, and the financial condition of all Common School districts has been completed by F. G. Rodgers and company of San Angelo, and the report filed with the County Commissioners Court.

The report covers the period beginning July 1, 1932 and ending August 31, 1933. It consists of verification of all cash receipts and disbursements of the various officials, an analysis of all bond transactions, and an examination of the minutes and records of the Commissioners Court.

The report takes up first the audit of the office of the county tax collector. The schedules included with reference to this office show that there was due the county on August 31 from Loy Acuff, who served as tax collector until a few weeks ago, when Miss Mabel Robinson was appointed to serve his unexpired term when Acuff's bondman withdrew, the following items:

On tax and miscellaneous collections $2,020.37
As excess fee of office for the year 1932.... 1,299.97

Total $3,320.34

The report states: "Inasmuch as Mr. Acuff served as Tax Collector for only eight months of 1933 and the office was taken over by a successor through appointment, it will be impossible to make a final settlement for him until the close of the year. This is true due to the fact that it will be necessary to establish the total fees of the Tax Collector's office for the year 1933 so that such fees may be apportioned to the time served, and in that manner determine if there exists any excess fees of office due the county accruing during that portion of 1933 which Mr. Acuff served."

A statement of commission earned by the collector during the period July 1, 1932 to August 31, 1933 shows a total of $4,606.17 and that commission retained amounted to $4,593.29 which resulted in a net credit to the collector of $12.88 on earned commissions.

The auditors' detailed review of examination of records and accounts of the office of Tax Collector follows:

"We present a summary statement of the account of Loy Acuff for the fourteen-month period ended August 31, 1933. By reference to this statement it will be observed that at August 31, 1933 there was due from Mr. Loy Acuff to Howard County and the Howard County Common Schools $2,020.37.

"Schedule 2 sets forth in detail the items constituting this balance due from Mr. Acuff. It will be observed that this balance is composed of a number of different elements which we shall discuss in the order in which they appear in Schedule 2.

"During the period under review we determined that tax collections aggregating $1,422.93 were collected by the Collector but such collections were not reported on the Collector's monthly reports, nor were they remitted to the County Treasurer or the Common School districts.

A flower in his buttonhole, represented the villain, a city slicker. Jeannette Barnett doubled up on two roles. With a show over her shoulders, a handsome white-embroidered coat, Gordon Graham, Earl H. Parsons, Phil Rye of Stanton, and Mrs. Lee Weatherford of Sweetwater; Misses Vance Kenester, Lillian Shick, Lallah Wright, Maxine Thomas, Marie Fabuon, Nell Brown, Lucille Rix, Françoise McNew, Elizabeth Northington, Elizabeth Mas Ford, Allene Good and Ella Guthrie; Messrs. Lonnie Shoads, Harold Harvey, Buddy Queen, Jamie Bunch, Solie Boggs, Ray Cantrell, Ralph Houston, Paul Rix, Collins Higgins, Hugh Potter, Bob Utley, G. A. Johnson and Bob Miller.

therefore evident that the fees under discussion were due the county at the time the annual report was made, together with the $2,405.87 which was remitted to the county. The Collector is of course, entitled to obtain his maximum fees for the year 1932 from the unremitted amount, which fees would amount to $14.79, after consideration of which there would remain due the county $1,299.97 in excess fees.

No Final Settlement

"Inasmuch as Mr. Acuff served as Tax Collector for only eight months of 1933 and the office was taken over by a successor through appointment, it will be impossible to make a final settlement with him until the close of the year. This is true due to the fact that it will be necessary to establish the total fees of the Tax Collector's office for the year 1933 so that such fees may be apportioned to the time served, and in that manner determine if there exists any excess fees of office due the county accruing during that portion of 1933 which Mr. Acuff served."

In summary of the foregoing paragraphs, disregarding any excess fees of office which may exist for the year 1933, there was due from Mr. Loy Acuff at August 31, 1933 the following:

Due on Tax and Miscellaneous collections $2,020.37
Due as Excess Fees of Office 1,299.97

Total $3,320.34

House Gets Relief Bond Issue Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The house judiciary committee Saturday reported favorably a bill for issuance of state relief bonds and distribution of bond money.

Six million dollars of bond would be issued immediately under the house bill.

The senate proposed to issue $7,500,000.

The house bill would continue the Rehabilitation and relief commission but would add the lieutenant governor and speaker of the house as members, and would set up a separate commission to issue the bonds.

Functions of the Rehabilitation Commission would be confined to expending bond money.

NEW YORK By James McMillin Directors—The directors of the New York banks declined to be dumbed—and how! That's why the arrangement between Jesse Jones and the bank executives to add to local bank capital as a shining example to the rest of the country went bloody at the last minute. All the officers could promise was to recommend action on the Jones plan to their directors. Most of the directors responded with a polite but forcible version of the Bronx cheer. So the engine of the increased capital train is stalled in a snow-drift of conservative disapproval and it will take plenty of Washington heat to get it moving.

What Next—Now a group of New York bankers has gone to explain these woes to Washington and ask that the whole show be called off. The United Clearing House action that the government hoped for is as likely as a world's championship for the Boston Red Sox. A few banks may work with the R. F. C. on their own but even this is doubtful. The trouble is that pressure can be—and was—applied with fair success to bank officers. But they can always fall back on their directors who are harder to reach and convince as a group. So it looks as if Washington will have to think up something new or conduct the party without New York's aid.

Exile—Local political insiders will tell you that Tammany Napoleon Curran and McCooey, are headed for Elba and even for St. Helena. Nobody wants to ride on a hand-wagon with four flat tires. The city democracy will be reorganized with McCooey and Flynn in charge. The old-timers would rather have a half-loaf with McCooey than nothing at all. This means that Brooklyn or the Bronx will ride in the driver's seat. Manhattan's traditional leadership, through Tammany will be thoroughly smashed. This island will drop to its place as a deflated borough. The stampede to the new hand-wagon has now assumed proportions where even the faithful concede O'Brien has no chance to win. Key men expect him to finish a poor third.

Functions Of County Clerk's Office Discharged In Diligent Manner Says Report Of Recent Audit For County

Through our examination of the various records maintained in the office of the County Clerk it is apparent that the functions of this office are being discharged in a conscientious manner," said F. G. Rodgers and Company in their recent report to the Howard County Commissioners Court of their audit of the records and accounts of the county government. The auditors' review of this office also said: "At the time of our examination the finance ledger maintained by the Clerk was incomplete as relates to the account of the Tax Collector. This fact was true for the reason that the Clerk had not been supplied with the delinquent, insolvent and error rolls from the Collector's office. Without this information the Clerk was, of course, unable to make his report. Our examination indicated that all monies collected by the County Clerk belonging to the County were promptly remitted to the County Treasurer. An examination of the trust fund records of this office indicated that the following were held in trust: Case No. Amount J. L. Why—There were four reasons why the directors turned on the ice. First was the ingrained impression in Wall Street circles that the plan is a phoney. "Why raise capital we don't need and can't use just to kid other banks and the public along?" Second was the anticipated difficulty of explaining to bank stockholders how come it was necessary to create a prior lien against earnings when the vaults are choked with liquid assets. The good old days when a bank head could offer his report to a stockholder's meeting with calm assurance that it would be respectfully approved are gone. Nowadays the stockholders are only too apt to ask awkward questions and directors aren't providing them with any new questions to ask. Third was the sudden discovery that the plan of the stronger banks to exchange capital notes with each other was "unethical." Many directors thought it too transparent a device to evade the government's real intent. Fourth was the unwillingness of any local bank to act unless it was sure all the others were going to do the same thing and the constitutional inability of any two New York institutions to agree on either what or how. Some of the banks have been calling each other banker names than they called Mr. Jones. Church Services ST. (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) could line himself up a job on the outside. The Republican Commissioner got his month's respite and more. It was just before Mr. Roosevelt was ready to renew his resignation demand that the Four Horsemen of the G. O. P. went to Chicago to see their former "Chief." O'Laughlin had the correspondence in his pocket. Humphrey now is putting up a finish fight against ouster. Political observers here have little trouble in matching Humphrey's defiance with the Chicago huddle.

Out? Humphrey of course has based his battle to stick to the government payroll on the ground that the Federal Trade Commission is an independent and semi-judicial body accountable to Congress rather than the White House. Only cause, he has said, justifies his forcible removal. This probably means that George C. Matthews, the LaFollette Republican from Wisconsin who has been designated to succeed him, will serve without pay until such time as the senate passes on his nomination.

Whose Baby? And then he went to Chicago. Circumstantial evidence indicates that the NRA speech was discussed there. At any rate he saw Mr. Hoover.

When the final draft was delivered to NRA for mimeographing and distribution it lauded the Blue Eagle all right and called for public support. It also inferred that all of the emergency recovery measures now in effect had their inception back in the Hoover administration and suggested that the public had criticized the former President too harshly.

STRIKE UP THE BAND!

MILE after mile of hot white road, and the beat of army boots in a haze of dust. No shade. No rest. A nightmare of thirst and weariness. And then, somewhere down the column, a band strikes up. A thousand throats pick up the refrain. Heads come up. Tired backs straighten. The battalion marches like itself again! Down on the levee at New Orleans on the tow-paths of the distant Volga on the decks of departing liners wherever hearts are heavy or the spirit fails... music comes like a ray of sunshine through the gloom. It is the great restorer, the great comforter. Human beings need music. We need it in our hearts and in our homes. And we need instruments to provide it. Radio... talking machine... piano... it doesn't matter, just so the music is there. With music life becomes brighter, cheerier. With music we can get through a lot of trouble and hard luck. And music has never been so easy to enjoy as it is right now. Prices on musical instruments are lower today than they are likely ever to be again. The same quality radio that would have cost you $160 in 1929 is selling today for $125—a decline of 22% and the smaller models of today represent values never dreamed possible a few years ago. The $950 piano of 1929 now costs only $600! The last four years have been particularly hard on the music trades. Many people have had the mistaken idea that music is a luxury, easily to be dispensed with. And that false notion has destroyed almost all the basic value which music and musical instruments normally should have. This Government believes that the laborer is worthy of his hire, and that his hire should yield him at least a decent living. Professional musicians... radio and talking machine workers... Piano makers... band instrument craftsmen... to say nothing of the manufacturers with their good money invested... all have something worth while to offer, and they are entitled to a fair return. That is what the NRA codes are designed to bring about. The largest item in the cost of a radio is labor cost, and pay rolls are up 62%. Raw materials are up. Cabinet woods have risen 65%. Therefore retail prices must go up, too. Musical instruments and music are coming back to somewhere near their true value! So... if your piano is worn out... if your radio is old-fashioned and limited in range... if your talking machine is a relic, and your records are heirlooms... treat yourself to some good music while prices are still down! It's an investment in happiness that you will never regret. Now is the time to buy!

UPTURN ITEM NO. 2 August factory sales in automobiles were 236,000, as against only 99,000 last year

MT. PLEASANT, Mich. (UP)—The end of financial worries for the Free Methodist church in Porter township was visualized today as attempts were made to locate oil beneath the churchyard, which is located in the heart of Michigan's oil field. A well will be drilled on the lots of less than an acre.

The Chalk Parent-Teachers' association met Tuesday for the first meeting of the month in the school auditorium. The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. O. N. Green.

The program for the afternoon was presented by pupils from the primary room under the direction of Miss Donna Carter. The program was as follows:

Boston Braves May Run Ft. Worth Club

FORT WORTH (UP)—Possibility of the Boston Braves of the National League, operating the Fort Worth Texas League Baseball club, was revealed here Wednesday.

Dr. Webb Walker, receiver for the Fort Worth club properties, admitted having an appointment with Judge Emil Fuchs, owner of the Boston club, who will be here at the opening of the Arlington Downs racing meet, October 19.

The Boston magnate is said to have had an eye on Fort Worth as a minor league farm for several years. If he can make a reasonable deal it was expected he may either buy or lease the club.

Red Cross A Volunteer Agency Says Local Chapter Chairman

"Red Cross is a volunteer agency. This statement was made today by Dr. W. B. Hardy, chairman of the Howard County Chapter of the American Red Cross. "The Treaty of Geneva under which Red Cross functions in time of war defines Red Cross service as that of a volunteer agency supplementing official government service. The Congressional charter of the American Red Cross specifically states that the duties of the organization are to furnish volunteer aid to the sick and wounded of armies in time of war" and to act in matters of volunteer relief."

"Few people realize the extent to which volunteers carry the load of all Red Cross," the chairman continued. "The fact is that volunteer workers so far outnumber the paid personnel—the work done by the volunteers so far overshadows that of the paid worker, a comparison is difficult. In the state of Texas alone, hundreds of volunteer officers, directors and committee members are chosen in their respective communities by popular vote of the Red Cross membership to conduct Red Cross programs and activities. During the past year fifty thousand volunteer officers and committee members in the United States directed the destinies of Red Cross locally and nationally. This does not take into account the thousands of volunteers in each state who gave their services during the Red Cross distribution of federal wheat and cotton."

Howard County Officers

In Howard county the program and service of the Red Cross chapter are under the direction of Dr. W. B. Hardy, chairman, E. L. Gibson, vice chairman, Jena Jordan, secretary, and Edmund Nosteing, treasurer, and a board of directors composed of leaders of the community.

In all the 3700 Red Cross chapters in the United States, volunteer workers are now busy organizing the Roll Call to be launched on Armistice Day. During the two weeks following November 11, every adult citizen in the United States will be invited to participate in the local and national work of Red Cross by becoming a member.

The officers and other volunteers who have devoted their time to Red Cross programs during recent months ask the support of the public in enrolling a membership in Howard county adequate to carry on.

The Roll Call here will be under the direction of Jesse F. Hall, who has accepted the appointment as Roll Call chairman.

Under The Dome At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN (UP)—Refusal of the Texas House of Representatives to ask Governor Miriam A. Ferguson to submit state salary raises as a legislative topic of the special session was a clear cut victory for the administration strategists.

It lifted from the governor's shoulders any blame for not voluntarily taking such a step in line with the National Recovery program. She now can say the house showed such opposition that submission would have been futile.

Rep. T. H. McGregor of Austin, a Ferguson leader, made an illuminating observation to the house.

"Disatisfied employes," he said, "can quit their places can be filled in 48 hours."

Most of the state employes are hold-overs from the Moody and Sterling administrations. The Ferguson were greatly irked at the beginning of the administration to find few open places for the faithful. If present employes quit, Ferguson supporters can succeed them.

That thought probably had not occurred to most of the legislators who enthusiastically voted against taking up salary adjustments. They remembered the applause they received as economizers when state appropriation bills were reduced at the regular session.

Salary increase advocates reminded them that national recovery plans and prices were not then existent.

One considerable group of employes reacted more easily when salary adjustment was made a closed incident. The University of Texas had taken advantage of an appropriation bill provision to readjust salaries. This was a provision that schools receiving federal aid might make the adjustments. Technically the University at Austin and Texas A. & M. College at Bryan are institutions A. & M. gets federal funds. The attorney general ruled with the University that the appropriation bill provision covers both.

"The legislators wrote the appropriation act. They should not feel badly because we utilize its provisions," said President H. Y. Benedict of the University.

If salary readjustment had been taken up at the special session, some members of the appropriations committee were intent on reducing University salaries. The cuts might have reached even to President Benedict.

Back of a resolution offered in the house to force divorce or resignation of any house employe who had a lobbying spouse or relative was an individual peevish Representative Will Scott of Sweetwater and George Wittingham of Mexico, authors did not know this. They were used to pull some chestnuts out of the fire. The house called for specific instances. They were not forthcoming. The resolution was not only killed; it was stricken from the house record.

State Senator Clint Small of Amartillo is again in the picture as candidate for governor in the next race. Friends say they have been told he will enter the race Small was on the brink during the last state campaign, but kept out when Governor Ross S. Sterling announced for reelection.

What effect dismissal of the oil suits will have on the political fortunes of Attorney General James W. Alford puzzles Austin.

Some say it lets him out of a predicament; others that it is a blow.

"It isn't the first time I have had to appear in a picture," Alford said.

A recent visit of Wright Morrow of Houston to Austin has revived the talk he may be a candidate for governor. He was urged to run but declined, saying it was too late in the campaign to launch a fresh candidacy.

He is son of Judge Wright C. Morrow, presiding judge of the State Court of Criminal Appeals.

Municipal Garden Unintentional Result Of Business Depression

FORT WORTH (UP)—An unintentional monument to the 1933-33 business depression will be dedicated here October 15 when a bronze slab is unveiled at the formal opening of the Municipal Rose Garden and Arboretum.

The rose garden and arboretum was constructed by unemployed men, given work on the project by the city as a means of earning a livelihood in lean days of the depression.

Several hundred men at various intervals have engaged in constructing the artistic stoneworks and grounds. In return they received their groceries and clothes, or in some instances a small amount of cash, enough to supply necessities.

Skilled stone cutters and masons, men who drew large salaries in normal times but who were left stranded by the depression, worked earnestly on the stoneworks. Many became so interested in the enterprise they were willing to work overtime without extra pay.

The arboretum, if it had been constructed by ordinary channels, would have cost $75,000. As it was, the cost was less than $10,000.

Dr. J. Horace McFarland of Harborsburg, Pa., president of the American Rose Society, will preside at the unveiling of the bronze slab, the "cornerstone" of the arboretum.

Efforts are being made to bring every kind of rose in the world to the arboretum. Numerous varieties have already been planted, many of them contributed by flower societies from all over the world.

Poison Favorite Suicide Method For Dallas Folk

DALLAS (UP)—The prospective 1933 suicide in Dallas, if he would be in the mode, will prefer poison to hanging as a way out.

The slightly less fastidious might use firearms, and doubtless there will be those who will employ gas or enough water in which to drown themselves.

But a rope—only a person who simply didn't care what people would think could dream of hanging himself.

For hanging, according to Miss Birdie Smith, is definitely passé. It went out, approximately, with the horse and buggy. And Miss Birdie should know. She is keeper of the Vital Statistics for the city of Dallas, or something like that.

Her records for the past fiscal year listed 60 suicides in Dallas for the period. Poison was the popular favorite among the 60, twenty-six finding it to their taste. Twenty-three used firearms, probably, it was suggested, because there usually is a gun somewhere about the house while you have to go to a drug store for poison. Six went out sniffling—sniffling gas, and three drowned themselves.

Only two were sufficiently old-fashioned to hang themselves.

England And U.S. Parley Leaders

GENEVA (UP)—America and England took the joint lead in an effort to remove a French-German deadlock that threatened the life of the world disarmament conference.

Norman H. Davis, chief United States delegate to the conference, and Captain Anthony Eden, chief British delegate, decided at a long meeting to coordinate British-American policy and seek agreement between France and Germany.

It was understood Davis undertook to concentrate his efforts on persuading Germany to abandon her demand for stronger armaments and that Eden agreed to negotiate with the French. He will ask France to lessen the penalties she seeks to impose on violators during a test period of international armament control.

The delegates, as a whole, embarking on a series of private talks, faced the task of changing the entire European political situation in the next six days.

Fish In Yard After Storm

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (UP)—A sucker chub, six inches long, was found in a yard here after a heavy storm, apparently killed by hail. Although the yard is far from any body of water, there was no evidence that the fish was brought there by a cat or dropped by fishermen.

pointing out that the committee drafting the new bond relief bill had no choice. She had to be included to conform to the federal act, he said.

House Speaker Coke Stevenson is like the postman who took a walk on his day off. Last Saturday when the House adjourned until Monday, he listened to the senate session.
