Some guidelines concerning selection of such appliances are: Choose a toaster/oven with convenient controls, signal light which indicates the unit is on, automatic shut-off and crumb tray for easy cleaning. This handy appliance toasts, bakes and broils.

An electric skillet, on the other hand, fries, bakes, fondues and just about anything else desired.

Many models feature detachable controls and handles for dishwasher use and tilt legs for simplified draining or basting. A dome lid allows enough room for roasts.

A third kitchen helper is the blender -- which chops, grates, crumbs and mixes. Although many speeds are available, only a few are actually used. Blender containers should have easy-to-read graduations, easypour spout and handle. Other popular features include detachable blades, removable cover insert for adding ingredients and various attachments.

Look for electric knives with off-on switches and safety locks. Used in slicing bread, cake, meat and other foods, many have releasable blades for easy cleaning and storing. Some stainless steel blades feature serrated edges.
