Trade Brisk In Spite Of Heat, Drouth

Sales At Most Points Continue At Level Above Last Year

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Up to this time the extremely hot weather and the drouth which have prevailed in many areas of the country have apparently not greatly affected wholesale and retail trade, according to reports to the department of commerce. The Minneapolis report stated that notwithstanding the severe drouth, business is holding up with surprising activity. Sales of city stores for June were 12 per cent over June of last year. In country stores sales were up 14 per cent while during the first two weeks in July the same ratio was maintained. While wholesale business was quiet in St. Paul and Minneapolis, all business was holding up well in the drouth area.

Wholesale Gains
Wholesale conditions in St. Louis were reported unchanged, while Kansas City reported gains of 20 per cent in wholesale lines compared with last year. In Kansas City itself the extremely hot weather curtailed business considerably.

Omaha was one of the spots reporting adversely on the effects of the drouth on business. The report from that city stated that the hot, dry weather was beginning to affect many lines of business, especially those dependent on rural trade. From Birmingham came the welcome news that the extreme drouth and heat conditions in Alabama had been broken by several heavy rains. As a result, crop conditions were reported looking more favorable. Business activity, as measured by bank clearings, was up more than 23 per cent above last year.

Implement Sales Up
Atlanta, where business might be expected to be hurt by the drouth in the Southeastern section of the country, reported business up to the upgrade. Wholesale dealers said they were enjoying material increases in the sale of agricultural implements over the same period a year ago. The Georgia feed crop was benefited by rains, reducing the estimated $50,000,000 crop damage. Wholesale trade in Charleston was 12 per cent above last year.

A great influx of buyers attended the home furnishings exposition and the national furniture show in Chicago. At the American Furniture Mart there were 1400 more registrations.

Mrs. Gallimore had been in failing health for the past year and a half, and had been confined to her bed for two months. She was born in Joncaville, S. C., March 26, 1880, and had resided with her husband in Howard county for the past eleven years.

Shake-Up In Top Posts Of Martin County

County Judge Denton Is Eliminated; Zimmerman Elected Sheriff

STANTON, July 27. (Sp.)—Complete returns from Martin county boxes today revealed a shake-up in the top county offices with County Judge W. E. Denton out of the run-off picture and Morris Zimmerman, deputy sheriff, definitely elevated to the position of sheriff.

J. S. Lamar, who two years ago was beaten by Denton, led the ticket for county judge with 402 votes. Clarence Story was next with 327 and Denton was close behind with 312 votes. W. F. Harvard, other candidate, received 278 votes.

Zimmerman coasted to an easy victory in the contest for the sheriff's office. His 739 votes were more than a majority over the incumbent, Milt Yater, who received 378, Eugene McNeese with 66, and P. O. Hughes with 128 votes. Yater has held the office for three terms. M. G. McDonald, whose name did not appear on the ballot, had his name written on the ballot for county attorney 37 times, enough for re-election. John Epley, county clerk, polled 1313 votes.

J. D. Creless, precinct No. 1, and Bonnie White, precinct No. 3, were returned to their commissioner posts without opposition. J. S. Blackford, incumbent, beat Charles Anderson for the No. 2 post by a vote of 221 to 121. With the incumbent, P. O. Hughes, out of the No. 4 race, Lee Castle led with 177 votes. R. P. Mayfield was next with 88 votes. Not far behind was Claude Miller with 69, trailed by Beecher Alhrath with 34 votes.

Lynn White won the justice of peace race with 186 votes to 149 for W. A. Kaderli, incumbent. In the governor's race, James V. Allred piled up a handsome plurality with 534 votes to 757 for all others, divided as follows: Brooks 181, Fischer 180, Hunter 317, and Sanderford 79.

Ballot Trimmed To 22 Names In Next Month's Run-Off

To Settle Tie Wednesday, When Returns Canvassed

In contrast to the long list of names—94—appearing on the ballot of last Saturday's democratic primary, there will be only 22 candidates listed for the August 22 runoff in Howard county.

Voters by Monday could be surveying the list, with the exception of two races. In one state contest, that of railroad commissioner, it was not definitely decided who Ernest Thompson's opponent will be. In a county race, that of precinct No. 1 commissioner, two candidates tied for second place, and it had not yet been determined which will win a place on the runoff ticket.

Thompson, far in the lead in the railroad commissioner race, was trailed by Frank S. Morris of Dallas county. Carl C. Hardin of Erath county, however, was close behind Morris, and there was a possibility he might take second place.

An unusual situation developed in the precinct commissioner's contest, J. Ed Brown was in first place with 199 votes; while Reece N. Adams and Frank Hodnett, incumbent, had 166 each.

U. S. Procedure Is Bewildering

WASHINGTON, July 27. (AP)—Two groups today advocated changes in the nation's legal system because it is too bewildering. An American Bar association committee advocated the creation of a federal administrative court to take over the judicial functions of 73 government agencies because of the "great hardship and injustice" resulting in the overlapping of agencies.

13 Holders Of Congress Jobs Are Victors

Only Two State Races To Be Decided In Second Demo Primary

(By the Associated Press)
Unofficial returns Monday from Saturday's democratic primary assured Governor James V. Allred reelection without a runoff.

Allred had accumulated 455,761 votes out of a total of 877,846 from 246 counties. His majority was 33,816.

Tom Hunter was runner-up with 201,272. Reports coming in Monday morning indicated only straggling votes remained to be tabulated. The state total probably will be less than 900,000, well below the more-than-a-million cast in 1934.

Although Ernest O. Thompson, seeking reelection as railroad commissioner, had a wide lead, he was forced into a runoff. His opponent probably will be Frank Morris of Dallas county; but Morris was only a few hundred votes ahead of Carl Hardin of Erath county.

Returns compiled by the Texas Election Bureau from 244 counties, including 96 complete, showed the following figures:
Thompson 326,876, Morris 130,086, Hardin 129,618, Johnson 92,360, Reiger 27,257.

Building Goes On At Brisk Pace; Mellinger To Open Second Store

Work Started On Last Highway Gap

Building activity continued on the widest front here last week that it has experienced since the boom era.

One structure was nearing completion, two more were in the process of construction, and two more were due to be underway soon.

Victor Mellinger, owner and manager of the Mellinger's department store, has announced he would open a women's and girls' shop in the remodeled and modernized building formerly occupied by the State National bank.

His present store will be devoted exclusively to men's and boys' apparel. Both stores will have juvenile, student and adult departments and will carry standard advertised brands, Mellinger said.

Albert S. Darby, manager of Darby's bakery, said Saturday that he had purchased materials in the old Coahoma school building and would use them for rough stone work in a bakery plant to be erected at the corner of Sixth and Main streets, across the street west from the First Baptist church. While materials were being moved in, no definite plans have been made for the building, but it is due to be completed and ready for occupancy by the end of the year, he said.

WORK STARTED ON LAST HIGHWAY GAP

Many retailers in the Chicago area were reported studying the effects of the drought before placing definite commitments for large orders for fall delivery. Cincinnati wholesale dry goods houses found business 40 per cent better than last year, while in Louisville the volume of wholesale orders held well above this time last year although they were slowing down because of the drought. Wholesale activity in Houston showed gains over 1935 averaging around 45 per cent. Most of the areas reported increased employment due to a combination of sustained industrial activity, heavier building, and sharp seasonal demands for help in rural areas.

FATAL DISEASE GRIPS TWO BOYS, BALKS DOCTORS

BELLAIRE, Ohio, July 27 (UP)—Two boys are slowly dying here from a strange disease that physicians find impossible to treat or diagnose exactly. The youths are John 11, and Mike, 9, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Krinenko, of Dillies Bottom, coal mining camp six miles west of here. The youngsters were stricken when they were 7. Both have been growing slowly worse and now it is impossible for them to sit up in their beds in the Ohio State Hospital for crippled children. The nearest that physicians have come to a diagnosis is that the disease causes slow deterioration of the brain cells that control the movement of the body. Joints become swollen and in the last stages the patient loses his mind. Only three other deaths caused by this disease have been recorded in Ohio.

PROFESSIONAL DISTRESS

NERVE STRAIN—MENTAL ANGUISH

Doctors and their social duties sometimes have a hard time making connections, and often are the despair of their family and friends. It may not be generally thought that the modern Doctor takes the case of the patient as much to heart as the old family physician, but those who live close to Doctors will tell you a different story. The Physician who tries to divert his mind, or fulfill social obligations, with a seriously ill patient in his thoughts, is a very absent-minded theatre companion or bridge partner. The Doctor expecting a momentary summons, is not free from mental strain or worried nights. When he finds the case beyond human or scientific help, only the immediate family grieves more than the Doctor.

Candidates Make Race On One Platform

Marland And Lee Called New Deal Twins In Oklahoma Runoff

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 27. (UP)—Oklahoma has taken an amazing political spin since its first primary election July 7. Here are some of the things that happened:

Sen. T. P. Gore, a veteran and a conservative who opposed the new deal frequently, is crushed. He ran fourth with only 91,581 votes.

Age Pension Voted A $30-a-month old age pension (half to be contributed by the state and half by the federal government) and a 1 per cent sales tax to finance it, were voted by majorities, though the measures were fought bitterly by some politicians and financial groups.

Gore, recognizing that he was beaten mainly on the grounds that he had opposed the national administration's policies, observed: "The law of evolution is, 'adapt or die,' and I didn't adapt."

As they go into the runoff campaign, they present a "Siamese Twin" effect. Each is a new dealer each has liberalized his views on pensions, each advocates a letting governmental program for aid to the needy.

Two amazing factors stand out as a result of the July 7 primary: first, the crushing defeat of Gore, the worst in his political history; second, the heavy vote rolled up by Smith on his radical platform, when every expert had figured him in fourth place.

According to all political gauges, the temper of Oklahoma has undergone a vast change in recent months. Only last December the state voted a 2,500,000 relief appropriation at a special election, and while no one fought this appropriation, it carried by only a small majority.

Gore was defeated for the democratic nomination back in 1920, on his anti-war stand in 1917. Until then, he had served as one of Oklahoma's senators since statehood.

Arriving Saturday at the Keyport, N. J. airport, he left his newly designed plane there for final repairs in preparation for the projected flight from New York to Paris, which he said he expected to start by the middle of next month.

Pangborn, who with Hugh Herndon, Jr., made the first non-stop flight by airplane across the Pacific ocean, will have as co-pilot on this trip A. Lion Greengreen, a friend and flying companion since his World War days.

With a gasoline capacity of 1,156 gallons, the single-motored craft is designed to carry an additional payload of 1,000 pounds, and has claimed for it a nonstop flying range of 8,000 miles.

Van Homers, Ray Throws Good Game

With one away in the electric frame, Roscoe Van Zandt put his big bat in the way of one of Lee Brummett's smokiers and crushed it far out over the fence in left field for a home run to give his Rebel mates a 4-3 victory over the Luther Wops in the latter's second straight overtime affair Sunday afternoon on East Third diamond.

It is the second time this season the locals have defeated the north Howard county team.

With Ray McMahan pitching consistent eight ball, only two of which came in the first six innings, the Rebels built up a 3-0 lead in the first seven frames but the Rebel mates a 4-3 victory over the Luther Wops in the latter's second straight overtime affair Sunday afternoon on East Third diamond.

The Rebels came through with a total of ten licks off Relas Hopper and his successor, Brummett. Hopper retired after the locals counted a pair in the fourth.

Successive base blows by McMahan and Pickle and a long fly by Morris Redding gave the Rebels their first run in the third stanza and they came back an inning later to mark up two more when Van Zandt doubled, Wills was safe at first on a bunt, and Hart and Morgan sacrificed to send both runners home.

Mance Kinman came up with the only blow recorded off McMahan in the first seven innings, getting a single in the first and another in the sixth. He added a third one base blow in the eighth to take timber honors.

Court Holds Schedule To Route Trucks

AUSTIN, July 27. (UP)—The court of civil appeals here ruled Saturday that the holding of two local certificates by a common carrier truck line did not authorize it to operate through service over a different route between the terminal of the combined certificates.

The Alamo Freight Lines of San Antonio, holding a permit to operate between Houston and San Antonio, and another to operate between San Antonio and the Lower Rio Grande Valley, asked the state railroad commission for a certificate to run trucks between Houston and the valley via Beeville.

The commission granted it without a hearing on whether additional service was needed on that route.

The Red Arrow Freight Lines and the Texas & New Orleans and other railroads appealed to the courts. The trial court here held that the commission's order without a hearing on convenience and necessity was void and the appellate court affirmed that decision.

The Timid Soul
HM! WELL, I'LL WASH UP WHEN I GET HOME
FOR EMPLOYEES ONLY
WASHINGTON—The tempest in the capitol that broke about the secret service shadowing justice department G-men was only a small part of a very important situation, which should be golden grist to the republicans.
Real fact is that the new deal has set up the greatest espionage system ever seen in Washington. And what is both amusing and amazing is that it is largely engaged in spying upon itself.
A few telephone wires were tapped back in the Hoover days, but the Hoover boys at least could say that they were snooping on their enemies.
But the new dealers don't seem able to trust themselves. Chester Davis had wire-tappers used on his own AAA men, later threw out several, including Jerome Frank, now adviser to RFC and PWA.
Then the post office department had a couple of detectives trail a commerce department air official named Jay Mount, because of alleged aviat on irregularities.
Press Shadow
Both the secret service and justice department G-men have done a little shadowing of each other from time to time. Both also have gone out to get the lowdown on newspapermen and their news leaks.
The greatest believer in Communist-Soviet-OGPU espionage is Louis Glavis, recently eased out as chief of the bureau of investigation of the interior department. At one time he had 1,000 detectives working for him in the greatest espionage system since war days.
There was almost no one Louis did not have shadowed, including the president's secretary, Marvin McIntyre, and L. C. "Chip" Robert, then assistant secretary of the treasury. Glavis put dictaphones in their hotel rooms in Atlanta and sent in a report which may not have been true, but made very juicy reading.
Glavis didn't stop there. Believe it or not, he even shadowed his own boss, Harold Ickes.
Detective House-Cleaning
If the cost of all new deal espionage were added up it would feed a lot of starving families.
Figure out the cost of wire-tapping alone. To tap a telephone wire requires a man to be present all day, sometimes late at night, to listen in with ear-phones. Minimum cost is around $20 a day.
One explanation for the present Communist fed is the end of prohibition. That left a lot of bureaus high and dry with no more sniping to do. Also, it trained a whole army of snipers, who didn't know what else to do but snoop.
Some of those around the president say that he is much concerned about the way all his helpers are trying to get the goods on each other and this is why he has been trying with the idea of one big secret service.
Republicans have gone in for a little new deal investigating lately, chief operator being "Slew" Goldwin, ex-publicity man for Harold Ickes, now getting up information for William E. Fair's GOP broadcasts.
Mail Bag
D. V. K. Akron, O.—Mrs. Roosevelt went through the last social season with seven evening gowns, but juggled them around so skilfully that she got credit for having more. It is doubtful if she is the "best-dressed woman in public life."
That is apple sauce dished up by her group of gaping admirers, the newspapermen of Washington, who, if Mrs. Roosevelt appears in a very simple frock, describe it as a "very becoming green and gold dress with redingote." Or if she wears a very ordinary house dress, they call it a "henna homespun with sleeveless jacket."
The seven gowns she wore during the social season were: A blue satin, worn at the navy relief ball; a two-toned velvet of purple and red, worn to the vice president's dinner to the Roosevelt; a scarlet velvet which she wore to the cabinet dinner; a deep blue chiffon trimmed with lame, which she wore to a departmental reception. Her favorite is a praline-colored velvet with full skirt, train, bodice, cape, creamy chiffon bertha and all the trimmings. This she wore to the diplomatic reception, to the judiciary reception and on a number of other occasions.
In mid-noon she bought a cream brocade with train and fichu of same white lace, which she wore to the president's birthday ball.
Sports clothes are more in Mrs. Roosevelt's line. She goes in for homespun ensembles—gifts and purchases from her Val-Kill factory on the Hyde Park estate.
Among her sports outfits are a light tan and gray homespun skirt with white blouse, a henna homespun with cream silk blouse, a coat with brown collar, and suits of burgundy wool, brown homespun and blue pin-stripe.
Mrs. Roosevelt's "in-between" wardrobe of luncheon and afternoon frocks includes a brown crepe dress with wide cuffs, a black satin with blue collar, and a tailored black crepe with long sleeves set off with a large white woolen collar piped in black.

BUILDING PERMITS SHOW STRONG GAIN

AUSTIN, July 27.—The number of building permits granted in Texas during June more than doubled those of the like month last year and were moderately higher than those of the preceding month, the University of Texas bureau of business research has reported.
Reports to the bureau from the secretaries of chamber of commerce in 33 Texas cities give total building permits valued at $5,283,000, an increase of 111 per cent over June last year and 55 per cent over May of the current year. Aggregate permits during the first six months of 1936 totaled $33,848,000, an increase of nearly 120 per cent over the corresponding period last year, the bureau's statement said.
Cities showing gains in June over the preceding month and June, 1935, were: Abilene, Amarillo, Beaumont, Brownsville, Corsicana, El Paso, Fort Worth, Harlingen, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen, Marshall, Paris and Wichita Falls.

THE COUNTRY ISN'T BROKE
People who feel the urge or inclination to question whether this country is better situated than a few years ago—no wonder if prosperity is really coming back—might get some enlightenment from the report of one of the great automobile corporations which states that during the first half of this good year 1936 their dealers have chalked up the enormous totals of between seven hundred and eight hundred millions of dollars in the sale of new and used cars—and this was before the bonus money was available.
Maybe the amount will be more impressive in figures. Here it is—$700,000,000—or substitute an eight for the seven. As the negro crap shooter said about six-bits, "that's real money."
No country that can spend that many millions with one automobile company is in anything like the shape the Republican calamity howlers try to tell us. These millions came from somewhere—they did not grow on trees nor materialize out of thin air—and they meant employment for a lot of men and women. And there are other automobile corporations doing business besides enterprises in other lines.
Some people say that buying automobiles has bankrupted the country. It may be that here and there will be a man of low income who should not buy an automobile, and who is perhaps pinched to keep up the payments and operating expenses. On the other hand, consider those who are gainers by the transaction—the manufacturer and his employees, the accessory makers, the oil and gas producers and distributors. The automobile makes for a more rapid and wider distribution of money than any other thing ever put on the market.
They are part of our everyday life and their volume of business is an index to the condition of the country. Some individuals may be broke but the country as a whole is not, by any means.

★ Man About Manhattan ★
By George Tucker

NEW YORK—A struggling young essayist, deciding that a woodland retreat would be more conducive to his labors, recently removed himself and portable typewriter to a cabin in one of the counties upstate. He felt, he vowed, sad at the thought of his friends living in the miserable city while he was working up a speaking acquaintance with nature. He intended to be gone about four months.
This was six weeks ago and he is back in Manhattan. He has been back nearly a month. It seems that he arrived at his new domicile and settled down for some intensive toil when he discovered that his typewriter, injured in transit, was on the blink. So he drove 18 miles into a small town and waited 24 hours to have it repaired. Returning to his cabin, he discovered that he had left the windows open and that a rainstorm had saturated everything within a range of six feet from the windows—including an important manuscript which was more than half completed. Parts of the manuscript were beyond repair—indeed, many pages were lost—but he managed to retain his good humor and immediately set to work to repair the damage.
The night he went to sleep under blankets that were dampened by the rain. Waking next morning with a heavy chest, he attributed it to the change in climate and endeavored to get himself on a working schedule. But at breakfast he overturned a pot of scalding coffee, severely blistering his right leg and causing such pain that he nearly fainted. Smearing the injured limb with butter, he painfully dragged himself to his coupe and drove as rapidly as possible through the cool woodland until he reached a town. The doctor bandaged him and urged him to remain over night. Weary and half dead, the writer acquiesced. It is fortunate for him that he did. Before the dawn of the next day his cold, agitated by the fever brought on by his burn, developed into double pneumonia.
Our fresh-air fiend today is in a hospital in Manhattan. He'll be out in a day or two, well as ever. But he no longer pines for the rustle of hemlock in the forest breeze. Wild horses, he assures you, couldn't drag him off this island.
Such are the perils of prognosticating Broadway that one who takes his assignment too seriously is apt to come into embarrassing moments—to wit, this essay as set down several seasons ago:
"Among the startling phases of the revolution in the theater," we wrote, "is the almost complete disappearance of plays that can clock up extraordinarily long runs. The critics may burst forth with their most vociferous huzzahs, ticket agents may push sales with the persistence of sidewalk hawkers, press exploiters may bring out their thousands of trieks—but you can't mark up one of those 3-year runs any more. A play that lasts a year is doing mighty, mighty well."
This was written three days after a bawdy drama turned up on Broadway that seemed likely to fail any day. This play was "Tobacco Road"—now deep in its third consecutive year.

HEADQUARTERS FOR MOTOR CARRIERS TO OPEN IN FT. WORTH
AUSTIN, July 27. (UP)—Tilden L. Childs, district director for the bureau of motor carriers, interstate commerce commission, said today headquarters for the Texas district would be opened in Fort Worth, Aug. 3.
Four supervisors who will work under Childs' direction now are in Washington receiving instructions. They are Victor B. Gilbert of Cisco, George A. Meyer of Texasarkana, C. M. Thornhill of Houston and John E. Hayden of Dallas.

SHIPMENTS IN TEXAS WELL UNDER THOSE OF A YEAR AGO
AUSTIN, July 27.—Total shipments of Texas livestock to the Fort Worth stockyards and interstate points declined during June in comparison with the like month last year, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research. The drop in forwardings was restricted to cattle and sheep, while hog shipments almost tripled, it was stated.
Reports from about 1,500 Texas shipping stations show total forwardings of 4,390 cars against 4,591 cars in June last year, a decline of 5 per cent, the bureau's report said. Cattle alone totaled 4,197 cars, a decline of 16 per cent from a year ago; and sheep 493 cars, a drop of nearly 16 per cent. Hog shipments during the month were 200 per cent greater than a year ago, and prices showed an upward tendency throughout the month which has continued into July.

"This falling off in shipments of Texas cattle is in marked contrast to the sharp increase in cattle marketings in the country at large, it was pointed out. "According to the federal department of agriculture, receipts of cattle in seven leading markets were 45 per cent larger than in June, 1935, and 13 per cent larger than the five year average. Inspected slaughter was greater than for any previous June on record.
"These huge receipts, largely of distress animals from drought stricken regions, depressed prices sharply. Fortunately for Texas cattlemen, range and feed conditions in this state are such that live stock need not be dumped on the market under present depressed price conditions. There is every

Aerial Squads To Aid Forest Fire Fighters
FLIERS GET ADDED ADVANTAGE WITH NEW EQUIPMENT, MATERIALS
PASADENA, Calif., July 27. (UP)—Five experiments by the United States forestry service are underway to develop aerial fighting methods against forest fires.
Government officials express their firm conviction that aviation will solve the problem of millions of dollars worth of both governmental and privately owned timberlands that are ruined annually through forest fires.
The new forest fire fighting technique that is to be developed not only will include aerial fire fighting units but the use of chemical fire extinguishers instead of water.
In addition to extinguishing chemical it is planned that the aerial units will make an extensive use of bombs and explosives to blow up "breaks" in forests over which the fire may not be able to extend.
Ray C. Hedley, assistant national forester, is in charge of the group of officials, aviators and other fire fighters that will undertake the experiments near here in aerial forest fire fighting.
"The forest service is searching diligently," says Hedley, "for new measures to keep forest fires from getting head starts on the fire fighters. Although many developments still are in their experimental stages it is hoped through a foamy chemical mixture to make five gallons of water do the work of 15, and to make a bomb that explodes after it has penetrated the ground throw as much dirt of the fire as a whole chew of fire fighters."
Fighters to Carry Chemicals
"The chemical mixtures, continues Hedley, "can be used in tank trucks and in back pumps carried by the fire fighters as well as being dropped from planes. Used in the latter way, the method would be a retarding step on a fire to keep it from spreading until firefighters could get into line.
"For this purpose, airplanes of the hovering type will be used, and the forest service is giving its full co-operation and help to these agencies interested in developing such aircraft.
"Different equipment also is needed on forest service tank trucks for the use of chemical mixtures, and that presents another experimental problem, entailing development of tanks different from those already used by the municipalities for the spraying of chemicals on fires.
"Efficiency Seen Trebled
"Wind comes to a man with a back pump fighting fires with chemicals, it is believed can do the work of three men with three cans of water."
Hedley declares that other fire control improvements perfected by the forest service will enable 500 men on a fire to handle twice as much fire line as previously.
With their successful development, Hedley declares that the new aerial technique will be extended over all parts of the United States where extensive forest lands still exist.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 14 THRILL FOR NANCY

"I've got an idea he went up to the Court on Monday afternoon."

"Whatever makes you think that, Dale?"

"I just do think it, that's all."

Dale said, childishly pleased with the air of mystery he had succeeded in inducing into the conversation.

"But why on earth hasn't he said anything about it?"

"I don't know," Dale answered slowly, "I wonder. But he came home early from hunting that afternoon if you remember."

"Yes, but—"

"I hope this frost won't hold till Friday," Dale said in his acrobatic conversational style. "I want to try that new mare."

"You have bought one then?"

"I haven't paid for her—still I suppose that sort of thing doesn't worry you Nancy. I often wonder if you realize how lucky you are; you've got a couple of hunters and a nice place and everything you want."

"More tea Dale?"

"Thanks, a bit stronger this time."

Nancy took the proffered cup and filled it in silence.

"Is that all right Dale?"

"Yes thanks, that's fine."

Dale shot a more careful look at his guest. He had never before in his life regarded Nancy Featherstone in the light of a woman, he had known her too long, and somehow, always considered her too essentially uninteresting; but as a matter of fact this afternoon she didn't look half bad, and she certainly knew how to ride.

"Nancy," he asked, and his hand went automatically to his waistcoat pocket, but it returned empty, his usual swagger silver case was not there and he had to fish out a shabby looking yellow packet from a side pocket.

"Thank you Dale."

"You smoke a good deal, don't you?"

"Um. Too much, I'm afraid."

"Good Heavens, what does it matter? Life's short anyway."

Nancy laughed at this newly found philosopher. For half an hour now she had basked in unadorned sunshine, never had she known Dale so friendly before. They talked easily and quietly, almost instinctively slipping into their mood by stages that Nancy could hardly recall when afterwards she went back slowly over the scene.

Somehow the conversational needle swung round to its inevitable north, and with the mention of Enderston Court and what had happened there the illusion left the scene.

"Did you see your uncle after that row you had with him last week, Dale?"

"What row?" Illusion had gone now with a snap.

"Why, last week, I met you in the fields behind the Court, and you told me you'd just seen your uncle and how trying he was, don't you remember?"

"Yes—I remember." He had told her, and he had completely and utterly forgotten even meeting her then; he cursed his stupid tongue which was always ready with the latest thing that had happened to him. "We didn't have a row, of course, as a matter of fact I don't think I've mentioned it to anybody else."

"If you like, you can consider that you didn't even mention it to me," Nancy said with a sudden smile.

"I'm very sorry to disturb you, sir, but if you please—" Dale growled. "You're not disturbing anyone. Come in and switch on the light."

Mrs. Somers duly banished the friendly fireglow with the merciless efficiency of electricity, and danger, in such paroxysms of delight that he might have been repatriated from his goddess for half a life time, made a tumultuous entry.

"What is it?" Dale asked.

"Please, sir, there's someone to see you."

"Who is it?"

"Mr. Lawson from the Court lodge, sir."

In the middle of replying to Ranger's ecstatic lunatic Nancy happened to glance up at that moment and was astounded to see all the color suddenly drain from Dale's face. It was as though he had opened an unexpected telegram bearing the worst news in the world.

"Tell Mr. Lawson I'll see him in a minute," he said at last.

"Nancy jumped to her feet. "I must be going," she said. "Thank you so much, Dale, for—tea, and—everything."

"That's all right, Nancy. Very pleased you could come in. Good-bye."

"Good-bye, Dale. I—"

They stood facing one another for a moment on the front door step.

"What is it?" Dale asked almost harshly. Nancy wanted to tell him not for the world would she say anything to anybody about their meeting in the fields the other day and about what he had told her of his quarrel with his uncle; but for some reason or other she couldn't.

"Nothing, Dale," she said awkwardly, "I just wanted to say 'thank you,' that was all. Come on, Ranger. Good-bye, Dale; see you out on Friday, I suppose?"

"Probably."

Dale waited until she had reached the wicket gate where she turned and waved shyly to him, and then shutting the door he went back to what awaited him in Fieldon Cottage.

When tea was over and done with in Fieldon Cottage and Nancy Featherstone, attended by the still exuberant Ranger, was making her somewhat unhappy way home, Detective Inspector Hyton rapped eagerly on the door of the police cottage in Hope Enderston.

He had been for a long tramp during the afternoon as an aid to thought and was mentally and bodily stimulated in consequence. At that moment the Inspector's mind was filled, almost to the exclusion of everything else, with visions of a lightly boiled egg and large slices of thick white bread and butter.

The door was opened to him by a woman whom he had no difficulty in recognizing. He had seen her photograph once already, and attractive though it had been he had to confess that the reality was far more attractive still.

Alice White was a finely made woman of about thirty-six. She was broad-shouldered, generous breasted, broad-bhipped, in coloring she was very dark, almost as though she had a touch of the barbaric beauty of the Romany about her, and when her full free lips parted in laughter they showed magnificently white and even teeth.

"Friend White knows where to pick 'em up apparently," was the Inspector's unspoken comment.

"Did you want to see Mr. White?" the woman asked pleasantly.

Hyton introduced himself and was instantly made welcome.

"Oh, come in please, Mr. Hyton. I'm sorry I didn't know you. I've heard a lot about you already, of course. Jimmy's gone off on some job or other about this awful murder business, I expect."

"He's gone off on a wild goose chase, I'm afraid," Hyton said laughingly as he stepped into the house. "At least I think he has. It's his admirable devotion to duty which made him go, not me. Do you realize what a painstaking husband you have, Mrs. White?"

Alice White laughed and showed her even gleaming teeth. "I expect he's very much the same as any other husband," she said, "when he isn't at home you miss him, and when he is he's a nuisance."

The Inspector smiled in response and sat down doing his best to look like a man who is in sore need of a cup of tea. He succeeded; the very next thing Alice White said was, "Would you like a cup of tea, Mr. Hyton?"

Kingsley frowned. "I should not only like it," he said, "I should probably die without it, and, Mrs. White—"

"Catch a hen and shake it until an egg appears and then boil same highly," would you?"

Alice White gave a peal of cheerful laughter. "Boil you an egg for tea?" Of course, if you make yourself comfortable here I'll run into the kitchen and get it done in no time.

"Can't I have my tea in the kitchen," he begged, "and watch you deal with the egg?"

Sergeant White's wife, disappearing through the door, stopped and looked over her shoulder. "Of course you can," she said, "if you really want to. I'd like it," and she treated Hyton to a slow, appraising smile which he found slightly disconcerting.

Small Crocheted Motif

Pattern No. 329

If we were trying to name this motif, we'd call it Martha—it's just as useful as that. It may be because of its size, for it measures only 3 inches across, done in No. 20 mercerized crochet cotton, and so can be used to make the small dollies of a vanity set, or narrow table runners or mats, or any of the small odd pieces that are so useful. Yet it can be used to make a bedspread, too, and, worked in the knitting and crochet cotton, it measures 4 1/2 inches. Because of its size it can be stepped in the joining, as it is shown in the illustration, making the lines run diagonally, instead of parallel with the sides, which isn't always practical in larger motifs. And to add to its other virtues, it goes like the wind.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, with diagrams to aid you; also what crochet hook and what material and how much you will need.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 329 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald Needlework Dept., P. O. Box 200, Station D, New York, N. Y.

Canned Goods To Be Higher

Drouth Will Affect Prices Of Goods Sold This Winter

(Copyright 1936 By United Press)

CHICAGO, July 27.—America's housewives, who get their vegetables from cans in the winter, will bear their share of the 1936 drouth in the form of higher prices, a survey of middle western canning areas indicated today.

Prolonged drouth and heat cut seriously into supplies of corn and truck vegetables available for canning either in factories or homes. Sweet corn crops have been reduced as much as 50 per cent, a United Press survey showed, and supplies of other fresh vegetables, principally tomatoes and green beans, have dropped sharply.

Canning company officials in five states in the heart of the drouth area told the United Press higher prices for canned vegetables were inevitable this winter. Three major factors in this movement are:

1. Shortage of commercial canning crops.
2. Anticipated higher demand because home gardens from which many housewives do their canning have "burned out."
3. Low carry-over stock in several sections.

"It's going to be a tin can winter," said R. L. Wilson of the Fairbairn Canning company in Minnesota. "Housewives usually put up a tremendous amount of vegetables, but they couldn't this year because they had no garden. Consequently, America is bound to live out of tins cans this winter. We have no carry-over stock to speak of."

Wilson predicted prices of canned vegetables may be 15 to 20 per cent higher this year than last.

Borger Girl, Queen Of Frontier Show, To Get Chance In Movies

FORT WORTH, July 27.—Skyrocketing to stardom with the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial, Fay Cotton, who until her selection as Texas Sweetheart Number One was a Borger cafe cashier, is to get a chance in Hollywood. Rufus LeMaire, Hollywood film executive, formerly living in Fort Worth, announced he will take the comely brunette into the movies when she is through in the Casa Manana show of the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial. Miss Cotton plays opposite Everett Marshall and in one of her numbers wears the $5,000, 18-karat gold metallic dress which weighs 40 pounds.

Asked what he thought of the Borger girl, he said unhesitatingly: "I'm going to take her to California—that's what I think of her. She's beautiful and I think she will be a success."

"I wouldn't think of interfering with the show here, but when it is over she will have a contract offer."

LeMaire, who came here for the official opening of the show, said: "People in Texas don't realize what they have," he said. "Shows that can be seen here for $1 would be cheap at $5 in New York."

"I've been all over Europe and seen the best shows at Drury Lane, Vienna and Budapest, but I've never seen anything to compare with the show here."

"The colors, costumes and lighting are superb. Texas people have never had an opportunity to see such a show as that in Casa Manana and I don't think there ever has been one like the Last Frontier."

Would Renew Oil Compact

States' Representatives To Gather In Dallas On July 31

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 27 (UP)—Continuation of the oil compact, formed to support the supreme court outlawing NRA, will be one of the principal problems discussed at the quarterly meeting in Dallas, Tex., Gov. E. W. Marland, compact originator, said today.

Marland, members of the state corporation commission, and the state highway commission will go to Dallas for the meeting July 31.

The highway commission will confer with commissions of other states on a correlated highway program designed to continue state and federal highways across state lines.

Regular affairs of the compact states will be discussed, the governor said, and committee reports on conservation laws, importation of oils, and allocations of state production will be studied.

Other states may have special plans to bring up, and the addition of new divisions or functions to the compact machinery may also be discussed," the governor said.

"The compact expires in September, 1937, unless re-submitted to the legislatures of the states, and re-acted by those bodies and by congress. This will be one important subject, to start this work."

"A year of operating under the compact has shown its usefulness and its ability to produce a stable situation in the oil industry."

PALESTINE RIOTING RENEWED; 7 KILLED

JERUSALEM, July 27 (UP)—Seven persons were killed in Palestine over the weekend as acts of terrorism increased.

This represents the largest number of fatalities over a 24-hour period since the Arab anti-semitic rioting broke out four months ago, it was announced.

Many Arabs were arrested for illegal possession of arms and explosives. Sporadic shooting continued tonight with attacks on numerous Jewish settlements.

Big Program Planned For Garner Visit

Large Crowd Expected At Centennial To Honor Vice-President

DALLAS, July 27.—Motor caravans and special trains from all sections of Texas will converge upon Dallas Aug. 5. The occasion will be a statewide celebration at the Cotton Bowl on the grounds of the Texas Centennial exposition, honoring John Nance Garner, vice-president of the United States, Texas' most distinguished citizen. Indications are that one of the largest crowds Dallas has entertained since the exposition began on June 6th will be here. Advance information from strategic population centers indicates the crowd will equal and perhaps exceed that of opening day, and also that on the occasion of the visit of President Roosevelt. Under the direction of the state commission of control letters have gone forward to officials and civic leaders in all the larger cities and towns asking that motor caravans be formed, aimed to reach Dallas during the morning or early afternoon of August 5. Every town within a close radius of Dallas is receiving a similar invitation. A proclamation has been issued by Governor James V. Allred setting apart August 5 as "John Nance Garner Day" at the exposition. In the meantime a tentative reception committee has been named to meet the vice-president at the Adolphus at noon of August 5. It is composed of Governor James V. Allred, Nathan Adams, Fred F. Florence, R. I. Thornton, Cullen F. Thomas, Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul, Myron G. Blacklock of Marshall, chairman of the state democratic executive committee; Mayor George Sergeant of Dallas, and W. B. Yeager, of the United States Centennial commission of control. The program as developed to date is that the vice-president will be luncheon guest in the Century room of the Adolphus. At 6:15 p. m. he will be dinner guest at the Baker crystal ballroom. Immediately following the dinner he will be escorted to the Cotton Bowl on the exposition grounds, where the most elaborate program yet staged at the Texas world's fair will be offered without charge to the public. The Cotton Bowl seats approximately 50,000 persons. The program, including the address of the vice-president, will be broadcast. A review of the colorful history of Texas, dating from the time of the early explorers to the present will be presented. In it will be the cast of the Cavalcade of Texas. This spectacle will be followed by the army band, the police band and probably others. Other sections of the parade will depict the evolution of livestock, from the Longhorn to the present thoroughbred. It will terminate with a combined review of the army, navy and marine corps units stationed at Camp Stephen F. Austin, within the grounds. The speech of the vice-president will follow.

tell me...why are they Milder...why do they TASTE BETTER

Well, first off, all cigarettes are not alike... not by a long shot. Now Chesterfields...they are milder because they are made of mild, ripe tobaccos... both home-grown and Turkish. They age these tobaccos for two years to take out all harshness. These tobaccos are not only blended but cross-blended...this brings out the better taste of each tobacco. It welds the different flavors into one better flavor. It helps to make Chesterfields taste better. When you smoke a Chesterfield you realize they're not like others... They Satisfy.
