

Border Banter

By Mike Pomper

Should rules sometimes be bent?

I was talking with a fella the other day about rules and regulations and how important they are -- but there are times they should be bent.

I realize that statement won't sit well with some readers who believe that once a rule is made it ought to be stuck to, come heck or high water.

I guess I'm liberal in the ways of regulations should be followed because I try to include what I call the "human factor." We all make mistakes and there are a lot of times we must bend rules for that reason. And it seems the longer we're around, the more errors we make.

I always remember the case I was involved in that brought me around to the point of believing rules should be bent sometimes. It happened back in the early 1970's in Indiana.

Here's what happened:

In a Michigan City, Ind., cemetery was a small area dedicated to veterans who had died in our nation's wars. This special area was maintained by one of the local American Legion posts, who did an exemplary job in its upkeep.

During the Vietnam War, a local man was killed when his truck went over a land mine, if memory serves me correctly. And in the last letter he had sent his folks was a note that if he should be killed in Nam, he would like to be buried in this special cemetery area dedicated to vets.

But it wasn't to be.

This man, who attended grade school and high school in Michigan City, lived with his folks about 1,000 yards across the state line in Michigan. His father worked in Michigan City, which is on the state line, too.

What happened was that the rules governing this special dedicated area specified that in order to be buried there, the vet must live in Indiana. And this man lived in Michigan.

There were some folks who believed the rule should be bent since he was considered a local person. They pointed out that he was killed while fighting for his country and that his last request should be honored. If he lived 1,000 yards closer, he would have been in Indiana.

But the American Legion post in charge of the dedicated area ruled that he didn't qualify because he lived out-of-state and that was that.

I personally felt the rule should be bent in this special case. Since I had recently ended my Army tour, I felt very strongly about this.

How do you fee? Are there times rules should be bent? Or should they be stuck to all the time?

There's a man in Farwell you ought to congratulate the next time you see him: Tom Nichols.

Tom recently went out to the Farwell Country Club and shot a spectacular 77.

Isn't that amazing?

One of the proudest moments in my life was last week when I shook his hand. Just think of it: I shook the hand that held the clubs that shot a 77. I hope it rubs off.

Anyway, Tom is a very modest fellow who doesn't like to blow his own horn. If I didn't write something about this miraculous feat, no one would know, would they? So I just had to.

And this isn't even a Rumor of the Week!

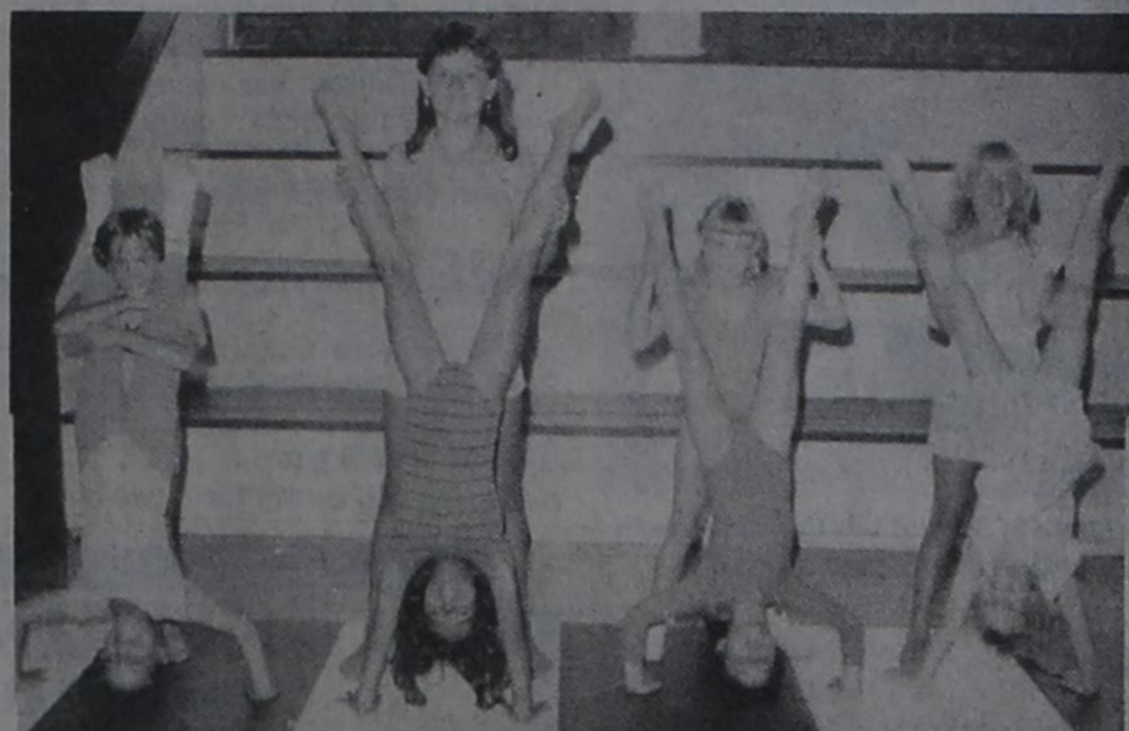

That was a heckuva gully washer that we got last Friday night. I was coming back from Lubbock about 9:30 p.m. and I wasn't sure my car would make it home, due to the flooded street conditions.

I had to drive down the middle land of the highway after reaching Farwell and still splashed water in all directions.

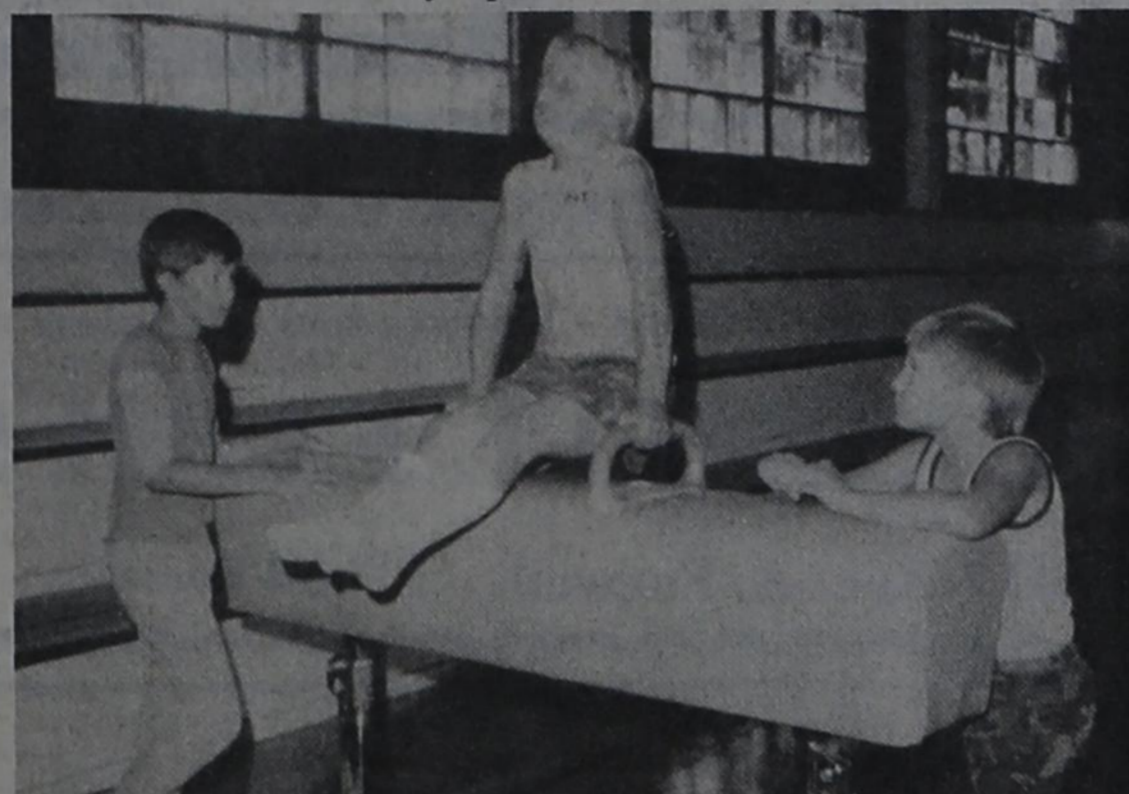

Pudge Rose is back at Muleshoe, where he will be director of pharmaceutical services at the hospital again.

Rumor of the Week; There's a good chance, we're told, that the railroad tracks between Texico and Farwell will be repaired, using top-notch materials, this summer. This is one rumor that I definitely hope will come true.

Second Rumor of the Week: Rex Cumpton as new Farwell athletic director?

Texico gymnasts to present program

Several Texico students are enrolled in the summer gymnastics program sponsored by Texico Schools and instructed by Paul Leighton.

During June, the gymnasts worked to develop body awareness and control, coordination and flexibility while learning many new stunts. These stunts were incorporated into routines utilizing various apparatus as the balance beam, side horse, vaulting, parallel bars, tumbling and uneven bars.

The gymnasts will present their routines for friends and family June 26 at 7 p.m. MDT in Texico's Gym No. 2. No admission will be charged.

Dawn Lassiter practices on the balance beam.

Gymnasts participating will be Pat Chumley, Jessica Gutierrez, Jessica Hadley, Mandy Helmer, Dawn Lassiter, Josh Lynn, Jennie Morris, Kristi Neie, Shea Osburn, Larry Pierce, Lisa Pierce, Christopher Rink, Donann Reed, Brandon Schauf, and Natasha Shaw.

Shrine dedicated

Above, Fr. Godfrey Blank blesses the shrine of St. Joseph during the dedication June 22 at San Jose Church in Texico. Afterwards, a fiesta followed with music provided by the San Jose Choir and the Mariachi Group from Our Lady of Guadalupe of Clovis. Local children performed Spanish dances. A noon meal was served to all attending.

City marshal hired

Texico council attacks well-water problem

The Texico City Council took action Tuesday night to try and head off a potential serious well water problem.

And the council hired a city marshal, David Wheeler, of Logan, N.M. The city had been without a marshal since the dismissal two months ago of Fred Hamner.

Wheeler, 46, is expected to start work by July 8. He will be moving his mobile home here as soon as possible. He and his wife Elva have two sons, Bobby, 13, and Reed, 10.

Wheeler has served as a police officer in Clayton and was Cimarron police chief. In Logan, he has worked as a security agent. He is a licensed Baptist minister.

Councilman Steve Chancy said he checked on Wheeler's background and received very favorable reports.

Wheeler will receive $14,500 a year salary plus a uniform allowance.

The other main topic discussed by the council dealt with its water wells. Here's the situation:

Texico has had three wells pumping water for its residents. About six weeks ago, one went out. Now it appears a second well may run dry within a short time, perhaps a month.

If Texico is reduced to one well, there will be sufficient water to use in the home -- toilets, sinks, etc. but it is probable that rationing would go into effect for outside use, such as watering lawns.

The recent rains have been very helpful but the council fears that with increased irrigation usage by farmers, the water level will drop quickly and only one well will be left.

Economic development unit meeting flops

The June 19 organizational meeting for an economic development unit for the Twin Cities turned into a flop.

The only persons to show up at Farwell City Hall were Farwell councilmen Curtis Smith and Martin Kube; Frances Kube, chairman of Farwell's beautification committee, and State Line Tribune publisher Mike Pomper.

Since no one had a key to the front door, no meeting was held.

No one from Texico attended. Councilman Doyal LaRue had called earlier that day to say he couldn't attend due to other commitments.

In May, the Texico City Council had voted unanimously to participate in the unit, which would seek economic growth for the Twin Cities. And the Farwell City Council voted unanimously June 16 to also participate.

Realizing the seriousness of the problem, the council met with Lee Tillman, of Eastern Plains Council of Governments. He advised them on how to seek an interest-free loan from the state for digging another well.

Texico will try to have its application for a loan on the agenda of the state's Board of Finance meeting July 15. Tillman will represent the city at that meeting and it's likely at least one councilman also will attend.

The Board of Finance has the authority to grant loans in cases of emergency. A new well is estimated to cost between $50,000 and $60,000.

It's been about eight years since the last time the city has received a state loan. It was for the well at KKR Park, and the loan has been repaid.

Once approval is received, it would take about two weeks to get a well operational.

Meanwhile, the council also voted to advertise for professional engineering services for the project.

In other business, the council:

--Instructed City Attorney Duane Hamar to write letters to property owners at 501 Wheeler and the corner of South Garwood and Ave. D about weeds that need cutting.

--Agreed to have SPS bill the Texico-Farwell Little League through the city. This way, the baseball league can receive a reduced rate. The league will then reimburse the city.

--Approved the planning and zoning ordinance. It's needed before the new planning and zoning commission can meet. The new commission was invited to meet with the council July 8 at 6:30 p.m. MDT to have a joint work session.

--Discussed various problems at the city pool with pool manager Alta Jesko, including chlorination, toilets and litter. The problems will be worked on.

--Heard Billy Hammitt say that he needed a CB for the city water department pickup. Councilman Bryan Kube said the fire department had an extra one he can use.

Texan naval ship to be commissioned 1839: THURSDAY, JUNE 27. The 170-ton schooner-of-war Viper arrived in Galveston today. She is the second new ship of the refurbished Texas Navy, in pursuance of an act of Congress approved Nov. 4, 1837. She will be commissioned as the San Jacinto. She carries four 12-pound cannons of medium length and a long brass 9-pounder mounted on a pivot.

The first ship of the new Navy, the steamer Zavala, was commissioned last March. Before then, the Republic had been entirely without naval protection for more than 18 months, after the loss of the Invincible and the Brutus in late August, 1837.

The San Jacinto was built by the Baltimore shipyards of Schott and Whitney under contract with Frederick Dawson of Baltimore, and is the first of an order of six ships placed November 13 last year. Dawson received two bonds of the Republic of $280,000 each, at 10 per cent, maturing December 1, 1839, or redeemable for sterling bonds amounting to $520,000.

Two sister ships of the same tonnage as the San Jacinto are under construction for delivery later this summer. They are the Asp and the Scorpion, expected to be commissioned as the San Antonio and the San Bernard. They will be armed with six 12-pounders of medium length, and a fortified long 12-pounder on a pivot.

Also under construction is a 400-ton brig, the Colorado, for delivery in October. She will carry 16 18-pound cannons of medium length. She is expected to be commissioned as the Wharton, in honor of the Wharton brothers, Colonel John A. and William H., both of whom died recently. They served the Republic in a number of capacities.

The remaining two ships under construction are the Texas, expected to be commissioned as the Austin sometime next December, and the Galveston--also currently being commissioned next spring as the Archer, in honor of Dr. Branch T. Archer, presently active in Texian affairs. The 600-ton Austin will be the fleet's flagship, full-rigged, with 18 24-pound cannons of medium length and two medium 18-pounders. The Archer will be a sloop ship to the Wharton.

1841: SUNDAY, JUNE 29. Judge James Webb, Texas Minister Plenipotentiary and Envoy Extraordinary to Mexico to negotiate a treaty of peace, today reported to President Mirabeau B. Lamar that his mission has failed.

Area girls basketball team raising funds

The area girls' basketball team that won the New Mexico AAU State Tournament June 8 in Clovis is raising funds for its trip to the nationals.

The girls leave July 17 for the National AAU Tournament in Roanoke, Va.

The 12-and-under team consists of players from Farwell, Texico, Nazareth, Three Way, Happy, Kress, Sudan and Muleshoe. Fund-raisers are being held in all the communities to raise the $10,000 needed for the trip, said Coach Larry Gregory.

The local players are Amy Chadwick and Denise Gonzales, of Texico, and Amy Murray, Becky Barnes and Misty Stewart, of Farwell.

As a major fund-raiser, the team mission has failed.

Judge Webb was appointed by the President on March 20. He has previously served Lamar as Secretary of State. After making necessary preparations, he sailed from Galveston on the Texican war schooner San Bernard, and reached Veracruz on May 31. He addressed a letter to the Commandant General informing him of his mission and requesting permission to land, with safeconduct to Mexico City. The Commandant replied courteously that he had no authority to grant the request.

Judge Webb then addressed a note to the British Minister to Mexico, Richard Pakenham, requesting his intercession. He included the essential documents re-

The Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas is helping with the give away, said Gregory.

Tickets cost $10 each and are available at the Farwell fireworks stand. Also, players will go door-to-door selling tickets.

Saturday night, the team is scrimmaging at Happy, with a fundraiser ice cream social planned afterward. On July 11, a fundraiser dance is set in Muleshoe.

Last Monday, the team scrimmaged a team of 7th and 8th grade boys from Sudan and lost by a point.

Hutchins attends seminar

Daniel Hutchins of Farwell attended the Texas Farm Bureau Citizenship seminar at San Angelo June 16-20.

During the week, Dr. Steve Pratt spoke on "Freedom in the '80's." Dr. Sam Zakheim, a Christian from Liberia, spoke on "Understanding the Middle East." At the age of 15, he was sent to America to get his doctorate.

S.M. True Jr., president of the Texas Farm Bureau, and Warren Newberry, executive director of the Farm Bureau, answered questions. Bill Caraway of Lubbock, spoke on "Living the American Dream." He graduated from Clovis High School. He said, "We have the opportunity and we need to know how to use it." He is a senior at Texas Tech.

Dr. Wayne Matthews is a "Family Life Specialist." He spoke on citizenship and self esteem.

Hutchins said, "It gives you a lot to think about. The speakers were very informative. We learned about the American economic system."

To qualify for a scholarship that the Farm Bureau offers, you must

Why school costs are going up

BY JOHN GRIGSBY
Farwell School Superintendent

Curriculum and personnel are two factors that must be considered together.

The "1-22" class size requirements at this time have not had an impact on our District. Yet, with just a couple of students in any of our lower grades (K-2), we could be forced to hire a teacher and add a classroom. At two points in 1985-86, we reached 21 students in these grades. So, not only does total enrollment affect funding, up or down, but one or two students at any primary grade level could affect costs dramatically by forcing the addition of personnel and classroom space (which we do not have now).

Let me give you an example. If there are 22 students in grade 2, another student at that grade level could force the teacher/classroom situation. If we lost a 7th grader and a 9th grader and gained two 2nd graders, we would receive the same funding, yet have to add a classroom and a teacher.

So, costs go up with no increase in funding. This may sound farfetched, but this is more than a possibility in Farwell, it is a probability. In two years, these requirements will be raised to include grades three and four, to further add to the situation.

Add to this the probability of pre-kindergarten for four-year-olds who are on free and reduced lunch or do not speak English and we have more space and personnel costs -- with only marginal funding. There is certainly no assistance for the classroom that will be added.

New library standards require an additional aide to be added, simply to meet minimum accreditation standards. If we do not meet these standards, our state funds can be reduced or stopped. Not only are there new personnel requirements, but also new standards on the number of books that must be available, with no state funds provided.

Testing requirements have tripled. Each student at each grade level must be tested on a norm-referenced test yearly. This compares the students' performance against a national average. Add the TEAMS test which must be given for all students in grades 1, 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11.

The TEAMS test tells how the District compares to the "essential elements" required by Chapter 75. We cannot forget to add the tests required to document mastery. While they are not required to be computerized, the fact that they must be given so often at each level requires it. There is no way to utilize the information for diagnostic purposes, remediation and planning if the results are not collated by computer.

We now come to advanced placement. In 1986-87 any student can request to take a state approved test to see if a course or grade level can be skipped. This would greatly encourage early graduation and the resulting loss of state funding based on a loss in ADA. (For your information -- each student in ADA equals $1,846 in state aid.) We currently have an ADA of 431.

Tutorials and Compensatory (remedial) requirements are next. Districts are required to offer tutorials and remedial courses -- with no increase in funding. We feel that these are beneficial, but we would like to see special funding if special requirements are made.

As to counseling, the new testing requirements given at various times over the year requires a fulltime counselor where a parttime counselor had been sufficient. There is no way that a parttime person can meet state standards and satisfy our local needs. There is no funding whatsoever for this (other than the ADA).

Not only that, but we must now pay for the state required TEAMS tests -- a new situation. When the TEAMS tests were first required, the state absorbed the cost because it was state mandated. Now, because of the expansion of the tests and the new costs, districts are required to pay the costs.

Sheriff's Report

Here's the weekly report from Parmer County Sheriff Bill Morgan.

On June 18, Lorenzo Sierra, 37, Clovis, was arrested by the Texas Highway Patrol on a charge of driving while intoxicated, subsequent offense. His bond was set at $5,000. His case is pending before the Grand Jury.

On June 19, Alfredo Holguin, 30, Friona, was arrested by the Texas Highway Patrol on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He appeared before County Judge Porter Roberts and pled guilty. His fine was $250 and court costs and three days.

On June 22, Samuel Montoya, 38, Hereford, was arrested by Friona Police Department on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He appeared before Judge Roberts in county court, pled guilty, and was fined $250 and court costs and three days.

On June 22, Paulo Ramirez, 27, Friona, was arrested by Friona Police Department on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He appeared before Judge Roberts and pled guilty. His fine was $250 and court costs and three days.

Pay increase request topic

The Parmer County Commissioners Monday received a request from Friona Justice of the Peace Frances Euler seeking a pay increase due to heavier workload.

The commissioners voted to tell Mrs. Euler that she "would have the same consideration as other county employees in respect to salary increases."

In other business, the commissioners voted to have High Plains Pest Control spray the courthouse lawn trees for insects.

These are the Facts

Roosevelt General Hospital now has a safe, low dose x-ray technique that can detect breast cancer up to three years before you can feel it, and long before it is detectable by conventional radiology. When it is most curable.

Preventive healthcare is something everyone should be practicing, no matter what your age. And preventing a problem costs much less than curing one. A mammogram (done by a female technologist) with a radiologist's interpretation costs $90.00 and can be done at the patient's request. Not much to pay for a big peace of mind.

A Texico Neighborhood Watch meeting was held June 19 at the home of Ann Cooper.

Texico has been divided into four districts. Each district has a chairman. Three chairmen have been appointed: Carl Hahn, district 2 north; Ruthie Maule, district 1 north; and Rhonda Foreman, district 4 south. The chairmen will be appointing block captains.

"Anyone in these districts can volunteer to be a block captain," says Brenda Sims. If interested contact Brenda at 482-9415 or Ann at 482-9174.

Medical forms were approved. Residents will be contacted by block captains for completion of these forms for the fire department.

There will be a meeting July 10 at 7:30 p.m. (MDT) at the Texico Community Center. They will show a film on "Home Safety." It is hoped the packets can be picked up that evening also.

"It has been reported there have been a lot of attempted thefts and burglaries in the Texico-Farwell area. So block captains should be aware," said Brenda.

Turners work on geneology

Sandra Turner, of Oklahoma Lane, flew to San Antonio, accompanied by her daughter, Polly, and her son, Richard, during the first week of June. Theirs was a most memorable vacation.

They had planned their trip to visit Sandra's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Martin of San Antonio, to coincide with the 100th anniversary celebration at Ebenezer Evangelical Lutheran Church at Maxwell, about 60 miles east of San Antonio. This church holds very special memories for Sandra, because she was baptized there, confirmed there, married there, and had her first child, Lucretia, baptized there.

During her visit with her parents, she got to put up with two major catastrophes - flood and train derailment, both of which made the national news. Sandra said her parents' home, being located in a high part of the city, was never treated by the flood waters, but when the train derailed, they could see the smoke clouds from their home.

They did not try to take a closer look at the accident site, because the fumes were poisonous.

Sandra and her children were joined by her husband, Charles, after they had been in San Antonio for 10 days. The next part of their journey would take them to Yokum, Texas, where Charles' family was having their 5th annual Turner reunion. About 110 family members attended.

Sandra took her geneology book along to share with family members at the reunion. While there, she was able to get 25 more families to complete their individual record sheets. She was also able to add a number of old family photographs to her records.

Sandra began work on the geneology of Charles' family about 4 years ago. Her goal is to try to establish necessary proof of a connection between Charles and a man who fought with Sam Houston during Texas' War of Independence, so that he will be eligible to join the Sons of the Republic of Texas.

Charles and Sandra have studied countless church records of marriages and baptisms looking for clues, as well as visiting many old cemeteries in the area his people came from. A major hindrance in their research is the fact that a number of churches in the area were burned and their records lost during the war with Mexico.

Family members living in the Yokum area have promised to continue the search of old records at other churches. Even if they are unsuccessful in their quest, the Turners have deepened their appreciation of family ties and the sense of continuity their search has brought so far.

BRENT BLACK AND STEPHANIE RIERSON

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Rierson of Clovis have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Stephanie, to Brent Black, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Black of Farwell.

Wedding vows will be exchanged July 19 at 4 p.m. at the Farwell Park.

Robot brought to party

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hudnall of Farwell went to Portales June 19 where they were joined by their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harmon and Bryce.

They joined Jayson Hammond, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.E. Hammond of Hobbs, to celebrate his second birthday.

The Hobbs Fire Department brought a fire hydrant robot to the Hammond's yard. He was controlled by remote control by a fireman. The robot would go up and down on the sidewalk, twisting and turning, eyes flashing on and off, the sirens going off and talking to the pleasure of Jayson and the other children in attendance. Firemen's hats were given to the children by the fire department. Jayson had said all he wanted for his birthday was a fire truck which was given to him by his maternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harmon.

Mrs. Harmon had made and decorated Jayson's birthday cake with Papa Smurf.

Those present were his parents; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harmon; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Hammond of Hobbs; his maternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hudnall of Farwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harmon of House. Also his paternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Marie Martin of Hobbs and Uncle Bryce Harmon of Portales.

lating to his mission, and stated that to avoid trouble in the Veracruz harbor, he would put out to sea for about 10 days, and then return to learn whether Pakenham had been successful.

Pakenham sent a letter to the Mexican government soliciting a hearing for the Texian agent, and to his surprise, received a response the same day, flatly refusing. He transmitted this to Webb on June 10, strongly advising against any extreme measures in retaliation.

Webb's instructions from President Lamar were that if he could not open negotiations or complete them satisfactorily, "you will, after notifying this Government of the fact, be at liberty to return by way of Yucatan and ascertain what part the government of that country would be willing to take in a war which Texas might be compelled to wage against Mexico." Yucatan is currently rebelling against the Mexican Centralist dictatorship, and has previously contacted Texas for possible help.

Pakenham was no doubt aware of this. Webb sent him a note thanking him for his help and his advice, which he agreed to communicate to his government. He stated that Texas had now sent three agents in fruitless attempts to negotiate with Mexico, and a fourth would never be sent unless invited. He expressed the personal opinion that the people of Texas "would decidedly prefer an active and energetic prosecution of the war to the state of suspense and sullen hostility which has existed between the two nations for the last five years."

Judge Webb then sailed for the Yucatan, but while crossing the Gulf of Campeche, a high wind carried away the San Bernard's topmast, and she was rerouted for Galveston. She made port yesterday.

In his report today, Judge Webb states his belief that Yucatan and Tabasco have the men and arms necessary to carry on a successful war against Mexico and establish a separate Confederacy, provided they have naval superiority to prevent the landing of Mexican reinforcements. This the Texas navy can provide. "Let Texas enter into arrangements at once with Yucatan and Tabasco," he urged, "and each party mutually recognize the independence of the other, and let them conjointly renew and prosecute the war until the Central Government shall be forced into terms."

Two previous emissaries to Mexico, both sent by President Lamar, were also unsuccessful in their missions. The first was Colonel Barnard E. Bee, appointed in February, 1839. He was serving as Secretary of State at that time, and Judge Webb replaced him in that post. With northern Mexican states in revolt and Mexican ports blockaded by the French, Lamar thought that the time was propitious for and died on board on November 30, 1840. He was accompanied by his friend John Vitalba, who later forwarded his papers to President Lamar. The ship entered the Galveston Harbor on December 9 with colors at half mast and firing minute guns.

In his report to President Lamar today, Judge Webb urged him to renew active war against Mexico before his administration closes this Colonel Bee went to New Orleans, and obtained passage to Veracruz on the United States schooner Woodbury, arriving there on May 8, 1839. He was graciously received by the aging governor, General Guadalupe Victoria, who had instructions to determine whether Bee was coming as the representative of a rebellious Mexican province, or whether he was seeking recognition of independence. Upon learning that it was the latter, the government refused to see him. Bee attempted to get Richard Pakenham to intervene, as Webb did later, but the British minister informed him that in his opinion nothing could be accomplished at that time.

General Victoria continued to be cordial to Bee, who remained in Veracruz until the end of the month. He then admitted failure, and left for New Orleans by way of Havana. In his report to Secretary of State Webb he stated his belief that there was no longer any possibility of a Mexican invasion of Texas. "Where are they to get the money to annihilate Texas? Sir, the question is settled," he wrote. "They have no navy, they have not a dollar in their Treasury, they have not paid their officers or men for years, they owe Great Britain 60 million of dollars, they are paying France $200,000 every two months."

Accompanying Bee on his voyage home was an Italian named John Vitalba, who had served and perhaps was still serving as an agent for Santa Anna, President of Mexico. He had called on Bee at Veracruz, and was extremely insistent with regard to a plan he had for negotiating peace. Apparently it involved bribery. It could be executed by a friend of his, James Treat, a New Yorker who had previously served Texas on occasion, and was personally acquainted with many high officials in Mexico.

After careful consideration and discussion with others, President Lamar appointed Treat in August, 1839, as special agent for Texas, authorized to expend up to $5,000,000. He arrived in Veracruz after a lengthy voyage on November 28, and was permitted to proceed to Mexico City. Extremely complex and long-drawn-out negotiations then began. After several months of this, Mexico requested Treat to obtain formal credentials, which he received in April, 1840, from Acting Secretary of State David G. Burnet. The negotiations dragged on for several months more without progress, and eventually it became apparent to the Texas government that Treat was merely being used by Mexico to deter Texas from aiding the Federalist rebels as long as there was the possibility of a peace treaty.

After almost a full year in Mexico, Treat at length embarked on the Texas war schooner San Antonio to return to Galveston. By that time he was seriously ill with consumption,

December. General Sam Houston is expected to succeed Lamar, and it is well known that Houston has been strongly opposed to offensive war against Mexico, which he considers to be beyond the means of the Republic to conduct effectively. Webb wrote to Lamar: "Unless therefore it is done in your time, we may expect an additional three years of doubt, difficulty, and embarrassment."

We worked hard to keep electricity costs down...

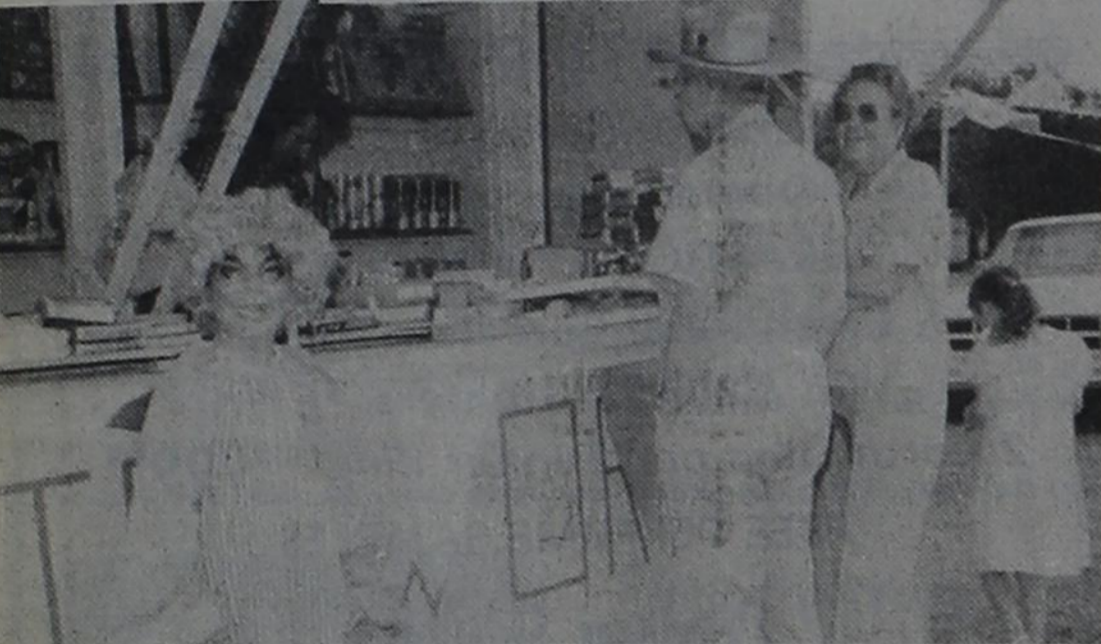

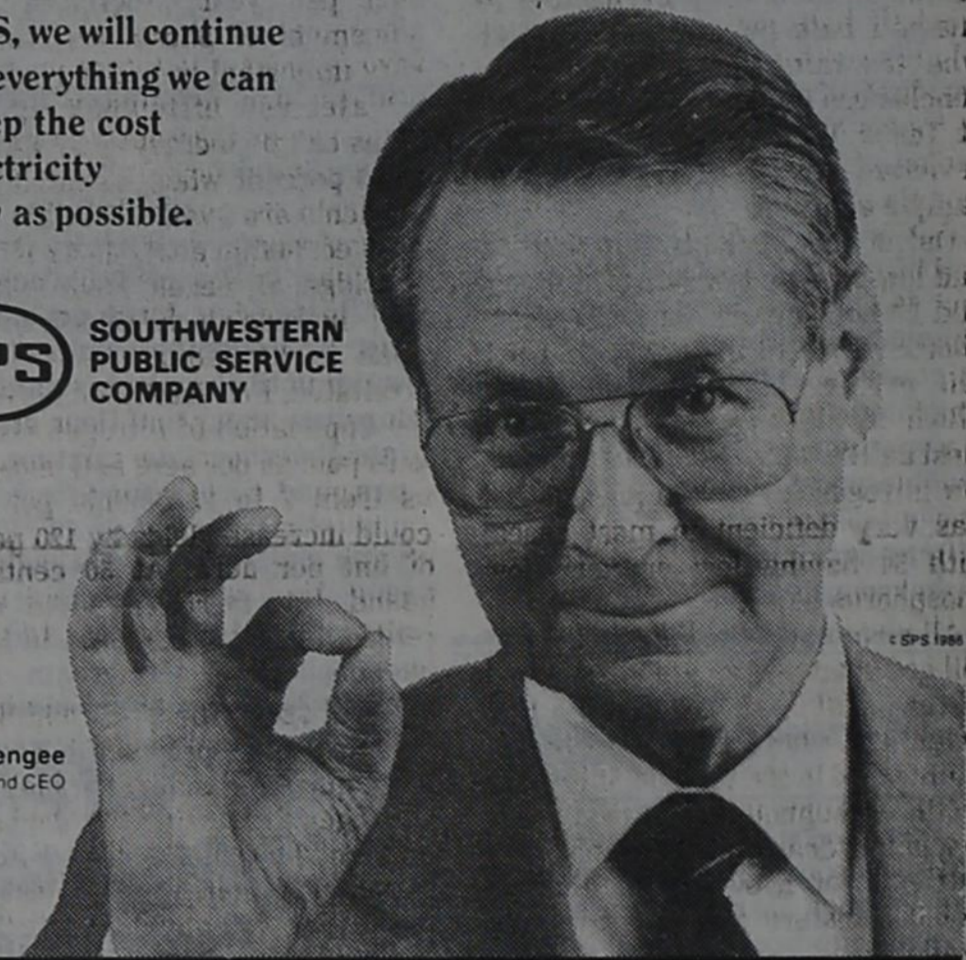

and, WE DID IT!

In the last three years, while national electric costs went up 12.7%, we held the line. Most SPS residential customers pay about the same for electricity as they did in 1983... some even less.

At SPS, we will continue to do everything we can to keep the cost of electricity as low as possible.

Texico students study electrification

Two Future Farmers of America from Texico were among the 39 boys and five girls who recently completed a three-day workshop in farm electrification, sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Co. (SPS).

Urban Orozco and Martin Singleterry completed the course and competed for an expense-paid trip to the 1986 FFA National convention.

The workshop, in Amarillo June 9-11, attracted FFA members from Texas and New Mexico. This is the 24th year SPS has sponsored the event.

The students learned applications of electricity for farm use, such as wiring buildings, assembling and using electric controls, and construction of electric motors.

The featured instructor was Ken Pollard, executive vice president of the Texas Agri Business Electric Council. Area vocational instructors and SPS representatives also conducted educational sessions.

Scramble set

There will be a three-man golf scramble July 4 at the Farwell Country Club at 2:30 p.m.

The entry fees are $10 for members and $15 for non-members, plus carts. The entry fees will be returned.

There will be a hamburger fry afterwards.

Plaque given

Eldred Brown, chairman of the board of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, has presented Dr. Duane Guy, head of the history department at West Texas State University, a unique plaque made from a cross section of one of the original 1937 D.S.E.C. line poles.

The plaque was awarded in appreciation of Dr. Guy's efforts for researching and writing "Texas 47-Deaf Smith, a history of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, Inc."

The book was written to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative and it details the beginnings of the Cooperative in 1936 until the present time.

Membership drive begun

The Farwell Chamber of Commerce Tuesday discussed its membership drive.

Each member is being asked to take two non-member businesses to see for possible membership in the Chamber.

Chamber President Steve Breckenridge said that July will be the time for an annual membership drive.

In other business, Chamber board member Ron Fechner suggested that the Chamber set goals and objectives.

The Chamber voted to donate $50 to the area basketball team coached by Larry Gregory which is going to the National AAU Tournament in Virginia next month.

Sarpalius: DOE decision challenges Texas

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

wrong? What if a couple of barrels of waste leaked into the Ogallala? The aquifer likely would be ruined, unable to support farming, energy exploration or cities of any size. The High Plains would be reduced to a wasteland capable of sustaining only a handful of people.

A horrible scenario, indeed, but one that is not out of the question. That possibility, in a nutshell, is why so many West Texans are opposed to the whole repository concept.

The dangers of DOE's actions extend beyond the Panhandle and South Plains, though. If the problems are immediate and personal to those living near the proposed repository site, they are no less compelling, albeit in a different way, to Texas as a whole.

For one thing, some of Texas' basic rights are being challenged. There is a good chance DOE will ignore a Texas law designed to protect underground aquifers and begin drilling through the Ogallala without permission from the state.

The law, contained in a bill we passed in 1983, requires anyone drilling through an aquifer to obtain permission from the Texas Water Commission first. Whoever requests the drilling permit must prove to the commission's satisfaction that the aquifer in question will not be harmed by the drilling activities.

DOE probably will run headlong into this law before the year is out. To conduct the additional site-characterization tests necessary to determine the repository's ultimate home, DOE workers must drill a shaft in Deaf Smith County. Drilling is expected to begin later this year.

Energy Secretary John Herrington has not said yet whether DOE will honor Texas' permitting process. We would estimate the chances are no better than one in four that DOE will.

If DOE ignores the process, Texas' attorney general would have excellent grounds for a lawsuit. DOE would argue the site characterization is a reservation program, and thus exempt from state natural resources laws. That would be true if the Ogallala were exclusive to the proposed repository site. It's not; the Ogallala covers portions of seven states and therefore can't be considered part of the "reservation."

This controversy, should it find its way into the courts, will prove to be a classic states' rights battle.

The challenge to our natural resources laws would be enough by themselves, but DOE indirectly is challenging our entire legislative process, too.

A repository potentially could contaminate an area that produces one-third of all the state's food and fiber and an enormous portion of its natural gas. Yet, our elected officials have reposed slowly, timidly to the threat. To date, our 1983 law is the only major piece of legislation passed in reponse to DOE's activities. So much more could be done.

Last year, we proposed creating a joint legislative committee that by 1987 would write a comprehensive series of state laws dealing with the repository. The committee would be charged with finding the limit of Texas' authority in this matter, then exercising the authority to that limit.

Our efforts to create such a committee were thwarted, largely because the DOE threat still seemed remote to some. Surely everyone realizes now that DOE is serious. We'll reintroduce our plan in January when the Legislature reconvenes, but we don't necessarily have to wait that long. The governor has the authority to appoint such a committee today, if he wants.

It's easy to see the battle over the waste repository has begun in earnest. How we as Texans handle this battle will say a lot about our celebrated sense of independence and ability to fight for what is ours.

Why yields declined

Over the past 20 years, cotton yields in the High Plains of Texas have steadily declined, losing an estimated ten pounds of lint production per acre per year.

Results of soil sample analyses suggested that depletion of phosphorus and nitrogen from the top four feet of the soil profile may be the reason for this decrease in cotton yields in the Texas High Plains.

Results of analyses on 250 soil samples taken by the High Plains Water District and the Soil Conservation Service from 72 fields in seven southern High Plains counties show that nitrogen levels are low enough in the four-foot root zone profile to limit crop production to one-half bale per acre, no matter what the water supply, according to conclusions made by Dr. Dan Kreig at Texas Tech University after he reviewed the results of the soil sample analyses.

Out of the 72 fields sampled, 52 had low or very low nitrogen levels and 50 had low or very low phosphorus levels in the top foot of the soil profile. In the second foot, which is the zone containing the most active roots, 36 had low or very low nitrogen levels and phosphorus was very deficient in most cases, with 54 having low or very low phosphorus levels.

All plant nutrients taken from the soil are absorbed by plant roots in a water solution. Under full irrigation, where good moisture is maintained in the top foot of the soil profile throughout the growing season, plants draw moisture and plant nutrients for growth from the top foot if moisture and nutrients are available.

Under dryland or limited irrigation, the top foot of the soil profile is exposed to repeated wetting and drying patterns. During dry periods, plants have to depend on the lower root zone soil profile to supply a part of the water and nutrients needed. If either water or the proper nutrients are not available in these lower zones at critical growth stages when the surface soil is dry, then producers can only expect reduced yields.

Nitrogen moves within the soil profile in the presence of soil moisture, thus it can become readily available to plants at depths where moisture is present. A phosphorus deficiency in the lower root zones, on the other hand, is more difficult to correct, since phosphorus has very limited downward movement with moisture in the soil. Phosphorus will move down at a rate of only about two-tenths of one inch per year; therefore, deep placement of phosphorus may be very important in future years.

Water-use efficiency by field crops can be increased by as much as 15 percent when adequate plant nutrients are available in the soil.

An economic analysis by Dr. Don Ethridge at Texas Tech suggests that increasing fertilizer applications in limited amounts can be profitable. For example, increasing the application of nitrogen from 40 to 60 pounds per acre and phosphorus from 7 to 17 pounds per acre could increase yields by 120 pounds of lint per acre. At 50 cents per pound, this increased yield would return about $60 per acre in added income.

About $28 of the $60 would be net income if the producer's cost for plant nutrients is about $20 per acre (nitrogen at 18 cents per pound per acre and phosphorus at 23 cents per pound per acre) and increased harvesting and ginning costs due to the higher yields are about $17 per acre. Economically speaking, it appears that the cost of the proper plant nutrients, purchased and applied to achieve optimum benefits, may be well worth the investment.

Farwell Convalescent Center Chit Chat

By Lynne Gann
Activity Director

Anyone who has held their child in their arms and experienced the joy, the elation of this miracle of birth always gets a certain gleam of sunshine in their eyes.

The only time this can ever be compared to anything of equal meaning is the first time you hold your grandchild.

Such joy has no definition. No boundaries. It expands like the air we breath yet catches in your throat making it impossible to breath and your eyes suddenly burst into a waterfall!

Could this bundle be part of a love shared so long ago?

If this is so beautiful how can one imagine the pride when a great grand child is born? That could only be described as Heaven!

Wait!

When you say grandchild you think - 40's.

Great grandchild - 60's - 70's. In minds eye - old!

But only with time can grandchildren and great grandchildren be born.

Ah-! The "joys" of growing old.

Welcome home, Rebecca Stanford! You're looking great!

Low spots in road problem

At a special meeting Tuesday, the Earwell City Council discussed low places in the road near the city landfill. Three cars reportedly were stuck in the mud there Sunday morning on their way to church. Councilman Fred Chandler called the problem a "disgraceful situation." Some of the low spots are in the city and some in the county. The councilmen indicated their support for the city to fix the areas within the city but hoped the county would handle their area. Farwell Mayor Chris Gikas will speak with County Commissioner Robert White about it.

In other business, the council approved an easement for James Chadwick, who has part of his driveway on city property. Another property owner asked that water be diverted from its present course near his property. The subject was tabled.

Hospital sold

It's a Boy

Steven and Carla Kaltwasser had a baby boy, Daniel Karl Kaltwasser, June 12 at Lubbock Methodist Hospital. He weighed eight pounds and one ounce and was 21 1/4 inches long.

He has a sister, Chelsi. Grandparents are Roy and Lola Richardson, of Texico, and Gilbert and Liz Kaltwasser, of Farwell. Great-grandmother is Ruth Kramer of Oceanside, Calif.

Words are inadequate to express our gratitude to each and everyone who remembered our family in even the smallest way. The floral tributes, food, cards, calls, support, prayers and memorials are all so deeply appreciated. We can never thank you enough.

Irrigation loans OK'd

In the first action of its kind, the Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 approved 11 loan applications totalling approximately $169,000 to help irrigators within the District's service area improve the efficiency of their irrigation application and distribution systems. District manager A. Wayne Wyatt notes, "These loans are the first loans in the state made under the Agricultural Water Conservation Loan Program created by state voters last November." Wyatt adds that to his knowledge, the state's ag loan program and Water District loans made under the program are unique within the nation. Six of the loan applications approved by the Board were for center pivot irrigation systems, three were for surge valves and other applications included the purchase of furrow diking equipment and laser land levelling equipment. Four applications were from landowners/operators in Castro County, three from Parmer, two from Lubbock, and one each from Deaf Smith and Lamb.

Those from Parmer County were Bob Hurst, Carroll Precure and Gene Schuler.

Loans under this new program carry a 6.75 percent fixed interest rate plus a one-time service fee of 2.5 percent. A maximum of $100,000 can be loaned to any one applicant for a maximum term of eight years.

The Water District received the first loan made by the Texas Water Development Board under the pilot Agricultural Water Conservation Loan Program. The District has 120 days to distribute all of the loan funds. Any funds remaining after that period must be returned to the Water Development Board.

Loan application forms and program guidelines can be obtained from the Water District's Lubbock office, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405, 806-762-0181.

McDonald named to 3 posts

Tammara McDonald of Texico High attended Girls State at the New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell June 8-14.

Tammara won the position of county treasurer and was appointed police officer in her city of 40 girls. The Governor of Girls State appointed her to the office of Military affairs.

Gov. Tony Anaya and Boys State Governor John V. Werheim spoke during the inauguration ceremony.

They watched how the Supreme Court worked. They watched the Girls State governor sign bills and explain how bills work.

A platform committee of five girls dealt with issues as drunk driving and terrorism.

During the candlelight ceremony, two delegates were picked for the national convention in Washington, D.C.

Tammara was in Cactus City, Washington County, and the Nationalist party. There were eight cities and two counties. A total of 320 girls attended Girls State.

There were two to three hours for recreation - volleyball, swimming, a talent show, choir and a style show.

"I met a lot of real friendly people. I recommend anyone who has the opportunity to go. It also teaches you to be yourself. The theme for the week was 'God and Country.' The last day they gave us a certificate of completion and a Girls State pin shaped like New Mexico," said McDonald.

Southard attends Boys' State

Brette Southard of Texico Schools attended the annual session of New Mexico Boys' State June 8-13 at the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology at Socorro, N.M.

Southard was in the Trujillo-City; DeLeon County and the Nationalist party.

To start out the week, they discussed city government and held a city election. The city government was explained, and city organization and city campaigns begun.

Southard enjoyed the Great Debate-which involved "no pass, no play." It was between two governors and lieutenant governors.

A state police officer and a member of a Swat team from Albuquerque spoke on law enforcement. In the inauguration ceremonies, Gov., Toney Anaya and Lt. Gov. Mike Runnels were present.

Brette was a member of the New Mexico Boys' State Band. There were 15 boys in it.

The 1985 Boys State governor, John V. Werheim, spoke on the rights you have as an American.

"I would like to thank the American Legion and the other sponsors. I would like to encourage everyone, if the opportunity arises, to attend Boys State," said Southard.

So far as is practical, the mechanics of government in Boys' State are patterned after the established agencies of city, county and state government. In every possible way, the government of Boys' State parallels that of the government of New Mexico.
