"OFFICIAL PUBLICATION OF PARMER COUNTY"

On cotton

From wife Judy: This time of the year I like to get caught up on the reading I put off during the hectic pre-Christmas time. It is so pleasant to have a little time to read, and think and evaluate.

Last week, I browsed through a copy of Southern Textile News, a publication for the textile industry. They send it to the Tribune and because it was sitting on my desk I browsed through it.

Cotton is a major agricultural product in this area, and it is of course a fiber. Oil is another product of the high plains, and it is an ingredient in several man-made fibers. There are many, many other ingredients used in the fiber industry today.

One article was about changes in the textile industry and the way American consumers are reacting.

Apparently, one of the hot items in the industry is microfibers - ultra fine fibers that are added to regular yarn - fiber mix.

Micro fibers have been on the market for about two years; they are a new and exciting part of the industry. They will enable the industry to develop several new fiber structures, yarns, and fabric concepts that existing fibers cannot. But, they will require new processing techniques, new equipment, and greater care in handling fabrics.

When I was a girl growing up, my 4-H leader, Anna Hicks, took great pains to teach us about the fabrics on the market in those days. We knew that some fabrics were ideal for some patterns because the fabrics had the right weight and drape ability. We knew that some fabrics washed well and others needed dry cleaning. We were taught that some needed ironing and others didn't.

Today, the new fabrics on the market can be a total mystery.

The part of the article that really hit home to me as a consumer was the statement that: "The American consumer is not a particularly quality apparel purchaser. Our industry, like our market, is oriented to high volume, lower priced merchandise. It is no accident that the most successful retailer in America is Wal Mart."

I have mixed feelings about foreign made clothing. Some of it is superb. But, often the size listed on the hangtag of foreign -made clothing has no relationship to the sizing standards of the USA. Every garment has to be tried on, and every one has to be evaluated individually.

The Farwell Post Office will change its hours of service starting Jan. 3.

It will be open on weekdays from 8:45 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. and from 1:30 p.m. - 4:30 p.m. It will also be closed on Saturdays.

Postmaster Lynne Mahaney said, "We hope the new hours will meet service needs as these times were the most popular choice of customers."

Of the 350 responses she said she got, only a very few were against closing.

Panhandle Regional Planning Commission issued its 1992 annual report complete with lots of pictures from the 26 county area.

Farwell is shown in two of the pictures. One is the city hall before the mural was added, and the other is the Parmer County Courthouse (which they mixed up with another county's courthouse).

Elvira Vidal remembered

Editor's note: Joyce Coffman, of Farwell, wrote this poem in honor of Elvira Vidal, a Farwell High School senior recently killed in a vehicle accident.

Elvira

You didn't have to know her to love her.
Just watch her move about in a crowd.
Making life worth living,
Doing her share to better our world.

Elvira was a sweet nice girl,
A pal and a daughter to Maria,
Neighbors and friends by the score,
Her love for others a lot more.

Her intelligence stood out in the crowd, leaving her loved ones strong and proud.

Elvira was a little angel
Of a gentlest kind.
Helping to tend her Brother and Sisters,
Doing her share leaving nothing behind undone.

We mustn't grieve for Elvira,
Know she made for a better day.
Our town's a better place,
For Elvira coming our way.

So -
Via con Dios or God be with you,
You've come to your Journey's end.
Thanks for Being my sweet, precious friend.

Here's a look at the area cotton crop

The 1992 High Plains crop is well on its way to being off the stalk and in the gin yard according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

PCG estimates that the crop is now at least 75-percent harvested, and that a week of favorable conditions could easily allow the remainder of the crop to be harvested. Rain in southern parts of the area during the past week has kept some producers out of the field completely and has delayed others for at least a couple of days.

How much cotton the area crop will produce is still an unknown at this time. Most industry estimates for the area are still below the USDA estimate of 1.51 million bales, however, the size of the crop is changing everyday as more cotton makes its way to gin yards around the area.

"The numbers we have been able to put together indicate a crop below the USDA estimate," notes PCG Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. "Few people have been able to get an accurate estimate of the crop because of the unique circumstances around which this crop was produced."

The December USDA estimate, released Thursday, left expectations for the size of the crop in districts 1-N and 1-S unchanged. Districts 1-N and 1-S are often used as a measuring stick for the 25 county area known as the Texas High Plains.

In contrast to the USDA estimate, preliminary figures on how much cotton is expected to be classed in the Lubbock and Lamesa cotton classing office's continue to indicate a crop slightly over 1.235 million bales, considerably lower than the USDA estimate of 1.51 million bales.

Some adjustment, however, must be made in the classing office figures to allow for a difference in the average weight those bales. This adjustment is necessary since the estimate reflects the actual number of bales to be received from area gins. These bales, known as "running bales", tend to vary in weight both above and below the 480 pound figure used to compute statistical bales.

Applying the necessary conversion factor moves the classing office estimates up to 1.27 million bales. An additional 100,000 bales can then be added to account for gins in the area that send their cotton to classing offices other than Lubbock or Lamesa. This brings the total to 1.37 million bales, still 140,000 bales below the USDA estimate. Most trade estimates place the crop approximately 100,000 bales below the USDA figure.

Tom Shumate, Convalescent Center administrator, congratulates Louise Brigham on being named the center's Employee of the Year.

Center honors Louise Brigham

Louise Brigham was named Farwell Convalescent Center's Employee of the Year for 1992.

She was selected by her peers and by the residents. The department heads nominated her based on years of service, attendance, attitude, participation in staff training meetings, and willingness to take on additional responsibilities. Then the nomination was voted upon by the residents.

Louise started working at the Convalescent Center in October 1978 as a certified nursing assistant. After some time off, she came back to the center as a laundry aide. Later she was promoted to laundry/ housekeeping supervisor on a trial basis where she has been working ever since.

The biggest challenge for Louise is keeping the center clean and odor free as well as making it a nice place to live, work and visit.

Louise and her husband, William, moved to Farwell in 1967. They have four grown sons.

Farwell Convalescent Center Chit Chat

By Debbie Parmer

We will have a New Year's party on the 31st at 3:30 p.m. We will have the pleasure of a sing-a-long with the Carpenters at that time. Families and friends are welcome to join us!

We had a delightful Christmas party! It was a success, with many staffers and the Auxiliary working together. The cookies and hot cider really hit the spot! It was a joy to hear the children from the United Methodist Church sing Christmas carols. "Santa Quickel," you were a very important part of our party. "Thank you" doesn't seem to be enough to express our appreciation for your years of devotion.

Many thanks to all who took part in our Joshua Tree. All the bulbs were gone within 2 weeks and we only made it to 2 businesses - Hughes True Value and Security State Bank. You really made Christmas Day a special one for many residents. May God richly bless you who took part in our Joshua Tree.

Congratulations to Louise Brigham, who was recently picked Employee of the Year. This is a great honor. Nominations are made by staffers but the final decision is made through residents' votes.

Welcome to Ora Bell, a resident who comes from Clovis. She was admitted Dec. 18. We are also glad to have Mary Whitson back with us; she has been in the hospital the past few days.

From all of us to all of you, we hope that '93 will be a good year for you. Have a happy and safe New Year!
