

CSEC won't review county's 9-1-1

The Texas Commission on State Emergency Communications (CSEC) has informed Parmer County that it will not review the 9-1-1 situation involving the death of Skip Magby, of Lazbuddie, and other appropriate issues involving 9-1-1 in Parmer County.

Pam Nielsen, director of the Panhandle Regional 9-1-1 Network said that "despite their assurances to us over the telephone, the CSEC has, on the advice of the Office of the Attorney General, refused to investigate 9-1-1 incidents.

The AG said that this is not a CSEC function as listed in Texas Health and Safety Code.

Paul Mallett, CSEC executive director, suggested the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission may want to assign a neutral group of citizens and other knowledgeable persons to review the details of the Magby incident.

Mrs. Nielsen said she has scheduled a meeting for May 8 at 7 p.m. at the Bovina EMS building, 109 3rd St. to "review issues of importance to emergency services providers and others in Parmer County."

The agenda for this special meeting includes:

- 9-1-1 Primer, a presentation by Mrs. Nielsen on the history of 9-1-1.
- Review of Emergency Service boundaries -- agencies will review and approve emergency service zones.
- Standard Operating Procedures -- presentation by Mrs. Nielsen on standard operating procedures required for dispatching.
- Homeland Security, with Mrs. Nielsen discussing homeland security plans at the PRPC.
- 9-1-1 Problems, with a group discussion of 9-1-1 problems and solutions.

The Parmer County Commissioner on March 10 voted to ask the CSEC to review the 9-1-1 situations in the county.

Lazbuddie area folks have been upset over what they see as a series of recent incidents were other emergency services were called to their area before the Lazbuddie EMS and fire departments, they said.

HIPAA becomes "a chaotic mess"

by Teresa Mesman

Anyone who has been in a doctor's office or hospital within the last year has surely been greeted by a new barrage of paperwork that must be signed before services are rendered.

This paperwork is the result of a lengthy piece of legislation put into effect by the U.S. government to "simplify" procedures and protect patient rights.

In 1996, the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act was enacted and all medical entities have had a six year time frame to come into compliance with this thing called "HIPAA."

"HIPAA" in this reporter's opinion is nothing but a "HIPPO" on the backs of medical providers. Again, this is only my opinion. But perhaps you'll agree when you learn what being in compliance with "HIPAA" involves.

"HIPAA" was enacted with all the right things involved: Patient's health history, treatment, insurance and payment privacy. The act was originally meant to ensure these privacies between health care providers, pharmacies and insurance companies that transmit patient information electronically. But what has happened since the 1996 enactment has only snowballed into a major chaotic mess of added paperwork, added expense and a whole lot of confusion.

The typical HIPAA procedure is simple for patients. They're given a form (or two or three) to sign that they're giving permission to the health care provider or pharmacy to transmit their information to their insurance provider, hospital, Medicare/Medicaid office, for billing purposes and/or treatment purposes.

Many health care and pharmacy sites have installed electronic signature pads for this purpose. But here's the kicker to this procedure: For every electronic signature, there has to be at least one piece of paperwork or hardcopy to document that the signature was given and that the patient was informed of the HIPAA policy. At most places, the patient is also given at least one copy of the HIPAA policy and their rights.

This has not only added the extra cost of installing the electronic signature pads, it's also added a huge pile of paperwork to deal with behind the counters and office doors.

Many hospitals and Emergency Medical Services (EMS) have had to add additional employees to their staffs. These are the HIPAA Compliance Officers. Their job is to see that the policy is complied with, enforced and, again, documented. This translates to more paperwork and added expenses.

But perhaps the most frustrating aspects of the HIPAA situation are those that deal with the day to day interaction with patients, staff, family members and the communities that we live and work within.

There is a very real threat to health care providers in the area of patient information and disclosure. The promises of hefty monetary fines and revocation of licenses loom large when complying with HIPAA.

We live in small rural communities where the ambulance services don't have high tech computers to enter and send patient information. This is one example of the choke-hold HIPAA puts on a rural community. The ambulance personnel are now required to have two extra pages of paperwork to deal with during each emergency. Once at the hospital, verbal patient reports can only be given to specific people and all other non-essential personnel must not enter the room. These non-essential personnel are the ones that are typically starting the emergency care in the emergency room. Patient information transmitted over the radios and telephones to the emergency rooms while enroute is also under scrutiny.

The medics have to be extremely careful in documenting the emergency. If the HIPAA guidelines are not followed, documented and sent in the proper manner to the proper personnel, the call can be thrown out for non-payment and/or penalty. This is also the case for every treatment, consultation and visit by doctors and nurses both in the clinics, hospitals and home health settings.

This trickles back down to the patient. Their rights may have been protected by actual compliance, but if every "t" is not crossed and every "i" dotted, their medical insurance companies see a loophole to not pay their claim. The bill is then sent to the patient for out of pocket payment. This also translates to more lawsuits being filed for "violation of rights" and the issue continues to rack up costs, tie up personnel in red tape and put financial strain on all parties.

And because we live and work within small communities, word gets out very quickly about medical emergencies, treatments and the like. People are genuinely concerned and want to know what happened and how they are doing.

The HIPAA compliance guidelines basically state that no one in the medical fields is allowed to answer these questions in protection of the patient. I inherently agree with this policy, but it also makes it hard in our small towns. As a volunteer on our ambulance service, I'm not about to give all the details of a patient immediately after an emergency call to all those that ask. But what about when you're the prayer chain chairman at your church and have to get the word out to start prayers for someone? This is where HIPAA gets tricky for many of us.

Now, in reality, the legal wording of the actual HIPAA documentation, it gives exception to these types of situations. But right now, the act has everyone watching what they say, how they say it and getting signatures of release for everything. Ironically, the one act that is meant to protect the patient's rights is also one that the patients understand the least. The wording, or rather the over-wording, of the HIPAA documents has patients signing without actually reading the information. It's supposed to be a really simple matter that

Texas voters go to the polls

Texas voters go to the polls on May 3 for local elections.

Parmer County voters, though, will have an added treat: voting for a U.S. Representative's seat in District 19 due to the pending retirement of Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock.

It's important to note that county voters can vote for the U.S. Representative's race at any of the six polling places in Parmer County.

But if you want to also vote in your local school board or city council race, then you must vote in your own community.

There are less polling places for this election than usual because only a few local races are being held.

The polling places are:

- Farwell Community Center.
 - Rhea Community Center.
 - Lazbuddie School.
 - Calvary Baptist Church in Friona.
 - Bovina EMS Building.
 - Oklahoma Lane Methodist Church.
- Local races are:
- Lazbuddie School Board has three posts on the ballot. The candidates are Randy Smith, Paulette Foster, Sheldon Mason, Kim Kimbrough and incumbents Daniel Schacher and Donnie Coker.
 - Farwell Hospital District has five posts on the ballot. Candidates are Dr. Nancy Chasteen and incumbents Jack Kirkland, Tom Nichols, Tim Cooper, Greg Actkinson and Mike Ratke.

Farwell schools' faculties compete in walk-a-thon

Farwell Elementary School faculty last week challenged their junior high counterparts to a walk-a-thon as a motivation toward being healthy.

They are wearing pedometers, which measures the number of steps you walk. Participation is voluntary.

The contest began Monday and will end on Friday. The losers have to present the winners with a luncheon.

The junior high faculty is calling themselves the "South Side Split-Second Swifties". They are taking on the "Elementary Gallivanting Gals".

In the spirit of fun, the Swifties sent the following humorous poem to the Gallivanting Gals:

*Next week not only marks the TAKS test
It is also the beginning of the survival of the fittest.*

*If you bought a pedometer, the challenge is here.
The Split-Second Swifties know Elementary is filled with fear.*

*K through 5 will barely be "Stayin' Alive."
With Richard Simmons as their idol they will fail to thrive.*

*On the south side of the street -- those ladies march with really fast feet,
Using Billy Blank's TYBO, they kick to the best beat.*

*Check with your building secretary to fill the chart,
Make sure you walk a lot; it's good for your heart.*

*Don't think slim wilted lettuce will do,
The Split-Second Swifties want a 5-course meal from you.*

*The Gallivanting Gals move slow as a tractor,
On Friday for the Jr. High "fear will not be a factor."
May 2nd at 3:23 the contest will cease,
The Split-Second Swifties will have their victory in a press release.*

'Pete' Rundell remembered

Weldon E. Rundell, brother of Julia Symcox of Farwell, died on Jan. 8.

A letter appeared in the Plainview Daily Herald newspaper on April 2 written by Bob Castillo, of California, with this remembrance:

We were together when the 187 A.R.C.T. was preparing to ship out to Korea on the 1st of September 1950.

Weldon, also known as "Pete", was with me when we both made the first combat jump into Sukchon behind the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

We set up a 30-caliber light machine gun and took turns watching for an expected Korean attack on our positions. The band of North Koreans hit us about 2 a.m. The enemy knew the terrain very well because they came up behind us and we did not have time to turn around the machine gun.

We scattered with our M-1s, but Rundell and I were hit in the first skirmish. Rundell showed me that he had plenty of courage because even though he had been hit in the face, and was blinded in one eye, he still wanted to seek out the enemy in the dark as they ran around our positions.

"Show me where they are -- I still have one good eye." Those were his words that I will always remember.

At daybreak, Millard Ball and some of the others carried us on stretchers to a jeep that took us into the village where the aid station was located. As our jeep entered the town, we encountered another squad of North Koreans. Again, Rundell wanted to do battle even if he was seriously wounded, but to our surprise they put down their weapons and raised their hands in the air. They could have wiped us out - two wounded and one officer riding shotgun. Our officer thought it was more important to get us to the medics right away. So he let some of our other troops take them prisoner.

Rundell made it to the States where he recovered from his injuries. I made it to Japan, but I was back with the 187th two months later on Christmas Day.

We finally got together again in 1999 at the 187th reunion in Colorado Springs, Colo., and we had a good time renewing old memories.

When young men are in combat together, they develop a bond that is like no other. Weldon and I had that bond even though we came from different backgrounds. He was an Anglo from Oklahoma Lane, Texas. I was an Hispanic from East Los Angeles, Calif.

A more important bond was the one we had because we both believed in the same God. God allowed Weldon to come home and made a good life for himself and his wonderful wife, Martha.

We do not know when our own appointment with death will come, but I know that we do not have to feel leaving this life as long as God is real in our hearts through his son Jesus Christ.

I pray that all of our members are able to have the hope of their salvation as we see more and more of our friends and loved ones passing away. May we all have the peace of God in our hearts through the New Year 2003.

Many wheat fields in the Northwest Plains are showing signs of freeze damage, ranging from slight to severe. The many factors (plant growth stage, moisture content and duration of exposure) that influence spring freeze injury to wheat makes it difficult to predict the extent of injury.

Freeze damages leaves become twisted and light green to yellow in color and are burned at the tip within 1 or 2 days after freezing. The most serious injury occurs to the growing points -- normally bright white to yellow-green but white or brown and water soaked in appearance if injured by freeze.

many patients and health care providers feel is one of common sense, not government regulation.

Currently there are actually no compliance regulations for HIPAA. This is not a good thing because it leaves the door wide open for liberal application and penalties and non-general guidelines that can be over-enforced or not enforced at all. This is the government's answer to "simplification."

The burden of dealing with and storing the paperwork involved has only begun to be seen and felt in this area. But already it is an actual burden and it only translates to increased costs for everyone.

Ye of little faith: And you probably laughed at me when I said this was -- finally -- the Year of the Cubs.

Well, I know it's early in the season, but just take a look at the baseball standings.

The Chicago Cubs are in 1st place, atop their division.

In years past, the Cubs have pulled an "el foldo" after healthy starts. But not this year.

And I explained why in a column I wrote before the start of the season.

The simple fact is that the Cubs have the best pitching staff in the major leagues.

Couple that with an outstanding manager in Dusty Baker and a decent hitting and defensive lineup, and it spells w-i-n.

So when the Fall Classic comes upon us, and

Border Banter
 -- Mike Pomper

you see Sammy Sosa run out to right field at the friendly confines of beautiful Wrigley Field, don't forget you read it here first.

And when Ernie Banks, Mr. Cub, emerges from the dugout (as a "special coach") to receive the acclaim of the faithful, it likely will bring a tear to my eye.

Finally, at long last, the hero of my childhood will be honored with his day in the sun.

Go, Cubs, go!

I was watching a TV show last week that featured two groups of folks -- one supporting the President's policies on Iraq and the other opposed.

That's fine. I had no problem with that.

For example, I will be the first to criticize the Republican administration for their lack of movement on solving the health care crisis.

But when one lady on the panel opposed to the President's policies said our work in Iraq "was a complete failure," it made me wonder how intelligent some people are.

As I always say, it's a big country. With 300 million folks, not everyone has a brain.

Rumor of the Week: Top country singers Vince Gill and Amy Grant will be performing here as a fund-raiser for the Farwell Educational Foundation this summer.

It's already sold out. The show will be held at a private residence.

Wolverines still in the playoff hunt

From Texico Wolverine assistant baseball coach Dennis Roch:

The Wolverines, in the hunt for a playoff berth in District 7-A/AA, got to enjoy a pair of non-district games last Friday without all the pressure of a district contest. Still, many of the Texico players relished the opportunity to play against some of their old Little League opponents as the Wolverines faced the Clovis "C" team.

The Texico defense played solidly against Clovis, with Justin Loven striking out 4 and holding the Wildcats to 4 runs in 5 innings. Jesse Serrano came in to pitch the final two innings, allowing no additional Clovis runs.

Meanwhile, after scoring only 3 in the first 5 innings and trailing by a run, the Wolverines exploded in the 6th inning, scoring 6 runs on a series of Clovis errors and on RBI doubles by Jared Curtis and Jesse Serrano.

Texico added to its lead in the top of the 7th with a 3-RBI double from Joel Maldonado, to make the final score 12-4 in Texico's favor.

In the second game, Texico looked strong again, developing an 11-1 lead in the first 3 innings. In fact, the Wolverines recorded 14 hits in that span, including a 2-RBI double from Tony Clements, which turned into an inside-the-park score after an error by Clovis' right fielder.

However, the Wildcats turned the tables in the 4th inning, combining key base hits with a series of defensive errors and 6 walks by Texico reliever Bryce Bailey, to score 11 runs and take a 12-11 lead. Serrano then came in for Bailey and held the Cats scoreless through the 6th inning, when Texico regained the lead on a 3-RBI double by Justin Loven.

The Clovis bats were too much for Texico to handle in the 7th, as the Wildcats strung together 3 back-to-back RBI doubles to tie the game, and a final RBI single to win by a score of 16-15.

The Wolverines then took the weekend off before traveling to Dora for a district game on Monday night. Texico mounted a strong offense, piling up 17 hits in the game and holding a 6-1 lead after the 4th inning. But walks and strong hitting from Dora in the bottom of the 5th and 6th innings put the Coyotes ahead by 3 runs, for a final score of 11-8.

With their win, Dora clinched the district, and Texico dropped to 4-3 against district opponents. Texico next hosts Elida on May 1 at 6 p.m. mt at Brady Field. That same night, Dora goes to Santa Rosa for their final district contest. Should Dora win, Texico and Santa Rosa would be forced into a playoff game for the 2nd place spot in district, and an opportunity to advance to the regional tournament.

Suspected meth lab raided in Texico

New Mexico's Region V Drug Task Force raided a suspected methamphetamine lab on April 8, reports St. Jesse Orozco, of the State Police Narcotics Section.

Arrested on charges of possession of methamphetamines and manufacturing of methamphetamines were Samuel Spears, 27, of Texico, and Ricky Ward, 38, of Texico, said Orozco.

Orozco said the actions started with a tip to the state police. After surveillance, agents from the Task Force and other agencies, police got a search warrant for Spears' home at 1008 N. College St., where both men were found.

Ward was arrested last year on charges of drug trafficking and manufacturing. These cases have not been adjudicated yet.

Also participating were the Texico police and fire department.

Orozco was raised in Texico.

Sittin' in the Corner

by Wade Cargile

During the summer when I was 12 years old, it became a real treat for Wilbur and me to get to town once or twice a week, all by ourselves!

It would only take us 4 or 5 hours to walk to town, being as we only lived 3 miles from there. We would save enough money to buy a soda pop and an ice cream cone, which only cost a nickel apiece way back then.

Sometimes, we would use only one of our dimes to buy our treats (we would split the soda and ice cream cone), and use the other dime to buy a small pack of firecrackers.

Back then, firecrackers were real firecrackers! Not the puny, weak ones you get these days. As we walked around town, drinking the soda and watching the ice cream melt and run down our hands, we would stop in various shops just to browse around. One of our favorite shoppes to "browse" in was a thrift shop owned by Minnie Munz.

As we approached her shop, we saw a sign in front that read "Going out of business sale," which was odd, since this was the 28th straight year for her "going out of business sale."

Wilbur wondered, "Is she ever going to close the store?"

"Not for Minnie Munz," I replied.

We both giggled.

It was an old joke around town about her not quitting her business for many moons.

"Hey, Miz Munz," we both called out when we got to her store.

"Why, hello, boys," she responded. "What brings you to town?"

"Nuthin'. We were just looking around," said Wilbur.

"Well, just be careful and don't touch anything," she answered.

We were not exactly untrustworthy boys, maybe just a tad careless sometimes.

"Watch out for those lamp stands; they're antiques!" she shouted at one point.

"Don't touch those things! Watch what you're doin' with that chair ... that mirror ... it's at least 50 years old!"

We left to go explore some more, when Wilbur got a nifty idea. "Let's go to ol' man Trudeau's store and shoot off some 'crackers and watch him dance."

Sounded good to me.

On the way, we discovered that we didn't have any matches to light the firecrackers with. Pondering on what to do, Wilbur blurted out, "Hey! I know. Let's use that ol' mirror in Miz Munz's store to light them."

After asking how that would work, Wilbur said, "Simple. We'll just point it at the sun, and use the reflection to light them." So we headed back to Miz Munz's store.

When we got there, we peeked inside the front door to see where she was, trying to be inconspicuous. We saw her waiting on Miss Goodstone at the glassware section, so we snuck in, keeping low. When we got to the dresser in the furniture area with the "antique" mir-

Golf scramble upcoming

The Texico Booster Club will sponsor a golf scramble on May 24 at the Farwell Country Club.

The shotgun start will be at 9 a.m. ct.

The cost is $30 per player; $120 per team. The goal is 16 teams with 4 persons per team.

Deadline for signups and paying is May 17.

Prices will be given for 1st, 2nd, 3rd and last places; and for longest drive, and closest to the pin.

A cook-out will be held after the scramble.

You can sign up at Texico High, with any Booster Club member, or by calling Craig Walls at 482-3488 or 481-3546.

'Explosives were popping all over...'

ror, Wilbur pulled the firecrackers out of his pocket and opened the end with the fuse that would set off all the firecrackers.

I tilted the mirror so that it reflected the sun, where Wilbur was standing. Oblivious to what I was doing, Wilbur was busy carefully trying to pull just a few firecrackers apart from the rest.

About that time, the reflection hit where his hands were and shined on the fuse. Did I mention that it was about 98 degrees in the shade that day, with no wind?

Anyway, Wilbur was just about to pull three firecrackers from the rest of the pack when he noticed something smoking near his hand. "What the..." was all he got out before tossing them on the bed next to the dresser. Then it started.

Explosions were popping all over the bed. Firecrackers shooting in all directions. Flames jumping from the bedspread. People screaming, and running out of the store --- including Wilbur and me!

Mz. Munz just stood there, horror on her face. Suddenly, she started to jump up and down. We realized that some of the firecrackers had flown over to where she was standing and started going off at her feet.

I've never seen an 87-year-old woman dance like she danced that day. I stood there, thinking how cool it was, when Wilbur grabbed my arm and started dragging me away with him.

"Where we going?" I asked.

"To watch the fire trucks coming down the street. It's cool to watch them in action," he said.

Being the adventuresome boys that we were, I quickly forgot about what started the mess, and ran after Wilbur to see the fire trucks. We watched the firemen hook up their hoses and begin to spray the flames. We were sort of disappointed, though, because the fire was out in a matter of minutes.

Oh, well, we decided that it was time to walk home. But when we turned around, there stood Minnie Munz, arms crossed on her chest, a serious frown on her red and black face, and a still-smoldering dress.

2003 Loan Premium and Discount Table Released; Should Provide Boost For 2003

LUBBOCK, April 18, 2003

By Shawn Wade

Following USDA's April 17 release of the 2003 Upland Cotton Loan Premium and Discount tables, High Plains' cotton growers should find a lot to be happy about as they prepare for the 2003 growing season.

The 2003 P&D table provides a second year of positive changes in the form of lower discounts and higher premiums.

Another boon for producers is the fact that the trend toward smaller discounts carries over to the Micronaire discount table, which has lower discounts throughout.

The discount table for Uniformity remained the same as 2002 while the table for Bark has lower discounts than were in place for 2002. Strength discounts, however, did increase slightly for readings 25.4 g/tex and lower. Premiums for Strength readings above 25.4 g/tex remained unchanged.

Stats given for ex-Texico hoopsters at ENMU

Final statistics for the Eastern New Mexico University girls' basketball team have been released.

Here's a look at how Texico's Elizabeth Richards and Jennifer (Roberts) Strebeck performed.

The team was 7-20 overall.

Richards averaged 27.1 minutes a game.

She hit 94 of 225 2-pointers, .418; 19 of 74 3-pointers, .257; and 51 of 81 free throws, .630.

Richards collected 144 rebounds, 2nd most on the team -- 63 offensive and 81 defensive, for an average of 5.3 per game.

She had 15 blocked shots and 45 steals. She scored 258 points, 2nd high on the team, for an 9.6 game average.

Richards was the team's top rebounder in 6 games. She was high point player in 7 games, also. Her top effort was 18 points against Northeastern State.

Strebeck averaged 14.7 minutes a game. She hit 32 of 98 2-pointers, .327; 15 of 58 3-pointers, .259; and 14 of 19 free throws, .737. She averaged 3.6 points a game.

She collected 59 rebounds, 16 offensive and 43 defensive. She had 1 blocked shot and 12 steals.

Jail bid deadline extended

The Parmer County Commissioners on Monday extended the deadline for submitting bids for the new jail until May 19.

This was due to some small changes, trying to save money, and also to ensure that everyone had ample time to view the specifications, said county judge Bonnie Clayton-Heald.

In other business, the commissioners:

-- Approved the annual lease agreement with Efrain Bell. He is paid $500 a year for the county to place dumpsters on his land near Friona.

-- Heard county extension agents Cody Hill and Monti Vandiver report on the office's 2002 activities.

-- Approved an agreement with Roosevelt County, N.M., to house their inmates in the Parmer County Jail. It still must be okayed the Roosevelt County Commissioners.

The pact is similar to the one with Curry County, N.M.

EMS Report

The Farwell ambulance was called to the Farwell Convalescent Center on April 24 and 26, and also took a person on April 26 from Country Club Road to Clovis hospital.
