Farwell Schools' 8th annual art show was held May 17, showcasing students' work from high school and 8th grade. Art teacher is Robin Gregory.

Judge was the Tribune's Rebecca Pomper, who was very complimentary of all the art work. She said:

"The artwork produced by the students this year was amazing. There are a lot of pieces here that are well above high school level. You could tell that the students put in a lot of work into their pieces. It was very difficult for me to judge them so in the end I had to go with artwork that went above and beyond what the assignment called for.

Patterson, Herington win Farwell High's most coveted honors

The most coveted honor given at Farwell High School, the Loving Cup, was awarded to Dan Patterson at the school commencement exercises on Friday.

The award was started by the Farmers Grain Co. of Farwell and was first presented in 1928. It is given to the best all-around Farwell High graduate and comes with a

$2,000 scholarship. The other top school honor, the Carlos Nicolas Award, was presented to Sarah Herington. The award is named after a Continued on Page 2

Texico students take 3rd place at International Science Fair

by Rhonda Hill

"If we knew what we were doing, it would not be called research, would it?"

This quote of Albert Einstein was featured on the official Intel T-shirt, which was on sale at the world's largest pre-college science and engineering fair in Albuquerque May 13-18.

Three Texico High freshmen -- Marques Pena, Monique Pena and Shay Anderson, placed 3rd in the team projects competition (of 254 entries), each winning $1,000 awards.

Their environmental sciences project was called "Search for Oil Biodegradation with Marine, Aquatic and Terrestrial Symbiosis." Their teacher was Wayne Anderson.

Also, Jonathan Hill, a Texico High freshman, placed Grand Champion at the regionals at Eastern New Mexico University and got to attend international. His animal sciences project in the individual competition was called "The Effects of Cell Phone Radiation on Subsequent Generations of Drosophila Melanogaster."

Privileged to experience this event as a sponsor, I quickly deduced I had underestimated this meeting of the minds. In grand fashion, opening ceremonies at Tingley Coliseum spotlighted each of the 48 nations or territories represented by 1,512 high school students.

From arena seats, sponsors peered down at the concrete floor, carpeted wall-to-wall with finalists. As representatives from each country lined the stage with patriotic posters and fanfare, the magnitude of international representation was realized. Joining the competition for the first time this year were Lebanon, Estonia and Saudi Arabia.

At this 58th annual event, the largest ever, 1,211 projects were judged by thousands of expert volunteers in various fields, covering 18 categories. Just hours earlier, these competitors converged upon New Mexico soil with dreams and goals fueled by intellect, dedication, and an appetite for new and innovative technological Continued on Page 3 the continuing art students to strive to always work at their best. Art should always be first and foremost something that you enjoy doing, but it is also supposed to be an expression or extension of yourself. An artist should always feel connected to their work in such a way that you would want it to be the best that you have to offer. I think Mrs. Gregory has done a wonderful job teaching that to her students and they are well on their way to becoming great artists."

Students participating in the Art III division have finished three years of art in high school. Best of Show was a scratchboard of wolves, completed by Elisa Smith.

In the pen and ink category, Derrick Chandler placed 1st, China Lane 2nd and Robert Williams 3rd.

The Student Choice division winners were Elisa Smith, 1st, with scratch board art; Salida Edwards, 2nd, with a pastel, and Trace Stevenson, 3rd, with a colored pencil.

Alex Olmos placed 1st in the Theme category, followed by Jesus Ramos, 2nd, and Trace Stevenson, 3rd.

The charcoal sketch was won by Sarah Herington, with China Lane 2nd and Elisa Smith 3rd.

The Abstract Visuals Biographies was won by Elisa Smith with Robert Williams 2nd and Gustavo Arevalo 3rd.

In the Art II division, Chanel Castillo's pastel was selected Best of Show. Ramon Garcia was 2nd and Cindy Santos 3rd.

The pencil portrait placings were Ramon Garcia, 1st; Cory Chadwick, 2nd, and Jessica Adams, 3rd.

In the pen and ink category, Jaime Saenz was 1st; Chanel Castillo, 2nd, and Brenda Cano, 3rd.

The watercolor category was won by Kayla Sanders with Jessica Adams 2nd and Jeffrey Pierce 3rd.

The abstract word done in pencil values was won by Cindy Santos; Jaime Saenz, 2nd, and Robin Scott, 3rd.

Jeffrey Pierce was 1st in the still life category, followed by Chanel Castillo, 2nd, and Ramon Garcia, 3rd.

The Art I and II one point perspective word design category was won by Tiffani Jones, with Ryan Sharp 2nd and Christy Thatcher 3rd.

The Art I first year high school students had Logan Carpenter named Best of Show winner with his scratch board art. Casey Knight was 2nd and Mason Howard 3rd.

The color study cubes was won by Holly Bufkin with Blanca Meza 2nd and Keegan Langford 3rd.

The contour line show drawings was won by Mason Howard, with Aaron Warren 2nd and Tiffani Jones 3rd.

Keegan Langford won the watercolor flowers category with Jake Ware 2nd and Holly Bufkin 3rd.

The pointillism category was won by Logan Carpenter, followed by Ross McClaran, 2nd, and Christian Meza, 3rd.

Berneice Govea won Best of Show in the 8th grade, with Rane Carpenter 2nd and Pamela Lara 3rd.

Berneice Govea was 1st in the oil pastel, followed by Tyler Read, 2nd, and Julian Cuevas, 3rd.

In the abstract design colored pencil category, Angel Navarette was 1st; Tyler Read, 2nd, and Luke Carpenter, 3rd.

The pastel texture abstract was won by Colby Read, with Lincoln Devault 2nd and Tyler Read 3rd.

Laney Christian won the pattern name design category with Jose Garcia 2nd and Tori Jean Pollard 3rd.

The water color leaves winner was Pamela Lara, with Matt Martin 2nd and Russell Schilling 3rd.

The letter abstract in pencil value was won by Matt Mart, with Jose Garcia 2nd and Russell Schilling 3rd.

The Pop Art category was won by Rane Carpenter, with Caleb Christian 2nd and Lincoln Devault 3rd.

The "Odds and Ends" category consists of art work done by students who have completed their class projects ahead of the others and have the time to choose an art project they would like to do. Jaime Saenz won 1st in this category with a pen and ink. Kayla Sanders was 2nd with a pastel, and Salida Edwards was 3rd with a watercolor.

The Art II and III clay division Best of Show honoree was Ramon Garcia with a clay replica of a silage trailer. Chanel Castillo was 2nd in the 10"-12" category, and Brenda Cano and Shanea Davis tied for 3rd.

The sculptor /mask/ or bas relief category was won by Shanea Davis, with Cindy Santos 2nd and Chanel Castillo, 3rd.

Gustavo Arevalo placed 1st in the Art III pottery division. Sarah Herington was 2nd and Salida Edwards 3rd.

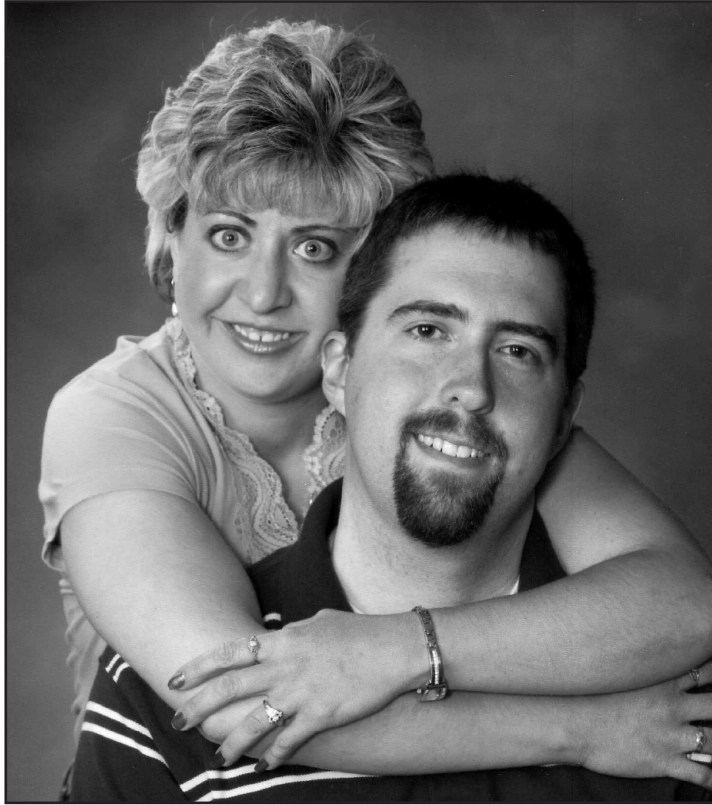

Christian Meza won Best of Show in the Art I clay pottery division.

The pinch pot division was won by Mercedes Wade, with Holly Bufkin 2nd and Logan Carpenter 3rd.

Logan Carpenter was 1st in the coil pottery category, with Cambry Devault 2nd and Ryan Sharp 3rd.

The slab category was won by Christian Meza and Casey Knight in a tie for 1st. Laramie Fulcher placed 2nd and Rowdy Smith 3rd.

Mrs. Gregory thanked everyone for attending the show and for the interest shown in the art work.

Corby White and Kasey Powell

Corby White to wed Kasey Powell

Duane and Linda White, of Farwell, announce the engagement of their son, Corby Mark White, to Kasey Mariah Powell, daughter of Ben and Liz Powell, of McDonald, N.M.

The wedding will be June 16 at the En Sueno Bed and Breakfast in Hobbs, N.M.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Tatum High School and West Texas A&M University. She is pursuing her teacher's certificate this year.

The future bridegroom graduated from Farwell High School and Texas Tech University. He is an engineer for Xcel Energy in Clovis.

discoveries. Some students spent as many as 29 hours in flight for this lifetime experience. Interpreters for several languages were necessary, and many foreign finalists faced the arduous task of translating their exhibits and research into English in order to be judged.

Only 18 percent of these students had participated in ISEF previously; 40 percent were seniors; juniors made up 31 percent; 17 percent were sophomores; with 12 percent being freshmen.

The week was filled with activities, and hundreds of volunteers offered gracious hospitality. Two days were allowed for setting up projects and meeting strict requirements for safety and authenticity. Sunday evening, a pin-exchange party took place at the Hyatt, an ice-breaker whereby students exchange and collect pins from other states and countries.

On Tuesday, six Nobel Laureates graced the participants as a discussion panel, and entertained questions from the finalists. The city of Albuquerque threw a barbecue for our party of 4,000 at the Civic Plaza, and taught the art of salsa dancing, until rain drove us indoors.

Judging took place on Wednesday, when finalists, dressed in business attire, stood at their projects and met with as many as 30 judges, to whom they hoped to cogently pitch their experimentation and research. Punctuated only with a lunch break, this 8-hour day procured a measure of relief for the finalists, who took on a celebratory demeanor as they gathered at the Explora Museum for dinner and music.

On Thursday, students once again manned their project areas as an estimated 7,000 citizens and school children infused the 57,600 square foot exhibit hall throughout the day, creating elbow to elbow traffic conditions inside.

Exhibits ran the gamut of topics – from the invention of a free-floating mouse for computers to the study of a tree in the Virgin Islands that can live in salt water or on land, to the engineering of a nasogastric tubing band without skin-damaging adhesive tapes, to testing the stress levels of fruit flies after exposure to green tea, to challenging the “No Child Left Behind” testing used in our schools, to nanotechnology discoveries, to fractals and multi-complicated mathematics projects, to the invention of an apparatus by which hydrogen is introduced by electrolysis to vehicles and homes to cut the costs of fossil fuel energy - the array of experimentation and ideas was astounding, enlightening, and encouraging.

Thursday evening and Friday we were bused to the fairgrounds for buffets and Expo New Mexico, which included Native American, African American and Hispanic cultural events, and the state Department of Wildlife exhibit. However, the main attraction was the distribution of $4 million in cash prizes, scholarships, tuition grants, summer internships, scientific field trips and equipment grants.

Hundreds of winners took their place on stage during three assemblies totaling eight cumulative hours of awards presentations by nearly 100 organizations and institutions, besides the Intel/Agilent technologies grand awards hosts. As an added perk, a representative from MIT Lincoln Laboratories (in connection with White Sands, N.M.), announced that all of the 1st and 2nd place winners would receive the honor of having an asteroid named after them, to be published in September.

As we were standing in our bus lines after the final awards ceremony, cell phones were activated and news was being spread abroad to those supporters waiting at home. Observing the many triumphant faces of those who had won prizes, as well as the disappointment evident in many more of the elder students who felt invalidated, another of Einstein’s quotes seemed appropriate: “Not everything that can be counted counts, and not everything that counts can be counted.”

While still meditating on the possible ramifications of such a statement, I must admit that I count ISEF 2007 as an irreplaceable life experience, knowing that all who attended can attest the same. But my favorite, most digestible, quote of Einstein’s hits even closer to home: “The hardest thing to understand in the world is the income tax.” Perhaps this would make a great topic for scientific research in 2008.

There is reason for skepticism

"I do not feel obliged to believe that the same god who has endowed us with sense, reason, and intellect has intended us to forego their use."
Galileo Galilei, 1564-1642

Galileo was one of the leading scientists of his time, and though he did not invent the telescope (a contribution mistakenly credited to him), he did exploit its capabilities for remarkable astronomical discoveries. His observations and calculations convinced him that his predecessor, Copernicus, was correct. Earth and the other planets orbit the sun.

That in itself doesn't seem startling to us today, but when Galileo expressed it, he ran afoul of the orthodox view that Earth was the center of the universe and that it was the sun and all the stars that orbited around it. That was a required belief of the Catholic Church of that time on its own reasoning that since God had created mankind in His image, He would have made mankind's planet the center of the whole shebang.

Galileo was convicted of heresy by the Inquisition in 1633. He escaped execution by the Inquisition only by publicly recanting his statements. He was, however, kept under a strict house arrest until the day he died in his villa near Florence, Italy.

That tidbit of history may seem quaint to us since science has known for centuries now that Galileo and Copernicus were absolutely correct. We are amused that there ever was really a time when an orthodox belief could be so sacred that contradicting science had to be suppressed. We chill at the thought of authority empowered to dictate thought and to punish skeptics of its mandated articles of faith.

Yes, that is the way it was way back then. But before we pat ourselves on the back too hard for our advancement, consider the cults of faithful believers these days that are pushing the orthodox faith of Man-Made Global Warming (MMGW). My daughter's school here in Florida, like most other schools in the nation, included that award-winning documentary "An Inconvenient Truth" in its curriculum this year, and no alternative viewpoints were allowed in that class. After all, its sponsor, Al Gore, had decreed that the matter is already resolved, the discussions are over.

His modern Inquisitors (I mean, "Supporters") dismiss anyone who voices alternative views as being an industry pawn or a modern day "flat-earther." Science that contradicts the orthodoxy is dismissed without consideration.

And there is character assassination. A Weather Channel meteorologist proposes that the American Meteorological Society (AMS) decertify its members who express doubt about MMGW. An Australia newspaper suggests that in the future, people who today contradict MMGW should be subject to a Nuremberg-style trial in order that they may be "made to account for their attempts to cover up the global warming Holocaust."

Britain's scientific academy founded in 1660, the Royal Society, insists that it is only defending "scientific consensus" in its attacks on MMGW skeptics (translation: If you don't accept the faith, you are not a scientist.) The British newspaper, Guardian, editorializes that disagreement "looks as stupid and as unacceptable as Holocaust denial."

In case after case, nation after nation, the faithful push MMGW not by answering the questions that arise but by attacking the questioners on a personal basis. Another slick scheme is to define whatever the climater delivers as yet another proof that MMGW is indeed happening.

For instance, we moved to Miami in 2006 and it was predicted that its hurricane season was going to bring us a horrific series of hurricanes, all because of MMGW. As it turned out, in the whole year, our city got one hurricane, bringing less than 3 inches of rain. But the local faithful defenders of the faith were unfazed, trumpeting that the reason the season was so mild was (you guessed it) MMGW.

I have to be skeptical of any position that twists the data to support itself like that. I have to be skeptical of any discussion that begins with the ground-rule that MMGW is absolutely right, the discussion is ended. I have to be skeptical of any explanation that is so weak that it attacks its critics personally rather than just debating the questions.

You could fill this paper with nothing but the studies and calculations of scientists who do not agree with MMGW. "An Inconvenient Truth" was contradicted almost immediately in its apocalyptic predictions by other environmentalist groups. (The film is hailed now more for its good intentions ... its distortions and mistakes ignored.) The warming that clearly exists is anything but "global" as ice mass increases and glaciers advance in parts of the world that MMGW disciples ignore.

The earth has gone through warm cycles and cold cycles for centuries, completely uninfluenced by mankind. It is very possible that climatic changes have nothing to do with mankind's activities because they precisely match the sunspot cycles of our sun. (Mars' ice caps are retreating faster than Earth's are, and there are very few SUV's on that planet.) For myself, I can attest that even the small volcano on which we lived in Ecuador, Guagua-pinchincha, can create more gases and vapors in a day than all mankind's activities do in a year.

And whatever the cause may be, many scientists welcome global warming because the warmer periods in Earth's history have always brought increases in food production and reductions in disease for mankind. It is possible that global warming is a good thing.

At the end of the day, honest inquiry could reveal that MMGW is true, that its skeptics are right, or something in-between. But we'll never have the chance to know because the defenders of the faith in MMGW won't engage its critics on a level field.

If Galileo could come back today, he might be the one who would be amused, looking at our times and at how little things have changed. The enforcement of orthodox faith remains, only the methods have changed.

LIVE CATTLE: With prices breaking down to the lowest levels seen since making their top in early March, many traders are questioning the strength of the overall market. Technically, short and long term trends remain down into the late June/July time frame. Cash beef prices are also beginning to turn down along with cash trade this week. At this time, prices would need to close back above the $94 level basis the August contract in order to turn trends back higher.

FEEDER CATTLE: This market has taken its lead from the Live Cattle prices for the last several weeks. Corn prices have had very little impact on feeder prices. The market broke down out of a two week range this week and project to test the early May lows at $1.09 basis the August contract. A break below this level would project a move into the $105-1.06 area.

CORN: Both the nearby July contract and the new crop December contracts have been able to hold their lows on each decline. These markets have been trapped inside a narrow range since late March with no clues pointing towards their next big move. Weather will be the driving force moving prices between now and pollination. Expect to see a few pops to the upside due to weather.

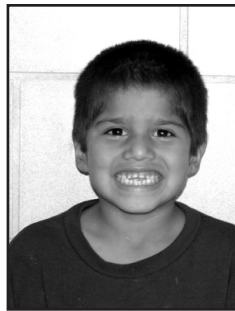

SOYBEANS: Beans turned their long term trends up just a couple of weeks ago and projected up into the $8.00 area. This halted the advance early in the week, but prices broke above resistance late in the week to project another leg up towards contract highs. Weather will remain a concern as we move through growing season. Losses to corn this year may help to support this market into harvest.

WHEAT: The market rallied strong this week on rumors of losses in production due to bad weather taking place in Russia and China. Technically, long term trends are still down, but the market moved up into some major resistance levels this week around $3.93 basis the July KC Wheat contract. A close above this level could send prices back into the $5.17-5.25 area.

COTTON: Prices finally cleared long term resistance levels and turned long term trends higher. The December contract stalled out at some short term resistance at $55.50, but was able to push through this level on Friday which should project another leg up. There has been little news to push the market higher, but it seems like the perception has changed with is positive for prices.

Farwell Chamber supports county grant writer idea

The Farwell Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday voted to support the Bovina Chamber of Commerce's idea to have a grant writer hired to help county communities.

Toward this end, the two Chambers have authorized Mike Pomper to represent them at the June 11 meeting of the Parmer County Commissioners.

Pomper plans to ask the commissioners to hire (fulltime or part-time) a grant writer on a trial basis to seek grants for all the county's communities.

During the discussion at the Farwell meeting, Pomper said it is difficult for small communities like Lazbuddie, Bovina and Farwell to afford hiring a person, but that as a countywide project it could be successful.

In other business:

-- The 5th annual Farwell Chamber of Commerce 1-hole golf tournament will be on Saturday, June 16, at the Farwell Country Club.

Wolverines Service Station to open in Texico

Wolverines Service Station will open on Friday, June 1, at 504 Wheeler Ave. in Texico.

It will be operated by Jose Posada, along with his wife, Gloria, and daughter Alexandra, an 8th grader at Texico Schools.

Posada was raised in Texico but has been living in Clovis. His home was hit by the recent tornadoes there, and he has returned to live in Texico. When the tornado hit, his wife and daughter hid in a closet and were not injured; he was in Portales at the time.

The full-service station will be open Mondays through Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. mt. Posada stressed that special care will be given senior citizens when they buy gas or use other services at the store.

Services will include:

Full service gas, full detail work, oil changes, car washes, brake work, minor car repairs, plus they will be selling snow cones, refreshments, candy and other food, knick knacks and miscellaneous merchandise.

The telephone number is (505) 791-5120.

The shotgun start is at 8:30 a.m.

The fee for a two-man team (including a art) is $100 per team. It's limited to 32 teams, which will be flighted by the lowest handicap.

There will be several special prizes given, plus a hole in one will get you $10,000 on Hole No. 2.

Afterward, a free hamburger cookout is available to participants.

Proceeds go toward the Chamber scholarship fund.

Chamber President Ronald Byrd is spearheading the annual golf tourney.

-- Rob and Rebecca Pomper presented design ideas for "Welcome to Farwell" signs. This is still being worked on.

-- Ralph Franse suggested that something be named after Joe Jones, a Farwell community leader who died recently. One person suggested the Farwell Community Center be named after him.

Longhorn Pride JH students visit Blackwater Museum

Lazbuddie School is promoting student success with a program called Longhorn Pride in which qualifying students are rewarded every six weeks.

The Junior High Longhorn Pride students visited the Blackwater Draw Museum north of Portales, and Blackwater Locality No. 1, a National Historic Landmark that is one of the most important archaeological sites in the Americas.

The tour of the site is a little over one mile and students got to see first hand work done by archeologists. Students then went to the Natural History Museum that is affiliated with the Department of Biology at Eastern New Mexico University. Students got to see different reptiles, fish, insects and a variety of rock samples on their guided tour.

Students then went to Clovis see the opening of Shrek III, an animated movie. Afterward had dinner at a Clovis restaurant, then went to Casel-Land to drive go-carts, water bumper carts, miniature golf and a couple of turns in the batting cages.

The Longhorn Pride program promotes punctuality, attendance, exemplary citizenship, and academic success. To qualify, students must have a grade of 75 or better in each subject, a citizenship grade of "B" or better, no more than two absences in any class (three tardies equals one absence), no more than one visit to the principal's office for disciplinary reasons with a yearly limit of no more than three visits.

Students who qualify 4 out of 5 six weeks can take part in the special end of the year Longhorn Pride Adventure. Trips and activities are paid for with fund raisers such as the Fall Auction and Spring 3-on-3 hoop tournament.

Bovina Banter

Gutierrez, infield. End of season baseball stats for the Mustangs will be published in next week's Tribune.

The proposed city budget is a tight one -- with very little surplus.

This means that some of the capital improvement plan proposals won't be funded.

On the agenda are: weather siren (a grant will pay the estimated $44,000 cost) and new sewer line (a grant will pay for the $300,000 estimated cost).

Other items include radios, water tank painting and street sealing.

The Tribune is looking for someone to call in Bovina after rainfalls so we can report the moisture totals.

If you have a rain gauge at home and we can check with you the next morning, please sign up by calling Rob Pomper at (806) 481-3681.

Each summer the Tribune runs FREE classified ads for youths seeking summer jobs. So if you want to run one, just call me.

We hear that Friona may be recruiting Joey Spicola in an attempt to have him put his proposed housing and business development there, instead of Bovina.

Carpenter. Mona Merritt -- senior English, Jourdan Kirkland; freshman English, Keegan Langford.

Lazbuddie School is celebrating several windfalls which came in the form of grant monies from various entities.

Grants totaling $5,200 were awarded to allow for the implementation of loss prevention and safety initiatives to reduce the potential for property losses and on-the-job injuries and raise safety awareness at Lazbuddie ISD.

A Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) grant of $3,000 will be used to re-key school facilities.

TASB also donated a defibrillator valued at $1,850 to help the school comply with new state rules.

The Texas Association of Public Schools awarded Lazbuddie $2,200 to purchase surveillance equipment.

Lazbuddie's vocational departments received over $11,000 in Tech Prep Grants from the Panhandle Tech Prep Partnership of Amarillo.

The Business Department used a $2,000 grant to purchase a color printer to assist in a year-long project for Lazbuddie business students.

Business and Computer teacher Renita Pollard's department also received $7,246 for computer management software; E-Instruction CPS and chalkboards which allow for immediate feedback and reinforcement between student and teacher; and an ELMO Projector system; all of which will enhance the learning environment in the Business Lab and all Tech Prep Computer Labs.

The grant will further allow Mrs. Pollard to attend professional development training to obtain her Tech Applications Certification.

Another $2,095 of the Tech Prep Grant monies will be used to purchase an Abrasive Cut-Off Saw for the Ag Mechanics Classes.

Perlie Gerles

Perlie Gerles, 96, died Wednesday, May 23, 2007, at Farwell Convalescent Center. Perlie was the 7th of 9 children born to Albert and Wilhelmine Ramm, on their farm and ranch in Copperas Cove, Texas, on Sept. 2, 1910. The Ramms moved their family to West Camp, Texas, in 1923 where Perlie eventually met Dick Gerles. On Dec. 22, 1929, Perlie married Dick Gerles in Clovis.

They then settled in Lariat where they proceeded to run a farm and raise a family of four boys in the midst of all the hardships brought on by the Great Depression and the Dust Bowl. Despite the extreme difficulties forced on her by time and place, she saw her four boys through to adulthood, and became the matriarch of a large and loving family that is and always will be a legacy that filled her with love and happiness. Her affection and thoughtfulness knew no bounds and she brought joy to all her sons, daughters-in-law, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren.

She was a charter member of the First Baptist Church of Farwell, where she taught Sunday School, served on the kitchen committee for years, read all the books in the library and served as a devout and faithful member her entire life. In addition to the time she devoted to her church and family, Perlie found time to become an accomplished painter, many of her works are displayed proudly and prominently in the homes of her family, to crochet countless pieces that will be always treasured by her family, to write wonderful letters to family and friends, and to cook some of the best Thanksgiving and Christmas meals ever served. She will be sorely missed by all who knew her.

Perlie was preceded in death by her husband, Dick; a son, Don; a daughter-in-law, Linda; a granddaughter, Tina; 4 brothers, and 4 sisters.

Surviving are her children, Herman and Alta, of Farwell; Bob and Charlene, of Clovis; Dickie and Glenda, of Uvalde, Texas; 9 grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren, and 3 great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. cdt on Saturday, May 26, 2007, at the First Baptist Church of Farwell. Memorial contributions may be made to the kitchen committee or the library fund at the First Baptist Church of Farwell.

Arrangements are by Steed-Todd Funeral Home, 800 E. Manana, Clovis NM 88101, (505) 763-5541, <http://www.steed-todd.com>

'War Czar'?

So President Bush has named a general as a "War Czar" to oversee the military efforts in Afghanistan and Iraq.

While that's probably a plus, it's a long, long way from the joint, long-range efforts needed to successfully fight the terrorists. Oh, well.

Where is the committee to make long-range plans? Not to be found.

Y'know, I like President Bush. I voted for him. I realize he knew a lot about governing, being a past governor of Texas, and little about foreign policy.

Unfortunately, due to 9/11, foreign policy has played the major role during his administration.

Sending our military to Afghanistan to flush out the Taliban was very well done. A real plus.

Then his gut feeling told him to invade Iraq, a move I also supported as a major step in fighting terrorism. Success there would have big ramifications on the entire Middle East.

But his foreign policy "experts" let him down. They didn't do the homework necessary to handle the Iraqi situation after the fall of Saddam. Truly pitiful.

Today, Iraq is in chaos. The fact is that our soldiers will be returning home one of these days without being able to accomplish their mission. I know that sounds defeatist but I just try to be candid. I wish to God I were wrong.

I always get chagrined when I read that Condy Rice or Rumsfeld or other top leaders say "mistakes were made..."

Mistakes? Hell, no. They were horrifying blunders of a massive proportion. The decision to disband the Iraqi army was the worst geopolitical decision in American history.

Who were the fools who made our Iraqi policy?

There was a guest column in the Amarillo paper recently by Lawrence Wilkerson, a retired colonel, who served as Chief of Staff to Secretary of State Colin Powell from 2002 to 2005.

I will sum up what Wilkerson wrote: Basically, Rumsfeld named Wolfowitz in 2000 as his top deputy. As post-Saddam planning was called for, Rumsfeld totally ignored the chaos under him as Wolfowitz and the No. 3 man in the department, Feith, proved their ineptitude.

And Bremmer at the State Department joined these folks in the decision-making process.

Now you know who were the culprits.

It's so sad that so many American lives have been shed needlessly due to our leaders' stupidity.

I realize in the big picture of a 100-year war, what has taken place in Iraq may not be instrumental in the final outcome. But our poor handling of post-Saddam Iraq will have a major bearing. The jury is still out.

The West simply doesn't have the stomach to wage a long war with vicious terrorists. And the inept leadership in the U.S. doesn't help.

So what will the outcome be?

You tell me.

I never thought I would write a nice word about leftist director Michael Moore, but never say never.

He has produced a new movie entitled "Sicko" which shows the mess our health system is in.

It apparently points out how government is in bed with big business, and our citizens are left to fend for themselves. It shows the massive number of our folks, including children, who are without health insurance; and how middle class Americans are driven into poverty by spiraling health care costs.

For 20 years, I have been harping on this problem. And what has our government done during that time?

To be blunt, our government doesn't give a hoot about you and I.

That angers me. Doesn't that anger you?

Four generations

Four generations of Treiders have attended Lazbuddie schools. One of the oldest living ex-students is Mrs. Frances Menefee Treider Lovelace, who attended Lazbuddie School in 1926. She celebrated her 95th birthday last year. Her son, Ted Treider, graduated from Lazbuddie in 1952 and is owner-operator of Treider Hardware & Supply in Lazbuddie. Ted's son, Brad, graduated Lazbuddie in 1974 and owns Treider Electric. Brad's daughter, Addie Joy Treider, will graduate on June 1 as Lazbuddie valedictorian. From left are Frances, Ted, Brad and Addie.

STATE COMPETITORS

Bovina boasted two outstanding track athletes who participated at the state contest in May. Yesenia Guevara was 4th in the high jump with 5'0. Jessica Bachicha was 3rd in the discus with 115'7 and 5th in the shot put with 37'1. A bunch of fans were on hand from Bovina. These photos were taken at the state meet, courtesy of the coaches.

Ken Waters called to say that some fulltime & part-time jobs are available at Bovina Food Express. Apply in person.

Bovina Middle School's Rosaelena Duarte won $100 in a 6th grade reading contest.

Principal David Newhouse started the Super Readers Club at Bovina Middle School this year and those students that accumulated well above the required amount of Accelerated Reader points in their class had their name placed into the drawing for $100.

They had 12 students initiated into the Super Readers Club and Newhouse said he hopes to have more next year.

Bovina High senior

Frank Martinez will play in the Western Football Classic at 7 p.m. on Saturday in Lubbock.

Bovina Middle School also had a drawing for $100 for TAKS test participants and Lazaro Mota won that drawing.

Principal Newhouse said the Middle School did well on the TAKS test this year and because of that he went on the school roof for three hours, and students got three chances to hit him with water balloons.

Bovina has issued the 2006 annual drinking water quality report and all is in good shape.

Just in case you want to know all the particulars, it will be bought up at the City Council meeting at 7 p.m. on June 12 at the EMS building, or you can view it at City Hall.

There was vandalism on May 23 at the high school. Someone poured super glue into 18 locks.

Misdemeanor Class A charges were placed against five high school students -- four adults and one juvenile.

It will cost about $5,000 to repair.

Police Chief Leon Saddler handled the case.

Duncan Disposal has notified Bovina that it will raise its prices 5 percent -- which likely will be passed on to city residents shortly.

Luisa Lopez resigns May 31 as high school secretary. She plans to continue working with her electrician husband, Jose.

The Tribune would like to thank her for her great assistance in getting
