Koad Projects lurned To State For Work

ers Court, in session here Monday, Required This Year entered into agreements with the State of Texas, turning over to the state two strips of county roads, on the provision that the State Highway Commission will designate such as farm-to-market roads, under the Federal farm-to-market road improvement program.

The projects in this county, turned over to the State, include what is commonly referred to as the "Farwell project", which is designated to begin at the railroad underpass east of town and run to the Oklahoma Lane School.

The other project, known as the "Friona project", is designated to start at Friona and run four miles south of Hub. The original plan, it project to run to Hub and then ex-

The Parmer County Commission- No Auto Tax Stamp

Tax-paying citizens have a slight relief in sight—they will not have to buy Federal auto stamps for their vehicles this year.

Instigated as an extra moneyraising tax several years ago, auto operators have been required to secure the $5 federal stickers at the postoffices by July 1, or face the consequences. But the act has been killed this year, and motorists have an extra $5 to spend.

Drops Dead While He Walks Along Street

Death suddenly overtook H. T. (Uncle Harve) Hollis, age 83, as he walked along the street with R. E. Williams here, at 1:20 p. m. on Tues-

Hollis was walking along and in conversation with Williams, when he was suddenly stricken. He slumped to the ground and died without uttering a word. Williams, assisted by others standing in front of the Farmers Supply Company, picked him up and removed him from the street among the Santa Fe tracks.

Dr. Wm. V. Coventry, who was called, gave it as his opinion that death was due to coronary occlusion. The doctor said that he had examined the old gentleman early on Tuesday and found no indications of heart trouble at that time.

"Uncle Harve" homesteaded seven miles south of Texico in 1904, and for many years lived and worked alone. He owned two quarters of farming land in Roosevelt County. Camp And Picnic Menus Tech's increased vet enrollment is Available In Leaflet

COLLEGE STATION- Camping and picnic season is here in earnest and tasty menus for outdoor excursions must be planned. Edith Lawrence, specialist in food preparation, says the task can be made easy with a few simple rules and some interesting recipes.

Meals should be kept simple. One main dish, possibly combining protein and starchy food, a crisp or chewy vegetable, one starchy food, and fruit for dessert will make a substantial meal. Beverages which can be prepared ahead of time or that require little preparation at camp should be server. Water should be taken along unless source of supply is known to be safe.

After planning meals, Miss Lawrence advises listing supplies needed. A checking of all recipes will prevent something being left behind.

Recipes for chicken risotto, beanhole beans, campfire stew, and other camp foods, with detailed menus for 21/2 days and rules for successful meal planning are found in Extension Service leaflet, MS-742, "Food For camp". The booklet may be obtained by writing to the Extension Service at College Station.

The new type of contact men will be trained not only to provide information and advice on prosthetic devices, but also to help amputees select proper devices and to assist rat-

Men hired for this work will be given special training in VA's central offices, Washington, D. C.

Dr. LaBarge said the operation of the prosthetic appliance program will revolve around the specially trained contact representatives because they will meet the vets daily and learn their individual problems.

They will also aid vets with hearing aids, artificial eyes and other prostheses.
