

by Dolph Moten

We mean not for this column to become a week-by-week report on the interpretation of 1958 football rules. However, we got carried away last week on the rule that prohibits offensive blockers from using both elbows. . . and allows them the use of only one.

While it's questionable as to whether that rule can be enforced to the pleasure of the fans, it's certainly not the most important rule change which is going into effect come September and football season.

Most interesting rule change, and the one which will change the outcome of more games, is the new extra point(s) scoring system.

In years past, of course, a team was allowed a chance to score an extra point after a touchdown. The ball was placed on the two-yard line, squarely between the goal posts, and the offensive team had the option of passing or running the ball over the goal line or place or drop kicking the ball between the uprights. If either of these options was done to the satisfaction of the officials, the offensive team added one more to its point total and went happily back upfield to kickoff.

This has been changed. In 1958, the ball will be placed on the three-yard line, not the two. For one point, the offensive team can place or drop kick the ball through the goalposts. . . same as always. But, if the ball is successfully carried or passed over the goal line, the team gets a bonus of two points.

Moving the ball back that extra yard will make it more difficult for even the most-powerful, hardest charging back to bull his way through the line of scrimmage and across the goal line. This was hard enough to do from the two-yard line when the defense set up a 10 or 11-man line to stop such a thrust.

On the other hand, the extra yard will matter but little to most place kickers. Especially high school place kickers. In the first place, few are accurate enough for a yard to make any difference one way or another. In the second place, the vast majority of place-kicked extra points start their downward descent far past the goal posts.

Still another thing to consider is that many Class A and B teams used the run or pass play on their extra point attempts even before there was a bonus for such.

We daresay local football fans will see few, if any, attempts made to kick extra points in 1958.

Without a kicking specialist, the chances, we feel, of running or passing the ball over are as good as kicking it between the goal posts. So, when the odds are even why try to make one point when you can go for two?

And the same holds true for the team which is fortunate enough to have a good kicker if that team happens to be behind. We'll venture to say that most of the kicking of extra points will be done after a team builds up a lead that it isn't in danger of losing.

Frankly, we don't know why the new extra point rule was put into effect. What good it will do or how it will benefit the game is a mystery as far as we're concerned. Football people probably know the answer and we'll be trying to find out what it is.

We do know that the coach of the first team that gets defeated by an 8-7 score is going to be unhappy with the rule and himself. . . and feel foolish besides. And we're going to be among those who feel sorry for him.

Anyway, there'll be more football game scores which will add up to even numbers in 1958 than there were in 1957.

For whatever that's worth.

We're nothing but proud.

After last week's Liners suggested that a woman's organization have a bake sale in connection with Farwell's August 30-Appreciation Day, that on-the-ball home demonstration club at Oklahoma Lane is making plans to do just that.

Mrs. C. W. Bradshaw, secretary of the progressive group, reports the sale will be in Farwell Piggly Wiggly. It will begin about 9 a.m., Mrs. Bradshaw thinks, and will last "as long as we have anything to sell."

All the details of the sale haven't been worked out—the club has another meeting between now and time for the project. However, cakes and pies will be sold and possibly other things.

This will be a wonderful added attraction to A-Day which has the potential to be a lot of fun and to attract a lot of people.

We're glad Oklahoma Lane HD Club's bake sale can be added to the list of activities for the day.

BETTER POSTAL SERVICE — Juanita Garrett, left, and Carrie Hamrick, Farwell post office employees, pose with a portion of the 72 new boxes which were installed over the weekend. They expect the bulk of the new boxes to be rented in a short period of time.

5 Negro Airmen Escape Injury In Wreck Here

Five Negro airmen from Cannon Air Force Base escaped serious injury when their car crashed into a tree near here early Sunday morning. The accident occurred five miles east of Farwell about 3 a.m. Sunday, according to the report of Sheriff Chas. Lovelace, who investigated. An estimated $400 damage was done to the car, a '54 model Dodge. Cause of the wreck was attributed to a blowout. The men involved in the wreck were musicians, Lovelace says, and were returning to the base from an engagement at Lubbock when the accident occurred.

New Mexico Man Charged With DWI

A New Mexico man, who turned his car over on Highway 60 near Friona last week, was charged with driving while intoxicated. William Bobo was fined $100 and costs in county court of Judge A. D. Smith Wednesday. He was apprehended by Highway Patrolman Kenneth Maxwell, who investigated the accident.

Don Ford To Be Among TCU Grads

Don M. Ford, Texas Christian University senior from Farwell, is scheduled to receive his bachelor's degree at summer commencement exercises at the university Friday evening, August 22. A physical education major, he is the son of Ray S. Ford of Farwell. TCU vice-president, Dr. D. Ray Lindley, will give the commencement address.

2 Texico-Farwell Youths Charged with Burglaries

Two Texico-Farwell youths, charged with law-breaking offenses, are in jail.

Eldon Thatcher, 17, is in Parmer County jail charged with burglary. Alfred Doshier, 19, is in Curry County jail at Clovis charged with forgery. However, Doshier is also charged with burglary and forgery in Parmer County.

Thatcher was picked up Friday in Texico. Doshier was apprehended earlier in the week in Farwell. Both arrests were made by Parmer County Sheriff Chas. Lovelace.

Both Thatcher and Doshier have signed confessions admitting breaking into three Farwell businesses and stealing from another.

Doshier pleaded not guilty to a charge of forgery in district court of Judge E. T. Mensley Jr. in Clovis Tuesday. Bail for both youths has been set at $1500.

They confessed breaking into

Swimming Party For FHS Students, Faculty Thursday

Water games, diving contests, and swimming races for both faculty and students will be a part of the activities at a pre-school swimming party for Farwell High School students and faculty next Thursday. Prizes will be awarded winners of the contests.

Everyone is urged to attend the student council-sponsored event at Hillcrest Pool in Clovis from 8 to 10 p.m. Rides will be available at the football field at 7:30 and participants will form a car parade to go to the pool. No admission will be charged.

72 New Boxes In Post Office

Many Farwell post office patrons ran head-on into a state of surprise and confusion early this week.

Remodeling of the interior of the post office over the weekend changed location of boxes, added new ones, and made the inside of the building look completely different.

"Some people even came in, looked around, decided they were in the wrong building, and started to leave," Postmaster John Zahn says.

So as to be a minimum of trouble to patrons and post office employees, the work was done Saturday afternoon and Sunday. Charlie Hromas was in charge of the work.

Zahn feels the new arrangement will make for better utilization of the space in the building.

A total of 72 new boxes was installed. Also added were new slots for mailing letters, packages, and papers.

Zahn expects the additional boxes to be rented and in use in a short time. "We had many boxes which were being used by more than one family," he says, "and several people wanted different size boxes."

Vote Interest High In Second Primary

Election interest continues to run high in Parmer County. With the second Democratic primary scheduled for Saturday, August 23, 80 absentee votes have been cast or applied for, County Clerk Hugh Moseley reports.

This figure rivals the total number of citizens who voted absentee in the first primary last month. That number was 115.

Ordinarily, interest in the second primary could be expected to be less than in the first. However, this year's county judge race, coupled with a commissioner's runoff in Bovina precinct, has kept interest at a high pitch.

In the judge's race, Loyde A. Brewer, Friona, who lost but escaped the runoff in the first primary, is making a strong bid for the position now held by A. D. Smith. When the votes were tallied after the July 26 election, Brewer lacked 13 of having a majority over Smith and the third man in the race, Wesley Hardesty. Brewer's total first primary vote was 937 as compared with 543 for Smith and 406 for Hardesty.

In the Bovina commissioner's runoff, incumbent Charlie Jefferson and C. L. Calaway are battling for the votes which went to Third Man Vernon Estes in the first primary. Jefferson and Calaway were

Texico Schools Start 25th; Farwell's To Begin Sept. 1

Farwell Schools' 1958-'59 school year will begin September 1.

Members of the school board decided on this starting date at a meeting Monday night. Faculty is complete, Superintendent Jack Williams reports.

One teacher, Mrs. Lucille Brittain, was signed to teach in the sixth grade. This filled the last vacancy on the staff. Mrs. Brittain taught in Portales last year.

Though Monday, September 1, will be the first official day of school, students will be registered Friday, August 29. Buses will run in the morning and students will be registered and returned home before noon.

For the teachers, the year's activities will get underway Wednesday, August 27. Teacher orientation will be that day and instructors will be familiarized with their duties.

On the 28th, Farwell teachers will join others in the county at Bovina for a training program. It will be an all-day meeting.

In other action of the board at this week's meeting, school district tax rate was set at $1.91 per $100 valuation. This is an increase of 41 cents over 1957's rate, Williams says.

Reason for the increase is the school's building and remodeling program. At the time bonds were voted for the improvements tax payers were assured that the rate would not exceed $1.93.

Also, the board hired lunchroom workers and school bus drivers.

Working in the lunchroom will be Mrs. Gladys Hromas, supervisor; Mrs. Annabel Hillock, Mrs. Betty Stewart, Mrs. Ruth Reed, Mrs. Dorothy Hubbard, Mrs. Thelma Black and Mrs. Dee Owen.

School bus drivers will be H. R. Crook, foreman; John Lovelace, Bobby Lesly, Morris Reed, Gerald Christian, Phillip Berry, and Jackie Stancell.

Official reading of the budget for the school year will be August 28 at 8 p.m. in the high school, Williams says.

New Mexico Classes Will Resume Earlier

August 25 will be the first day of school for Texico youngsters, but other details concerning the opening activities were unavailable since Superintendent Agrie Jones is out of town.

Faculty members total 22 since Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wilkinson of Swink, Okla., were hired to fill two vacancies.

The Tribune hopes to have a complete rundown next week.

District Judge Sentences Four

Four cases were tried in district court at the courthouse in Farwell Thursday.

Special District Judge Bill Street, Littlefield, passed sentence on four individuals who were indicted by grand jury last month. Charles Shouse, who pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. He passed a forged check at Piggly Wiggly in Farwell. Shouse has a previous criminal record, Sheriff Chas. Lovelace reports.

Ignacia Guardiolo, who pleaded guilty to burglarizing the home of Billy Billingsley at Lariat, was given a three-year probation sentence.

Receiving the same sentence was Sebero Castillo, who pleaded guilty to passing forged checks in Friona.

Cloys Stanberry also pleaded guilty on a forgery charge and was sentenced to five years of probation.

In addition to the sentences, those tried must pay all court costs and restitution of the stolen money and property. Others who were indicted by the grand jury last month will be tried at a later date, Sheriff Lovelace says.

Band Practice Now Underway

Over 30 members of Farwell High School band reported to Mrs. Shelby Jobs, director, for the first day of practice Monday afternoon.

Attendance at the sessions was described as "fair" by Mrs. Jobs at mid-week. Vacations and work have caused attendance to be less than it would otherwise.

Don Lovett, drum major, has been attending a two-week band school at West Texas State College in Canyon. He will return at the end of this week.

Practice sessions are from 4 to 6 p.m. each weekday. They will be continued until school begins. One hour is spent playing music and the other is used for practicing marching.

This year's senior band will have 23 members from last year's junior band. Mrs. Jobs expects to have 68 in the senior band after school begins.

Farwell Baptists Schedule Revival

Rev. Sidney Cox, pastor at Farwell Baptist Church since August 1, will do the preaching at the church's annual summer revival. The meeting will be from August 24 through August 31.

Walter Hardage will lead the singing. As well as being the annual summer revival, the series of meetings will have a get-acquainted-with-new-pastor theme.

Services will be conducted twice daily, the pastor announces. Evening worship service will be at 8:30. A prayer meeting at 8 will precede worship service. Time of the morning worship service hasn't yet been decided, Rev. Cox says, and that time will be announced later.

Junior leaders responsible for the special program which will include a style show and various musical presentations are Misses Gale Hadley, D-Rene Danforth, and Mary McDaniel.

Following the program will be a game session for parents. Refreshments will be served. Mothers of members are asked bring ice cream and cake, says Mrs. Danforth.

Mrs. Doran Attends New York Conference

Southern Union Gas Pays Farwell Taxes In Excess of $514

During the first half of 1958, Southern Union Gas Co. paid more than $514 in franchise taxes to City of Farwell.

This report came this week from Elmer Teel, Southern Union manager here.

Teel explains the amount paid to the town was derived from the company's gross receipts for the period of January 1 through June 30, in accordance with the terms of Southern Union's franchise to distribute natural gas in Farwell.

Lions' Broom Sale September 12-13

Texico-Farwell Lions will stage their annual broom sale September 12 and 13. Announcement of the dates of the promotion were made by Lions President Paul Wurster at a regular meeting Monday night in City Cafe.

Also, club members agreed that Texico and Farwell school officials should notify the club secretary - treasurer, Hurshel

Harding, of students who need, and can't afford, glasses. It was felt this would keep students from buying glasses and sending the bill to the Lions Club.

Harding reported $60.50 remained in the club's summer youth program fund. It was decided to leave that money in the fund to be used toward financing next year's program.

MR. AND MRS. DAVE DANIEL

Miss Angela Williams Marries Dave Daniel

Jade greenery in a tiered arrangement interspersed with seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers decorated the Farwell Church of Christ Sunday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Angela Williams and Dave Daniel of Lubbock.

Fan-shaped arrangements of white glads and asters completed the setting for the double ring ceremony performed by Ebb Randol, minister of the church. The bride is the sister of LeRoy Williams and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Daniel of Lubbock.

Wedding music included "Oh Promise Me" sung by Miss Sally Porter of Lubbock and "The Lord's Prayer" sung by Joe Humphrey of Lubbock. "Yours Faithful and True" and "My God and I" were sung by a chorus from a Lubbock church.

Honor attendants were Miss Bobbie Wicker and Mike Sherrod, both of Lubbock. Bridesmaids were Misses Mary Ann Walls and Jeanette Hughes, and serving as groomsmen were Joe Ross and Harvey Hancock, both of Lubbock. Candlelighters and ushers were Jackie Dean Williams, brother of the bride, and Gary Lynn Sherrod of Lubbock.

All the bride's attendants were attired in street-length gowns of white and aqua with puffed sleeves and aqua cummerbunds. They carried cascades of white gladiolus accented with aqua tulle. Dressed similar to the bridesmaids, Sandy Gulley, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She carried an aqua tulle basket with garlands of elf roses.

Jackie Wayne Williams, nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer.

Given in marriage by her brother, the bride was gowned in white lace over satin. The ballerina-length skirt was pleated at the waist line. A lace jacket featured a Queen Anne collar and long fitted sleeves. Her elbow-length veil of nylon tulle was held by a crown of seed pearls and artificial flowers.

Her bouquet, carried on a white satin covered Bible belonging to Miss Loretta Samek of Lubbock, was a cascade of stephanotis accented with white tulle and centered with a white orchid. She wore a blue garter and a penny minted in the year of her birth was in her shoe for luck.

The maid of honor registered the guests at a reception in the Randol home. The aqua and lace table was centered with aqua asters and white elf roses flanked by white candles. Miss Glenna Ruth Davis and Mrs. LeRoy Williams served the cake and aqua floating punch.

For a wedding trip to Ruidoso the bride changed to a white chemise of embroidered organdy. Her accessories were red and her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet.

A graduate of Farwell High School in 1957, the bride has been employed in Lubbock at the Citizen's National Bank. Her husband will enter Texas Tech as a junior this fall. He is an army veteran.

They will live at 2722 29th St. in Lubbock.

ON MY DESK is a booklet titled, "It's Your Town," which was compiled and distributed by West Texas Utilities Company. This publication is actually a complete plan designed to aid in the development of communities. While reading this material, I could not help but feel that these ideas are of the utmost importance to us here in Farwell.

If we want Farwell to grow, we must have a plan. According to the material, there are five definite factors in developing our town. Basically these factors are: Desire, Organization, Work, Money and Time.

The desire must stem from interested citizens who have the enthusiasm to take positions of leadership. The other factors necessary are left up to you.

Do we want Farwell to grow? Assuming that the majority of citizens, like myself, plan to live their entire lives here, there must be a natural desire to see progress and prosperity in our area. It is possible to conceive that this desire is somewhat hidden or retarded by a sense of complacency. By this I mean the attitude that things are going well enough without any special effort. There could also be individuals who could not bear to leave the air conditioned comforts of television entertainment for all the community progress in the world.

And there might be those who will take no interest in any endeavor, unless it has a direct effect upon them, either good or bad. Until these attitudes are revised, a plan for development is useless!

We need a rude awakening... and it may come sooner than we expect. We have already had a taste of it in losing businesses and failing to attract others. The opportunities are pressing. At this very moment, there are persons considering the feasibility of organizing a vegetable processing operation. There are other business and industrial enterprises considering our town as a possible site for location. This could mean employment for many new families as well as a capital investment of many, many thousands of dollars.

What have we to offer them? What organization can we send them to? Can we direct them to the proper sites and are they available? Will they go to another community that has a plan?

If you will think about this idea, if you will talk about it with your neighbors and then if you will act, Farwell will grow. We must create the desire, then organize our efforts. We must give unselfishly of our money and our time and we must work. If we do not the future of Farwell is threatened. It's your town. It's your job... to help develop your community.

Build A Stronger, Richer Life . . . Worship Together Every Week!

You know the hymn—"How firm a Foundation?" Of course you do. But it's more than a hymn. To many it is a way of life.

The foundation is faith. Faith that gives every day a shining new quality. Faith that provides a strong shelter in time of need. Faith that sustains you in sickness and trouble, that makes life a great adventure, truly worth living.

One does not find faith in a vacuum. You find it as a member of a family, as a member of a community. Worshiping together every week, with those you love, with others who believe as you do—gives you a closeness, a strength to carry you through with hope and courage.

You can build a stronger, richer life—on a firm foundation of faith. Worship together this week . . . every week!

WATER DOWN THE COTTON ROW is a sight that will become more and more rare within the next week or 10 days. Agricultural advisors recommend it end entirely by August 20 in the Parmer County area. Extensive studies have shown that irrigating after that date won't pay off in the long run.

Prospects Bright For Bumper Cotton Crop This Year

"Cotton over the county is certainly looking good, and prospects for a bumper crop are bright," reports County Agent Joe Jones this week after a survey.

This is supposed to be a "catch-up" year for Parmer County cotton growers. They had a good crop in 1954, a poor one in 1955, another good one in 1956, and another poor one last year. Thus, the pattern has been set and farmers hope to forge ahead with a good season for 1958.

In a very short while the cotton fleahopper worry will be behind us and small squares will not have time to mature anyway," says the agent. "The big job ahead is to keep what fruit is on the cotton plant and mature it out to insure the best grades possible."

It is at this point that much debate and temptation arises among Plains cotton farmers each year. Nearly always they are sorely pressed to continue irrigating their fields past what is usually considered as the "frost deadline" of August 20.

The cotton plant calls for water and the farmer wants to irrigate it. It is a simple illustration of human emotion. The cotton is hurting, and the farmer is tempted to irrigate. During this time of the year, Plains cotton farmers often find it better to "go fishing" than to stay around the place and watch their cotton withering down under the hot August sun.

However, statistics accumulated over a long period of time indicate that any farmer who irrigates his cotton past the recommended shut-off date is gambling—and the odds are against him.

His gamble might have paid off in 1954 and 1956. But the loss he sustained by the practice of late watering in 1955 and 1957 more than took whatever gain he realized in those two years of mild, warm falls. "Chances are good that we will receive four inches of moisture in August and September by rainfall, so to insure the best possible grades, keep water off of cotton after August 25—preferably earlier," says Jones.

"This will give the cotton a chance to mature out before frost is expected. In years past everyone has seen what late watering did when coupled with an early freeze or wet fall. The law of averages will be with you if you never water cotton after late August. Keep a close lookout for the cotton bollworm, lygus bugs, and cotton leaf worms. These insects can hurt right up until the crop is mature. The lygus will not damage large bolls but can cause small bolls to fall off."

Defoliant and desiccants are recommended if the crop reaches maturity before frost. Applications before 60 percent of the bolls are open usually lowers the micronair (fiber fineness). Avoid harvesting cotton while it is wet.

"Last year we had the poorest cotton ever so let's do everything possible to prevent such a condition this year," encourages Agent Jones. "Good grades are likely to go at a premium for there is a good supply of poor quality cotton left over for the market to draw from."

To play safe, farmers should control insects and stop irrigating before August 25 if possible. "August 15 to 20 is considered the best time for the last water to be applied to cotton far north," emphasizes the agent.

Reports just before Farm and Home went to press also indicate the presence of the insects in some of the sesame of the area.

Chinch bugs have the same effect on sesame that they do on grain sorghum so far as lowering yield and quality is concerned.

Dealers have indicated that they believe that toxaphene or other insecticides can be used for control in sesame, just as in the case of grain sorghum or cotton.

A formula which the Texas Sesame Seed Growers field man for the High Plains recommends is two pounds of toxaphene, and one pound DDT (the 2-to-1 formula often used for cotton), applying at a rate of three pints per acre.

«The High Plains Farm and Home»

False Chinch Bug Hits Grain Fields

Parmer County area farmers, with a whopper grain sorghum crop in the crucial heading-out stage, are anxious over the appearance—often in damaging numbers—of insects in their fields.

The insect has been identified as the false chinch bug, not exactly a newcomer to area grain growers. It has made its appearance within the past two weeks.

"This pest can cause varying degrees of damage," reports County Agent Joe Jones, "depending on the infestation and the stage of the grain. If enough of the bugs feed on a head as the grain is forming it can cause the head to 'blast' or not have grain in it.

"If the grain is in the milk or soft dough stage the bugs can materially reduce the yields by causing the grains to not mature normally and to be very light."

Jones says the chinch bug can be controlled at times with only spot treatment, but that where the infestation is severe planes are often used and spot treatment is impossible. Entomologists have reported good results with 1½ pints to 1 quart of Parathion (2 pounds a gallon), 1½ pints to 1 quart Malathion (5 pounds a gallon), or 2 to 2½ quarts Toxaphene (6 pounds a gallon). Some other insecticides may give satisfactory results, also.

"The residual effect of any of the above cannot be expected to last in killing quantities for an extended period," cautions the county agent. "Norris Daniels of the Bushland Experiment Station reports Parathion and Malathion still give satisfactory kills after nine days, and he feels they might last a few more."

Jones also warns about toxic effects: "From the best information I can get the Pure Food and Drug Administration has not approved Parathion for use on grain sorghum. It has been approved for many vegetables and other crops and the feeling by most people is that it would be satisfactory if applied at this time of the year."

The agent asks farmers to keep in mind that the Pure Food and Drug agency sets tolerances for insecticides that feed and food can contain, in parts per million.

"If more than this is found, food or feed can be confiscated," he points out. "Be careful about eating vegetables from areas treated or where drift may get on vegetables. Forage from treated areas should not be fed livestock being finished for slaughter or dairy animals for several days, depending on the insecticide used."

For best results treat infested fields after heads have opened up and the false chinch bug is found on the head instead of in it. Usually this happens after the sun has warmed things up some, says the agent.

THE PARMER FARMER

by W. H. Graham Jr.

Something learned from others is always well remembered. Speaking for ourselves, we believe that some of the best instruction we have ever received has come from others we have visited in our occasional travels across the country.

During the past week, business called us to the Big Bend area of Texas. To and from there, and in fact, right in the Big Bend country, we saw many things of interest to a persons who appreciates lessons on better agriculture.

This "lesson" we speak of came to us in the form of a special serving at a breakfast we attended during the convention of the West Texas Press Association.

On our breakfast plate were a couple of large slices of just-ripe, just-ripe cantaloupe. Tucked under the edge of our plate was a white card: "CANTALOUPE—compliments of the M. L. Todd Cantaloupe Company—Tri-State Produce Company—Pecos, Texas."

We thought that was real interesting. So we anxiously awaited a chance to talk with Joe Pouns, publisher of the Pecos Enterprise, who brought the melons down to feed the newsmen.

Pouns says passing out free cantaloupes to gatherings such as ours is a very common practice, and one that yields great rewards to the growers. The advertising value of such gestures far exceeds the cost of the melons and the trouble involved to do such a thing, he reports.

The Pecos publisher indicated that growers from his area have been carrying on ambitious produce merchandising for years. He was, in fact, surprised that we were unacquainted with the famous "Pecos Cantaloupe."

We did admit having seen the word "Pecos" stamped on the end of some melons that found their way to our home earlier in the season, but so far as remembering that area as being synonymous with cantaloupes—we just didn't.

Promotions such as the one we witnessed fit in very well with the Pecos cantaloupe men's plans, Pouns says. Several of them specialize in selling "gift packages" to companies and individuals who in turn give them to others as a friendship or public relations gesture.

Although it is obvious that a grower could not expect to move his crop in tremendous volume such as might be attainable on the open, helterskelter market, this is the thing we have tried to point out in previous columns about raising the value of raw goods with intermediate finishing, packaging, or marketing steps. The Pecos cantaloupe growers sell these gift lugs at a price which exceeds considerably what they would expect for the same number of melons on the open market.

Hard to do? Yes. It takes planning, effort, and probably some extra money. Impossible to do? Of course not. Farmers who raise even perishable produce such as cantaloupes are proving that it can be done. Pouns didn't know how many acres of cantaloupes are grown around Pecos. He thought it might run a couple of thousand or better, but insisted this notion was probably not too accurate. The Pecos growers are few in number, if they do have an acreage of this size. There are only about 10 of them.

That compares with about 40 for the 600-plus acres being grown in the Bovina area this year. Of course, the Bovina deal is an entirely different one.

You might say that our story about the Pecos cantaloupe promotion is an isolated incident. However, we can prove it is not. In Pecos and Reeves Counties we saw lots and lots of irrigated cotton—most of it hip high.

Quite a bit of this cotton is of the Egyptian type, having a longer staple length. Most of this type is Pima, although there is some Acala and other varieties. The Pima growers of deep

West Texas, Southern New Mexico, and Arizona got together two years ago and "seeded" from the mess that the upland growers have gotten into with relatively high fixed prices and acreage controls to restrict production.

They asked the USDA to chop long-staple supports, which the government did. The Pima producers then began an intensive campaign to educate the textile industry and other fiber users on the advantages of their product. Sales went up tremendously. Prices on the open market rose above support levels and Pima stopped going into the government loan program.

Now, we are not naive enough to believe that America's agriculture, as big as it is, could get along without a semblance of a farm program. We need regulation, we need protection, for the nation's agriculture—in certain amounts.

However, there is still plenty of opportunity left for certain groups or segments to get together for a common goal and to undertake projects such as did the Pecos cantaloupe people or the Pima growers.

This Letter Makes News

(Editor's note: The following is a mixture of fancy and fact. We print it because it presents a different perspective of High Plains farming.)

Dear Mom and Dad,
Well, here I am down on the irrigated Plains. I say "down" on the Plains—really, I'm up. Where I am right now (Parmer County) I am over 4,000 feet high. To us, that's just like being in the mountains! I'm sure glad that you encouraged me to come down and see this part of the country before I go back to college this fall. I had about given up hope of studying agriculture and getting into farming when I finish school, but what I am seeing down here is renewing my enthusiasm for what I can probably do better than anything else.

Sue is very pleased with what we have seen, too. She says it isn't true at all that this part of the country is barren and bleak. Sue says it's really inspiring in its bigness, its almost limitless horizons. She is very glad that she has come. She came in on the train at Amarillo and Uncle Ned brought her down yesterday. Although the folks down here are just as proud of their farmland as we are back in the Midwest, there is still apparently plenty enough to go around. What these folks think of as being "settled up" is really wide-open to us!

I have been talking with some real estate people the past two days, and they can show me just about anything that I might be looking for in the way of size, location, improvements, soil, slope, and the like. Depending on how choosy the buyer might be, you can get irrigated land priced all the way from about $175 an acre all the way up to $400 or even $500. There is a big range in prices, and this is a farmer's shopping paradise if I ever saw one.

When I finish school next spring and Sue and I make that big step and get married, I believe that we can have things all worked out. It is a relief to know that a young couple can still buy a farm without having to mortgage their souls like we have to back in Illinois now. What's more, we can't find anything really attractive back home even at ANY PRICE, and you know it. There're just too many people who want more land.

Folks tell me that all of what we are seeing has come about in just a few short years. That is hard to believe. They say that if Sue and I had visited here about 1950 that things would have been different. I can hardly imagine what it must have been like. The big crop then was wheat, but in good years the row crops (mostly milo maize) would pay off too.

What's more, the natives tell me a lot more changes are in the making. They say that the development of irrigation is about complete, and that the wells that are drilled in the next five or ten years won't be of any significance compared with what has already been done.

They say that the big changes that are to come have to do with cropping and land use. Acreage-wise, grain sorghums (milo) is still the big crop down here. But feed grains have been so cheap in the past few years that there is big pressure to grow other things.

Most everybody wants to grow upland cotton. There is no telling how much cotton the irrigated High Plains could produce if it were not for allotments. However, because of controls, other crops must fill in.

I just wonder if you can imagine five million acres of land in one piece—all irrigated. It's hard to, I know. Well, that is what they have down here, and there isn't enough cotton to go around.

Like you suggested I should, I have looked at several different places on the High Plains. Hale and Lubbock Counties get all the publicity, it seems. I guess that's because they've been in the irrigated farming business so long, and also because they have (especially Lubbock) large cotton allotments.

Phone PO 3-7721
"Graduate Landscape Designer"

But I am convinced that the biggest opportunities can be found in some of the other parts of the irrigated Plains, where there is still lots of developing to be done.

As you can see, I'm writing from Parmer County this week. So far, this county has impressed me the most of all. For one thing, the hydrologists we saw in Lubbock said Parmer County has more irrigation water under it than any other on the Plains.

There are about 2500 irrigation wells here, and the average well can pump a little over a million gallons of water a day. There is a lot of interest in water conservation and better application methods, but even the pessimists say that these wells could run for probably over 25 years before they run out of water. Can you imagine that much water just a couple of hundred feet away!

Since irrigation is the lifeblood of High Plains farming, I think that is the most important thing.

Secondly, the land here in Parmer County is really terrific. These Plains soils have tremendous natural fertility. They aren't worn out like so many other places. If a farmer will take care of his land from the start, the soils of the irrigated Plains can outproduce anybody else, anywhere, bar none.

What has impressed Sue has been the kind of people that are out here. She says that there have been so many stories told about Texans and westerners in general that she was a little sick of the whole thing.

But the people of the High Plains aren't all cowboys and Indians by a long shot, and they aren't all self-assured braggers, either. They're just honest, friendly folks who are here to stay and welcome anybody else who wants to join them.

Most people out here enjoy a really good standard of living for agricultural people, and I sometimes wonder if they really appreciate it. They have so much machinery and so much of their work has been mechanized that they nearly all get along pretty well.

For the hand labor that is still to do, a lot of them hire either native Latin Americans or imported "braceros" (Mexicans) who are willing to work for low wages. That is a big advantage that they have over us.

Well, this letter is getting too long and I shouldn't get so carried away. You said you wanted to know how the crops look this year. They really look terrific to me, although I've never been here before and so am not too sure of my judgment.

However, most of the farmers I have talked with agree that prospects are very good this year. They are about two or three weeks ahead of conditions at the same time last year.

The milo is all heading out. I have never seen so much feed. They say that some fields will produce up to three tons of grain an acre. Imagine that!

Of course, I don't know much about cotton, but those I have talked with say the fruit set is the best this year it has been since 1954—maybe better. If the fall is dry and warm, and if a sudden cold spell doesn't come too early, a lot of this cotton will make over a bale and a half an acre. No wonder

Queen Contestants Now Number 10

Ten candidates had entered the Parmer County Farm Bureau Queen Contest up to Saturday afternoon, according to Mrs. C. V. Potts, contest chairman. The contest will be held in the Friona School Auditorium Friday evening, August 22, at 8.

Candidates, to qualify, must be daughter or sister of a Farm Bureau member, and between 16 and 22 on September 22. Two or three more entries are expected, to make a total of 12 or 13, on the basis of two from each town, and one from each rural community. Farwell allowed Lazbuddie two, with Farwell entering only one.

Those entered and their sponsors are: Mary Ann Stacy, Hub, sponsored by Fleming and Son Gin; Harriette Lou Charles, Bovina, sponsored by Sherley Grain Co.; Marilyn Potts, Rhea, sponsored by Rhea Grain and Fertilizer; Jonnie Hand, Friona, sponsored by Friona Battery and Electric; Ruby Lee Grubbs, Lakeview, sponsored by Lakeview HD Club;

Carol Hukill, Oklahoma Lane, sponsored by Oklahoma Lane Farm Supply; Juanita Range, Farwell, sponsored by Helton Oil Co.; Robbie Boggess, Friona, sponsored by Herring Implement Co.; Donna Redwine, Lazbuddie, (sponsor not known yet); and Rosemary A-gee, Lazbuddie, sponsored by Clay's Corner.

Winner of the county contest will receive a check for $100 and be eligible to compete in the District contest in Lubbock in September. All candidates will receive token gifts.

Mrs. Roy V. Miller of Friona will have charge of the musical program and entertainment for the contest, and the public is invited to enjoy the evening, says Mrs. Potts.

Judges will all be from outside the county, and will try to select the queen most likely to go beyond the district contest to the State Contest in Corpus Christi in November.

Joe Ed Sullivan, service agent from Brownfield, will be master of ceremonies.

A lawn mower can be a helpful and faithful servant. But it may turn into a dangerous machine unless safety precautions are observed, warns W. L. Ulich, extension agricultural engineer.

Do you wish you knew how to sew? Or wish you knew some sewing short cuts?

If so, I am planning a beginners dressmaking workshop during September. The first meeting will be Tuesday, August 26, at my office in the Court House. Purpose of the meeting will be to plan where to meet and what materials and equipment will be needed. Even if you aren't interested in the course, perhaps you know someone who is. You need not be a member of a home demonstration club to attend.

When the price of fresh fruit strains your budget, try stretching the fruits with canned fruit cocktail. Fresh strawberries, raspberries, apricots, cherries and other summer fruits combine well with the five luscious fruits from one can. Fruit cocktail saves preparation time, too.

Ripe olives are a festive touch for casseroles. Cut the shiny black olives into wedges or use the pitted ones to add color and texture to scalloped potatoes and ham; macaroni and cheese with whole kernel corn; or tuna-noodle casseroles. Any of these makes a satisfying main dish for a meal.

When the family clamors for a cool drink, give them a choice of chilled whole fruit nectars—a summery flavor such as pear, apricot or peach. Good and so good for them.

For an easy summer dessert, chill canned cling peach slices or halves in the freezing tray of your refrigerator until they are partially frozen. Arrange the peaches in serving dishes, top with a scoop of lime sherbet and sprinkle with flaked coconut.

For an oh-so-good raisin sundae topping, try this. Melt 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces in 1/2 cup hot evaporated milk. Then stir in a pinch of salt, 1/3 cup coarsely chopped light or dark raisins, 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 or 3 tablespoons water. Serve this luscious sundae sauce warm or cold over vanilla ice cream.

IRRIGATION WATER APPLICATION STUDIES are made with interesting devices. This one is placed in the row in the field, and water flows through the orifices, indicating the rate. Holding the equipment is Bob Crozier. Beside him is Robert Zetzsche. Both are SCS technicians.

SCS Runs Water Tests

Many Parmer County farmers are interested in making better use and getting better distribution of their irrigation water. The technicians of the Soil Conservation Service in Parmer County are running tests on various types of soils to obtain information on this important subject.

Irrigation trials were conducted last week on the Bruce Parr farm in the Black community. Parr's land is of the Pullman type—a very tight soil. His land is deep, finely-textured, with a slowly permeable subsoil. The field tested had long rows —2400 feet. The orifices used to check the amount of water running down the row were set 200 feet apart in three different rows of varying slopes. Grain sorghum was being irrigated. The SCS plans to run as many trials in the District as possible in order to collect data. It will be published in Farm and Home as soon as it can be assimilated.

Irrigating tight land has always posed a problem for area farmers. They have a difficult time getting adequate penetration of water, especially if the land slopes very much.

On the Parr farm, the technicians are using the "cutback" method to try to solve the problem. They are releasing from 20 to 25 gallons a minute for six hours, and then cutting back to about eight gallons a minute for 18 hours to complete the set. More even penetration is obtained in this way, and waste water is kept to a minimum.

NEWS FROM THE FARM BUREAU

By RAYMOND EULER

Senate Bill 4071 was pretty well scuttled by the Senate Agricultural Committee last week. It is believed, however, that House Speaker Rayburn may be inclined with enough urging from farmers, to request that a rule be placed on the bill, bringing it up for discussion and passage by the House yet. Farm Bureau is urging that every man interested in avoiding the drastic cuts in cotton acreage in 1959 send a telegram to Mr. Rayburn, urging him to bring SB 4071 to the floor of the House for discussion and passage. If this can be done, it will be the best forward looking piece of legislation farmers have had for a long time. You should be interested in this. Send a telegram.

One hundred eighteen Texas Farm Bureau Counties had sent in more new and renewal memberships by July 31 this year than they had last year. Included in the list are Parmer County and five others in District II.

Texas Farm Bureau President, J. H. West, was one of three men who received honorary Lone Star Farmer Degrees presented by FFA delegates at their state convention July 17 in San Antonio.

Texas Farm Bureau delegates will vote on a resolution intended to protect landowners whose land is annexed to cities, in convention in November. Portions of the resolution text are: "Be it resolved that incorporated towns and cities annexing any additional area shall not collect taxes from the annexed area until all city conveniences are provided." Also, "We oppose the annexation of rural areas to cities without the majority vote of the people residing within the area to be annexed."

On legislation again: We noticed in one day's session of congress that 42 pages were devoted to eulogizing late congressmen and senators who were, no doubt, good men. However, in the same day's session, only 15 pages were recorded on discussion of a farm program. We doubt if this divi-

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

Assistance was given recently to several district farmers by the Soil Conservation Service. Most of it was to improve irrigation systems in order to conserve water. We are glad to see that more and more farmers are interested in the conservation of their water. Among those that were assisted along this line were H. C. Wells and C. D. Anderson. Anderson farms the C. W. Dixon land in the Rhea community.

Areas that require dirt moving to improve water application were staked off on the Gilbert Kaltwasser and Fern Barnett farms.

Glen Owen is in the process of building an elevated ditch on his place.

A basic conservation plan was written by the SCS on the Carter and Chisum land in the Rhea community and on C. E. Moore's farm in Lazbuddie. Moore is planning to do some leveling and then seed to grass for improved pasture.

A new cooperator with Parmer County Soil Conservation District is G. C. Taylor Jr. of Frona.

Increase Yields and Profits With The

MARTIN HARVEST HOARDER SYSTEM

The MARTIN SYSTEM is a Drier & Storage Unit all in one. Yet it costs little more than ordinary storage facilities.

Large Farmer or Small Farmer - You can follow the 4 key steps to profits with A MARTIN HARVEST HOARDER SYSTEM.

1. Harvest early—at 33% moisture content. Gain 10 to 15 more bushels per acre because your crop doesn't stay in the field to dry, where it is at the mercy of the sun, wind and rain.
2. Dry with low cost forced air. Drying with forced air is cheap because the air is free and it takes only pennies a day to run the fan. Dry without danger of fire.
3. Store in the same bin. Just turn off the drying switch and your crop is in storage. No expensive handling equipment or labor. Condition the grain at any time by turning a switch.
4. Sell or feed more, better crops. Sell No. 1 corn or grain and you are free to sell any time of the year on better markets. Whether you feed or sell, the greater profits will soon pay for your Martin system.

Complete Meals

from "extra" food made possible with my food freezer!

says Mrs. Marvin Shurbet, PETERSBURG, TEXAS

"Frozen meals stretch our food dollars, and give me more free time to enjoy my family and our guests."

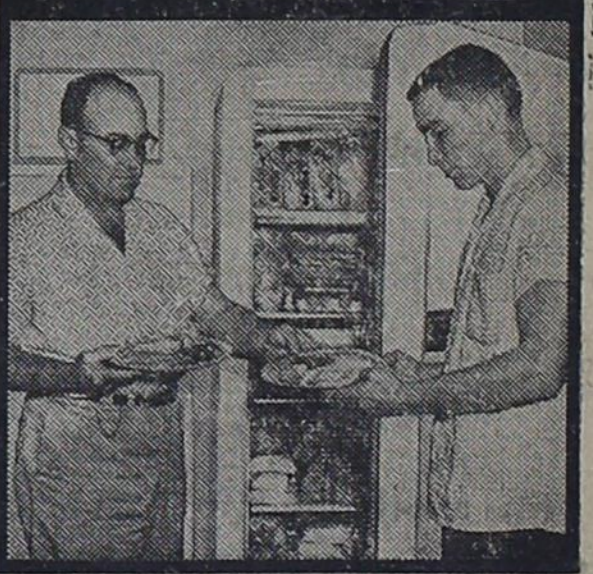

What housewife can always measure exactly how much of each food her family will eat? Even the most exacting woman will occasionally have vegetables, meats and desserts "leftover." It's a shame to throw good food away and no one really likes to do that. Well, Mrs. Shurbet has solved that problem. Here's what she says, "When I cook more than my family eats at a meal, I put remaining servings on foil, divided plates, seal in SARAN WRAP, and store in my food freezer. If additional portions are needed to make complete dinners, I simply add them from various meals."

*SARAN WRAP - A trademark of the Dow Chemical Company, Midland, Mich.
