$50,343 Suit Is Filed Here

Texas Electric Service Company Sued By Gordon Buchanan

Damages aggregating $50,343.00 were asked of the Texas Electric Service company in a suit filed Wednesday with District Clerk Hugh Dubberly.

Gordon Buchanan, 41, well known farmer in northern eastern Howard county, became plaintiff in the litigation.

He alleges in his original petition that negligence of an agent of the Texas Electric Service company was responsible for his having received injuries, which his petition terms permanent, May 5, 1933.

Buchanan was victim of an accident in which a detached trailer bearing three 40 feet timber poles crashed into a wagon in which Buchanan was driving.

The plaintiff alleges that at the time he was driving a span of mules west and seeing a truck approaching, pulled out of the regular driving lane to the right.

In crossing a dip, the petition continues, the trailer came uncoupled from the truck and the trailer, poles intact, tumbled over the road eastward, finally veering into the wagon.

Buchanan charges he was hurled a distance of twenty feet and that the timber rolled over him causing permanent head, neck, arms, body, nervous back and organic injuries.

Plaintiff's petition declares that the defendant was negligent in that the truck and trailer were being propelled at an excessive rate of speed, the length and load of the cargo exceeded that allowed by statutes, that the load was improperly distributed on the trailer, that the agent of the company did not exercise ordinary care in driving the truck, that the trailer was insecurely fastened and that the driver from the truck to trailer exceeded length allowed by law.

The mishap occurred 11 miles north east of Big Spring on the old "upper Colorado" road.

Buchanan also included hospital and medical claims as well as a damage claim for a destroyed wagon.

James T. Brooks is attorney for the plaintiff, who alleges that his earning capacity has been totally impaired if not destroyed.

Grain Mill Explosion Is Fatal To One

Half Million Damage Done To Wichita Mill & Elevator Company

WICHITA FALLS—One was burned fatally, three others were injured and $500,000 damage resulted from a dust explosion which wrecked one unit of the Wichita Mill and Elevator company.

Two sharp detonations were followed by leaping sheets of yellow flame which tumbled the reinforced steel and concrete elevator unit into crumbled ruins.

The blasts came at 1:15 p. m. as employees were returning to their posts—a condition which officials of the company said probably prevented a larger injury list.

W. W. (Bill) Prichard, 39, died Tuesday night in a hospital. He was caught on the "cleaner" on the second floor of the unit, technically termed a "head-house". His clothing was burned from his body.

Fellow workmen reached him and took him to an ambulance.

Joe Snelgrove was burned about the face and hands when the blast tumbled the upper portions of the head-house down on a scaling room where he was working. The heavy steel framework of the room was regarded as having prevented him from being crushed. A steel angle-iron caught his left leg and trapped him until other workmen, led by Burley Fowler, worked more than an hour sawing and chiseling a small hole in the roof of the scaling room, through which Snelgrove climbed when the angle iron was cut away from his leg.

Phil Carrigan, working in the engine room, received a scalp laceration when the second blast hurled a steel window sash against his head, as he attempted to run from the room. C. C. Baird, sack-room employe, received numerous bruises and cuts about his head and face when he was knocked unconscious by a heavy steel partition door, which was blown down on him by the explosion.

Covered By Insurance Plans were being laid to continue the mill's operation without interruption. Officials said the loss was covered by insurance.

The blast was heard throughout the residential district of Wichita Falls and attracted thousands of spectators to the scene.

Watson Wires Assurance For Project Given

Date For Work To Start Is Not Yet Set By Officials

Hopes for airport improvements alternately buoyed and buffeted, rose again Wednesday with word from Washington that the project would be effected.

In the national capital on drought relief business, C. T. Watson took the case of the local airport before Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator.

Wednesday Watson wired that he had "been given full assurance that the Big Spring airport will be improved as petitioned for but no definite date has been set to begin work."

Application for airport improvements totaling $26,000 was made by this city. It was given approval by state and national officials of CWA provided the promises were leased for a period of five years by the municipal government.

After procrastinating for a month, the city and airport corporation reached an agreement whereby the former would lease.

The application was resubmitted but CWA funds for materials had been exhausted and the state department could not approve the proposed project.

Back in Washington again, Watson took the matter before Hopkins. Under the provisions of the application the improvements, which included construction of two paved runways, would in no wise invade the city financially.

Revision In Water Rates Is Proposed

Budget estimates for the fiscal year beginning April 1 will be made on the basis of a proposed revision in water rates.

City commissioners Tuesday evening, assembled in regular session, authorized the city manager to prepare the budget using as a basis for water revenues $1.50 per 2,000 gallons instead of the present rate of $2 for 3,000 gallons.

Such a reduction on water rates is purely problematical. Should it be found that the budget can be operated on the reduced rate, the suggested rate will be included when the budget goes to public hearing. Final action then rests on the commission's shoulders.

Water bills under the proposed rate would be issued as per the month of April.

Bid by J. B. Allred and company of Wichita Falls to audit the books of the City of Big Spring for the fiscal year ending March 31 was accepted by commissioners.

The Allred bid was for $160 dollars and more than $20 under the next lowest figure, submitted by Nolan C. Phillips, auditor of last year.

City Manager E. V. Spence was authorized by the commission to purchase a $2,174, 40 horse power, 400 gallon per minute pump. It will likely be a Pomona pump which has thus far given satisfactory service in sand wells.

First Major Setback For Roosevelt

Senate Votes Against Treaty With Canada For Waterways

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate Wednesday rejected the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty with Canada. The vote was for ratification 46 to 42 against, far short of the required two-thirds majority.

The vote administered the first major setback for the Roosevelt administration.

The president had urged ratification in two communications to the senate as a step toward opening the vast interior areas of the United States to ocean commerce, providing for cheap electricity for his own state New York, but opposition of a large group of democrats and republicans proved too strong.

Only a short while before the treaty vote the president said he would send the treaty back for reconsideration. He said the giant waterway is going to be built anyway and he feared failure of ratification would place the seaway entirely under Canadian control.

Vets Make Tests 1300 Head Cattle During First Day

WICHITA FALLS—Veterinarians carrying out a CWA project tested 1,300 head of cattle Monday on the first day of the work actually started in this county.

All dairy cattle, all range bulls and 10 per cent of the range cows are supposed to be tested. Persons who do not make arrangements to have their herds tested free at this time will be quarantined and must have their cattle tested at their own expense whenever they attempt to move them later. This is for the protection of the herds which will be accredited by the free testing and which may be shipped to any market without further tests.

Dr. L. I. Lucy of Wichita Falls is in charge of the project in this district. Veterinarians carrying on the work include Drs. W. A. Wilson, Charles Koberg, Sam Groves, O. W. Olson, E. J. Netherton, E. R. Jones and A. K. Kuttler. Dr. Kuttler is a representative of the federal agricultural department in the area of animal husbandry and is a supervisor for the project.

The British output of 15,022 books in 1933 was the highest on record with the exception of the 1930 production.

WASHINGTON BY GEORGE DURNO

Dir—When the senate banking committee, at the behest of Senator Ham Kean, of New Jersey, recently ordered production of all records bearing on short sales in aviation stock just prior to February 9, quite a few Republicans had gleeful visions of a fishing expedition that would land a couple of whales.

The rumor was bouncing all over Washington that James Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, and Postmaster General Farley had profited by anticipating White House cancellation of air mail contracts.

Prosecutor Pecora was instructed to let the chips lie where they fell—and a terrific amount of G. O. P. breath was held against the blow-off.

Your Washington reporter first caught up about two weeks ago with the report that high Democrats were cashing in on inside information.

A Republican Congressman from a seaboard state confided at a dinner party that he had "straight dope" Jim Roosevelt was short on aviation stock.

Several days later another Republican who commanded respect in his party councils repeated the rumor. He made it clear, however, the dirt had been dished by Massachusetts Democrats of the old Al Smith faction.

Within 24 hours from the second "revelation," Senator Kean's resolution was before the Stock Market committee demanding identity of the short-sellers.

In due course exchange officials reported. Who should come out of the basket but J. P. Morgan and company, with 4,500 shares of United Aircraft short!

This was a let-down because the few thousand dollars of profit was just so many nails to the House of Morgan.

Reports submitted covered the period between January 26 and February 9. The committee asked for sales records going back to December 1, and instructed Pecora to see whether any of those first reported were dummy accounts.

Unbagged—While the committee awaited the

EXPLORERS REPORT FINDING LOST CAPITAL OF QUEEN OF SHEBA

Capt. Cornignion Molinier and Andre Malraux reported from French Somaliland that they had found the lost capital of the Queen of Sheba. The explorers said 20 towers or temples still stand at the site which they gave as the northern edge of the Great Sandy Desert in Arabia, as shown in map at left. They reported they had taken photographs of the ruins. If the two are correct in the belief they have ended a search conducted by scientists for centuries. The land of Sheba in Biblical times was one of the wealthiest in the known world. The second Book of Chronicles hinted at this wealth in describing the visit of the Queen of Sheba to King Solomon when it said: "And she gave the King an hundred and twenty talents of gold and of spices great abundance and precious stones." She dreamed restlessly. A kaleidoscope of dream substance shuttled across her mind. Bits of her Hollywood life, fragments of her jungle experience pulsed in weird oscillation.

Frank's face was there, and Langton's, and that of poor Horatio Greene's mixed up oddly with that of the Mexican boy Juan.

She made again the trip up the side of the pyramid to the high-priest's house. She saw again the panoply of the ritual before the stone of sacrifice. She smelled the resinous odor of copal incense, and heard the flat, dismal thudding of a hidden drum.

The face of the high priest came closer. Even in the dream the chill, inexorable fanaticism of his eyes seemed to shrink the membranes of her soul.

The arms of the guards and the lesser priests seized her. She felt her throat bursting in a scream. She struggled desperately.

Her eyes snapped wide. Curious shadows loomed between her and the roof fire reflections of the cavern. A smell of unwashed Indian bodies tingled her nostrils. She struggled to arise but she could not. She was held tightly to her cot.

She heard a voice shouting, charged with pain and despair.

"Janice!... Janice!"

Suddenly the cavern was filled with light. Torches flared.

The girl saw native faces about her. The crossed rows of cartridges upon their breasts. She realized that she was bound to her bed.

As she widened her bewildered eyes at the scene, the figure of Langton was brought forward between two brown natives. He was bound-hand and foot—but his eyes flashed and his shoulders writhed in a paroxysm of futile effort.

"They've got us, Janice!" he breathed hoarsely. "That devil out of them... I know. Helpless, yes; he sent them summons... writing 'ill Frank was gone or the re is come!"

She clenched her lips and stared bewildered from brown face to brown face. It was too strange, too dreadful for her to accept at once. She saw the shkin's eyes observing her beyond the circle of faces. His expression was triumphant — indecipherable.

... she caught his glance he mut-

BANGHART KIDNAP TRIAL BEGINS

ter most about a castle in the days of chivalry, this was a moat of living, hungry jaguars.

It was nearly a week since she had been placed here. The soldiers of the shkin had hauled them by means of ropes up the concave walls of the valley-cenote and had carried them back to the city.

Since then it had rained incessantly. She knew—the women detailed as her servants had told her in pantomime—that when the rain ceased she and Billy were to be taken to the pyramid top. There would be no escape this time.

Even could they get so far as the underground river, that avenue was closed by the rains that had charged the caverns with water. The jungle, soaked from the continuous downfall, was impassable.

Had Frank got to the sea through the caverns—and her faith had called from the high-priest's intimation that he had?—it would take weeks for him to travel through the morass that lay between the coast and this hidden city.

Hopelessly she walked about the roof. Today the rain had ceased. The sky was clear except for occasional sullen groups of clouds that hung in patches across the blue.

She was grateful for this day in the open, but prayed, nevertheless for rain. She and Billy would not be molested while it rained.

The roof was like a garden—a lovely, sinister, garden.

Rare tropic shrubbery was placed cunningly about. Fine fabrics were draped over the simple furniture. Upon a central palm-shaded table a huge bowl of fruits and condiments was set.

Her clothing, which had been taken from her while she slept, had been replaced with an angle-length robe of finest linen adorned at the throat and hem with the most exquisite colored embroidery she had ever seen.

She had no cause to complain about her comfort. She had been given everything she might desire—except freedom.

Wearied with her pacing, she sat finally upon a divan and watched the sun arc toward the west. It painted the pyramid with a brush daubed in gold.

As it sank lower the gold changed to rose, then deepened to red. The red darkened to the varnished sheen of fresh blood!

Janice stared dry-eyed over a succession of flat roof tops toward the great central pyramid.

From the platform surmounting the vast edifice puffs of incense smoke gathered and disappeared as a vagrant wind-eddies blew about the lofty corners of the head-priest's house.

Soon, she realized, she and Billy Langton would proceed slowly up those dizzying steps. Then stretched for agonizing moments on the sacrificial stone, flinching to the inexorable plunge of the knife, they would die, and their bodies be hurled into the depth of the rain-choked cenote.

A snarling and coughing sounded from below the rim of the parapet that bounded the roof top that held their prisoner. She shuddered but stepped to the low wall and looked downward.

She knew what she would see but the seven jungle cats that roamed in the surrounding enclosure fascinated her.

They were jaguars. Lithe muscles bunched and writhed beneath their black-dappled tawny skins. They were restless—seemingly for-

Lon A. Smith Seeks Re-Election As Commissioner

HENDERSON—Lon A. Smith, candidate for re-election as Texas railroad commissioner, opened his campaign for that office Tuesday night in this city. Mr. Smith, who was born and reared in the Rockhill community, near here, spoke to a large crowd, and said in part:

"Standing with friends and neighbors tonight there are contending emotions filling my heart. Scenes of my boyhood days, events of mature manhood, experiences many, come trooping before my mental vision, presenting a panorama of sentiment, pleasing and most compelling.

"Some of you present tonight have known me from the very moment of my birth, on my father's farm in the Rockhill community to this present hour, the happiest, fullest epoch in my life.

"I see before me associates of my boyhood, school mates of other days, pupils of mine in the country schools of the country and in the schools of the quiescent city where we gather tonight.

"You honor me, my home folks, in a measure undeserving, an honor any native son would covet—one which I assure you is deeply and profoundly appreciated. This scene, my friends, will ever abide in memory's casket, and will be a thrill, as long as the cycles of time shall come and go.

"The question of politics is foreign to my thoughts this evening. I can say no more in this relation that should the people of my native state, who have honored me so often, commission me to a second full term of service in the field, I now serve, I shall continue to be faithful to every trust imposed, giving my time, my thought, my energy to the discharge of every duty incumbent upon me, laboring under the motto adopted then the top of office first fell upon my shoulders, 'Efficiency in Service, Economy in Office.'

"I love every red hill and every sandy stretch with in the confines of the East Texas country. The people of my native country encouraged my political ambitions. I have accomplished anything worthy of mention. I owe it all to you my friends. The people of my old senatorial district heard my plea, listened to and believed my promises. By your prayers, your sympathy, our encouraging words, prompted by an ambition to serve, the urge came and friends from every county in this fair state have rallied to the banner of democracy as I have tried to bear it aloft in numerous campaigns for office, being elected always by a vote of the sovereign citizenry of the state.

"When the hectic, turbulent, restless hour of public service shall end, I shall hope to return to my Henderson home to finally rest peacefully with my people of four generations in the quiet cemetery at New Prospect, where the mocking bird thrills her most melodious note, and where the wild flowers exhale sweetest fragrance." (Political advertisement).

Securities

A high-ranking Democratic House member confidently predicts a reorganization of the Securities Act this session.

He forecasts new provisions to eliminate responsibility of accountants and lessen that of company directors.

If it isn't done by the House leadership, this wheel horse promises to stray off the administration reservation long enough to force a vote on the issue by offering the proposition as riders to unrelated pieces of legislation.

Hornor

Reappearance of Charles Francis Hornor, on the NRA battlefield is regarded by local observers as proof positive that the administration is staking everything on a fight to put the Blue Eagle permanently in the air by next fall.

Not that Hornor is any new type of Big Bertha designed to mow the enemy down from some fabulous range.

His background does fit very snugly into the general picture.

Hornor will be remembered as the man who directed the publicity drive last year that first put the Blue Eagle insignia of NRA on the map. His particular qualification for the job was that he had run during the World war as a publicity man. How well he whipped up the baloney last summer was best attested by the fact he aroused public fancy to too great a height altogether. The Eagle wasn't ready to do as many tricks as the people expected and a reaction set in during the fall.

Code Eagle

Now Hornor returns to supervise sale of the "code Eagle" to the populace. (The Code Eagle is the same as the old Blue Eagle except that it carries a code number and its birth means a definite end to indiscriminate use of the NRA emblem.)

President Roosevelt and General Johnson will now have in their hands a trade-mark as fully controlled as that of any corporation. Its potential value is not to be estimated in terms of mere dollars.

"I want to bring industry to NRA terms by placing all they won't have to experience another such madhouse winter as the one just passing.

Notes

An alleged transaction in airplane stock by a federal legal official is under preliminary investigation. . . . AAA has received $855,279,000 from congress and asks for $331,022,000 more for next year, to be repaid by processing taxes. . . . These taxes have yielded $205,462,000 to March 2. . . . No one in congress can figure out actual cost of naval construction authorized by new law. Estimates vary from $740,000,000 to $1,500,000,000. . . . House committee appointed to investigate Nazi propaganda has power to probe into all foreign propaganda and will look into communist activities. If it gets the necessary $25,000 appropriation.

New Gasoline Tax Law, Authored By Penrose Metcalfe, Proves Big Help In Increasing State Revenue

SAN ANGELO—The new gasoline tax law, authored last year by Rep. Penrose B. Metcalfe of this city, brought in for the first half of the fiscal year the sum of $17,000,000. Based upon the previous year's figures this means a net increase of at least $5,000,000 over the preceding fiscal year. Disparities from the Comptroller's Department at Austin show the gain.

Of the increase, the schools will receive an additional amount of $1,250,000.00, or nearly one dollar per capita, the counties will benefit, for the payment of interest and sinking fund on road bond indebtedness, to the extent of $1,250,000.00, and the State Highway Department will receive an additional $2,500,000.00 for use in maintenance and new construction.

Hills Gas Bootlegger
The measure under which this heavy increase in state revenue arises is the one which Mr. Metcalfe sponsored and which was aimed at the elimination of the "gasoline bootlegger" and the more efficient collection of the already existing gasoline tax. It did not increase the tax nor the cost of the consumer but does provide that the tax which is due the state be collected.

Total collections for the year, taking cognizance of greater use of gasoline for the vacation and summer months, likely will be near $35,000,000 or more. R. S. Calvert, statistician for the department, makes the estimate.

Some Back To Farmers
For the fiscal year that ended August 31, 1933, the total gas collections were $26,695,000. The state government, however, does not retain the entire amount turned in, under the refund law, about $3,000,000 goes back to the farmers and others who purchased gasoline, the tax being remitted because their machines are not used on the highways.

The highway department retains one-half of the gasoline tax total, the public school system gets one-fourth and the county and district reimbursement division gets one-fourth under a law passed by the 42nd legislature.

Young People Hear Bickley Tuesday Night

A special service for the young people of the city was held at the First Methodist church as a part of the revival meeting being conducted by Rev. C. A. Bickley, pastor. Dr. Bickley took the subject: "Some Causes of Failure Before and After Marriage," using the scripture lesson was taken from Isaiah 61:9. Rev. Cutwell sang "Living For Jesus."

The church was filled to capacity at Tuesday night's service. The morning services are also well attended. The meeting will come to an end Sunday night, March 18.

The railroad men of the city are to be special guests at Wednesday night's service.

Rev. Bickley, spoke as follows: "In the year that King Uzziah died the people, and even the brave young Isaiah, thought that dire calamity had come to their nation. Likewise, we sometimes get our minds fixed upon some certain something and think that everything depends thereon. That is what happened when the depression came. We were ready to surrender, forgetting that God is still in heaven and can carry on whatever the condition.

"Of our youth today there are contrary opinions: one that youth is entirely bad; the other, that they are merely living in a fast age and are fundamentally all right. Whatever youth may be, they are confronted with a vast number of problems. First, do we have the right conception of what it takes to establish a home. Do we realize that marriage is much more than a civil contract, and before we can make it what it should be, we must know more of each other; we must have fellowship with each other under the right conditions. Remember also that if you marry to reform, you have some breakers ahead, and you may get over them and you may not.

"Next, where is our vision? 'where there is no vision, the people perish.' What we see out there in life determines what we are. Had Moses only been able to see just what was before him; had he not looked away down time, how different might history have been. It is all right to look at the things about us, but I would that somehow we might have a vision that reaches out before us, for life is a long, long road and what you see thereon determines your success, happiness and eternal destiny. Paul looked out, saw Jesus, and was different ever afterwards. That vision of Christ will change any life, and the world today stands in great need of a keen vision of God. America needs to realize that God still reigns.

"Do you ever see yourself as you are? To do so, we must compare ourselves not with ourselves, for thus we are apt to become pretty well satisfied, but with what God would have us be. If we could get a vision of God's high ideals for our lives, we would cry out with Isaiah, 'woe is me.' God wants lives that are not satisfied with what they are, for they are going to strive to become more like Jesus, to whom we must give our lives if we are to succeed. When we get a look at God and then a look at ourselves, we are going to realize how much higher we might climb, what greater attainments might be ours.

"God said, 'Whom shall I send?' I wonder if there is not a call that comes to the youth of America today. Why do we not have a youth movement here as does Russia and Europe? The charge has been made that our university instructors are not men of action, and that the church is not putting any great challenge before the youth of America. Why do we not say with Isaiah, 'Here am I send me?' Roosevelt said not long ago that if this administration fails, there may not be another. If something does not happen in the next five years in America, chaos will result. Ought not that to stir the youth?

"My young friends, we older people have failed. We have had war and drink and depression. We have carried the lights such a little distance. Won't the young people come and take them for us and carry them farther and farther until the homes of America shall be saved. Without Christ in your lives you cannot do it. All of our great leaders have been men that have sought and followed Christ. If America is saved it is going to be done by young men and young women who will say, 'Here am I send me!'"

Hundreds Pay Respects To Dr. J. W. Hunt

ABILENE (UP)—Hundreds of Texas Tuesday paid final tribute to one of the Lone Star State's most picturesque leaders.

The body of Dr. James Winfred Hunt, 55, founder and president of McMurry College, lay in state in the college auditorium Tuesday. It remained there until 4 p. m., for which time the funeral services at St. Paul's Methodist church were conducted.

Dr. Hunt, who for several months suffered from heart attacks, died Monday night after being fatally stricken Saturday night.

The dynamic Methodist preacher, educator, prohibition leader and political crusader, was known throughout the south for his vigorous sermons and his untiring activities in a variety of fields. He was the author of many published articles and poems.

Son of a U. S. government physician, Hunt was born on the Kaw reservation in what was then Indian territory. When he was 5 years old the family moved to what later became Crosby county, Texas. They joined a Quaker colony there.

When he was 17 the youth was graduated from Central Plains College, Quaker school. His subsequent career as a country editor and a circuit rider in West Texas.

Hunt entered the field of education in 1916 when he became president of Stamford College, then a Methodist institution of the Northwest, Texas Conference.

Two years later he moved to Abilene as pastor of St. Paul's church and began to lay the groundwork for McMurry College. In 1921 the college opened its doors, with Hunt in the president's chair.

Through Hunt's efforts the school expanded until 1925, when it was advanced from a junior to senior college.

Hunt's hobby was early history of the range country, on which he was an authority. He continued his labors in the church and school long after physicians warned him of his falling heart. He preached his last sermon Jan. 18, and had been confined to bed most of the time since.

Survivors include the widow, the former Mary Anthony of Dunas; three sons, Anthony Hunt, coach at Odessa high school, Julian, a sophomore at McMurry College, and David of Abilene; two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Webb, Dallas, and Margaret Hunt, Abilene.

British film interests have decided to present Shakespearean plays in the talkies.

MISS NELL BROWN ELECTED PRESIDENT OF KAPPA GAMMA

Members Discuss Plans For Work At Business Session Held Tuesday Evening At Settles Hotel

Miss Nell Brown was elected president of the Delta Chapter of the Kappa Gammas Sorority at its business meeting last night at the Settles Hotel.

Aiding her will be Miss Mary Evelyn Jordan as vice-president; Miss Allene Good, treasurer; and Miss Marie Faubion, secretary-reporter.

The sorority members present made plans for the reorganization of the group and spent their time chiefly in business discussion.

Mrs. W. J. McAdams, director, was unable to attend, and a committee called on her at the close of the session.

Present were: Misses Lillian Shick, Elsie Jeanette Barnett, Lucille Rix, Jessie Morgan, Vance Keneaster, Nell Brown, Mary Evelyn Gordon, Allene Good and Marie Faubion and Mrs. Jimmy Turpin.

The next meeting will be Tuesday evening at the Settles Hotel March 27.

Alert Driving Safety Medium
BALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (UP)—Anticipation of danger, alert driving and proper care would eliminate 90 per cent of automobile accidents, Sheriff S. Grant Young told the American Legion meeting here. He based his conclusion on the percentage of preventable accidents. Death toll from traffic accidents is steadily increasing annually, he said, despite education in schools and among adult groups.

yon winning consistently over the opponents despite the fact that the distance treked was short.

Coahoma, Jordan said, offered the better opposition while Midland's job and smash artists gave little if any competition. These two teams will repay the visit Saturday during the teachers' meeting. Several other schools are expected to be represented.

Spring football training has been temporarily suspended since Obie Bristow is in San Antonio with his father who was stricken with a heart attack last week. Last reports indicated that the elder Mr. Bristow was doing nicely and that Obie would return Monday to resume the platoon practice session along with his track duties.

In his absence, Gene Gardner has taken over the supervision of the Longhorn thimble clubs. He has put the dash men and runners through some fair time trials in preparation for the Barnhart meet this week-end.

Lamesa's Golden Tornado accounted for themselves creditably in the state school boy basketball tourney, coming off with runner-up honors and placing three men, Britt, St. Girvan, and Smith on the all-state team. Incidentally, this is one time when athletics will interfere with the player's school work and the die-hards will have no one in particular to blame. Several of the Lamesa basketballers contracted the measles during their sojourn at Austin.

We would like to know the status held by the Steer engers now that the Tornados have placed themselves in the limelight. Big Spring, it will be remembered, split a two-game series with the Lamesans. In 1933 Brown's henchmen defeated Athens, who later won the State championship. Speaking of Athens, the Hornets are the most consistent winners of the high school cage race, having won it five times. Also they have the honor of being the second team to win the title twice in succession. Oak Cliff, Dallas, tripped up the jinx that "champions do not repeat" in 1923-24.

From Lubbock comes a tale of D. R. Reed while he was going to Tech. During a stock judging event, at which Reed was present, one of the officials, who happened to be a good friend to Tiny, awarded him a blue ribbon. Reed caught the drift and did not hesitate in showing his oratorical abilities in accepting it.

P. S. He didn't get to keep it; they gave it to the bull.
