Many Towns Plan Part In Centennial

Celebrations New Year's Day Mark Opening Of Birthday Year

DALLAS, Dec. 19.-Plans for the observance of Texas' Centennial year in 1936 are becoming stateto the calendar of official events being compiled here by Centenniai officials. More than 25 cities and towns in all parts of the state definitely are planning Centennial year participation at this time

While the central Centennial ex position in Dallas is being developed on a scale which givals the finest fairs in history, these other celebrations are planned to commemorate the history and progress of their sections so extensively that the Texas Centennial is materializing as a state-wide project blanketing all Texas, reflecting the fascluating history of Texas and its manifold achievements for 100

The calendar includes two celebrations for New Year's day. They are the Sun carnival at El Paso and an Indian tribal ceremony at Livingston in Polk county. will be the Washington's birthday celebration at Laredo. San Antonio will open an extensive program on March 2, continuing through April 21, and Houston plans three big projects with a ten-day festival, culminating April 21, as the main observance.

Fort Worth, cattle industry center, will increase its annual Southwestern exposition and Fat Stock showeto mammoth proportions as a Centennial event. Corpus Christi, South Texas port city, will stage a water pageant as the feature of a three day historical celebration on June 11, 12, 13. Huntsville will celebrate March 2 and historic San Augustine will participate in the year's events.
West Texas will be the scene of numerous Centennial year festivals. Midland is planning a great West Texas fair and rodeo late in June. Texas west of the Pecos has announced plans for a section-wide celebration, culminating in a Centennial exposition at Fort Davis. Fort Stockton is planning a water carnival.

In Austin the state university will take the lead in sponsoring a diversified and interesting exposiion. Throughout the state comvents will be planned with Cenennial emphasis. Pageants and grograms planned by schools and lubs will further the interest in lentennial year.
