News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

Written by a group of the best informed newspapermen of Washington and New York.

WASHINGTON BY GEORGE DURNO

Forcing—

Loyal New Deal Democrats need not sleep over the trimming President Roosevelt took on the World Court issue.

Highly informed quarters say this is true without any symptoms of the sour-grape mentality.

As the story now comes from inside FDR was up against two propositions.

First, he has pending vitally important national legislation of an emergency nature.

Second, World Court proponents particularly the women were pestering the White House for action.

Then he demanded immediate action. He hoped to win (even though he would up to the last day) but he was prepared to have the issue settled once and for all.

The big idea now was to clear the decks on such measures as the $4,800,000,000 highway bill.

There is considerable justification for this presentation of the case.

Thirty-six senators voted the World Court into oblivion so far as the United States is concerned.

Among those 36 there might have been found quite a few tremblers.

Complete control of expenditure of all public works funds on top of its customary control of federal patronage.

Even Senator Huey Long, whose actions indicate he aspires to be our national dictator, got magnanimous.

Finally, the word has been spread to the four corners that the senate in its majestic sovereignty rebelled against a White House command.

That serves to ally the constantly growing fear of a dictatorship. Senators from more than a dozen states split their votes.

Even Senator Huey Long, whose actions indicate he aspires to be our national dictator, got magnanimous.

However, he said with a smile, "if I were ever called upon to advise as to how the United States should be brought into the World Court I would suggest that the members of the League of Nations adopt a resolution specifically barring the United States from membership."

Local Men In Hearing Held Austin Monday

Field Recently Reduced To 16,500 Barrels; Order Is Now Being Prepared

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas railroad commission Monday called a statewide oil production hearing February 18th at Austin.

It was learned authoritatively here Monday that Col. E. O. Thompson and Lou Smith, members of the state railroad commission, are preparing an order for increasing the Howard-Glasscock field daily allowable to 17,500 barrels.

The order will be retroactive as of February 1. The two commissioners Monday morning granted an audience to Ray Simmons, Coven Oil Corporation, and to Garland A. Woodward, member of Coven legal counsel, who went to Austin Sunday morning.

While increasing the state allowable from 998,412 barrels to 1,610,333 barrels daily on January 25, the commission lowered the Howard-Glasscock field allowable from 17,500 to 16,500.

Change in the allowable was to have taken place on February 1, but the new order, when issued, will have the effect of leaving the 17,500 potential undisturbed.

Producers and processors alike received news of the commission's action as meaning more profitable operation for all concerned.

Dr. Junkers Claimed By Death

Pioneer Aircraft Manufacturer Succumbs In Dessau, Germany

DESSAU, Germany. (AP)—Dr. Hugo Junkers, 76, pioneer aircraft manufacturer, died Sunday night.

Having centered his energies for many years on the idea of constructing a serviceable motor, Professor Hugo Junkers in the early days of aviation began to interest himself in the combination of airplane and motor.

Back in 1910 he took out a patent for a metal motor plane and two decades later more than one-third of the then existing world's network of air services were flying planes bearing the name of Professor Junkers.

Up to that time the most noteworthy feat of a Junkers plane was the east-to-west flight across the Atlantic Ocean, made by Baron von Huenefeld, Captain Koobi and Major Filtmühle. It was the first time the flight from Europe to the American continent had been accomplished.

Another mark established by a Junkers plane was the endurance record of 66 hours, which later was broken in the United States by planes which re-fueled in the air.

The significance of Junkers airplanes in international service was shown by the increase in service between 1921 and 1926. In the former year Junkers carried 2,225 passengers, a total of 210,000 miles, while five years later the passenger numbers numbered 31,000 and were carried over a total mileage of 4,270,000.

When the gas motors of Otto and Daimler first made their appearance in the world of technical engineering, Junkers quickly realized that motors were destined to become a dominating factor in the mechanical world.

World's Best Loved Novels Being Filmed For Screen, Reports Robb

An extraordinary number of motion pictures now being released by the major film studios are based on the works of classic and modern authors of outstanding achievements, according to word from Manager J. Y. Robb of the Ritz Theatre, who is now in California where he is previewing current film releases and arranging bookings for the coming month's programs.

Shakespeare, Dickens, Poe, Thackeray, Dumas and Victor Hugo will be represented on the screen this season, Manager Robb wrote. Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," produced by Max Reinhardt, heads the schedule of outstanding pictures, with Dickens "David Copperfield"; Poe's "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"; based on Thackeray's "Vanity Fair"; "The Three Musketeers" from Dumas, and the two Victor Hugo classics, "Les Misérables" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" continuing the line-up of really worthwhile motion pictures.

In selecting modern authors for representation on the schedule of current season picture releases, producers have seemed to measure them with some yardstick of greatness, Manager Robb said, pointing to Sir James Barrie, C. K. Chesterton, Booth Tarkington, Jack London, Edna Ferber, Ferenc Molnar, Hervey Allen and Sinclair Lewis as examples.

From the works of Barrie, the picture producers have selected "The Little Minister," which will star Katherine Hepburn; Chesterton's famous and beloved "Father Brown" will come to the screen in the film, "Father Brown, Detective," from Paramount; Tarkington's "Mississippi" is being made with Bing Crosby and W. C. Fields in the cast. The new season list also includes Jack London's "Call of the Wild," and Edna Ferber's "Showboat," and the translation into pictures of Hervey Allen's rugged historical romance, "Anthony Adverse," which will probably prove one of the major all-time achievements of the screen, Manager Robb believes.

The producers this season have left no field untouched in their search for outstanding merit, says Manager Robb. They have not confined themselves to picking distinguished authors, alone, but have selected for pictureization many of the favorite books of American readers, as well. On this season's

It is very 'catching' right from the start, so a special effort should be made to keep the younger children away from others who have it. It's a mistake to say, 'Oh let them have it, and have it over.'

"If your child shows any of the symptoms of measles—at the start it often seems to be only a cold—but him or her to bed, keep the other children away from the one who is sick, and send for your doctor."

To Celebrate First Anniversary Of Popular Local Institution

Dr. P. W. Malone, newly-elected president of the West Texas Museum Association, is calling a meeting of the members and friends of the Museum to meet at the building Tuesday at 4 o'clock, a week earlier than the regular date, in order to plan an open house.

The open house will start the new year off with a week's program, the week to be known as Museum week. Details will be published later when they are worked out by the committees in charge. One of the attractions of the week will be the showing of a large oil painting of the Alamo, size 8-12 by 20 feet. This has recently been purchased by the association from a Fort Worth dealer. The picture was painted by a Texas artist, the late F. M. Holt.

Open house will also commemorate the first birthday of the Museum, which was opened to the public a year ago this month. Within the year many contributions of interest and value have been received. Interest in the museum has extended far beyond that of the local citizenship. Visitors from all points of the compass have complimented Big Spring on the start made along this line, especially to this educational and historical value.

Williams Twins Arrive By Auto

After attempting for a week to reach Big Spring by airplane the Williams twins of Dallas were finally forced to arrive by automobile, with their father at the wheel. Judge and Mrs. Noland Williams came in Sunday for the visit with Mr. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hathcock, who have been anxiously awaiting their arrival ever since the first telephone call regarding their flight.

So thrilled was the airplane company over the possibility of flying three-months twin babies that pictures of the prospective young travelers appeared in city papers captioned the first twins to have reservations made for airplane flight.

Every night Mrs. Williams had the babies ready, but weather forced cancellation of the flight. One night they reached Fort Worth by plane, but the foggy weather forced the plane down and Judge Williams had to come for them. Continued fog and bad flying weather interfered with successive dates. So Judge Williams put his family into a car, motored to Breckenridge and spent Saturday night there and came into Big Spring about noon Sunday. Mrs. Williams and the babies are planning to have a real visit here. Judge Williams expects to return to Dallas Tuesday.

Young Optimist

This four-months-old young man is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dabney and the little brother of six older Dabneys, the youngest of the six being 11 years older than Ray Lewis.

He is therefore important both because of the difference in age and because he was born on his sister Josephine's 19th birthday. Although he weighed only the average 7 pounds at birth, he now weighs 15 1/2 pounds, but that is not what he is grinning over.

He is grinning, his mother opines, because he likes town and the Bradshaw Sisters. This picture was taken on his first trip away from the house. He had been spending his time at the window watching the cars pass and craning his neck to follow them as they advanced and receded. Then he had a chance to go out and see how the world looked. Apparently he approves of it.

the calendar year basis, as is the case with most individuals. Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1934 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on form 1040A, a single sheet. Persons whose net income was in excess of $5,000, or regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents or sale of property, are required to use a larger form, 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer engaged in a business or profession from which he derived a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use the larger form.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business, on or before midnight of March 15, 1935. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

How Your Daily Herald Advertising Dollar Is Spent!

No Other Industry In Big Spring (with few possible exceptions) Spends As Great a percentage of their Gross Receipts In The City!

HERE'S ACTUAL FIGURES SHOWING HERALD ADVERTISING DOLLAR EXPEDITURES:

Salaries of Employees (All residing in Big Spring)	47c
Spent in Big Spring for materials, supplies and other commodities and services	21c
Spent outside of Big Spring for paper, ink, metal, etc.	20c
Set aside to replace wear and tear on Machinery and Equipment	12c
TOTAL	100 cents

The above figures show you not only how each advertising dollar spent by local merchants and professional people is spent . . . but also how the thousands of dollars received each year by the Daily Herald from National advertisers outside of Big Spring are spent.

No other business or industry in Big Spring can boast of a like amount of money that is brought to Big Spring, and spent in Big Spring, from the financial centers of the country as can the Daily Herald. The usual rule is for money to be taken from the smaller town to the financial centers.

Big Spring advertisers should look well to these figures before placing advertising other than in the Daily Herald. The Daily Herald offers advertisers a way to deliver their messages to prospective customers at a lower cost per person reached than any other medium . . . too, the advertiser has an opportunity of getting back a portion of the eighty percent of their advertising dollar which is spent in Big Spring by the Daily Herald and its employees! The Herald advertising department stands ready to assist advertisers in preparing their messages to prospective customers.

Chapter Seven WEDDING DAY

Sunday morning on the Lavery ranch found the Montana Kid moving about in his room with a slight limp, but whistling at the work of ironing his long body and his strong shoulders in white shirt and collar, in socks of black silk and in a fine blue-black serge, at last.

Even as he knotted his necktie on his wedding day, he kept flexing his feet a little in the softness of his fine calf boots because he could not tell what guns might look at him before this day was ended. It was what he most desired—an advertised appearance; and there were plenty of men in the world who might want to take advantage of it.

He would need three pairs of eyes with which to keep on guard this day, but that was what he had needed a great part of his life, and perhaps it was why he was waiting now.

His stay on the Lavery ranch had been a quiet back-water, a pause in the hurry of the current that was headed towards some wild and unknown sea. Now that he was dressed, he looked quickly at the brown face in the mirror and found that the blue-eyes were alert for danger rather than for happiness.

Gray-headed Ransome, the foreman, poured light and helpless into Sunday clothes, smoked a cigaret

The kid, instead of answering, looked at Ransome with eyes that had become the color of slate; then he picked up that pair of Colts with the extra long barrels and made them disappear inside his clothes with one of those swift, easy gestures which the eye could not follow very well. After that he went to Ransome and laid a light touch on his shoulder.

"Old Ransome!" he said.

"Yeah, old Ransome be damned," said the foreman. "What about old Montana, I'm asking?"

Many other things were going on at the same time, about the big Lavery house. There was Ruth Lavery in her room, being draped in films of white. She smiled a good deal until the girl who was

"Get off the ranch," cried Lavery the best of her friends said to her, suddenly, whispering "Ruth, are you coming because you're happy or just to please me?"

"I'm happy, of course," answered Ruth Lavery. "But I'm frightened. Something is going to happen!"

And in front of that house Richard Lavery senior was walking restlessly up and down, "Up and down, scanning the horizon from time to time as though he expected a sign of changing weather to roll darkly up on the edge of the world.

He turned almost expectantly towards a sudden rattle of hoofs that beat on the lower trail and then revealed a rider on a roving Mustang. It was a young fellow with a look of anxiety, as though wild Indians might be behind him. He threw himself out of the saddle and ran to Lavery.

"D'you know what's happened?" he gasped. "Jack Lascar—that valiant feller called Lascar that showed up in town the other day—'s gone and nailed a notice on the bulletin-board in front of the postoffice. I've copied it down!"

He pulled out a piece of paper and read aloud. Half the words were a gasping whisper, and half very almost shouted.

"Everybody notice that wants to—"

"Me, that is Jack Lascar, is going to stand out in the middle of the street in front of Hi Halley's blacksmith shop, at ten-thirty this same morning, and wait for the low yaller hound by name of Montana Kid.

If he don't show up then and there, you all know what kind of a skunk he is.

JACK LASCAR, "wait a moment," exclaimed Lavery. "Where's the sheriff? What does he mean by permitting open challenges in a place like Bentonville?"

"The sheriff's out of town," said the messenger. "Some of the boys have sent for him. He ought to be back by about ten-thirty. But I thought that you might want to know."

"Get off the ranch!" cried Lavery.

and watched his friend. "I'll be a great day," said Ransome.

"A long day," corrected the Kid.

"Any bozo might think," suggested Ransome, "that you wasn't gonna step out with a beauty that had a couple millions to float her."

"Might any bozo think that?" murmured Montana.

"If my bozo might think," went on Ransome, heavily frowning, "that you didn't give much of a damn about one of the prettiest girls in the world."

straight past him and, turning Richard Lavery saw Montana standing in the open door of the house. Above the white stiff collar his face looked brown and younger in an ever. Montana was rolling a cigaret, letting his fingers see their own way, while he said:

"You ride back and tell Jack Lascar that it's a little late for me to get his message, but I'm coming down there as fast as a good horse will take me. Tell him that I'll finish the job I left half done a while back."

He scratched the match, touched the flame to the crimped end of the wheat-straw paper, and took in a good, deep breath of the smoke. His eyes had an absent look, as though he were considering a further answer. But the messenger jerked his head, in understanding and ran back to his pony. It was something worth remembering during a life to be the connecting link between a Jack Lascar and a Montana.

When Montana got into the saddle and jogged around the corner of the barn he saw that he would have to face all the music in one great burst.

For on the veranda stood the assembled family down to the one-legged cook, with a shimmer of white for Ruth Lavery in the center of the group and her father tall and straight and forbidding beside her.

Montana rode straight up to them and pulled off his hat.

Concerning Lubbock's proposed transfer into District 3 of the Texas Interscholastic League, Collier Parris of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal says: "If the matter could be decided by District committee meeting, Lubbock would be as good as in that district. The fact that Ole Bristow, after all, has decided to stay at the helm of Big Spring High school athletics, would make it smooth sailing. Bristow has indicated to Coach Weldon Chapman that he would favor the move; he called the Lubbock mentor the other night and they discussed a playing date for 1935."

"It so happens, however, that the state executive committee, bound on the left by Roy B. Henderson, on the right by Roy H. Henderson, and backed up by Roy B. Henderson, exercises the sole and final right to tell a school in which district it may compete. Of course if the state committee is pressed by the schools and districts concerned, it helps, like any recommendations. If District 3 can scrape up a majority in favor of Lubbock's entrance, it would constitute that much help, but if the state committee sees the wisdom in shifting Lubbock to District 3, Lubbock will be shifted to District 3 regardless of San Angelo's or anybody's protest."

"San Angelo would be the hold-out. Now that membership in the district has been cut to three teams, San Angelo, because of its ever potential strength, stands a better chance to cop the district title. If the Bobcat institution could produce a team in proportion to the size of the city, it would be a consistent winner. Now that McCamey and Colorado have withdrawn, a lot of athletes who normally would attend McCamey and Colorado schools, were they in Class A competition, will find it convenient to move nearer the city limits of San Angelo."

Parris is evidently not well up on Henderson's activities as head of the Interscholastic League. If the majority of the District 3 dads so desire, Lubbock is as good as in.

Big Springs, we are sure, will vote in favor of the plains team. San Angelo is certain to fight the move, as Chester Kenley, of the Bobcat emporium listed numerous reasons why he did not favor a change at this time. Sweetwater is agreeable, so it looks like two against one.

A motion to petition the Texas Interscholastic League to permit one game over the 10-game limit in the event of a tie at the conclusion of the district football race was passed at the annual meeting of the District 12 executive committee at Waco Saturday. The present rule prohibits a player from participating in more than 10 games during a district campaign, which is tantamount to limiting the team to 10 games.

Steers Play At Forsan Tonight

The Forsan Buffaloes, runner-up in the Reagan county tournament at Big Lake, will be top-heavy favorites tonight when they meet the Big Spring Steers in the Forsan gym.

The locals just managed a one point decision in a game here last week. Brown will take his entire squad of some ten players.

SCHOOL CLOSING DOORS DALLAS (UP) - The little white schoolhouse at Prairie Creek, near Dallas, well of learning for kiddies of that rural community for 85 years, has at last closed its doors. "The faithful six," the last remaining half-dozen who attended, recited their last classes and the school house was locked up for good.

Citizens agreed that enrollment was not large enough to justify maintenance of the school. Buses will take the children to Pleasant Grove school not far distant.

May Play Double Header Each Night

Several teams in the city basketball league are in favor of lengthening the season of play. The season is scheduled to end on Feb. 26, but the managers consider that too early to wind up cage activities. If the schedule should be extended, each team would play six additional games. At the present time the teams are running neck-and-neck, and the lead usually changes several times each week. Play would continue up into March if plans are agreed upon by the team managers.

A proposal was made to play a double-header each night. Few are scheduled to play the CCC team on the high school court this evening at 7:30.

How much would you pay for a dollar bill?

THIS IS A TRUE STORY: It started with a half-serious wager, and it teaches a lesson. Two business men were visiting a famous resort. One offered to bet the other that he couldn't sell real dollar bills for 50c apiece. The other accepted the challenge and went to work. "How do you do," he said to a passing stranger. "Will you give me 50c for this dollar bill?" The stranger paid no attention. The salesman tried again, and again. But nobody bought - and finally he had to admit that he'd lost his bet.

All of which suggests that people like to know who the seller is before they buy. You can trust the merchants who advertise their products in this newspaper. The advertisements offer useful, dependable information about things you need and want. Read and heed the advertisements carefully and you will reap savings and satisfaction.

Injunction

As predicted in this column some time ago, the warring factions of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor finally have gone to court to ascertain which should hold the throttle.

J. W. Williams of the carpenters, who was made head of the building trades with National President William Green's blessing, has asked the D. C. supreme court to enjoin M. J. McDonough of the Metal Workers and his fellow officers to desist from functioning in their old capacities; to surrender the books and records of the building trades department, and to turn board poured kerosene on the flames with its report that only 5 percent of voting auto workers showed affiliation with the Federation of Labor. The Federation had taken scant interest in the elections—being sore at the board already—and claims the figures give the wrong impression entirely. If FDR insists that Wolman's group shall continue to function despite labor protests—as has been reported—it's 5 to 1 there will be a strike within two months.

Rougher

The senate's turn-down of the World Court didn't end the "international bankers" business—as you might have expected after opposition charges that the whole thing was one of their tricks. Most financial leaders thought it would be a good idea, but their convictions were decidedly less than passionate.

What interests New York chiefly is the effect of the heating on the president's control of congress. The best-informed sources discount the theory that it will lead to bigger and better rebellions. They believe rather than the senate—having asserted its independence in one direction—is likely to prove more tractable in others.

They point out that the World Court—like the bonus—has emotional overtones which set it apart from issues originating with the New Deal.

Another important angle is what will happen to monetary and trade negotiations with foreign powers. They had just about been sold the idea that it was safe to make agreements with FDR because he had congress eating out of his hand.

Now all this missionary work is undone and the ghost of the Wilson fiasco rises to haunt them again. This is likely to mean much rougher sledding for monetary stabilization plans.

Mud

The judiciary committee of the New York State senate pulled some old-time politics in choking off the child-labor amendment. The impression was given that the committee's vote not to report the bill was unanimous.

Insiders say that wasn't strictly true. The unanimity came in deciding not to record the committee's vote publicly. The minority advocates of the amendment were willing to spare their colleagues the embarrassment. They might want a similar favor themselves sometime.

The informed ascribe the committee's negative action to two factors. Most New York City Democrats in the legislature pay careful attention to the wishes of the church. Most Republicans pay equal attention to the desires of the upstate manufacturers. Those influences were strongly against ratification.

It might be different if the issue were forced to the floor of the legislature. The boys wouldn't care to stand up and be counted in the negative. But this is improbable. The name of any legislator who acted in such an unclubby manner would be mud with his mates.

Break-Up

Preparations have quietly been made to issue close to $400,000,000 in new securities under the auspices of the securities act after the gold decision is out of the way. Several leading corporations are involved.

Most of the money will be raised for refunding rather than expansion. However participation of big-timers should go far to break up the ice that has frozen the flow of capital.

Firm

New York got a kick out of the William R. Hearst-Will Rogers-Parther Coughlin combine against the World Court. The troveverant suggest they should really form a permanent firm to be known as the Hill-Willies—because the Will and Parther could guarantee to give Capitol Hill the willies on demand.

Sidelights

Frank Shaughnessy—favored candidate for Pecora's job on the Securities and Exchange commission—has been a member of the San Francisco Stock Exchange for about 20 years and its president for two terms. Kidding about the Hauptmann case cost a broker $25. He brought a ladder and chisel onto the floor of the exchange and the governors assailed him for unbecoming conduct. The Treasury will probably start offering baby bonds with its March 15th financing.

A big indoor track meet in Madison Square Garden attracts all the foot-racing stars of the past in the vicinity. The old-timers get together and make the lobby fairly buzz as they re-run the thrillers of the past, and the races become more exciting with each retelling.

On this particular occasion "Pinky" Sober, a grand little half-miler of a decade ago, was holding forth with a small group. Sober, naturally, was talking "track" and he waxed enthusiastic.

The final tryouts for the track and field team are to be held in New York city February 27. The First Maccabiah was held in Palestine in 1932. Over 5,000 athletes from 22 nations competed in a complete Olympic program, with the American contingent carrying off track and field honors.

Some 36 nations are planning to send representatives to the Second Maccabiah, promising to double the number of competitors.

lectured at Aix-la-Chapelle, he continued his efforts toward producing the motor of his dreams.
It was not until 1913, however, that he was satisfied that he had accomplished that and in that year established a motor plant at Madgeburg, Prussia, which the Junkers Motor Works at Dessau eventually grew. In view of the economic restrictions during the World War, the metal chosen for the Junkers first all metal plane was sheet iron.

Besides being a scientific inventor, Professor Junkers was recognized as an able organizer and an excellent business man. Upon the occasion of the 70th anniversary of his birth many honors were given to him, including honorary degrees from several universities, the High School for Applied Arts of Coethen made him an honorary senator as did the Polytechnic of Aix-la-Chapelle. The latter city as well as his native city, Rheydt, and Dessau, each accorded him the freedom of the city.

Professor Junkers was author of several volumes dealing with motors and airplanes and their construction.

How do you CHOOSE?

EVERY time you make a purchase you make a choice. Buying a certain product may be so much a matter of habit that you don't realize you are choosing. But the fact remains that in accepting one brand of goods you are always rejecting others; and the satisfaction you get from what you buy depends on the knowledge of quality and values that guides your selection.

How do you know which bed-sheets, or which roofing material, or which radio will give you service you require? You can't personally test everything you buy and compare it with all the other products in its class. But there is a way to find out which brand fits your needs.

The people who are most successful in their buying—who achieve the highest percentage of satisfaction from the things they own and use—are those who consistently read the advertising columns, and buy consistently advertised goods.

Choosing isn't just "guessing" when you follow the guidance of the advertisements.

YOU CAN DEPEND ON ADVERTISED GOODS. IT PAYS TO READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS
