American Property Must Be Protected, U. S. Informs The Spanish Government

Will Demand Indemnity In Case Of Loss

Loyalists Move On Rebel Strongholds; More Troops Moved In

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The United States government today called upon the Spanish government to provide adequate protection for American property in the revolutionary area, warning it would expect indemnification if damage is suffered.

There was no immediate explanation of the reason for the government's action, although it was said unofficially the move was believed prompted by increasing representations by individuals who believed their interests in Spain were menaced.

GET REINFORCEMENTS

Spain's loyalist troops smashed at northern rebel strongholds today as insurgents ran a blockade of government warships to land 4,000 Moroccan reinforcements on the peninsula for a march on Madrid.

The fall of the rebel city Cadix was reported. The government announced an air drive "without mercy" with 300 airplanes.

The French government was cheered by the adherence of seven European nations to its suggested non-intervention policy in connection with the Spanish rebellion.

Step Nearer Madrid Spanish rebels, meanwhile, pushed the civil war front close to France's border in bloody battle for possession of San Sebastian and advanced a step nearer Madrid at tremendous cost in dead and wounded.

Desperately the Fascist troops hurled heavy artillery fire along the road into Tolosa and nearby San Sebastian. A co-ordinating column moved toward Gijon, farther to the west.

The offensive marked a determination to disclose the strongly entrenched loyalists along the sea coast, and provide a northern port through which the rebels could receive supplies.

Throughout the day the deadly whine of artillery shells betokened progress of the attack—another battle of destruction in the civil war which already has cost 35,000 lives and 100,000 wounded according to the Red Cross estimate.

High in the mountains outside Madrid, where yesterday 400 were killed in vicious fighting, rebels paid for a two-mile advance with 300 dead and 1,000 wounded.

For 48 hours the fighting raged at the end, the Fascist forces still were 35 miles from the capital. They faced tremendous new hardships when they turned toward loyalists barricaded in protected peaks of the Guadarrama passes guarding the plateau city.

Unable to bury their dead, the troops poured oil on the bodies and turned the battlefield into a funeral pyre.

More Airport Checks Ready

Money On Hand For Stock Holders; $18,000 Is Divided

Checks are available to holders of stock in the Big Spring Airport corporation, it was announced Thursday by Jas. T. Brooks, attorney handling the liquidating of the corporation, and money will be paid on surrender of the certificates.

Brooks requested that all stockholders call at his office in the State National bank building.

There are 117 stockholders, among whom is being divided $18,000, on the basis of number of shares held. The $18,000 represents one-half the sale price of the airport properties, for which the city of Big Spring paid cash. The remaining 50 per cent of the $36,000 total went to holders of bonds. All bonds have been turned in and the holders paid, Brooks said.

On the basis of the division, each stockholder is receiving about 39 1/2 per cent of the original paid in investment. Security owners of the airport corporation agreed to transfer the port to the city for $25,000, whereas the original investment was approximately $72,000.

Choice Stock Obtained For Rodeo Events

Calves, Steers And Broncs Selected For Contests In September

Arrangements have been made for approximately 150 head of choice rodeo stock for the third annual Rodeo and Cowboys Reunion here Sept. 7-9.

Roping calves, steers and broncs will be taken from the herd of Red Lyons, Byers. The calves, 50 in number, will be cut from 100 husby Brahmas. The steers, too, will be of the hump back variety while the broncs will be picked from a herd of regular rodeo buckers.

The rodeo will require 20 steers and an equal number of wild horses. A herd of 50 cows and calves to be used in the wild cow milking and calf belling events will come from the ranch of Mrs. Minnie Smith north of here.

The stock was selected by a committee composed of Tom Good, Jess Slaughter and Marion Edwards.

Only other committee appointed to date for the three-day affair will start soon on its task of advertising the rodeo. Bob Middleton, Ira Driver and J. L. Hudson are members of the group.

Full Extent Of 1936 Drouth To Be Known In Crop Report August 10th

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Official recording of the 1936 drouth as the worst in this country's history from the weather standpoint, drew from Secretary Wallace today a forecast that its economic effects might not be so severe as those of the 1934 disaster.

Until the government crop forecast is made public Aug. 10, Wallace said, it will be impossible to tell whether the present drouth is more serious in its effects than the one of two years ago.

"While the weather has been worse than in 1934," he said, "we have definitely better crops of oats and hay, and recent rains which came at the last moment to help corn, may have some beneficial effect on late plantings."

"The balance between units of feed and livestock numbers is better than in 1934."

Order Delays Measuring Of County Land

Move Will Postpone Administration Of New Soil Program

Last minute instructions from state headquarters Thursday delayed the start of land measuring activities under the new federal soil program.

Ten crews of two men each under the direction of Albert Heckler, Luther, supervisor of the work were ready to attack the job of measuring every piece of cultivated land in the program in Howard county when the postponement was ordered.

Meetings To Go On

Although the ruling delayed administration of the new program to some extent, County Agent O. P. Griffin continued on a series of 12 community meetings explaining the soil conservation and building objectives of the government. Joe E. Clayton, U. S. bureau of entomology, supervisor of a campaign in this district to control the screw worm, was accompanying the agent.

Schedule

The series was opened Wednesday with meetings at Vealmoor and Lomax. Thursday parleys were staged at Soash and Knott, and Friday at Highway at 4 p. m. and Elbow at 8 p. m.

The original schedule will be broken at this point to permit Griffin to take his 4-H club boys to Dallas for a Centennial trip. They will be resumed Aug. 17 at 4 p. m. in Moore school, and at 8 p. m. the same day at Center Point. On Aug. 18 Comaha will have a meeting at 4 p. m., and Morgan at 8 p. m. The series will be completed on Aug. 19 at 4 p. m. in Gay Hill and at 8 p. m. in Vincent.

Labor Votes Suspension Of 10 Unions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor's executive council Wednesday voted to suspend 10 unions now in the committee for industrial organization unless they withdraw from that group within 30 days.

Otherwise, the council decided, the unions representing more than 1,000,000 workers will be suspended indefinitely.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and leader of the industrial organization committee, immediately retorted.

"We will not disband the committee for industrial organization. The decision of the executive council will not change the policy of the C. I. O., nor will it have any effect upon the organizing activities of the committee."

Labor Split Is Seen The unions affected by the suspension order are: United Mine Workers of America, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Oil Field, Gas Well and Refinery Workers of America, International Union of Mine Mill and Smelter Workers, International Ladies' Garment Workers, United Textile Workers of America, Federation of Flat Glass Workers, United Automobile Workers, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, and the United Rubber Workers.

In view of the council's action and the Lewis answer, many observers felt that the American labor movement would be split into two warring groups before Labor Day, with the industrial group, perhaps competing against the A. F. O. L. in some fields.

School Opens At Vealmoor

All Nine-Month Schools In County To Start On September 7

Vealmoor Monday became the first rural school in the county to open its doors. School will be turned out for several weeks as soon as the cotton harvest begins.

Miss Anne Martin, county superintendent, said that all nine-month schools would start September 7 and others at different dates. The only regulation is that the nine-month school get in 15 weeks before Christmas and the others 11 weeks.

Three teachers in rural schools have accepted positions elsewhere. Doris B. Turner of Foran has resigned her post to take over third grade teaching duties in Iran.

Miss Marie Cook, who taught at the Moore school in 1934, will teach the fourth grade in Iran. Miss Irene Gray, teacher at the Green Valley school, has resigned to accept a position in Washington, D. C.

Justice Dept. Opens Campaign On Trusts

Cases Similar To That Against Oil Firms Foreseen

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (UP)—With most of the nation's major oil companies and their officials already under indictment, the department of justice's anti-trust division today appeared to be in the midst of a well organized trust-busting campaign.

The anti-trust division's lawyer-investigators have been gathering material in several similar cases for some time.

Most of the investigations have been secret. One major investigation revealed has been into alleged collusive and identical bidding on government contracts.

Criminal Charges The indictments against petroleum industry leaders, handed down by a Madison, Wis. federal grand jury, brought criminal charges instead of civil complaints, a rather unusual procedure in anti-trust cases.

The 23 petroleum companies, three trade journals, and 58 individuals named in the indictments were charged with having conspired to fix spot market gasoline prices at artificially high levels and thus force distributors in 10 mid-western states to pay abnormally high prices.

The indictments, brought under section one of the Sherman act, included Henry Dawes, brother of former vice-president Charles G. Dawes, Standard Oil company of Indiana, Gulf Oil corporation, Pure Oil Co., Shell Oil Co., Sinclair Refining Co., Texas Co., Cities Service Co., and Socony-Vacuum Co. Conviction would carry maximum penalty of $5,000 fine and imprisonment for one year.

Important Action The case promised to become one of the most important anti-trust actions ever undertaken by the government. Total assets of those indicted probably amount to several times as much as any previous group taken to task by the government in a single anti-trust case.

Officials said several of the major companies have property and holdings throughout the world, and the personal fortunes of the 58 individuals alone would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Officials would not comment on progress in the investigation of collusive bidding on government purchases, but it was understood considerable evidence had been gathered which tended to show collusion between companies with several individual industries.

The investigation was being made at the direct request of President Roosevelt, who cooperated with the justice department by asking department heads to go through their files and report all instances of identical bidding.

65 Texas House Seats To Be Filled In August Primary

AUSTIN, Aug. 6 (AP)—An unofficial compilation here today indicated that democratic nominees for 65 of the 150 seats in the state house of representatives would be selected in the runoff primary August 22.

Sixty-one incumbents and 24 new members were nominated in the first primary. Thirty-one incumbents were forced into runoffs, and in the remaining 34 runoffs neither candidate now is a member of the legislature.

Only five state senate seats will be filled in the second primary. The number was reduced from six when Rep. J. B. Ford of McGregor withdrew from the race against Dr. William R. Newton of Cameron, who was high man in the first primary.

State Senators John S. Redditt of Lufkin and Albert Stone of Brenham have runoff contests. Incumbents are not candidates in the other three races.

Ship Plunges To Earth Soon After Takeoff

Location Of Wreckage Delayed; Cause Of Crash Up Not Determined

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6 (AP)—Eight persons aboard a Chicago-Southern airliner were killed in an unexplained crash near the St. Louis airport last night. The wreckage was found today strewn through a field.

Ralph L. Sharp, at a farm near the scene of the crash, said he saw the plane bank steeply and turn back toward the airport from which it had taken off a few minutes before, en route from New Orleans to Chicago. He said he heard the crash a few minutes later.

Instruments Checked

Instruments on the plane, found intact, were taken for study by investigators.

Searchers found the bodies of Pilot Carl Zier of Chicago and Co-pilot Russell Mossman of New Orleans, with their arms locked about each other. Bodies of passengers, badly mangled, were scattered about the fuselage.

Isolation of the scene prevented crew from immediately locating the plane.

In "Perfect Condition"

Department of commerce investigators examined the wreckage but made no statement. Carleton Putnam, president of the line, said the ship was checked at St. Louis and found to be in "perfect condition."

"It was one of those things that can't happen, but did," he said.

H. R. Moore, flight superintendent of the lines at St. Louis, reported the plane did not answer a radio call at 10:02 p. m., seven minutes after taking off. Attempts to call the ship through Chicago failed.

Dist. Governor Talks To Club

Kiwanis Objectives Cited In Address By Texas-Oklahoma Chief

Big Spring Kiwanians were urged to carry forward those principles outlined in the objectives of Kiwanis International, by M. E. Batten of Enid, Okla., district governor of the Kiwanis of Texas-Oklahoma district, who addressed the local unit at its weekly luncheon session Thursday.

Batten, accompanied by his son, John, is on a tour of his district, and included an official visit to the Big Spring club on his itinerary. He came here after a night session at Lubbock. Batten has visited several clubs in West Texas, and still has much traveling to do, since his district is the largest, in point of area, in Kiwanis International. There are 107 clubs in the two states, with approximately 5,000 members.

Speaking informally and brightening his talk with humorous anecdotes the Oklahoma stressed the fact that Kiwanians should endeavor to mold public opinion in the creating and maintaining of higher ideals in righteousness, patriotism and neighborliness. "It is well that we hold to such ideals ourselves," he said, "but it is better that we lead in encouraging others to follow the same principles."

Batten urged attendance from Big Spring at the forthcoming district convention to be held in Muskogee, Okla. Following the luncheon he remained for a conference with local members on various topics of Kiwanis work.

The program was in charge of Dr. W. B. Hardy. Mr. and Mrs. Ira M. Powell gave three popular musical selections, "Red Sails in the Sunset," "Prairie Moon," and "The Beautiful Lady in Blue."

Guests included Stirling Wooten of Abilene, J. D. Fitzgerald of Sioux City, Ia., Lloyd Crossin of Colorado, E. V. Spence and Elmo Wasson.

High Schools Told To Face Changing Era

Yale Education Chairman Warns Of Increased Responsibilities

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 8 (UP)—The American people desire not the limitation nor the rejection, but the fulfillment of the ideal of universal free public high school education, according to Dr. Clyde H. Hill, chairman of the department of education at Yale university.

To be sure, Dr. Hill says, a minority group of large taxpayers would not support any kind of universal secondary education at public expense.

The really strong social forces which are operating to bring about universal secondary education will make the abortive efforts of vested groups to impose tuition upon high school students appear as mere flashes in the pan, Dr. Hill declares.

Discussing the subject of "The American High School, A Public Institution," Dr. Hill declared in an interview here that the high school even though universal, will still be ineffective unless its program be organized around the study of current and predictably near-future social problems in which there is common interest.

Old Subjects To Stay

"Without doubt, geometry, ancient history, physics, literature and all the rest of the traditional subjects will have their place, but only as they relate themselves directly and dynamically to the interpretation, the comprehension and the ever-varying adjustments of social living," Dr. Hill asserts.

"It is certainly the responsibility of the high school to impart the stores of knowledge accumulated by civilization; but it is equally certain that it has also the greater responsibility to help the student interpret this knowledge in terms of his own living in a new social order, a changing order that always will be new.

"It is not so much a change of matter as one of emphasis that is demanded. To give such help, account must be taken of the varying needs and abilities and capacities of individual students in school and elsewhere, and it must be recognized that the aim for some is merely to promote the physical well-being of themselves and their families, and thereby the prolongation and enrichment of their lives while developing such understanding of the evolution of race and national growth, of the bases of social understanding and political life, and of the social values of group and individual morality as they are capable of acquiring. For others who give promise of becoming leaders in the continual process of social reconstruction, another aim of incalculable social importance is their guidance and development to that end.

More Teaching Skill Needed

"Teachers in the more advanced type high schools will have to be educated in a very real sense. While a high degree of specialized knowledge will be essential and teaching skill will be imperative, broad general education will be indispensable. Specialization will be projected against just the type of broad integration sought for the students. Departmentalization as it now exists makes it easily possible for ignorant specialists to get by."

"High school teachers must be generally educated before pursuing their specialties. With such a program the selection of competent education, according to Dr. Clyde H. Hill, chairman of the department of education at Yale university.

France May Give Chapel To Reward Rockefeller For His Beneficence

PARIS, Aug. 6. (UP)—The French government is considering presenting a 15th Century Gothic chapel to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as a gesture of gratitude for his donations to France for the restoration of the Chateau de Versailles, the Courrousel Arch in the Tuileries Gardens and other monuments in Paris.

The historic chapel in question is situated in the village of Chauvirey-le-Chatel. It was built in 1434 under Charles the Bold to shelter a hunting horn which is believed to have belonged to Saint Hubert. The horn is now a part of the famous Wallace collection in London.

Before the Chapel of Saint Hubert can be presented to Rockefeller to be reerected in the Metropolitan Museum in New York, it will be necessary to pass a law permitting the chapel to be removed from French soil. A bill to this effect has been drafted and will be presented to the chamber of deputies and the senate before the summer closing of parliament.

Another difficulty to be surmounted is the resentment of the loyal citizens of Chauvirey-le-Chatel, who want to keep their 15th Century chapel in its natural surroundings. The citizens argue that their region of France—the Haute Saone department—is not rich in historical monuments, and that they should not be robbed of their treasure. They are grateful to Rockefeller's generosity, but feel that the French government might offer a chapel from another region to the United States.

The 500-year-old chapel was classed as a public monument in 1926 after it had been bought by a Paris antique dealer, who wanted to ship it to the United States. One of the directors of the Beaux Arts school explained that the French government repeatedly had made formal promises to transfer the chapel to the United States, but is loath to give up such a valuable historic treasure. It is proposed that the bill to be passed by parliament will authorize the shipment of the chapel to the New York museum, but stipulate that the chapel remains a French possession on American soil.

Accused Dog Gets Sentence

BROCKPORT, N. J., Aug. 6. (UP) A magistrate who owns a dog himself Wednesday, spared the life of Idaho, a tawny mongrel accused of drowning a boy, but "sentenced" him to 26 months confinement.

Justice of the Peace Homer D. Benedict's decision brought 300 courtroom spectators to their feet cheering. However, the court in the next breath ordered Brockport police to kill Idaho on sight if he is found at large in the village during the period of confinement.

"After considering all the evidence in the case regarding Idaho's actions in the water which in my opinion are dangerous, I have decided to order the dog returned to his owner, Victor Fortune, to keep in confinement until Oct. 1, 1933," the court said.

"I know just how you feel. I have a dog myself," he said once, in a humorous way.

These women will take part on the program: Mrs. Ed J. Carpenter, Vincent; Mrs. Elrom Reid, R-Bar; Mrs. Charles Koshler, Lomax; Mrs. W. F. Coates, Lomax; Mrs. W. O. Wooten, Fairview; Mrs. Ralph Barnett, Overton; Mrs. J. E. Rowe, Coahoma; Mrs. Clarence McMurry, Coahoma; Mrs. Herbert Fletcher, Center Point; Miss Anna Haney, Luther; Mrs. C. B. Harland, Highway; Miss Mary Brown, Vincent; and Miss Hattie Marie Guffey, Vincent.

The recreation committee is composed of Mrs. W. H. Ward of Fairview, Mrs. Duke Lipscomb of Elbow and Miss Madelyn Smith of Moore.

Mrs. Ed Carpenter, Mrs. Herbert Fletcher and Mrs. C. B. Harland are on the program committee. Mrs. Wiley Davis is chairman of the lunch committee.

Edgar Sunningham of Tyler is visiting his sister, Mrs. Stephen Rowe and his brother, Calvin Cunningham, who is convalescing at a local hospital.

Mrs. Breeze broke down and wept. Then she exclaimed: "The people of Brockport have fallen pretty low when they place a dog's life above that of a child."

education, according to Dr. Clyde H. Hill, chairman of the department of education at Yale university.

To be sure, Dr. Hill says, a minority group of large taxpayers would not support any kind of universal secondary education at public expense.

The really strong social forces which are operating to bring about universal secondary education will make the abortive efforts of vested groups to impose tuition upon high school students appear as mere flashes in the pan, Dr. Hill declares.

Discussing the subject of "The American High School, A Public Institution," Dr. Hill declared in an interview here that the high school even though universal, will still be ineffective unless its program be organized around the study of current and predictably near-future social problems in which there is common interest.

Old Subjects To Stay

"Without doubt, geometry, ancient history, physics, literature and all the rest of the traditional subjects will have their place, but only as they relate themselves directly and dynamically to the interpretation, the comprehension and the ever-varying adjustments of social living," Dr. Hill asserts.

"It is certainly the responsibility of the high school to impart the stores of knowledge accumulated by civilization; but it is equally certain that it has also the greater responsibility to help the student interpret this knowledge in terms of his own living in a new social order, a changing order that always will be new.

"It is not so much a change of matter as one of emphasis that is demanded. To give such help, account must be taken of the varying needs and abilities and capacities of individual students in school and elsewhere, and it must be recognized that the aim for some is merely to promote the physical well-being of themselves and their families, and thereby the prolongation and enrichment of their lives while developing such understanding of the evolution of race and national growth, of the bases of social understanding and political life, and of the social values of group and individual morality as they are capable of acquiring. For others who give promise of becoming leaders in the continual process of social reconstruction, another aim of incalculable social importance is their guidance and development to that end.

More Teaching Skill Needed

"Teachers in the more advanced type high schools will have to be educated in a very real sense. While a high degree of specialized knowledge will be essential and teaching skill will be imperative, broad general education will be indispensable. Specialization will be projected against just the type of broad integration sought for the students. Departmentalization as it now exists makes it easily possible for ignorant specialists to get by."

"High school teachers must be generally educated before pursuing their specialties. With such a program the selection of competent

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 8 pints a day and so get rid of more than 2 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

What Price Glory?—Youthful Aspirants Stand In Line For Chance At "Our Gang" Role

Youthful Big Spring congregated at the Settles hotel this morning full of hope, vim, vigor and vitality. Each curl was in place and bow ribbons were smooth. Strangely subdued little toughies squatted around the walls waiting their turn.

And not one cry was heard. Reason? Try-outs for the "Our Gang" comedy are being held in the hotel ballroom and Melton Barker, the director, was holding the upper hand.

Ranging in age from three to 12 the number of applicants had been trimmed down from 700 to 110 this morning. And what a job that is! Some are chubby and 'cute,' others some are chubbier and 'cute,' others and lots of ambition. Some have cherubic faces and timid voices—some have booming voices and are minus the beauty—but the main thing is bound to be personality and out of 700 hundred there should be several with the wanted appeal and each mother is hoping her offspring will be chosen. But when "little angel" goes through his routine mother isn't there to coach him. Director Barker dismisses the

There are blondes, brunettes, curly and red heads. Straight, curly, natural and otherwise—between and undecided hair. Freckled faces, and sun tanned bodies—bare feet and expensively shod ones. Bashful children among those who wouldn't blink at a blast. A colorful show of bright little faces with a sad looking sleepy-eyed one showing every so often which implies he is thinking "What Price Glory?"

JOHN GARNER AND TEXAS

Texas did herself honor at the same time she honored John Nance Garner in Dallas Wednesday, for Texas owes much to Garner's service in congress and as vice president of the United States.

Still a plain man of the people, John Garner has received the respect of leaders of both political parties because he is a man who has kept faith with his party and with the people. While the republicans have often been obstructed and often defeated in their efforts to enact legislation not in accordance with democratic principles or that were not in the interest of the people, and often that obstruction or defeat was due to John Garner's knowledge of political practice, even the republicans have never charged seriously that he was unfair.

Garner is a good fighter, one who believes in action rather than in conversation. Reared on a farm, he grew to manhood with the knowledge that the things a man gets in the world that are worthwhile are the things for which he works; and that has been his guiding spirit all his life. He has worked, first for the people whom he represented in congress, and incidentally for himself, and through it all has so conducted himself that never a breath of scandal, personal or political, has been heard.

This country needs more politicians of the Garner type—more men who will be content to work methodically and continually for the advancement of all the people and all the interests rather than for a few. That is the type of statesmanship that marks the useful man in any legislative body and that is the kind John Garner has been delivering to the people of Texas and of the nation all these years. It is people of Texas and of the nation all these years. It is and appreciation of him aside from electing him to office.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DEWE FEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—When vivacious John Hamilton came to Washington just after being made chairman of the republican national committee, he outlined to sagacious Senator McNary of Oregon an elaborate campaign in which he, personally, would speak in every state in the union.

McNary listened carefully, finally said: "But don't forget, John, you're not the candidate." Now, according to republican leaders returning from Topeka, this advice has been taken up by the London "kitchen cabinet." They have put a muffer on Hamilton's locusty.

London's kitchen cabinet consists of Roy Roberts, managing editor of The Kansas City Star; Oscar Stauffer, college classmate and Kansas newspaper owner; Federal Judge George T. McDermott; and Lacey Haynes, Kansas correspondent of The Kansas City Star.

According to returning GOP chiefs, these intimate advisers held a council of war the day after the acceptance speech. Hamilton was present.

During this meeting Hamilton was informed, in a tactful but firm manner, that he was doing too much orating, and that it was the unanimous opinion of the group he could be more effective by concentrating on organization. Hamilton readily accepted this advice, agreed to do less stump spiling.

Unswelled Head
Newspapermen who have visited Alf Landon both before his nomination and after, report that his selection as republican presidential standard-bearer has not necessitated a change in the size of his hat.

War Clouds
Not for a good many months have U. S. foreign experts been so worried about the situation in Europe. Some of the confidential cabinet American ambassadors are sending back indicate that Europe is skirting very near the brink of war.

Even before the crash of the three Italian planes bearing arms to the Spanish nazi-monarchists, there was direct evidence that Germany had been supplying the rebels with airplanes and munitions.

France, on the opposite side, had been supplying airplanes to the Spanish popular front government, despite an official decision to the contrary.

Thus the two bitterest enemies in Europe—France and Germany—appear to be waging indirect war on each other on Spanish soil, with Italy siding with nazi Germany.

Both Hitler and Mussolini are determined not to have two popular front governments—France and Spain—as their immediate neighbors. And they appear willing to go to almost any length, even war, to prevent it.

Cordell And Croquet
Secretary of State Hull was playing croquet, his favorite sport, late the other Sunday afternoon, and was interrupted three times by transatlantic telephone calls from Spain.

Unusual
Hunter S. Marston, elegant ex-vice president of Bancamerica-Blair corporation, was being interrogated by David Schenker, government counsel in the securities and exchange commission's investigation of investment trusts.

"Now, Mr. Marston," demanded Schenker, "if the public puts $15,000,000 in a corporation and insiders only put in $10,000,000, don't you think the public is entitled to a 15-to-10 ratio of representation in the management of the company's affairs?"

"Well, uh, er. . . it would be unusual," Marston replied, smiling.

Housing Hypodermic
Secretary Ickes finally has got himself an A-1 chief for his housing division, one of the most important units in PWA.

Howard A. Grey, the man who is stepping up to this job, is the man who stepped down into the Chicago sewer on an inspection tour which saved the government quite a wad of money.

Grey was chief of PWA inspection at that time, warned Contractor S. A. Healey that his work was not going to pass. Healey, perhaps knowing the record of the Chicago sanitary district, shrugged his shoulders. But subsequently Grey held up the government pay check.

When local politicians brought pressure, Grey retaliated by seizing Healey's performance bond of $1,000,000. In the end, Healey sent his men back to dig the tunnel over again.

Grey once was manager of the Ryerson Steel company, and is a specialist in taking over semi-bankrupt companies and putting them on their feet.

When he took it over, PWA housing division was almost in that category. It is now assuming new life.

Merry-Go-Round
Women of the national capital republican club have turned down a horseback picture of Landon as a clubhouse decoration, because it shows a broad grin on the face of the candidate. Reason given is, "we have had enough of smiles."

Serving on the newly named Great Plains drouth committee is Albert L. Walthen of the Indian bureau, who says he once had a 640-acre ranch in western Kansas which is now "over in the next county" as a result of dust storms.

DALLAS, Aug. 6 (AP)—The lid was closed on Dallas gambling joints and saloons today following the slaying Monday of a night spot proprietor in gangland fashion. It was indicated efforts would be made by police and state authorities to prevent a return of widespread conditions which have prevailed for several months. Operators of numerous gambling games voluntarily shut their places and slot machine owners either hauled their machines in or locked them up. Law enforcement officials said gambling of all types must stop.

Texans Want PWA Money

Bitter Denunciation Of US Failure To Include State Voice

DALLAS, Aug. 6 (AP)—A resolution passed by officials of 120 Texas cities here yesterday asked that Texas be included in the state eligible for the $300,000,000 in national PWA unemployment relief funds.

Bitter opposition to the administration's failure to include Texas was voiced and resolutions passed asking PWA officials to alter specifications that only relief clients be eligible for PWA jobs and that all approved PWA projects be started by Oct. 1, 1936, reach a peak of activity by December 1 and be completed by Oct. 1, 1937.

Officials said 35,000 skilled and semi-skilled workers in Texas were jobless and destitute though not on relief rolls. New deal spokesmen had said Texas was not entitled to share the fund because no skilled laborers were in need.

Mayor Lawrence Santi of Mingo, keynote of the meeting, said he was an ardent supporter of President Roosevelt, "but he has some lieutenants who do not share his intelligence."

Sen. Tom Connally said the omission of Texas from eligible states was the result of a misunderstanding and that the president was obviously not aware of the situation.

The meeting named Wallace C. Reilly, Dallas; R. B. Stanford, Austin; Tom W. Cotton, Amarillo, and E. A. Wood, Austin, to carry the request to the president. Stanford is secretary of state and Wood, director of the Texas planning board.

Metcalfe Believes Legislative Bills Should Be Expedited

AUSTIN, Aug. 6—Former Rep. Penrose B. Metcalfe, just renominated to the Texas house, believes much of the present difficulty in getting general legislation attended to comes from the failure to observe the letter and spirit of the constitutional amendment which lengthened regular sessions from two to four months.

That amendment provides that all bills shall be introduced in the first 30 days of a session. It affords two ways to meet emergencies that arise after the first 30 days. The governor may present any subject by message during the session. Either house may permit the introduction of a bill by a four-fifths affirmative vote.

In practice, members help one another in introducing any bill at any time. Only a few highly controversial bills have ever been denied submission.

Metcalfe believes if this amendment were strictly observed, the general legislation would be offered early, printed, given committee hearings, and moved to the house and senate calendars in ample time for consideration during the 120 days.

Representative Metcalfe is not an enthusiast on the question of a trial of the one-chamber system, but is returning to the house optimistic as to various proposals that will improve the legislative process.

MURDER TONIGHT

LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 23
THE CARD

"About a month or so ago I got a scrawl from Burdett saying 'would I go and see him about some damage to the fences on his farm.' Mrs. Reeves said: 'Of course I went. He spun a long rambling yarn—as far as I could see there wasn't any damage at all really, but I wanted to humor him in case he had a grievance.

"I thought he acted a bit queerly then—you know what I mean—I suppose some men always are a bit queer with women, and sometimes the old ones are the worst; but it wasn't too bad, and I managed not to take any notice of it.

"Then last Saturday he asked me up there again and said it was about some Hunt business. I didn't quite like the sound of it, but we can't afford to fall out with him and so I went."

Mrs. Reeves stopped and glanced across at her husband as though seeking help in telling the next part of her story, but Reeves sat looking as black as thunder and said nothing.

"You went up there?" Hynton prompted.

"I went up there and, Inspector, it—it was horrible. I didn't know men could be quite so beastly. I got up and fled.

"When I got back home Pat and I were upset, and worried me till I told him about it all. He wanted to go up and have it out with old Burdett, but I wouldn't let him. He was in a towering rage and I was afraid of what he might do, so I begged him not to go.

"He spent all Sunday smoldering over it, and on Monday when we were out hunting suddenly said he couldn't stand it any longer and went back early to go up to the Court. The next thing we heard about Arthur Burdett was that he was dead. Of course it was a terrible shock to us both; we talked it over that night when everyone had gone and decided not to say anything about it.

"But when you came on the scene Pat said he wouldn't be happy till he had gone and told you about his visit.

"So on Wednesday Pat went and told you he had been, but I made him promise not to say why. I was so afraid it would all come out at the inquest and I simply couldn't face that. Ever since then I have been scared stiff lest you should suspect Pat of killing him and now, thank God, you know the whole thing."

Reeves chimed in, deliberately holding himself in reserve and speaking quite reasonably.

"You may not believe it, Inspector, but that's all gospel truth. I admit I wasn't very polite when I called on you at the Hoops, and I'm sorry, but you can guess what I was feeling like."

Kingsley Hynton contemplated his long cigar for a minute in silence.

"What were you doing at half past two on Monday afternoon, Mrs. Reeves?" he asked watching the woman closely with his penetrating and rather frightening eyes.

"At half past two?" Hynton said. "Are you quite sure, Mrs. Reeves, that you weren't at the Luxor Salon having your hair done?"

"At the Luxor—" Mrs. Reeves laughed. "It's quite true that I had an appointment there for half past two on Monday," she said, "though

"I don't know how you knew it—" "Never mind how I know. You had the appointment?" "Yes."

"And didn't keep it?" "No. I went on Friday instead. I rang them up on Friday morning and asked if they could possibly change my appointment and give it to somebody else, and after a bit of bother they said they could."

"Who went in your place on Monday?" "I honestly can't tell you that. I didn't worry about it, all I wanted to do was to get another time for myself."

Hynton nodded and rose from his chair.

"I wish you'd told me all this on Wednesday, Captain Reeves," he said, "it might have saved me a lot of trouble, and we find out in the end your know."

Somehow in his hot nature the Captain found the grace to apologize.

"I'm sorry that I didn't, Inspector. Probably it would have been best, but I think you'll agree it was a pretty busy business to have your wife mixed up in."

Hynton took his leave and walked quickly down the dark drive, thinking hard. Temporarily, at least, he was prepared to transfer the Reeves and Andrew Lundale from his Probables list to the Possibles.

What he wanted to do now was to find out who it was who had her hair done in the Luxor at half past two on Monday, and the sooner he got into Morechester to make enquiries in person the better pleased he would be.

"He hadn't gone a hundred yards along the road before a car, overtaking him, slowed down and stopped.

"When he drew level a cheerful voice called out, 'How far are you going?'"

"Enderton would help me, but I'm really bound for Morechester."

"I'm going through Morechester, jump in."

The Inspector climbed in beside the driver without delay, and sat back in the comfortable seat thanking his lucky stars.

The Good Samaritan of the road turned out to be a character. In less than five minutes he had gratuitously contributed a good deal of his life history and two more than racy stories to the conversation.

As they passed through Enderton the headlights showed up a tattered man figure standing by the roadside and waving a forlorn hope of an arm. The young man needed to enjoy giving people lifts (and indeed he did, to be alone was damnation to him).

"What's the matter with you, Weary Willy?" he called out as the car stopped.

"Have ye got room for a poor old man in the back, sir?" the figure asked in the school of whines of the professional tramp and beggar.

"Poor old man be damned. With all the walking you do I'll bet you're a darned sight healthier than I am; and you've probably got hundreds of pounds sewn up in your pants."

"My God, guvnor, I wish I 'ad."

"Hop in."

"Hop is hardly an accurate description of the tramp's method of introducing his amazing collection of coats and wraps and packages into the car.

After a considerable monologue by the driver the car slowed and stopped again, in obedience to an upraised but in doubtful entreaty, but in assured command. A young constable, note book in hand, barred the way.

"January the twenty-third," the young man groaned, somewhat to Hynton's mystification.

The young constable stuck his head through the side window.

"Sorry to trouble you, sir," he said mechanically, "just a matter of checking the new licenses, seeing they're all in order."

"That's all right," the young man answered affably; "but don't let us waste your time."

The zealous policeman brought his electric torch into operation and was back again in a minute with a different quality in his voice.

"I'm afraid this 'ere won't do, sir," he said, "this ends December 31, 1935. 'Ave you got the new one, sir?"

"The new one? I can't say that I have."

"I'm afraid I shall 'ave to 'ave your name and address, sir."

"How the law does prey on motorists," the young man said with Terror. "Charles Henry Fanshawe, Marden House, Over Green, Sussex, England, land of freedom."

The constable poked himself well into the dimly lit interior of the car the better to get all this down in his sager notebook.

"And you, sir?" he asked Hynton.

"George Baker, 14 Marylebone Street, London."

"And in the back," the young man prompted, "we have Exhausted Robert of The Haystack, Under the Sky, Everywhere."

In no wise deterred the constable turned his attention for a moment to the back of the car.

"There was a considerable flutter as he examined the tramp, rather more carefully than there seemed any purpose in doing. The latter seemed torn between violent protest and craven fear.

"Did you find any bathing beauties?" asked Fanshawe in as mer-

U. S. Winning Battle On 'Rum Row,' Smugglers Go Way Of Speak-Easy

A coast guard patrol boat trails an oil screw vessel of the modern high-powered type used for liquor smuggling. Until recently this scene, off Nantucket lightship in the Atlantic, was not uncommon.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 (AP)—Two sails shot up the masts of a schooner in the azure-blue harbor of a little Mexican island. Wind belled her sails and she nosed north.

That afternoon coast guard headquarters in Washington was messaged that the "George and Earl" was headed toward American ports. And the "George and Earl" was on the coast guard's black list of rum-runners.

For days messages came in from coast guard cutters and planes that she had been sighted, still going north. Then she was lost.

Finally the New York coast guard was warned she was headed into that harbor. They searched the miles of New York wharves, and finally custom agents spotted her sliding up the East river. She was boarded and seized. She held

AUSTIN, Aug. 6 (AP)—Rep. R. W. Calvert of Hillsboro will likely announce his candidacy for speaker of the 45th legislature next week. He has been contemplating the race for several months, and recently reported "it looks too good not to get going."

Calvert, a second-term member, got into the race a few days before the convening of the 44th legislature, opposing Coke Stevenson, who sought a second term. He ran only a few votes behind Stevenson, in a remarkable race.

So far there are two announced candidates, R. Emmett Morse of Houston and Homer L. Leonard of McAllen. Rep. Bullock Hyder of Denton is regarded as a possible entrant.

Iowa For Landon Candidate Told By GOP Leaders

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 6 (AP)—Three republican chieftains from Iowa told Gov. Alf Landon today that he would carry their state in the presidential election and that the trend to the GOP ticket was gaining throughout the farm belt.

Sen. Lester J. Dickinson, gubernatorial Candidate George Wilson and senatorial Candidate Berry Halden gave the republican nominee reasons why they believed the farm states—which many party strategists believe will prove decisive in the election—will swing to the Landon ranks in November.

"Crop curtailment and the reciprocity treaty policy have aroused resentment against the present administration as far as the farmers are concerned," Dickinson remarked as he stepped out of a conference in Landon's office. "Our ranks are united in Iowa and I think we've got a real drift back to republicanism."

Halden said the election was not "in the bag for Jim Farley" and Wilson reported consistent gains in efforts to win back the support of 184,000 farmers who voted for President Roosevelt in 1932.

COUGHLIN TAKES WAGES ROYAL OAK, Mich., Aug. 6 (AP)—Father Charles E. Coughlin today accepted the offer of a Providence, R. I., business man to cover a $25,000 wage that Rep. William Lemke will poll a greater presidential vote in Rhode Island than Gov. Alf M. Landon, the republican nominee.

RELIEF CUT OFF FOR NEEDEY BEXAR FOLK

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 6 (AP)—Federal relief for some 4,500 needy families in Bexar county was cut off today as H. K. McBeth, district administrator for the Texas Relief Commission, ordered the WPA warehouses, source of $20,000 worth of food, clothing and other commodities distributed every month, closed indefinitely.

This action, McBeth explained, was forced upon him by the failure of the Bexar county commissioners to set up an agency to direct the distribution and certify applicants, which would comply with federal and state requirements.

Less than a month after publication, Margaret Mitchell's first novel, "Gone With the Wind," passed the 200,000 mark.

Del Rio Man Sighted For Highway Job

Some Think Stanford Payne Due To Be Martin's Successor

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—It now appears the name of the new Texas highway commissioner, to be appointed by Gov. James V. Allred soon, can be deduced on the basis of the best probability.

Rep. Stanford Payne of Del Rio is the man, according to the best guess that may be made now.

Governor Allred will name a successor to Commissioner D. K. Martin of San Antonio by February 15. When the appointment is made, it will make a majority of Allred appointees on the commission, with Member John Wood, appointed by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, the senior member.

The new appointee will come out of Southwest Texas. Other members are from North Texas and East Texas.

Representative Payne has just been elected, unopposed, to a second term in the house. He is a business man. He was one of the sponsors of the first Allred-for-Governor club two years ago, and chairman of the group which gave the reception at which Allred's candidacy was announced. He introduced Allred at the opening of the governor's first campaign. This year, Payne spent the entire campaign period over the state in working and speaking on behalf of Governor Allred.

Representative Payne is known to stand high in the governor's estimation.

A factor which appeared strongly favorable to his appointment was that some of Governor Allred's strongest supporters in San Antonio, home of the retiring member of the commission, were the first to suggest Payne's availability for highway commissioner. That indicated they would not press any to have Martin's successor come from that city.

Governor Allred's clear majority over four opponents was general throughout the state, but the livestock section, extending all the way to the border, generally gave him about 2 to 1 over the combined support of the rest of the field.

The member of the highway commission to be appointed by February 15 will be the first since the overlapping board was created who will not be designated chairman, since he will be the first named by the same governor who already had appointed a chairman. Harry Hines of Wichita Falls has four years more as member, and will be chairman until some incoming governor designates another.

Women Start Vote Rallies In New York
Campaign Directed Solely To Winning Support Of Housewives

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 6. (UP)—Republican and democratic women leaders have initiated an intensive campaign throughout New York state to place their presidential and gubernatorial preferences in the forefront preparatory to the November elections.

From various sections come reports of vigorous drives by women political leaders to line up their forces. Housewives are being urged, as never before, to interest themselves in politics.

Although the election still is months away, women leaders anticipate one of the greatest excursions from the kitchen to the polls in the history of the Empire state.

Rep. William Lemke's entrance into the presidential race as a candidate of the new Union party undoubtedly will bolster the aggregate vote.

Here, in President Roosevelt's home state, republicans are calling upon anti-new deal democrats to join their forces in support of the Landon-Knox ticket.

Democratic women leaders are appealing for united support for the new deal.

While the political pot is kept bubbling by the major parties, the Union party is receiving widespread support in the state from Father Charles E. Coughlin, Dr. Francis E. Townsend, and the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, leader of the Share-Our-Wealth movement.

The three addressed New York state gatherings in the latter part of July and Dr. Townsend, who announced, "I am going to vote for Lemke," returns again this month to tour the western part of the state.

A certificate of incorporation for the Union party has been filed with the secretary of state. The party now must file a nominating petition to place Lemke on the presidential ballot. Under state law the petition must bear at least 25,000 names with at least 50 from each county.

Mrs. Daniel O'Day, vice-chairman of the democratic state committee, presided over the first meeting in upstate New York several days ago, to outline campaign plans for the support of President Roosevelt and Governor Herbert H. Lehman.

Republican women from throughout the state will assemble at various update meetings Aug. 11-12, to hear Mrs. William Hoyel, assistant to John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the republican national committee; Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, New York state vice-chairman, and Mrs. Natalie Couch, eastern states director of women's campaign activities.

Electric Eye To Count Cars
New Traffic Compiling Device To Be Shown At Fort Worth

AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—An "electric eye" traffic counter, recently developed by the U. S. bureau of public roads for use in state-wide traffic surveys, will have its first exhibition in Texas next week at the Texas Motor Transportation association convention in Fort Worth, D. K. Shepard of the state highway commission announced today.

The automatic counter will be on exhibit at the Texas hotel in Fort Worth Aug. 13-14-15, Shepard said. A number of the machines will be used in the statewide traffic survey which the state highway commission and the U. S. bureau of public roads will begin this month, Shepard announced.

The automatic counters will provide a continuous record of traffic by hours of the day at any point. They will count passing vehicles without counting pedestrians.

This is accomplished by two parallel beams of light directed across the roadway on photoelectric cells. When a passing vehicle interrupts both beams, the counting machine makes a record of it.

A pedestrian will interrupt only one beam at a time, and therefore will not be counted.

The counters will be placed at a number of strategic points on Texas highways in order to give highway officials an exact picture of the density of traffic at any chosen point. This procedure will eliminate guess-work in determining the density of highway traffic, Shepard said.

Thompson To Open Campaign Saturday With Talk At Waco

AUSTIN, Aug. 6 (UP)—Col Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the railroad commission, announced today that he will open his run-off campaign for reelection at Waco Saturday night at 8 o'clock with an address on the courthouse square.

Thompson cancelled a previous opening engagement scheduled for Friday night at Denton, due to the pressure of official business. He left Austin to hold a hearing on the Reddosa oil field at Jefferson.

A speaking engagement will be arranged later at Denton, he said. "I will discuss some of the criticisms that have been leveled at myself and the work of the railroad commission at Waco," Thompson said, "and I expect to discuss the sponsorship of my opposition and tell the voters some facts about the cause of this opposition."

Thompson will face Frank Morris of Dallas in his run-off election. He lacked 14,000 votes of polling a clear majority vote over a field of four opponents in the July primary.
