Roosevelt Told Price-Fixing Unadvisable

Whirligig

Written by a group of the best informed newspapermen of Washington and New York. Opinions expressed are those of the writers and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial policy of this newspaper.

WASHINGTON By George Durno
Booster—Major efforts of the New Deal from now on will be devoted to pulling up the durable goods industries—by their bootstraps if necessary.

To begin with, government experts find the market still badly crippled by timidity of bankers and investors. Capital issues for new working money totalled only three-quarters of a billion in 1933 as against around six billions in 1929.

Federal statisticians aren't agreed that modification of the Securities Act alone will meet this situation. They point to the railroads. These don't have to operate under the Securities Act to obtain credit—provided they find an angel.

Construction figures even more vividly color the general picture. In 1929 this country spent 11 billions in buildings, last year only $2,900,000,000. And here's the rub. In '29 public works represented only 30 per cent. In '33 they stood for 70 per cent, reversing the ratio.

Consumables such as food, clothing, etc., will be found at around 85 per cent of normal, whereas the durables such as steel, lumber, etc., have managed to scramble up only to an average of 50 per cent.

New deal economists are banking heavily on the fact that it's been five years since industry replaced heavy machinery to any extent. After that time a lot of it's obsolete and must be replaced. Their other big ace is a drive to stimulate small-home building. This has been practically at a standstill during the depression.

Purchasing—The lads who produce government figures don't wholly agree with private economists who contend that prices are showing a disturbing tendency to increase faster than purchasing power.

Claims—Those who valiant of the 1932 Chicago convention, Arthur Mullen and Bruce Kremer, may have been eased out of the Democratic National Committee because their Washington law practice had such political earmarks. But one has only to look around to learn that neither has suffered financially.

TREDELL BANK LOSS ONLY $100

Customer Believed Bandit Was Barrow Without A Doubt

TREDELL, Bosque County, (AP)—Officers searched the hill country along the Bosque-Hamilton county line Saturday for a man identified as Clyde Barrow, who robbed the Iredell State Bank of an undetermined amount of money.

J. W. Harris, Dallas, who was in the bank said the robber was Barrow "without a doubt." Harris said he did not believe the loss was above $100.

TREDELL, (AP)—A gunman identified by a Dallas man as Clyde Barrow robbed the Iredell State Bank late today of an undetermined amount of cash he collected in the cashier's cage.

The robber, after spending more than 15 minutes trying to force bank employees to open the safe in the vault, fled in the direction of Fort Worth.

Sure He Was Barrow "Without a doubt the robber was Clyde Barrow," asserted J. W. Harris, connected with the Mahan-Dittmar company of Dallas. Harris was in the bank transacting some business with the cashier, W. Oldham, when the robber walked in the front door and pulled out two pistols.

Harris said he had seen pictures of Clyde Barrow, notorious southwest desperado, and the man who held up the Iredell bank was unquestionably Barrow. Harris described the robber as weighing about 135 pounds, "hatchet faced," black hair and dressed in a rough looking shirt with a sweater coat under his coat. He was not masked. Harris said he looked like he hadn't shaved for about two or three days.

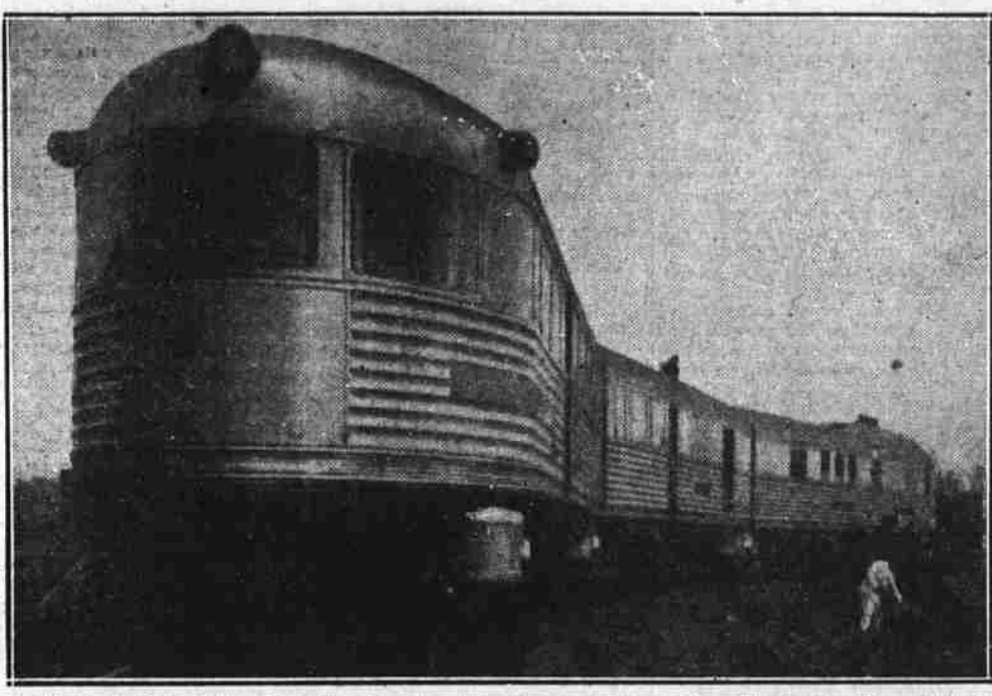

The robber gave up his efforts to get the money in the safe when a man walked in the front door. The robber covered him and ordered him to come in. The man ducked out the door and the robber immediately departed.

Doubt About Companion The robber was said to have driven out of town in a red wheeled (Plymouth) coupe. There was a question as to whether someone had waited for him outside the bank in the car. Bosque county officers were told by some persons they had seen another person in the car while others said the robber was alone.

Harris said he didn't think the robber got away with more than $100. He picked up a packet of small bills and other loose cash but failed to get any from the tiller or the safe, where most of the bank's money was kept.

Principals of all common school districts Saturday afternoon met with County Superintendent Pauline C. Brigham to formulate plans for the annual rural school rally which falls on the same days as county-wide graduation exercises.

NEW STREAMLINE TRAIN READY FOR FAST TRAVEL

Charged With Murder Of Jim Tom, Shot February Third At Stanton

STANTON (AP)—The trial of John Ward, charged with the killing of George W. Tom, was transferred to Midland and re-set for the July term of court there, when District Judge Charles Klapproth acted on a motion for a change of venue. Tom, a prominent Martin county ranchman, was shot Feb. 3, in the doorway of the postoffice here.

Baird Wins Track Meet

Champions Amass Total Of Twenty-One Points

ABILENE (Special)—Baird athletes copped the regional track and field meet here Saturday by amassing a total of twenty-one points.

Another bidder that was eagerly watched by the crowd was American Airlines, Inc., reputedly dominated by E. L. Cord, motor magnate. Formerly American Airways, Inc. the concern bid on eight of the 21 routes offered. In seven cases it had competition and in none of these was low bidder. It was the sole bidder for the Boston-Hatfield-Newark route.

Special Cabinet Committee Tells Of Its Findings

WASHINGTON—(Copyright by the Associated Press)—President Roosevelt has been advised by a special cabinet committee that creation of a policy on price-fixing was not yet feasible. Conclusion was reached by Secretaries Perkins, Roper, Wallace and Attorney General Cummings despite demands of friends and foes of price-fixing that the policy be enunciated.

The report, withheld from publication, was authoritatively described as recommending positive steps be taken to get information which would make as its objective a judgment possible.

The report makes no attempt to decide merits of the question whether prices have risen too far under NRA price control provisions in codes or whether such provisions have been conducive to monopoly.

Texas Oil Allowable Is Raised

Railroad Commission Fixes Increase At 15,561 Barrels

AUSTIN (AP)—Allowable production from Texas oil fields Friday was raised to 1,609,860 barrels daily, effective 7 a. m., April 25 to June 1, by the Texas railroad commission. An increase of 15,561 barrels daily was ordered for four districts.

LOCAL OIL MEN NONE TOO JUBILANT OVER ORDER

Local oil men were none too jubilant over the increase in oil allowances for West Texas, which includes the Howard-Glasscock county fields. The 3,907 barrel daily increase has been set aside for twenty-four counties in the Permian basin, and it was not known Saturday just what part of this would be allotted to Howard-Glasscock area. The present allowable for Howard-Glasscock is 37,500 barrels daily, and local refiners and oil men were anxious that this amount be raised to at least 25,000 barrels, in order to supply local needs.

FINANCIAL LEADERS FACE TRIAL

Three Cleveland citizens long prominent in the nation's financial world—O. P. Van Sweringen (left), Joseph R. Nutt (upper right) and W. M. Baldwin (lower right)—face trial on charges that they falsified records and reports of the closed Union Trust company of Cleveland. They pleaded not guilty. Van Sweringen, well known rail executive, is accused of aiding and abetting Baldwin and Nutt, who are former executives of the bank. (Associated Press Photo)

BACK TO THE GRECIAN STANDARD!

Bryant Baker, sculptor who won the $100,000 "Pioneer Woman" prize, is shown in his New York studio as he made a few observations about the feminine figure. He is shown with a model whose back, he said, conformed to the Grecian standard, with shoulders and back of the thighs on the same plane. The ideal feminine figure, he said, should be judged first from the back. (Associated Press Photo)

U. S. STUDIES URSCHEL KIDNAPING EQUIPMENT

This array of kidnaping equipment has been collected in Washington by federal agents for study by the department of justice. The vacuum jug, unearthed on a Texas farm, contained $72,950 of the ransom money in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case. The wig shown at upper left belonged to Kathryn Kelly, now serving a life sentence in the case. Chain at lower left was used to hold Urschel prisoner. In center of table is a money belt that belonged to George "Machine Gun" Kelly. The knife and gun shown were used in a ship mutiny. (Associated Press Photo)

Firemen Society Drill Team Returns With Honors From Tri-State Convention At Tucson

To Prepare For San Antonio Meet Next Year Where They Plan To Win First Place; Report Fine Time

The local delegation of the Firemen Ladies to the tri-state meeting at Tucson, Arizona, was presented with a gift, a lamp of Arizona copper, for having the largest representation from a woman's lodge outside of the hostess city, when the Firemen and the Society met for convention there this past week.

Members of the drill team who, with the other delegates brought the number of Big Spring women to 23, returned to Big Spring late Friday night. They were accompanied on the trip by two representatives of the men's lodge, Frank Scholte and E. L. Deason.

The drill team won third place in a hotly contested competition with teams from three other cities, all of them larger than Big Spring. In the contest Amarillo won first, Big Spring second, third, 93; Houston fourth, 88.

The trip of the society members was a triumphal tour from Toya where they were dined by members of the Firemen until their return home. A basket of flowers was presented to them at the Golden Jubilee program sent by the local women. Mr. Ribble sent them flowers as a good will message from Big Spring. Mrs. Frank Scholte president of the society, was presented with a bouquet from the convention as one of the attending presidents.

The delegation stopped over in Paso and visited members there, leaving in Tucson Monday morning after the three states had gone to a joint session. The members went from the train to the convention hall, where 600 delegates were assembled. Six grand lodge officers were present at the women's meeting.

Sightseeing Tours. The program of sight-seeing included a tour of the city and the Xavier mission under the auspices of Chamber of Commerce. The mission the society put on program. At the close of the convention the delegates went to Phoenix on a Southern Pacific train. The trip was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and was operated by a crew of volunteer firemen. In Phoenix the Chamber of Commerce gave the trippers a sight-seeing tour through the town. They returned via the town of Coolidge and from there went to the Casa Grande ruins. On the grounds of that property they were served supper and were entertained with a musical program by the Indians living in the river valley. Night amusement features included big dances at the Mueonic Temple and a night parade on Monday night with a mock engine leading the parade. On Wednesday evening the ladies' society gave a golden jubilee pageant at the gymnasium of the University of Arizona in which the local drill

Pretty Spring Party Given At Settles Hotel By Hostesses

Mrs. Harry Lester and Mrs. Joe Ernest Entertain Fourteen Tables of Bridge Players

Mrs. Joe Ernest and Mrs. Harry Lester were hostesses at the Settles Hotel Friday afternoon for one of the prettiest spring bridge parties that has ever been given in the city.

Delicate shades of pink and white relieved with green were carried out in all the party accessories.

The hostesses greeted their guests at the door of room number one on the mezzanine and passed them tallies representing spring flower scenes. On the score pads of pink and green crepe paper were tied small bunches of artificial flowers. The pencils were wrapped like Maypoles.

The room was decorated with lovely ferns and with a bouquet of pink and yellow roses intermingled with bridal wreath. A galloping slam prize was awarded those who bid and made little or grand slams. Several secured the prize, two linen handkerchiefs, but in the end Mrs. Williams was the lucky keeper.

Mrs. Rogers was presented with a Madeira luncheon set and matching napkins for making the highest score. Mrs. Oldham and Mrs. Rex Ragan tied for second high. They cut the cards for the prize, a bridge table, and Mrs. Oldham won.

At the refreshment hour a dessert course of ice cream moulded in the shape of a rose was served with small cakes iced in pink, and iced tea. Little bouquets of pastel-colored sweetpeas tied in pink were plate favors.

Fourteen tables of guests played. They were Mrs. M. E. W. Wason, George Oldham, B. J. Cook, L. W. Croft, Shirley Robbins, Harold Parks, Julius Eckhaus, Bernard Fisher, Joyce Fisher, Irving Loeb, R. PTA Round Up To Be Held In May

AUSTIN—The largest round-up in the history of Texas will be started in May when every Parent-Teacher association in the state will join hands in their annual campaign, known as the summer round-up of children. This is a movement that has for its purpose sending to the entering grades school children who are at risk from remedial defects as possible.

Each local Parent-Teacher group endeavors to have the parents who have children ready to enter school visit their family physician and dentist for the purpose of having a complete physical examination made of the child and then encourage the corrections needed. It is teaching the parents the responsibility of having their children prepared physically for school life. At this time parents should have their children immunized against diphtheria and smallpox.

Children grow very rapidly during the first six years of life, and during this rapid growth, physical defects are apt to develop which may cause permanent damage if they are not corrected early. Poor posture in children is very often the result of faulty nutrition. Fatigue may also be a factor, and in some instances there may be actual disease of the bone.

Inability to see or hear well is a serious handicap for the child beginning school. He cannot progress as rapidly as one who sees and hears normally. As a result the child is frequently held back, not because he is mentally slow but because of defects. The Texas state department of health lends their hearty cooperation to the Parent-Teacher association in this effort as they have seen the value of it in the results obtained in past years.

Lucky Thirteen Club Enjoys Spring Party

Mrs. Hugh Duncan entertained the Lucky Thirteen Bridge club Friday afternoon with a pretty spring party. Roses and wild flowers in orchid tones were used for decorations.

Mrs. Stripling made high and was presented with three linen kitchen towels.

At the refreshment hour a red and white plate was served, containing pear salad. Rosebuds were favored.

Only members were present. They were Mmes. O. R. Bolinger, H. G. Keaton, A. Schnitzer, Hayes Stripling, M. Wentz, L. G. Talley, O. M. Waters, Cecil Collins, Morris Burns, H. E. Howie, Hallie Robinson and Kin Barnett. Mrs. Howie will entertain the club at its next afternoon session, and Mrs. Kin Barnett at the night party which the club members will give for their husbands Thursday night at the Crawford.

Jolly Times Club Has All Day Meet

Members of the Jolly Times Bridge club did not play bridge this week but spent Friday visiting with a member, Mrs. G. L. James at her home in Forsan.

The members went out in the morning carrying lunch with them for a surprise party and found their hostess gone. They prepared lunch; by the time it was ready she arrived.

After luncheon the guests sewed and hiked to some of the nearby oil wells. Present were: Mmes. Jack Hall, R. L. Pritchett, Cecil West, Guy Tamsitt, C. H. Sullivan, H. V. Crocker, and Miss Judy Bennett.

Mrs. West will entertain the club at its next regular meeting day.

Chapter 25
DELPHY'S LETTER
"Miz Dale," Delphy came in... the house, full of new dignity and importance. "I have a letter he ah as I done fo'get to bring my read-in' glasses. Would you-all read it to me?"

Judith nodded. She saw through the ruse, Delphy belonged to the generation which could neither read nor write, but proud of their child's ability, dreaded to admit their own lack.

She took the letter and with the light shining through the door at her shoulder, read:

"Dear Mammy-Delphy. I guess you don't suspect to hear from me so soon—"

"That'll be from Lige," contributed Delphy.

Judith nodded and went on. "But I got something to worry me, Mister Norman, he come long home from Galveston the night you-all left and he sure was upset."

Norman wife's looked up, startled.

"I tell you, I don't know that I have a right to read this letter—" She started to suggest she ask one of the boys to read it, then afraid of what it might contain, went on reading.

"He bring Miz Dale and Miz Tilly with him. They was sposed to talk to Miz Judy."

"Mister Norman he ask me where is Miz Judy. I tell him she gone to the dam-dwell and Miz Tilly, she make a joke from it. She say she told him so and Mister Norman he sit down quick and he say did she leave a letter for him."

"I tell him she didn't and he say where is Delphy and I say she is gone with Miz Judy, and Miz Tilly she say, Miz Judy have her nerve when Delphy come raise him for Miz Judy steal you way?"

"Did she say that?" fumed Delphy. "She allays has been the cuz-adeas girl in the world. Go on Miz Dale."

"I tell Miz Tilly, right sharp, that Miz Dale didn't know you was going, I tell her Delphy she any she is real quality and she going to take care of her and I tell he you took goose grease and flannel an a brick and chocolate. Mister Norman he laugh some then like he feel better and he say where did Delphy get the money an I tell him you got it from me and he say he sure pay me back but I tell him you won't honest shootin' crap and he laugh some more. But he pay me anyhow and now I got eighty dollars and I think I better marry Rosa Williams 'cause she got twenty left from her first husband's funeral and we can put it in the bank and go to Galveston for our trip.

I ask Miz Dale, you know, old Miz Dale, if she think that is a good plan and Miss Tilly she speak up and she say it is, 'cause if Delphy was going to stay 'till Mister Norman got ready to take Miz Dale back I'd be too old to marry—"

Judith put the letter down a moment. So she had had a right to be jealous of Mathie, and Norman was through. Queer to be reading of it seeing the things she saw through the pendent sawal of a servant.

"What does he mean, Miz Dale?" questioned Delphy, puzzled.

"Goodness only knows," answered Judith and turned again to the letter.

"Mister Norman he is gone upstairs when she say this, but Miz Dale she don't like it none. I didn't go long with him because I ain't never forgot the time Mister Norman had his tenth birthday and I had mine same time. Mister Norman he say I can have the box of candy, the biggest one with the red bow, then he go way and Miss Tilly she stole that box right outen from under my eyes and she say she have Big Tom hose with me if I tell. I didn't want her to steal nothing from Miz Dale so I stay. Judith put the letter down again. What Mathie was stealing from her could be seen with the physical eye, but it was more valuable than any treasure in Hillendale.

"Read on," prompted Delphy.

"Miss Tilly she acted up just like she own the house. She make some talk about how she'd put the davenport by the sun window and then Miz Dale she speak up right sharp. She say 'Lisen here, Matilly, she say, don't you go long holdin' no waks 'till the patient is sure nuff dald.'"

"Mammy Delphy, whyd didn't you-all tell me Miz Dale, our young Miz Dale was so sick?"

"Miz Judy, what do he mean by that?"

Judith looked up, her eyes hot with humiliation and bright with what Mrs. Dale said. She meant that Miss Mathie mustn't... she sought for a word the woman would understand, "mustn't glost over Mr. Norman divorcing me until it had actually taken place, and then she mustn't think she's going to move into Hillendale until Mister Norman marries her."

"Miz Dale, is you and Mister Norman going to get a de-voorce?"

"It was a personal question and if Delphy hadn't sacrificed her own comfort, in fact everything pertaining to herself in her zeal to take care of her 'Miz Dale' Judith might have resented it. As it was she could understand.

"I hope not, Delphy. I don't want a divorce. You and I both know that Mister Norman is the finest man in the world."

"Sure do," affirmed Delphy, then, "But, Miz Judy, how come you run away and leave him 'thout you don't want to?"

Judith put into words the old woman would comprehend what had led up to her talking Big Tom's place at the dam.

Delphy interrupted—"I see," she said, and proceeded to condense

FACE TRIAL FOR POLICE DEATHS

Judith's wordy explanation into a line. "Big Tom wanted the dam built for good, 'n old Lamp-car he wanted it built for evil." She studied a moment then arose.

"Miz Dale, you gotta stay right here, you'n me. We gotta stay right here 'till that dam is finish, else Old Mister Tom, he'll come back and hunt you the rest 'n your days. Judith paid little attention to Delphy the next day and so did not see her in conference with Goodwin, a young engineer with whom she, Judith, had gone to college, nor did she talk to that delghted young man until after the mail had gone out the day following.

"Say, Judy, that old servant of yours is a card," he confided that evening. "She had me write to her son Lige, because she forgot her 'founting pen.'"

"She asked you to write," Judith was alarmed. She not only had hoped to know what went into Delphy's letters but to protect herself from word of her personal affairs getting out into Big Tom Town.

"Yes, she said you were too busy. I thought you'd get a kick out of hearing some of the things she had me write. For instance, she said you were eating your heart out for Mister Norman, but scared to come home for fear Big Tom's ghost would come along after you and shoe you right back. She had me tell Lige that you took all of your orders from this ghost and she thought you were his me-jum."

"Me-jum?" questioned Judith, then with a wail "Oh, dear she meant medium, can't you imagine what a delicate morsel of gossip that will be after Lige spreads it with his usual elaborations? Anything else?"

"Nothing much. She said for him to take good care of Mister Norman and make sure Rosa Williams didn't starch his cuffs in hot weather, and if Matilly came over he was to put art sink in her coffee."

"Art sink?" questioned Judith.

"Arsenic," interrupted Goodwin. "Oh, my goodness, I hope Lige doesn't take her seriously."

"I hope he does," Goodwin continued half humorously. "I imagine a lot of us would rest easily if Matilly swallowed a dose of something of the kind. Seen today's paper? Of course, you haven't. The boys brought one in on the hand car. Lampers succeeded in having the case moved up on the calendar, they called for a jury this morning."

Judith's breath caught in a quick gasp. She realized she mustn't let her alarm spread to even the most unimportant junior engineer in the place.

"Goodwin," she confessed, "I've been so busy I haven't even thought of the will contest."

"You must be pretty sure of winning," he said. "Well, if Big Tom built his defense as well as he forecast the specifications on this dam we're all safe."

"Yes," said Judith quietly.

The conversation drifted on idly, returning, Judith realized, to the subject of Big Tom Bevin with astonishing frequency.

Bevin had been a leading light in the business world, she knew well. Now she was learning from Goodwin that he was a legend among even the engineering students in the Texas school.

"I think sometimes," said Goodwin, "that he was helping half the young would-be engineers in Texas. I know he helped me."

"And me."

But Judith found it difficult to concentrate even on Big Tom's virtues with the menace of Lampers always in the back of her mind, and was glad when Goodwin rose.

After he had left she went to her chair on the little front porch. The dam was being constructed by loyal hands, no chance of subterfuge, faulty material, dishonesty there. Would the will contest have the same chance?"

C. C. McDONALD DELIVERS OPENING CAMPAIGN SPEECH FOR GOVERNOR AT BONHAM

BONHAM—An old-age pension plan to abolish the poorhouse, and a state-supported home-ownership plan to abolish tenantry, were proposed by former Sen. C. C. McDonald of Wichita Falls, Ferguson-supported candidate for governor, in opening his campaign here this 98th anniversary of San Jacinto.

The cost of each mile of state highway would buy four 160-acre farms and change four tenants in-to owners, McDonald said.

The former senator, long-time anti-prohibition leader who managed the statewide campaign last year to repeal of the 18th amendment and legalize beer in Texas, stressed his old-age pension, retirement fund for workmen, and his labor plan for taxing machinery that replaces man-power.

He outlined the proposal for a $15 to $30 per month state pension for the aged, and said it would prove an actual saving to the state in money, as well as in humanitarian values. He said 29 states have adopted the plan.

Sen. McDonald condemned the multiple employment of kinship by government agencies, urged a strong nepotism law, and denounced national and state policies of issuing tax-exempt securities. He said most of the wealth of Texas escapes taxation, and blamed the exemption of the mortgage while the debtor-owner pays taxes on property.

McDonald opened his speech with a short personal sketch of his "Methodist ancestry," and recited his family came to this country two generations ago.

He declared his home-ownership plan foremost of all the things he will advocate. He urged a constitutional amendment extending state credit for the purchase of homesteads, either farms or in the cities.

Continuation of reduced state appropriations, putting an end to issuance of tax-free bonds, retention of the two-year equity of redemption law, he advocated, along with repeal of all state property taxes on real estate and substitution of a registration tax on mortgages, a capital tax on corporations and an intangibles tax on monopoly business, and a severance tax on natural resources.

He advocated a tax on machinery according to the number of men it rendered jobless; state laws to protect workers in collective bargaining, to restrict exorbitant executive salaries, a six-hour day and 30-hour week.

McDonald told his hearers he will do his utmost, if elected, to maintain the scholastic apportionment at the present $15, but will not favor increasing it; and will try to hold down school expenditures for plant and equipment, and will oppose creation of any more colleges, supplementing the present large number.

"Twenty nine states," he said, of his old-age pension plans, "have abolished poor houses and adopted old-age pensions, because this plan is economical and humane, and in every state tremendous savings have been made to taxpayers, and more people have been cared for."

"Democracy," he said, "is a failure unless it can make the values of life accessible to the normal man, instead of concentrating the proceeds of industry in the hands of a few. I stand squarely behind Pres. Roosevelt's new economic creed which liberated a million children from factories and sweatshops. I do not want to see the people of Texas pauperized. They want no charity or handouts, not crumbs from overloaded tables, but they want permanent employment at a living wage. They are becoming aroused, and are demanding clean government in city and state. Political machines are being related to the scrap heap."

"To provide opportunity for universal home ownership in town and country, to equalize the burdens of taxation, to repeal statewide prohibition and substitute strict supervision, to pension our needy aged and infirm, to secure just rights and wages for working men and women, and to provide a permanent system of universal and worthwhile education, shall constitute the foundation stones of my candidacy and efforts for a permanent relief and prosperity program."

Ticket Sales For Local Talent Show Already Commenced

Remarkable progress toward making the three-act drama, "The Path Across the Hill," a splendid evening's entertainment is claimed by Mrs. J. T. Allen, director. The production is to be staged next Friday evening, April 27, in the Municipal auditorium. According to Mrs. Allen, characters have been using every idle moment for rehearsal—both day and night.

The Rev. S. P. Shettleworth, pastor of the First Christian church and who has had a number of years stage experience attached to his career, takes the heavy character role of "Grandpa" Samuel Crawford, a cheery, lovable old widower. Rev. Shettleworth takes this part and plays it like an old "trooper", everyone is compelled to appreciate and enjoy the dramatic scenes played by him.

It is believed that Mrs. W. O. Low, teacher in our public schools, needs no introduction to an audience in taking a negro cook role. In "The Path Across the Hill," Mrs. Low again plays the negro cook, Zuzu, equal to any professional. Her original wit will keep the audience in a roar from the time she hits the stage until her exit. Those who have witnessed rehearsals say that to her part alone, the show is worth the price of admission.

Ticket sales to "The Path Across the Hill" went on sale yesterday. The price of admission will be only 25 cents for adults, which, it is claimed, is very nominal for a show of this type. The first 10 rows of seats in the auditorium will be reserved on this occasion, with an extra charge of 10 cents. Reserved seats will go on sale Thursday at Western's Drug, 221 Main street.

CLINT C. SMALL IN OPENING CAMPAIGN SPEECH AT MEXIA URGES OIL, GAS COMMISSION

By RAYMOND BROOKS

MEXIA—Senator Clint C. Small of Amarillo, opening his campaign for governor here Friday afternoon, advocated creation of a separate oil and natural resource commission, expansion of the railroad commission to broad utility supervision, urged a broad policy of social legislation for increased state services and pledged his efforts to prevent diversion of gasoline taxes from the highway fund.

Senator Small was the second candidate to begin the speaking phase of the governor's race, following James V. Alfred by 10 days. His speech preceded one day those of C. C. McDonald at Bonham and Tom F. Hunter at Clifton Saturday, while Maury Hughes will open at McKinney Saturday of next week, and Lieut. Gov. Edgar E. Witt, who has made several radio talks, will postpone general speaking engagements until May.

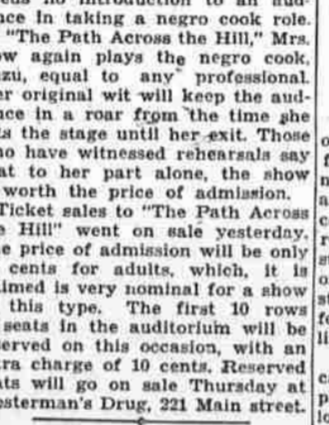

Sen. Small, who is making his second race for governor, told his Mexia audience that old age pensions, mother's pensions, unemployment insurance, state services as to health care and cure of crippled children, tuberculosis and the insane were "legitimate subjects" for state attention under the new deal.

Small devoted much of his speech to a demand that agencies for catching, trying and punishing criminals be modernized and said these reforms can be achieved and the state saved $500,000 by the legislation he will advocate. He urged consolidation of the ranger and highway patrol into a state constabulary adequately equipped to deal with the crime situation.

Among his planks, one a reversal of his former dry stand, Sen. Small advocated resubmission and repeal of the state prohibition amendment, to the end of more adequate enforcement, with provisions to allow any area to remain dry by local option.

He warned the audience that lit-

Streamlining an Interesting Theme

When the study of streamlined bodies passes beyond the portals of laboratories and wind tunnels, and is taken up by eagle-eyed news photographers—something like the above picture is likely to happen. It really requires a good deal of engineering acumen to note a striking similarity in some lines of the two companion subjects, the lady and the car. While the pictorialist remains reticent regarding the identity of the alluringly-contoured Southern belle shown in the foreground, he lets it be known that the car is one of the 1934 aero-streamlined Dodge Sixes.

Exhibit Portraying West Texas As "Raw Materials Capital Of The World" To Be Seen At WTCC

SAN ANGELO—A colorful exhibit portraying West Texas as "The Raw Materials Capital of the World" will be on display at the Sixteenth Annual Convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce in San Angelo, May 14-16.

The West Texas relief progress shown at the century congress in Chicago last year by the regional chamber, will form the center portion of the exhibit with a back-wall upon which attractive posters will tell the story of the resources of West Texas to support the slogan of the regional chamber that West Texas is the raw materials capital of the world.

The relief map is thirteen feet square, and was built by students of Texas Technological college for the West Texas chamber last year. Upon it appears all towns affiliated with the organization, all roads, highways, streams and topographical features. It has been declared to be correct in detail. In colors the various resources are shown. One color shows small grain production, another cotton, another oil, another gas, another wool, etc.

The individual towns of West Texas will be represented in the exhibit with attractive posters made by students of the respective high schools. In preparation for the exhibit at San Angelo, a poster exhibit contest was launched in the two hundred fifty schools of West Texas. Each school was furnished the rules and regulations and an entry blank and asked to conduct a local contest—selecting the best posters from the local contest, and entering them in the exhibit at San Angelo. The posters will tell the story of some resource or resources of the town. The town having the best poster at San Angelo will be given a silver loving cup trophy.

Fifteen cities have already definitely entered the contest, and notified convention headquarters that they are conducting local contests and will enter posters at San Angelo. They are Amarillo, Anton, Big Spring, Denton, Dumas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Hamilton, Higgins, Marble Falls, San Angelo, Seagraves, Vernon and Wichita Falls.

"I have a neighbor whose husband makes a handsome income in the cold storage business—buying produce when it is cheap and keeping it until prices are high. I find I can do the same with my Norge. I buy in quantities, whenever there is a price advantage, and Rollator Refrigeration keeps the food fresh for days and days. You'd be amazed at how much I save."

Before you buy your refrigerator, consider its beauty, its convenience, its economy, and its mechanism. See the Norge, and you'll agree that it excels on every point.

Notwithstanding its many advantages, the Norge is attractively priced and terms are easy.

THE ROLLATOR—has only three moving parts—simple, powerful, almost everlasting. Only Norge has the Rollator.

Tiny School's Record Perfect
FULTON, Mo. (U.P.)—Settlers Hill School, at Readville, near here, is small but efficient. The school board announced that the school had a 100 per cent perfect attendance record for the school year just ended. None of the five pupils was tardy or absent during the four quarters.

Miss Evelyn Creath is spending the week-end in Cisco at a reunion of oldtimers of Randolph college.
