FIFTY-SEVENTH YEAR

By this time, the sad results of the Water Bond amendment have become history. The election is gone but not forgotten. The information currently available indicates that in 1971 another election will be called and another attempt to fund a comprehensive State Water Plan will be made.

There is no other way to say this; public indifference and apathy on the High Plains is directly responsible for the loss of this crucial issue. As we predicted, downstate voted against the amendment BUT they did have a light vote and their negative attitude could have been overcome by just any sort of a reasonable turnout of voters in the Panhandle. The very persons most concerned with water sat on their hands and did not bother to vote for the well being of either themselves or their children. Surely, if Democracy fails it will be because of such poor responses to the public welfare.

This water issue will be before us now and forevermore. We, as an area, must have water to maintain a viable economy. The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, and the local newspaper must have water to nourish their customers' businesses. Without an adequate supply of water, all tradesmen, wage earners, and others not directly in agriculture will suffer just as much as the farmer who cannot grow a crop.

Therefore, we believe that as water becomes a shrinking commodity, these people not directly associated with farming will by the ballot begin to impose stricter water use regulations of the farming community. We now see this in other sections of the country. It can and will happen here.

Unless our area farmers want a strict form of government control on their use of irrigation water, we all had better shed some of our apathy and work and VOTE for water importation. We are fortunate that we may have another chance to vote on a similar proposal again. But, we may not catch South and East Texas napping and may again be defeated. Truly, our position now is grim in respect to vast water importation plans, but we think this will stimulate the use and conservation of the water that already falls on our baldies.

This use of water already delivered to us in our big break for the future. Studies by the always reliable Southwestern Public Service Company indicate that approximately half of the water necessary for our future well being does fall on us in the average year. Our problem is that we lose it to runoff and evaporation. If we can prove to other parts of the state that we are properly using our water, then we may stand a chance in the future of getting a favorable vote out of these other areas of Texas. Water use and water conservation will be the life and death struggle for the Golden Spread for the next generation.

With football in the air, can fall be far behind? This past weekend we were treated to a preview of the fall madness from the standpoint of the play for pay boys. From the looks of the crowds attending the pre-season games, the football fanatics are more numerous than ever across the land.

The Twin Cities will take a backseat to nobody in their devotion to the game. This year both Farwell and Texico will field football teams. This is a phenomenon that hasn't been presented within memory of most area residents. We do not know when Texico last fielded a team but it has been quite a few years back.

With this addition, our local football fever ought to rise to heights yet unattained. Ah me, it looks like we are in for a wonderful fall.

Exchange Student --

Sten Likes Farwell

by Chris Moss

"Oh no, it never gets this hot except in Africa," were the first words Sten Westerberg, Swedish foreign exchange student, uttered to his American parents and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wiman and Bob, as he alighted from a plane which had brought him to Amarillo last Friday.

However, after only five days in the Twin Cities, Sten has decided that this is a great place to be and he is eagerly looking forward to the beginning of school and his association with the students and residents of the area.

Sten comes from the city of Falkoping in southern Sweden, a town of some 16,000 residents which is in an agricultural area. His dad is manager of a textile dye factory and his mother does not work outside the home. He has one sister, a student at one of the Swedish universities. He will be enrolled as a senior at Farwell but will still have one year more before completing high school upon returning to his homeland.

"Our schools are quite different to yours," stated Sten as he told how some students drop out of school after nine years of schooling since they are not required to go longer. Only the young people who pass certain tests may continue in school after that time. The first three years are spent in primary school similar to American schools, the next three in elementary schools; and the final three years are similar to American high schools.

He noted that all Swedish students begin taking English in the third grade and continue this subject throughout the remainder of their school years. In addition, beginning in the seventh grade, students are required to study either French or German along with English and Swedish. In ninth grade, students must take up another foreign language such as Spanish or Russian. Therefore, when a student has completed his studies he has some knowledge of at least three foreign languages and many times is able to speak the languages fluently. Sten is quite fluent in English (speaking the language better than most Americans).

Students are also able to take much mathematics and science in their school years, especially if they choose to remain in school the entire 12 years. Following high school many young men are immediately drafted into the Armed forces where they are required to serve one year. However, some are able to have the military services deferred until later and go ahead to the university before they spend their year in the military services. Once a young man has been in the military service (this is compulsory), he is subject to recall for a one-month period at least three times until he reaches the age of 47. Some students also are able to attend a vocational school immediately after leaving high school thus better preparing themselves for many vocations.

It was in the fall of 1968 that Sten decided to try to obtain a scholarship on the exchange program. He immediately filled out what he describes as mountains of papers which were sent to Gothenburg; later he was called in for an interview; then came more stacks of papers for him to fill out until around the middle of March, 1969. In May 1969 he finally received word that he had been accepted for the program and in June he was notified that he would be coming to Texas. He was delighted since Texas or California had been his preference (he had no choice) since he had heard more about those two states. He immediately acquired the nickname "Texas Sten".

Not only was Sten required to complete many papers before being accepted for the exchange program but the Wimans were also required to complete many forms, write essays, etc., before they were accepted as a family for an exchange student. Both the Wiman family and Sten say, "We are delighted with the arrangement and believe the self to have an opportunity to visit with American young people since this summer his parents have had an exchange student from Needles, Calif., staying in their home in Sweden. "I now have two American brothers", reiterated Sten.

Sten had his first beef steak as he was returning to Farwell from Amarillo with the Wimans, when they stopped to eat in Hereford. He has also been treated to his first Mexican food and first fried chicken since arriving in Farwell. He

Dear Editor,
Brownie Troop 143 appreciates very much your parade coverage and the recognition given them for the float that placed third in the judging. However, the float was a joint effort by the Farwell Neighborhood Girl Scouts which also includes Junior Troop 121 and Cadet Troop 109. Girls in all three troops worked long and hard to produce the float and each deserves much praise for her contribution.

Also, a big thank you to all those who gave the Scouts a financial boost by buying soft drinks and snow cones during the parade and at the City Park on Saturday afternoon.

Yours truly,

Country Club Family Night A Success

Some 60 persons were in attendance at the monthly family night at Farwell Country Club last week. The affair has been described as "one of the most successful socials of the year," with something planned for persons of all ages.

Varied activities included a putting contest, swimming, and table games.

One of the highlights of the evening was a putting contest featuring Doris Herington and Reba Bonds against Gil Pat-schke and Jim Berry. The ladies won the match in a sudden death play off after being tied with the men at the end of 18 holes. However at the end of five holes the ladies were trailing behind much to their opponents delight.

Sten Westerberg, exchange student who had arrived in Farwell on Friday, made his first public appearance at the social.

Monthly socials are planned for the entire family at the club during the coming months.

Crop Residue Important In Conservation

by Edward G. Phillips
Crop residue management is one of the most important of all Soil and Water Conservation practices in use today. Its greatest value is perhaps in the high plains where rainfall is limited, where both wind and water erosion are problems, and where soil-improving crops are not a part of normal farming operations. However, the organic content of soils under any climate can be maintained or improved through the use of the crop residue practice. The organic litter in or on the surface of the soil serves as a protective coat to the soil against extreme temperatures, and keeps the soil open for free movement of soil air and water.

Progress has been made in recent years in applying the practice; farm machinery has been improved, adapted, and even developed that will permit and encourage the widespread use of the practice. Likewise, the use and management of residue-producing crops has been geared to fit into a crop residue management style of conservation farming.

It is recognized that the primary benefits from crop residue management come from the physical effects of organic material on the land as influenced by climate. The organic content of the top five inches of the soil is greater where residues are left on the surface as compared to residues completely turned under. It is a well known fact that the mineral and plant food content of the soil will be improved with the addition and maintenance of organic content in the soil. Experiments have proved this to be true, but the effects are not always immediately reflected in crop yields. In fact, with a soil that is depleted in organic content there may not be any appreciable improvement in crop yields.

David Lockhart Completes Officer Indoctrination

Navy Lt. David L. Lockhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Lockhart of Texico has recently completed three weeks of training at Officers Indoctrination School at Newport, R.I.

Sgt. Stephen Hillock Receives Medal

Sgt. Steven K. Hillock, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon E. Symcox, Farwell, received the Army Commendation Medal July 14 while serving with the 4th Infantry Division near Pleiku, Vietnam.

Sgt. Hillock earned the award for meritorious service as a squad leader in Company E, 1st Battalion of the division's 8th Infantry.

He entered the Army in January 1968 and was stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga., before arriving overseas in August 1968. He holds the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Sgt. Hillock is presently visiting his parents. He will be stationed at Ft. Carson, Colo., following the vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Williams spent last week visiting in Tucson with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Williams and Karen.

With no protective cover and the organic matter or body of the soil gone, there is little or no resistance to the action of water. Soil in this condition melts like sugar and adds to the silt laden streams. A cover of thick growing crops is the most effective stabilizer of such soils, but when crops are not seasonable the organic residue from them can be managed to serve as a barrier and protective coat against wind and water.

Terraces are an aid in controlling water movement on farmland; however, they alone cannot adequately protect all the land. Crop residue properly managed would have not only held most of the soil in place, but would have increased the penetration of the moisture, decreased evaporation, and generally improved the soil moisture relationship.

Board Has Busy Session

At the Monday night meeting of Farwell School Board approval was given for Jim Berry to make the 1968-69 school audit, and a tentative budget for 1969-70 was approved in the amount of $487,382.00. Necessary amendments were made in the 1968-69 budget. School insurance was discussed and plans were made to use the same insurance company (Insurnational Ins. Co.) again this year. Insurance is available to all school students grades 1-12. At school insurance is $9.00 per student; 24-hour insurance, $24.00; and insurance for all football players, $32.50.

Prices for the school lunches has been raised this year from 35¢ to 40¢ for grades 1-6; 40¢ to 45¢ for students grades 7-12; teachers from 50¢ to 55¢; and all others from 60¢ to 65¢ per meal. Milk bids for the lunchroom were opened but no decision was reached as to who would receive the contract. A contract will be let later this week.

An advisory committee for the vocational agriculture department was appointed. Members of the committee include Donald Christian, Fred Chandler, Walter Hughes, Bill Brigham and Fred Curtis.

Final item on the agenda was hiring of several new teachers including Mrs. Pat Owen, Mrs. Lucille Franse, Mrs. Ann Montgomery, and Mrs. Sandra Rickstrew.

FEEDING WHEAT TO CATTLE

The price situation is causing many stockmen to ask questions about the possible use of wheat for feeding cattle. Wheat can be fed to all types of cattle. Research has shown that on full feed best use can be made of wheat by limiting it to 25 per cent of the total ration, according to W. D. Thompson, extension service animal husbandman. When fed in these amounts it is equal to corn in feeding value and no digestive problems are encountered. When one is pressed for feed and needs to use more, it can be raised to 50 per cent for fattening cattle. Generally, it is not economical under any circumstances to increase it beyond 50 per cent for fattening. For wintering calves, where only three or four pounds of grain are being fed along with a full feed of hay or silage, wheat can be used entirely. In fact, where four pounds of grain is the daily limit, 100 per cent wheat can be used.

The problem with wheat for cattle feed is proper preparation and its physical characteristics. If wheat is coarsely cracked or is rolled, it is more acceptable to the cattle. Often in preparation, wheat is ground into a flour and becomes gummy and sticky and quickly soils feed troughs. Checking the type of equipment and finding the best method to roll or crack wheat will help improve its feeding characteristics.

FERTILIZER IS KEY

IN WHEAT PRODUCTION

"Fertilizer is perhaps the biggest bargain available to wheat producers on the High Plains," says Jim Valentine, Extension soil chemist at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock. "And the profit to be expected from its use will depend on what your soil actually needs." "A soil test can tell you what and how much fertilizer is needed," points out the soil chemist. "Nitrogen and phosphorus are the two elements of primary concern, nitrogen being a key nutrient in the production of high quality forage and grain." At a very low soil test level, 120 pounds of actual nitrogen is often required for 60 bushels of grain after moderate grazing. Heavy soils such as Pullman can accumulate nitrogen where previous rates have exceeded crop removal. A soil test for nitrate nitrogen gives a quick inventory of this carryover. If nitrate levels are in the medium or high range, nitrogen application can be cut down without lowering production.

On heavy soils all the nitrogen can be applied preplant with no hazard of loss through leaching, points out Valentine. On sandy soils where losses can occur, part should be applied before planting and the rest ahead of the jointing stage, usually in February. "The soil's phosphorus level can also be a critical factor," says Valentine. "If the soil test shows it to be very low, use of phosphate can greatly stimulate early growth as well as increase grain yields. Unlike nitrogen, phosphorus does not move much from the point of application. Phosphates should be applied in the seedbed before planting." Information on collecting and mailing soil samples is available at the county agricultural agent's office. Soil test reports will be returned within three to five days after samples are received at the Extension Soil Testing Lab at the A&M Center.

At Home In Parmer County

By JANICE MILLER
County HD Agent

If you are one of the people who has to watch your salt intake, check the city water for the amount of sodium. Sodium is the mineral in water that is commonly restricted. When water softeners are used, the water may be higher in salt (sodium) content.

Water used in cooking may be evaporated, but the salt will remain in the food. Doctors and health departments advise persons with certain heart and kidney disabilities, that require a lower salt intake, to use bottled water. It can be used for both cooking and drinking.

You should consider this when thinking of installing a water softener. You may want to install a by-pass for unsoftened water, but still have soft water for laundry and other purposes.

Carrie Haseloff, Deborah Harding and Cheryl Gohlke participated in the District Dress Revue, August 1 in Amarillo. Carrie brought home a red ribbon, and Cheryl and Deborah got ribbons for participating, as did all of the junior entries. The three did a good job of representing the Parmer County 4-H'ers.

What part of the paper do you read first -- sports, funnies or front page? Health Insurance News says, "Men are old if they read the obituaries before they read the sports pages, or if they check the menu, and then the waitresses." An Iowa doctor giving advice on staying youthful said: "Stay neat, skinny and cantankerous. Keep a youthful mind and thoughts. Listen to the new generation. Exercise within the limits of your capability. Do something." He also said that you old if you are complacent, if you think you're too old to do something or that the future has no promise for you. So -- How old are you? Really!

When potatoes boil dry, DON'T lift the lid, instead, put the pan in cold water. The steam will condense and much of the burned taste will disappear. When the potatoes are cool, remove the lid and cut off the scorched spots. Bye for this week.

MRS. JIMMIE MACE

M. McWilliams, J. Mace Wed In Saturday Ceremony

Marilyn McWilliams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. McWilliams of Clovis became the bride of Jimmie Mace, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Mace of Farwell in a ceremony at First Baptist Church in Clovis, Saturday, August 9.

The double-ring service was read by Rev. J. L. Bass, pastor of Farwell First Baptist Church. Focal point of the altar setting was a white covered stand on which rested the Mace family Bible opened to the book of Ruth. Flanking the central arrangement were half-moon candelabras and spiral candelabras holding lighted tapers. Emerald greenery was interspersed throughout the altar setting, family pews were marked by hurricane lamps.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Charles Hargrove, organist, played appropriate nuptial selections at the organ. She also played the traditional wedding marches as processional and recessional for the wedding party and accompanied H. T. Wright, soloist, as he sang "Because," "Whither Thou Goest," and "Wedding Prayer."

Candles were lighted by David Wheelock of Austin, cousin of the bride. Ushers, Doyle Johnson and Randy Johnson, close friends of the groom, also doubled as groomsmen, Charles Mac Gibson, cousin of the bride, was also an usher. Oswald (Buddy) Jones, uncle of the groom served as best man.

Susan McWilliams, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor, Bridesmaid and bridesmatron, respectively, were Mary Frances Gibson, cousin of the bride from Plainview, and Mrs. Terry Pressley, sorority sister of the bride, Clovis.

Bridal attendants were attired in yellow floor length dresses designed similarly to that of the bride. The dresses featured cap sleeves, round necklines and a large bow at center back at the waistline. Their headpieces were short tulle veils of yellow held by large bows in matching hue. White gloves and yellow shoes completed their attire. They each carried a white wicker basket filled with yellow and white daisies.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, chose a formal wedding gown of white peau de soie, which she had designed. The gown featured a mandarin collar, long fitted sleeves terminating in pearl points at the hands and a full length re-embroidered lace panel enhanced by pearl appliques in the back. The panel which terminated in a modified chapel train was outlined with minute lace ruffles. Sleeves were accented with appliques of re-embroidered lace and pearls.

Her tiered elbow length veil of white imported illusion fell from a rosette of tulle accented by seed pearls. She carried a white orchid surrounded by white roses and accented by sprays of English ivy, atop a white satin lace covered Bible.

Following tradition the bride chose for something old the wedding ring of her great-grandmother; new was her wedding attire; borrowed was a handkerchief belonging to her mother, and blue was the traditional garter. For luck she carried in her shoes, pennies minted in the year of her birth and that of the groom.

Mrs. McWilliams, wore a two piece champagne colored Alaskan suit with matching petal hat and gloves. Accenting her ensemble were multi-colored shoes and bag. Her corsage was a white orchid.

Mrs. Mace, mother of the groom, chose a two-piece light blue suit and mother of pearl pillbox hat, accented by navy bag, shoes and gloves. She also wore a white orchid corsage.

Guests were registered by Ann Wheelock. Immediately following the wedding a reception was held in fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a floorlength white organza cloth and centered by the wedding cake, decorated with yellow roses and topped by lovebirds. A candelabra holding white tapers entwined with yellow and white daisies also graced the table. Punch was served from a milkglass punch bowl. Napkins inscribed with the names "Marilyn and Jimmie," and the date, "August 9, 1969," completed table decor.

The groom's table was covered by a floorlength cloth of green and centered by an arrangement of artificial fruit around a candelabra holding lighted tapers. Assorted cake slices were served from the table with coffee from a brass coffee service. Napkins identical to those on the bride's table completed table decor.

Mrs. H. T. Wright and Mrs. Charles Hargrove presided at the bride's table, and Mrs. Erroll Johnson and Mrs. Winn Meyers were at the groom's table.

Floating hostesses at the reception included Mmes. Floyd Goodgion, Fred Brumbelow, Eula Mae Madole, David Hsi, A. R. Self and H. T. Wright. Kathy Goodgion played nuptial selections on the piano during the reception.

When the newlyweds left for a wedding trip to Cloudford, the bride wore a navy blue silk dress with white and navy accessories complemented by the orchid from her bridal bouquet. Following the trip they are at home in Portales.

The bride a graduate of Clovis High School, received a bachelor of arts degree from Eastern New Mexico University this summer and will be attending the university doing graduate work in the fall.

The groom, a graduate of Farwell High School is a senior at Eastern New Mexico University and is also employed at First National Bank of Portales.

Out-of-town guest attending the wedding were grandparents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Mace and Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Simmons, all of Lelia Lake, Tex. and Mrs. E. R. Gibson, of Lubbock, grandmother of the bride. Also Messrs. and Mmes. Carter Wheelock, Ann and David of Austin, Bob Gibson, G. A. McWilliams and Frances Ann, W. G. McWilliams all of Plainview, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McWilliams of Lubbock.

Palm trees were interspersed throughout the entire setting.

The bride, escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a floor length dress of white taffeta overlaid with floral lace. The gown featured an empire waist, and scooped neckline and was sleeveless. Her veil of silk illusion was held by satin petals outlined in seed pearls. She carried a white satin covered Bible upon which rested a bouquet of white rosebuds surrounded by stephanotis.

Mrs. Autrey wore an aqua linen sheath dress with white accessories complemented by a white carnation corsage.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID BRAND

Following tradition, something old and borrowed was the Bible belonging to the groom's mother and handed down from her mother; new was her wedding attire; blue was the garter; and pennies minted in the year of the birth of the bride and groom were carried for luck.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Kenneth Shuefeldt of Spearman, close friend of the bride. Serving as bridesmaid was Teresa Downey, sister of the bride. Their streetlength dresses were of a hot pink floral design, styled with oval necklines accented by a wide collar, and long full cuffed sleeves. Bridal attendants carried colonial bouquets of white marguerite daisies accented by hot pink satin streamers.

Serving as best man was Doug Autrey, brother of the groom. Groomsman was Emmitt Autrey, another brother of the groom. Ardell Autrey, also a brother of the groom, and Alvin Downey, brother of the bride, served as ushers. Guests were registered by Mrs. Ardell Autrey.

Mrs. Downey, mother of the bride, chose a pink two-piece her ensemble was a rosebud corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Brand are now at home at Quonset Point, R.I., where he is stationed aboard the Aircraft Carrier, the U.S.S. Wasp.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were: Kenneth Shuefeldt, Spearman; Mr. and

Portraying Area Homemakers

by Chris Moss

As our readers will soon realize, this column this week is quite different to the usual homemaker feature which I have been writing. However, since homes on the sides of hills and mountains, with no way to reach the house except by climbing what seemed to be miles of steps.

sounded the gong, as do all visitors, to make sure that we have good luck for the coming years; and fed the fish which came in great numbers as food was dropped into the water. We later visited Sea Life Park where we were treated to a Hawaiian Sea Pageant, featuring porpoise, killer whales and sea birds.

Of course a trip to the Islands would not be complete without a trip to the Ala Moana shopping center where 167 shops, restaurants and department stores are located. After a short stop here, we toured the Foster Botanical Garden on Nuuanu Ave. where many varieties of flowers and trees, including the cannon-ball tree, Benjamin tree, coconut palm, tropical almond, rainbow shower, bamboo, the banyan and peepul trees, along with various species of orchids, were featured.

Each of the succeeding days was filled with overflowing with tours to various places of interest, including a perfume factory, where perfume is made for sale only in the islands; a garment factory where we found that workers can and do complete 50-60 garments each day (most of the garments are muumuu and Aloha shirts, typical wear in the islands); a woodworks factory where we saw many beautiful items being made of the MonkeyPod tree; the International Market where one can find articles from almost every country in the world; and various other places too numerous to mention.

We also made stops at "blow-hole" a lava rock formation in the ocean floor near a beach where the water suddenly shoots into the air as it is forced through a small hole in the lava rock by the force of the waves.

Most impressive was our stop at the Punch Bowl National Memorial Cemetery, which is located in a volcanic crater in the heart of Honolulu. The cemetery contains the remains of 13,000 World War II dead, and the remains of many from the Korean conflict and the Vietnam episode. The Memorial at the cemetery consists of the stairs flanked by eight "Courts of the Missing." Here are listed the names of 26,280 American heroes whose bodies were never recovered.

Another highlight of the trip was a visit to Pearl Harbor and the Arizona Memorial. The USS Arizona, which was sunk on that fateful Sunday in 1941 when the Japanese struck without warning, still remains submerged in 38 feet of water. However a memorial has been erected above the spot where 1,104 Navy men and 73 Marines lost their lives that day. More than 1,000 of the bodies still remain inside the sunken hull of the ship. The U. S. Flag flies proudly above the USS Arizona and most persons who visit the islands pause to pay tribute to the brave men who lost their lives that tragic Sunday.

A description of the trip would not be complete without mention of the many scenic drives about the island of Oahu and the attendance at Kailua United Methodist Church (where we found that members of the congregation wear Aloha shirts and Muumuu to all services in the summer), and also our first swim in the Pacific Ocean.

Final highlight of the trip was a visit to Bishop Museum, which has been in existence since 1889 when it was established by Charles R. Bishop as a memorial to his wife, Princess Bernice Pauahi, last direct descendant of King Kamehameha the Great.

Time was all too short to more than scratch the surface of the islands, but we were able to see many interesting sights and visit many of the better known places including the famous Waikiki Beach, The Royal Hawaiian Hotel, have a meal in the revolving restaurant at the Hawaiian Plaza on Waikiki where we had a magnificent view of the entire area, and visit pineapple fields and banana, date, and coconut orchards.

Finally the day arrived, all too soon, for our departure home. We had a magnificent view of the other Islands as our plane circled above them and they were pointed out by the pilot. All too soon the lush greenery of the Islands and their beauty was lost to our sight, but we shall always remember what a wonderful eight days we had there and we hope to return at some future date and have time enough to visit all of the other islands.

We visited briefly in California and Arizona on our return trip, arriving in Texico-Farwell two weeks after our departure, a tired but happy couple of girls. Aloha!

CHRIS MOSS looks over some of the literature she gathered, telling about some of the places visited on her recent trip to Hawaii.

many people have been asking "when are you going to write about your trip," I have decided to devote this week's column to an account of the trip.

Late last August (1968) when I learned that my son, Glendon, and his wife, Barbara, were moving to the Hawaiian Islands to make their home for an indefinite time, I immediately began making plans for a trip to the islands on my next vacation. Throughout the year I read books, and looked at numerous maps, including those of New Mexico, Arizona, California and Hawaii, as I planned the route I would take on the trip.

Since my other son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy D. Moss, live in Willcox, Ariz., I decided to drive to California in order to have an opportunity to visit with them. I would also visit in California with a sister and family before taking the plane for Hawaii, at Los Angeles.

Finally on July 11, 1969, all was ready for the anticipated trip and my sister, Mrs. Lester (Mary Lou) Harrelson, and I left early in the morning to drive to Willcox. We arrived in Willcox, some 507 miles from home, around noon that day, where we were greeted by the Jimmy Moss family, who immediately began making plans for sightseeing trips for that afternoon and the next day.

While at Willcox we were taken on a tour of the entire area, including SunSites, a retirement area where many people from the East and Mid-West have come to spend their declining years. We also visited the Chiracahua mountains where the Indians had made their last stand before being taken to reservations. The grandeur of the mountains is hard to describe except to say that the intricate designs of the rock formations is breathtaking.

Also on the tour agenda were trips to Douglas and Bisbee, Ariz., and Agua Prieta, Mexico. All of the towns are filled with history since they were established around 1850 and many of the original buildings are still in use.

Most unusual at Bisbee is the open mine where much silver ore is taken from the ground each year. In fact so much ore has been removed that a man-made mountain formed from the refuse from the mine is now reaching gigantic proportions. Homes in Bisbee are built in every available spot with many

We also visited Old Tombstone, Ariz., where Wyatt Earp and Doc Holliday, with many other western characters, once roamed the surrounding hills. In Tombstone we visited the newspaper office (Tombstone Epitaph) where a newspaper has been published weekly since around 1859.

On the drive from Willcox to Holtville, Calif., we were constantly amazed to see how much of the arid land had been reclaimed and is now in use for large citrus orchards. It was almost beyond belief to round a curve in a semi-desert area and suddenly have a grove of citrus trees spring up to meet the eye.

Arriving in Holtville we were immediately invited by our teenage nieces and nephews to make a trip to Mexicali, Mexico, during the afternoon. Here we found the atmosphere quite different from that in Agua Prieta. Agua Prieta is a beautiful, clean town which should and does attract many tourists, while Mexicali we found to be a dirty, smelly town that I would not care to visit again --- especially after dark. Oleanders blooming in profusion and the citrus orchards along with many date palm groves met the eye as we traveled from Holtville to Los Angeles where we were to board our plane for Honolulu.

Although our flight was scheduled to leave Los Angeles at 2 p.m., we had hardly boarded the plane when the pilot announced that due to radio trouble the flight had been delayed for at least 30 minutes. This caused some concern on the part of several passengers, including Mary Lou who was feeling a little uneasy about her first plane ride anyway. However all went well and we left Los Angeles at 2:30 p.m. (PDT) and arrived in Honolulu right on schedule at 4:35 p.m. (Honolulu Standard Time), some four hours and 50 minutes later.

The Glendon Mosses were waiting to greet us with leis of orchids in the true Hawaiian tradition. After a ten-mile ride through some of the most beautiful country we had ever seen we arrived in Kaneohe, where Glendon and Barbara make their home. The remainder of the day was spent in relaxing and visiting climaxed by a picnic meal at the beach near Kailua.

Our first stop the following day was at a Buddhist Temple which is located approximately one mile from Glendon's and Barbara's home. Here we
