

Actress-singer makes a name for herself

Hayley Treider credits Lazbuddie with a lot of her success, and positive character traits

Hayley Treider with her father Stan Treider and grandparents Ted and Adell Treider.

Hayley Treider is certainly blessed with a God-given talent. As an up-and-coming actress and singer, Hayley is beginning to make a name for herself in the theatre and film industry.

However, she credits her visits to Lazbuddie for a lot of her success and positive character traits. Now 25, Hayley has been visiting Lazbuddie at least twice every year since she was a young child.

Her father, Stan, lives in Lazbuddie along with her grandparents, Ted and Adell Treider, owners of Treider Electronics and Hardware Store.

Although she now lives in Manhattan, Hayley feels perfectly at home in Lazbuddie. Of course, she recognizes the huge contrast between the two locations, but Hayley loves to come for a "good family visit." She enjoys walking and running outside around Lazbuddie and the peaceful atmosphere of the small town.

Hayley's grandparents are proud to have her visit. They recently traveled to St. Louis to watch Hayley play Becky Thatcher in the play "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer."

Now, they are able to share their experience with folks who come in their store. Pictures of Hayley, Stan and her grandparents outside the theater where Hayley performed hang prominently behind the front counter of the store.

Adell comments, "We are so pleased that Hayley is doing what she always wanted to do. However, she always provides us a lot of opportunities to pray for her. There are many dangers when living in New York."

Hayley credits her love for acting and singing partially to her father. As she was growing up, her father would play guitar and Hayley would sing with him. She remembers being the first grandchild on both sides of the family and really loving the spotlight.

Hayley recalls, "When my sister was born, I really didn't understand how to share the spotlight. I remember thinking that everyone should still just want to see me."

These poignant childhood experiences unlocked a desire to perform in Hayley.

Hayley comes from a very talented family in general. Her father plays guitar, her mother plays piano and her grandfather plays several different musical instruments.

After a visit to Ted's "office" in the back of the hardware store, it was obvious that he really enjoys music as well. Not only did he have several guitars, but also a bass, mandolin, fiddle, piano and more.

With a quick glance around the room, the influences on Hayley's talent were obvious. Some older Lazbuddie residents may remember that Ted was also once in a band and his brother, Larry, is in the music business.

There is a great picture in front of the store of Larry playing with the Crickets after Buddy Holly died in that tragic plane crash. It is likely that Hayley has not only natural talent but also a little environmental influence as well.

Hayley has put her talent to good use. Not only is she playing the lead female role in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," but also has played the leads in other productions as well.

Last spring, she starred in "Double Falsehood," an off-Broadway production of the Classic Stage Company. Hayley enjoys classic theatre saying, "Shakespeare is my favorite. I really enjoy the process of understanding what Shakespeare is trying to say and then adapting a unique version for the stage. It is kind of like having to learn all the rules before you can break them."

Hayley describes her current play, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," as a spirited version of the play that "keeps you on the edge of your seat." She says the set is very demanding physically with a lot of movement and action in the play.

Hayley enjoys the cast and crew she works with on this play. She says, "We all worked together to do an honest portrayal of the play. We want to make sure the audience believes in the performance."

They are performing this play in four cities for this tour, beginning in Louisville, then St. Louis, Kansas City, and ending back in New York. Each location hosts the play for about 5 weeks.

After this play, Hayley's next ventures may be in TV.

'PIPs isn't just about basketball; it's about confidence'

"PIPs isn't just about basketball," says Farwell PE teacher and PIPs organizer Jana Perkins. "It is about confidence."

Jana, a PIPs instructor for 10 years, gets a little teary-eyed when she talks about the program. She believes in the power of the PIPs program to transform a shy, introverted student into a self-confident, talented competitor.

Jana thinks the best thing about the nationwide basketball skills program is that it allows kids who have never been exposed to the spotlight to get out there and perform and believe in themselves.

She relates the story of a girl who was so shy that she cried every time someone asked her to get in front of a crowd. Jana said the PIPs coach had to stand with her during the first few programs just to keep her on the court.

"By the end of our PIPs season, that little girl was performing with confidence. This confidence helped her to be more outgoing in school and develop friendships."

The PIPs program was started in 1987 by David and Brenda Land to help create an early interest in basketball, improve ball handling skills, improve general fitness and build self-confidence.

PIPs stands for "Players in Progress" and it provides kids from kindergarten through 6th grade a chance to perform basketball skills and tricks in front of a crowd.

Groups can form through churches, schools, cities, etc. Every year, groups around the country practice their basketball routines and perform locally.

For example, this year the Farwell PIPs performed at halftime for Farwell and ENMU basketball games. They will travel to Lubbock on Feb. 9 to perform with the Harlem Globetrotters.

Jana feels like she belongs to the PIPs family. "Once a year, PIPs hold a festival where hundreds of kids from around the country compete and show their skills. I love to attend the festival and see everyone. It is a very positive experience and full of energy."

Students compete at the festival with kids of their own ability level. They can compete individually or in groups but the point is to be rewarded for their hard work.

Cotton workshop set

The Parmer County Extension Service will put on a cotton variety/economics workshop at 10 a.m. on Feb. 7 at the Farwell Community Center. Extension Agent Benji Henderson said it's designed as a preseason update for area farmers. "It's still a ways off from spring planting, but now is a good time to study the many varieties of cotton now available and the economics associated with them," he said. "We've brought together a group of agency experts and company reps who are well versed with our region. They'll provide information necessary to help producers make those all-important decisions for the coming crop year." Three education units will be available for those with a private applicators license. Registration costs $10, which includes lunch.

 "The PIPs program teaches kids to be self-motivated," comments Jana. They want to work hard and compete at the Festival, which is held at Abilene Christian University each year. Jana is pleased with the response from Farwell youngsters to the PIPs program. "This year we have the biggest group ever – 57 kids joined! The program is in its 3rd year at Farwell and you can really see the improvement in the kids' skills." Jana adds, "I could not do it without the help of many parents and volunteers." She is grateful to all the helpers who stay after school to assist with practice or help at actual performances. "Our community really supports this program. We are building future players and hopefully building future people through this PIPs program." A PIPs stew dinner will be held on Feb. 3 from 5 - 7 p.m. at the Farwell Junior High gym and High School foyer. For complete details see ad elsewhere in today's Tribune.

PIPS Stew Dinner

Read discusses school test changes

A message from Farwell School Supt. Mike Read: The problem with standardized testing in Texas education is that it presumes "all things being equal." Or seen from the opposite perspective, the problem with school funding in the state of Texas is that it isn't standardized, but our testing is most definitely.

The gist of the problem, either way you look at it, is that you have to have it both ways: standardized testing and standardized funding. Not all of one and none of the other.

This definitely wasn't the problem back in 1984 when the inequity of Texas' public school finance system was taken to court. Back then, when the Edgewood vs. Kirby lawsuit ruffled feathers and caused tidal waves, the idea of students being measured against a statewide standard of performance was not a blip on anyone's radar.

In 1984, the problem was framed as one of basic inequity. There were poor school districts and there were rich school districts, and the difference had to do with property tax rates. The consequences of those differences were seen in the quality of education: rich kids got a better education than poor kids.

The push for higher expectations for the poorer school children came from community leaders and parents. It was the community itself that saw the need for equity and argued the case for change.

It's a decades-long legal battle that has yet to be settled. Currently, there are four lawsuits filed by various groups and coalitions. I expect these four suits to merge into one lawsuit aimed at providing a fair playing field for all kids. Bottom line, same fight, different round.

In 2001, Congress passed a law that claimed our education system would leave "No child left behind."

It was designed to close the achievement gap with accountability (tests), offer more flexibility, and provide choices for students as to where they attend school, etc. In doing so, it mandated standardized testing to set a bar for students, teachers, and school performance. Then it used that standard for determining incentives and rewarding success.

The new STAAR (State of Texas of Academic Readiness) and the EOC (End-of-Course) tests will cost the state of Texas an estimated $95 million annually. Currently, school districts will end up footing the bill. This is the new reality: If you standardize the expectation but not the funding, it is unfair!

The TAKS (Texas Assessment of Knowledge and Skills) test is being phased out with this year's sophomores and juniors. So, in essence, the 10th and 11th graders must take and pass TAKS in order to receive a high school diploma.

Students in grades 3-8 will take the STAAR tests while this year's 9th graders will take the STAAR End-of Course exams. The end-of course exams are course specific tests. For example, a 9th grader who is taking Algebra I will take an EOC Algebra I test.

This year's 9th graders will be the first class to fall under the new guidelines. By the time this year's 9th graders finish the 11th grade, they will have taken 12 end-of-course exams. The STAAR/EOC tests will have a 4-hour time limit whereas the TAKS was not timed. Fair? Equitable? You be the judge.

I encourage all parents to visit the Texas Education Agency website and view the info in regards to the STAAR/EOC. The website is: <http://www.tea.state.tx.us/student.assessment/staar/>

At Farwell, we are taking every step to insure all our students are prepared for our newest round of standardized testing.

She has already played a guest role on Law and Order SVU, and recorded the lead on a TV pilot called "The Drama Dept."

She describes film as "a beautiful art form" and would love to do work there as well. Hayley believes that establishing a career takes time and she has been "standing in line waiting for a turn." Now may be the perfect time for a big break in Hayley's career.

She has a lot of support. The Treider clan has been supporting her from the beginning.

Hayley also credits Cherry Jones, a veteran actress whom she met in Tennessee, with helping her reach her goals. Cherry began mentoring Hayley in high school and assisted with her decision to attend the University of North Carolina School of the Arts - where Hayley earned a degree in acting.

Hayley feels this premier arts college recognizes and trains talent.

"Acting is a craft that you need to learn," comments Hayley. "You need to learn technique just like any other profession. And you need to learn the business side of the career as well."

Hayley has been accepted by a top talent agency in New York and is able to showcase her talent. More roles are opening up for the young actress.

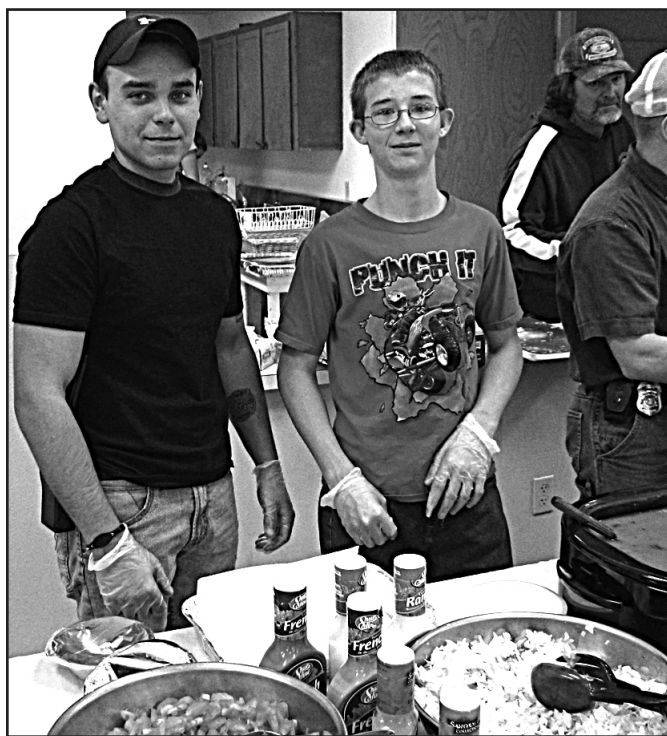

"I am so excited that I am able to do what I always wanted to do," confirms Hayley.

As for her Lazbuddie family, they cannot wait to see Hayley in more roles. Her father travels to see her perform as much as possible. Ted and Adele also express the desire to watch Hayley as she excels in her career.

Adell adds, "Of course, we think she is just wonderful." No matter where her acting career takes her, Hayley Treider knows she has great support from Lazbuddie.

If you would like to know more about Hayley's acting career, visit her website at www.hayleytreider.com. It lists her past performances and dates for current engagements.

Or you can also just stop by Treider's store in Lazbuddie. Ted, Adell and Stan would be happy to fill you in.

We now have the FLAVORx system.

The FLAVORx Pediatric System customizes the flavor of prescription and over-the-counter medicines. With our special Bitterness Suppressant, Sweetening Enhancer and a blend of natural and artificial flavors, we add a little fun to the process of getting better while masking the unpleasant taste that normally discourages your child from taking medicine. One important thing to keep in mind.
While our kid-approved flavors will help the medicine go down, there's no mistaking them for candy. That means you'll have peace of mind knowing your child will still understand the difference between better-tasting FLAVORx-enhanced medicines and real sweet treats.

many lots in town, worked on grading and preparing the dirt streets for application of wrap, installed appropriate drainage systems, and finally they have done all the site preparation for the Community Center.

All these activities have saved the city tens of thousands of dollars. I would personally like to thank all the city employees for the hard work they do every day to improve our quality of life. THANK YOU.

We also continue to retain Jana Pitcock as our city manager. She does a great job with the finances, managing the city and the employees, and applies for grant opportunities.

All of the projects I have mentioned, plus many others, have all been done with a balanced budget, something we can be proud of.

I feel as though in the past few years we have grown by leaps and bounds. I know change is hard, but feel that in a reflective view of the past three years those changes are positive and will continue to create prosperity to the community and those that reside there.

Bovina's future is bright. I believe in Bovina and all those that I serve and I know that our continued perseverance will bring blessings to us all.

Many things will be happening in the next few months with the community center. Any assistance will help to lower the cost, so if you are asked or if you feel lead to help in any way, please do so because this is our community, and whatever we put into determines what we get out of it.

Please remember to pray for our community, your neighbors, and rain.

Thank you for allowing me to serve as your Mayor.

Infrastructure worked on

(Editor's note: This is part of a series of civic employees explaining their jobs or giving an update on city workings. The following is from Mayor Stan Miller.)

I would like to begin with some of the infrastructure projects we currently are undertaking.

Construction on the community center should start by this month. I hope you are as excited about this as the City Council is. We have built up the road bed and applied wrap to 1st Street to improve the street for travel during wet weather. Wrap will be applied to cover the rest of the existing dirt streets that eventually will be seal-coated to achieve pavement on them.

Public works has worked with the citizens to clear many lots in town to improve property. Subsequently we have experienced some growth in the past year or two. The City is in pursuit of some additional affordable housing to accommodate the growth.

New radio-controlled water meters have been installed citywide with technology that is more precise ... resulting in smaller water loss.

Our police department has been proactive by performing neighborhood patrol to keep our citizens safe. In other areas, a rise in crime has been experienced but it is this approach that I feel has been successful to protect our citizens. The officers have done community policing to connect with the citizens through various activities supported by the area businesses.

Our Public Works department has done a great job this past year. They have taken on many projects, and saved the city money by completing these tasks with our own employees.

Some of these are
1) Installing the new radio controlled water meters that were purchased with grant funds. The labor served as a match which served as the city's match on the grants resulting in financial savings.

2) They have cleared
