Wage Clause Looms As The Chief Issue

Controversial Lynch Bill Finally Is Put Aside

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—The senate took up consideration of the administration's housing legislation today, temporarily laying aside the anti-lynching measure which has been debated since the session opened.

A conference report on housing, previously approved by the house, was expected to provoke controversy because of its elimination of the "prevailing wage" amendment which the senate previously had voted into the bill.

Temperatures Plunge To Lowest Marks Of The Season

Minimum Of 18 In Big Spring As Cold Blast Sweeps Across State

Big Spring residents, accustomed to balmy weather after an unseasonably long stretch of high temperatures, welcomed the sunshine Monday as temperatures climbed slowly after touching the lowest mark of the season.

A cold wave which hit the area early Sunday sent the mercury down early today to a minimum of 18 degrees. Weather was moderating this afternoon, and a continued climb in temperatures was forecast for Tuesday.

Tells Of Offer Of Aid On A Land Claim

M'Donald's Campaign Manager Mentioned In Inquiry

AUSTIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—Gilbert T. Adams, Beaumont attorney, told a senate investigating committee today that F. S. Sheridan, Land Commissioner William H. McDonald's campaign manager in Houston in 1936, offered last August to aid him in seeking to obtain McDonald's approval of a vacancy claim.

Adams said he did not accept Sheridan's proposition and the claim had not been allowed. State land office employees told him, he said, that they were convinced no vacancy existed. The committee was on the fifth day of a searching inquiry into state oil leasing and vacancy practices during McDonald's first term of office.

BIG SALARIES—AND BIG TAXES

In the recently published lists of large salaries paid in this country, President Alfred P. Sloan of General Motors was shown to have received $561,311 in salary and bonus in 1936.

Out of Ronald Colman's $336,000 income taxes took $236,000. The $100,000 paid to J. L. Kraft, cheese manufacturer, was cut half in two by taxes.

Then again, in 1936, when Senator Logan was having a hard fight for re-election, opposed by the Chicago Tribune, he was called for Europe, returning only after the primary.

Barkley has one supervisory resource, President Roosevelt is tremendously popular in Kentucky and he is all for Barkley.

Chandler is popular, and at the luncheon indicated he would not hesitate to oppose Barkley. But many peace negotiations are in progress.

Washington Daybook

By Preston Grover

WASHINGTON—There is an old negro plow song which goes "Trouble O Lawd, nuttin' but trouble in de Land ob Canaan," and that is the situation in Kentucky with regard to the re-election of Senator Barkley.

It wasn't alone to show their support of Barkley that his friends gave a testimonial dinner for him in Louisville the other day.

Barkley's political troubles in his home state lie in all directions, but the main one is A. B. (Happy) Chandler, 39-year-old governor of the state, ambitious for more political honors, head of a political organization almost as effective as the late Huey Long's in Louisiana and personally a very amiable gentleman.

Interest Mostly Local

Another Barkley trouble is that Kentucky takes its local politics with such deadly seriousness that the inhabitants almost forget who happens to represent them in the national congress at the moment.

Furthermore, the political leaders who ordinarily support Barkley are a bit riled at him for allegedly temporizing with the Chandler organization.

Then there was a slip. Governor Ruby Laffoon left the state, and in his absence, Chandler, who was lieutenant governor, called a special session of the two legislatures and rushed through a law making a primary compulsory.

Wet-Dry Trouble

And on another front, Barkley has been making a fight of it, of whom there are many in Kentucky in spite of its fame as a whisky-distilling state.

There is far less glamor attached to the big salaries when the tax bills are paid.

The advertisement seems designed to further the view that publicity should not be given such salaries, and perhaps its author sought to create the impression that the taxes are excessive.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—The old New York that historians write about has largely disappeared beneath a layer of asphalt and concrete.

The other day I went over to 55th street and First avenue where the Dove Tavern used to stand and where a young Yale graduate was hanged by the British as a spy.

John Hyde Preston describes Nathan Hale as a tall slender young man with golden hair and blue eyes.

As near as I can make out, the Dove Tavern stood where the Church of St. John the Evangelist, a grey stone structure with leaping spires, now stands.

On the opposite corner, on First avenue, is a small restaurant known as the Vital Bar and Grill,

RECIPE FOR A LAD BY ALAN LEMAY

Clyde's Plan Nothing could convince the rajah that we were not in league with the Forrester, and had nothing to do with the war.

Without the Linkang, as Clyde pointed out, the few Malay praus would be surrounded and eaten alive in the bay of Balingong.

And there we had Clyde's third mistake in a row! Or his fourth, the first mistake being to have come here in the first place.

Undoubtedly Clyde saw that, too. But it was too late to do anything but to go on. After all, perhaps it could not do much harm to put into words what Mantusen had already decided to put into action.

Another of those long, deadly silences then. The yellow light of the lamps highlighted the heads and shoulders of that passive row of Malays, and though these were good looking men, as Malays go, I already had enough of that row of still faces.

"I have listened to your guns all day," Mantusen said. His fingers adjusted the cloth which covered the head of his brother in the basket.

"Even if I believed you," said Mantusen, "even if I believed you were now going to fight the Dyaks, I tell you that they can no longer be sent away. They are too strong, and they have tasted blood.

Clyde tried a new tack, and suggested that if this was the case Mantusen himself had a very small chance of getting out.

Right there, I recognized the white man's backache talking out loud! For it was obvious at once that Clyde had made a mistake.

There are virtually as many reasons for "closed sets" as there are stars who demand them. Best publicized is Garbo's, the Swedish lady's shyness.

Katharine Hepburn, for some time now, has been "pulling a Garbo." Although she came from the stage, where players are supposed to be "closed sets," she will have none of them in the sound cages.

Joan Crawford used to like visitors. Now she usually sweeps to her dressing room at the click of the latch.

Some Duck Women Scribes Kay Francis shies from strangers, sometimes bars friends to avoid the former.

"I have no intention of going back," Mantusen said. "I have no intention of going out of this place. You have built a trap, Tuan, and the trap is sprung. It makes me happy that by some miracle of God you are caught too."

Clyde had been working toward a plan which had a bare possibility of success, and he went ahead doggedly. It was his idea that the river could be forced by a night rush of the Malay praus.

Archie Mayo and William Wyler and Cecil B. DeMille and Clarence Brown (except when directing Garbo) thrive on them.

During the making of "The Hurricane" a Goldwyn executive arrived on the set with a friend. There was an almost instant cessation of activity.

Operatic stars you'd expect to be temperamental don't live up to the name. Grace Moore comes closest, although she's never been anything but gracious when I've been around.

Bette Davis had a closed set the other day—I think it was her first. She'd just had word of her father's death.

There is, too, a green mail box and a wire wicker basket from the Dept. of Sanitation, and not far away in a second-run cinema, where out-dated movies are shown.

W. S. Van Dyke has the welcome-mat out always (except when directing Norma Shearer), but many other directors are touchy.

He looked up, studied a moment, and shook his head. "I never heard of him."

Will Extend Shelter Belt

4,250 Miles Of Trees To Be Planted In Six States

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 31. GP—Shelterbelt workers will plant 1,000 more miles of trees this season than the distance from New York to San Francisco.

The season's work charts call for 4,250 miles of trees to be planted in the six plains states—the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Why so many trees in the arid plains? Because, project officials said, survival rates during three drought periods have shown the trees and shrubs will live if properly planted and cared for.

So far, 2,807 miles of the farm shelterbelts, or windbreaks, have been planted on 7,510 farms of the six states.

The surviving trees amount to 503 miles of protective forestation in Oklahoma, 510 in Nebraska, 49 in Kansas, 396 in Texas, 335 in North Dakota and 412 in South Dakota.

This year's schedule calls for the planting of 1,000 miles of trees in Oklahoma, 900 in Nebraska, 800 in Kansas, 800 in Texas, 400 in North Dakota and 350 in North Dakota.

Here's A Sample Of Top Calves To Be Shown At March Event Here The fine Aberdeen-Angus calf pictured above is but a sample of the many top calves to be shown by 4-H club and FFA boys in the livestock show here March 1-2. Early reports indicate the presence of at least 100 calves and sheep in the first club boy show attempted here on an annual basis. In the picture Billy Sadler is holding the Aberdeen-Angus calf while Russell Sadler brushes its back. The calf came from the herd of S. S. Williams of Adrian, Texas. Started on feet Jan. 1, 1937, the animal weighed 1,170 pounds at the beginning of this year. Russell and Billy are feeding six calves, five herefords and one Angus. They plan to bring their animals to the Big Spring club boys show, County Agent George Bond, Stanton, said. O. P. Griffin, Howard county agent, said Saturday that about 10 of 20 club boy calves he looked at during the day showed promise. Several, he said, have about doubled in weight, now topping 800 pounds. They were put on feed here last autumn by the 4-H boys of the county. V. G. Young, Garden City, Glasscock county agent, said here last week that boys in his area were going to furnish plenty stiff competition with fine fed lambs.

Search For Plane Reported Crashed AMARILLO, Jan. 31 (AP)—Search for a plane believed to have crashed in flames in the rough ranch country 30 miles north of here, was resumed today. The pilot, believed to be Rowland Major, flying from Camden, Texas, to Tulsa, was reported to have escaped injury. A searching party of Moore county citizens combed the Canadian river country for three hours last night with no success. An unidentified man called the airport, officials said, to say that the plane caught fire in the air, was landed safely, the pilot escaped, but the plane was consumed.

WANTS AFL TO QUIT NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 31 (AP)—A proposal from President William Green that the American Federation of Labor withdraw from labor's non-partisan league, put a new question before the federation's executive council today. Green called the league "a ventriloquist's dummy for the C.I.O." in a report made public yesterday. He charged that the league's character and activities had been transformed since John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, had also assumed leadership of the league. Originally, Green recalled, the non-partisan league had been formed to mobilize labor support for President Roosevelt's campaign for reelection.

FEED-TEST CALVES MAKE SLOW GAINS Forty head of calves on feed at the U. S. experiment farm are now "on their feet" and showing favorable gains. Jot Smith, feeder, said. The animals, due to weather conditions, were a little slow at the start this year, but in the second six weeks period had apparently leveled off to the encouraging gains registered in previous years. Several of the animals are topping the two-pound daily gain average. They are now in the third period of the test which will be concluded in May. Mr. and Mrs. Ward Hall have as their guest her mother, Mrs. Ida Davis of Plainview.

It absorbs moisture and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. But All-Bran does still more. It contains vitamin B... the vitamin that helps tone the intestinal tract. Eat Kelllogg's All-Bran every day and drink plenty of water. Made by Kelllogg in Battle Creek.

MONEY ROLLS IN FOR CAMPAIGN ON PARALYSIS WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—President Roosevelt's 60th birthday anniversary is over, but the White House staff is going to be counting dimes—and larger coins—for several days. Thousands of letters bearing contributions to the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis piled up in the executive offices during the week-end. The gifts will be added to receipts from birthday balls held in every state Saturday night. Mr. Roosevelt, voicing his thanks in a radio talk, said: "It is glorious to have one's birthday associated with a work like this."

RESCUED BY NUNS CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa., Jan. 31 (AP)—Twelve residents of St. Joseph's home for the aged hunted tearfully for a new haven today, muttering prayers of thanks for ten nuns who rescued them from the burning 100-year-old structure yesterday. "The nuns acted like veteran firemen," said Assistant Fire Chief Terence Campbell. "There was no disorder."
