CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (AP)—Motor vehicle accident deaths reached an all time record total of 38,500 in 1936, the national safety council said today, exceeding the nation's previous mark of 37,000 in 1935.

Resolutions Adopted In House After Sharp Debate

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—The house of representatives today adopted a resolution requesting old age assistance officials to enlist the aid of county commissioners in passing on applications for pensions.

The resolution by Rep. Ben F. Cathey of Quitman would ask the board of control, acting as the old age assistance commission, to follow recommendations of the county commissioners when eligibility of applicants was in accord with the law.

It would be effective for the next eight weeks and both proponents and opponents emphasized it would not be mandatory on either the old age assistance commission or the county officials and the effect would be to express the sentiment of the house.

Proceeding the vote, the first sharp debate of the current general session over pensions flared. Charging the resolution would put administration of the old age assistance law in the hands of county commissioners, Rep. Harry N. Graves of Georgetown asserted the state could not possibly pay what the commissioners or the people wanted.

762 Administrators "It will mean 762 men instead of the three-man board of control will administer assistance," he said. Rep. Roy Tennant, Jr., of Longview objected to Graves interpretation, stating the resolution did not obligate the commissioners courts to recommend assistance.

Another authorized counties to pay district judges an additional $1,500 a year to serve as members of county juvenile boards.

ADMITTS A PART IN SLAYING OF OFFICER

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 29 (AP)—A confession by one suspect that he participated in the slaying of A. A. Edwards, motorcycle policeman, and a similar statement from the other that he aided in the two hold ups that preceded the killing were in the hands of officers today.

John Vaughn, 31, upholsterer, confessed he fired one shot at the policeman and said the other man charged with the slaying, Donald Baker, 31, also fired on the officer. This was denied by Baker.

Vaughn declared he did not know who Edwards was when he shot at him the night of Jan. 16.

TOURISTS DONATE TO FLOOD RELIEF

Appeals for flood relief funds for the Red Cross are meeting with response even from tourists. Shine Phillips, chairman of the Howard county chapter of the Red Cross, said today that George H. Price of Fingree, N. D., had stopped here to make a donation to the fund.

Strikers No Longer Are GM Employees

Corporation Moves To Have 'Sitdowns' Evicted By Court

DETROIT, Jan. 29 (AP)—A petition seeking a court order for eviction of "sit down" strikers from the two Fisher body plants at Flint, Mich., revealed today that General Motors corporation no longer considers the men to be employees.

Roy Brownell, Flint attorney for General Motors, filed the petition with circuit court Judge Paul V. Gadola of Genesee county (Flint) late yesterday. It requested an injunction prohibiting the strikers from continuing to occupy the plants they have held since December 30.

Hearing Monday The court directed the United Automobile Workers of America, which called the strikes that have crippled operations of General Motors, to show cause why an injunction should not be granted at a hearing Monday at 2 p. m.

The bill of complaint with the injunction petition referred to the "sit down" strikers as "former employees" and said "they are no longer employees of the plaintiff and have no right to remain on the premises."

Evacuation of the strikers has been demanded by General Motors before it would meet the union to settle the widespread strikes. However, should this be accomplished through the asked-for court order, negotiators might be confronted by a new issue.

OFFICE "STRIKE" LANSING, Mich., Jan. 29 (AP)—A delegation of 25 non-union General Motors workers voted today to hold a three-hour "sit down" strike in the office of Gov. Frank Murphy, after he announced he would use troops to force union strikers to leave Flint, Mich., plants of the Fisher Body company.

The governor said he would discover and make public the fact, if either General Motors or the union is responsible for activities designed to make trouble.

Blasts, Fires Claim Lives Others Hurt In Mishaps At Lubbock And Near Abilene

LUBBOCK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Separate explosions this morning claimed the life of a Plainview man and had injured seriously five members of the Leroy Nichols family at Post.

D. J. Neill, 26, of Plainview died at 1 o'clock of burns suffered when accumulated gas ignited in the bathroom of the residence of his brother, Oran Neill, here Saturday night.

A coal stove in the Nichols residence exploded when Nichols, 26-year-old-salesman, poured what he said he thought was kerosene into the stove. The building was destroyed and Nichols, his 25-year-old wife, and their three sons were burned.

Mrs. Nichols was more gravely injured. The other victims are Billy Jean, 7; Allen Roy, 5, and L. C., 3.

BURNS FATAL ABILENE, Jan. 29 (AP)—Helen Estelle Carroll, 2-year-old-Hamby child, died early today and two others were near death suffering from burns as result of tragedies at two Taylor county farm homes.

The child received burns Thursday when she threw a can of gasoline in the fireplace at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hill, nine miles northeast of here.

Stanton Heller and J. C. Buchanan are in grave condition at a local hospital, where they are being treated for burns received when they fled from a flaming farm home 12 miles south of Abilene early this morning.

WOULD PROHIBIT APPLIANCE SALES BY UTILITY FIRMS

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Rep. Harry N. Graves of Georgetown has introduced a bill prohibiting companies selling household appliances which use their products.

The proposal said the practice of electric power, heat, gas or water and appliances for their use had created a monopoly.

The bill would allow corporations thus engaged one year to dispose of gas ranges, refrigerators, electric irons and other merchandise in stock. Violation would be termed a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $100 to $500.

Purchasers In Local Fields Post Advance In Crude Price

Increase Means Over $1800 Per Day To Producers

Purchasers of Howard-Glasscock and Iatan-East Howard crude followed the Humble postings in new schedules for oil produced in this area.

All companies buying local crude followed the Humble postings in listing a price of 78 cents for 25 gravity oil with a two cent rise for each additional point above 25.

While in the prolific Yates pool the price rise amounted to little more than 2-4 cents a barrel, it was estimated to average about eight cents a barrel on crude from the two local fields. Bulk of the crude produced ranges from 25 gravity to 34 gravity. Maximum price to be paid, under the new postings, is $1.08 for 40 gravity oil and above.

Follow Humble. Corden Oil corporation, largest purchaser in the local area, early followed the Humble postings. The company runs 6,300 daily from the Howard-Glasscock field and 2,800 barrels daily from the Iatan-East Howard area.

Col-Tex, Colorado refinery, met the price for 3,500 barrels a day out of the Howard-Glasscock field and 2,800 daily out of the start field. Others following and the amounts run daily were Shell, 5,500 barrels, and Howard County Refining company, 800 barrels. Humble purchases 1,500 barrels daily in the Howard-Glasscock area.

The price rise was estimated to be worth $1,824 a day to producers in this area. Average daily production is around 23,000 barrels.

Under the old schedule most of the crude in the area was sold on a flat rate basis of 29-30 gravity oil at 65 cents a barrel.

The postings of Corden and other purchasers were effective as of 8 a. m. Thursday.

PROTEST SAN ANGELO, Jan. 29 (AP)—West Texas oil operators today protested the low base price of crude posted by the Humble Oil and Refining company, effective Thursday.

According to local figures, the increases amounted to practically nothing in important West Texas fields.

The posted price in the Yates field for 29-30 gravity oil has been 85 cents a barrel. Under the new schedule, the price is 78 cents for 25 gravity and two cents for each point above 25, or 86 to 88 cents for 29-30 gravity Yates crude.

Yates crude is one of the best in West Texas, and many operators claim it has equal refining qualities to the so-called high gravity East Texas oil.

ELECTRIFICATION PROGRAM SUBMITTED

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Governor Alfred asked the planning board today to investigate feasibility of a rural electrification plan.

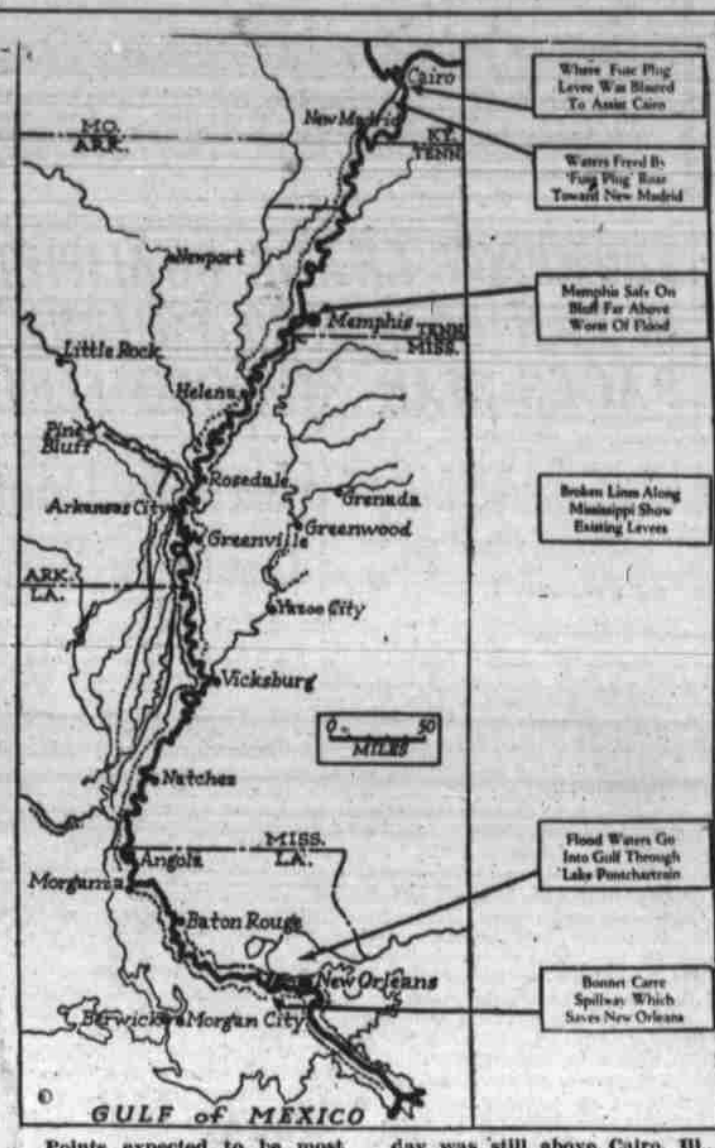

He suggested the board give particular attention to disposal of power by conservation authorities created by the legislature. Although primary purpose of the districts was flood control and soil conservation, the governor said power sites would be available.

Voting Total Will Be Small

Indications were today that voting strength of Howard county will be about half of the potential in 1936 unless hundreds pay their poll taxes today and Saturday.

Saturday is the last day for paying the taxes and having the privilege of voting. After then, the poll taxes become delinquent and must be paid without affording a right to vote.

At noon Friday only 2,014 poll taxes had been issued. Employees in the tax collector's office did not anticipate more than 2,500 poll tax receipts before Saturday evening. Last year more than 4,500 were issued.

MEETING POSTPONED

Notice was given today of the postponement of the annual meeting of the Big Spring country club, originally announced for tonight. The session will be called sometime next week.

Navy Planes In Honolulu

HONOLULU, Jan. 29 (AP)—Battling through thick weather in the last stages of their record-breaking flight, twelve high United States naval seaplanes completed the longest over-water mass flight in history at 3:50 a. m. today (8:20 a. m. Central Standard Time).

They officially covered the 2,353 miles from San Diego to Honolulu in 21 hours, 48 minutes elapsed time.

During the last 500 miles the squadron maneuvered between altitudes of 2,000 and 15,000 feet to escape what Lieut. Commander William H. McDade described as "very bad weather."

They came out into bright moonlight, sparkling on the calm waters, as they flew over the Pearl Harbor naval base in perfect formation, their flying lights twinkling.

The official takeoff time from San Diego was announced as 6:02 a. m., Honolulu time, yesterday and the arrival at Pearl Harbor as 3:50 a. m. today.

TREES ORDERED FOR MUNICIPAL PARK

An order for 20 live oak trees was placed today by the city. The trees, more than two inches in diameter, will be planted in the city park for transplanting.

The city is experimenting with the trees in the park in order to avoid being left without shade should the Chinese elms, which have a weakness toward disintegration after about a score years in some soils, fail.

MAN HELD HERE ON SWINDLE COMPLAINT

City police today were holding Wendell C. Hawkes for Hobbs, N. M., on a swindling complaint. He was arrested here by city traffic officers at a tourist camp. One of several grips found in his car contained a check protector and checks from several towns. Hawkes said the grip belonged to a man who was riding with him.

More Cities Engulfed By Rising Tide

Anxiety Deepens In Cairo As Crest Continues To Creep Higher

By the Associated Press Flood waters of the north, unreeling after a $400,000,000 scourge of the Ohio river valley, began a plundering invasion into the heart of the deep south today.

The crest was still to come—no hovering just above Paducah, Ky. Anxiety deepened in Cairo—A sunken island citadel 60 feet below the river—as the water crept ominously higher.

Sandbag Bulwark Silently, through the night, the debris-littered tide inched upward, reaching a stage of 84 feet—almost to the point reached before the Birds Point-Madrid "fuse plug" was dynamited to save the city.

A new three-foot bulwark of sandbags, topping the 60-foot sea wall, lent some comfort to the 5,000 remaining inhabitants. It was still to be tested, however, and the river was only 16 feet below the top of the concrete wall.

Army engineers predicted a crest of 62 feet of ranging southward from Cairo, a pick-and-shovel army of 100,000 toiled like beavers to fortify the billion-dollar levee system that guards the rich cotton delta lands along the Mississippi.

The pilot of a plane returning to Memphis after an aerial survey of the Cairo-to-Memphis danger zone, reported whole villages under water.

Levees Watched The village of Tomato, Ark., was reported eaves-deep in muddy floodwaters.

United States coast guard cutters shuttled up and down the restive waters on "picket duty" to watch for weak spots or new breaks in the levees. Warned of impending danger, new herds of refugees streamed from the low-lying marginal lands along the Mississippi.

Tent cities sprang up on highlands and ridges 30 miles from the river to house temporary "orphans of the flood." At Barton, near Helena, Ark., a single concentration camp received 15,000 refugees. Ten additional centers were spotted. Thousands of others were removed to East Arkansas cities and to Memphis.

Every levee throughout the Mississippi system was holding today—and U. S. army engineers predicted they would continue to hold, barring the unexpected.

Refugees Into Memphis In Little Rock, Ark., Gov. Carl E. Bailey declined eastern offers of help, declaring Arkansas wants to fight its own flood battle—with aid only from the U. S. army and Red Cross—"until we are completely licked."

Memphis, safely perched on the Chickasaw bluffs, hummed with warlike activity today as more refugees streamed in.

FIFTH VICTIM OF CRASH SUCCUMBS

LOCKNEY, Jan. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Garland Weatherly, 18, fifth victim of a Wednesday night automobile-freight train crash in West Lockney, died in a local hospital shortly before noon today.

There were no survivors in the light automobile which struck a motionless Fort Worth and Denver City freight train. The other victims were Mrs. Weatherly's 31-year-old husband, her seven-year-old stepdaughter, Betty, and her 60-year-old father-in-law, A. J. Weatherly, and J. M. Parsons, about 50.

Govt. Chiefs Are To Direct Cleanup Work

Hopkins And Others Will Make Survey Of Area North Of Memphis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today four high government officials would leave for Memphis Sunday to begin a clean-up and sanitation drive from there northward to the Ohio river.

The four are Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator, Major General Edwin M. Markham, chief of army engineers, Surgeon General Thomas Parran, Jr., of the public health service, and Colonel F. C. Harrington, army engineer now attached to the P.W.A.

The president made the announcement at his press conference. Meanwhile, a number of government agencies were developing a broad rehabilitation program for the flood area, that will include placing about 200,000 persons on relief rolls, inspecting food supplies and clearing away debris.

To Meet Local Leaders Hopkins and the others will arrive in Memphis Monday, go up the river by boat and stop at all important cities to map a program of rehabilitation with local relief leaders.

First assistance will be for persons in need of immediate financial assistance on a small scale. They will receive donations from the Red Cross.

Larger sums will be lent through the reconstruction finance corporation to help storekeepers who have lost their stock. Bankers in the area have been asked to adopt a liberal attitude in helping these people.

The federal housing administration also will participate with issuance of private loans for restoration of dwellings.

The extent of the damage along the Mississippi will determine the exact number the government will place on relief. First plans provide for 50,000 families, averaging four persons each.

Water Falling At Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 29 (AP)—Wreckage and gerrymandered flood waters steeled their stranglehold today on this "gateway to the south," where the Ohio river's greatest overflow in white man's memory has caused untold damage and death in the past week.

From an all-time crest of 57.1, reached Wednesday, the river had receded more than a half a foot today. The weather bureau estimated the rate of fall at one-tenth of a foot every five or six hours.

Tentacles of the monstrous flood still held thousands prisoner in south central Louisville and adjacent lowlands. Fugitives who fled panic-stricken before the creeping waters were scattered as far as 200 miles from the Kentucky metropolis.

No official would say how many dead the flood would leave in its wake. Before a semi-official civilian censorship sealed his lips, Dr. Hugh Rodman Leavelle, city health director, estimated flood deaths at 300. That was four days ago.

EXEMPTIONS AND LIMITED LIST MAY MEAN MANY "REPEATS" ON THOSE CHOSEN FOR JURY DUTY

Perhaps it's a mistaken idea, but almost every man who is summoned for jury service believes that he is called as a juror more than anyone else. At any rate, he believes that practically the same group of men are called to serve term after term in the district court.

Then there are the women who wonder why they are never called to serve on juries inasmuch as they have equal suffrage rights with men. To these are added many more who wonder why they are called or are not called as jurors. All wonder, but few know.

Jurors are selected in Howard county by what is commonly known as a jury commission. In counties of 50,000 or having a city containing as many as 20,000 people the jury wheel is used.

The Commission The jury commission, composed of "intelligent citizens" who are "able to read and write," who are free holders in the county, who have not served in that capacity in a year's time, and who have no suits pending in a court of law, selects the jury lists. These commissioners must reside in different parts of the county.

An almost universal practice is for the commission to take the poll list and select names for service, taking care to omit the names of those who might claim exemption. Names need not come necessarily from poll lists but jury commissions find this the most convenient route.

Qualifications Under the law, all men over 21 years of age are qualified for jury service if they have resided in the state a year, and the county six months, are sound of mind, of good moral character, able to read and write, who have not been convicted nor are under indictment, and who have not served six days on a jury in the preceding six months. The term is specifically "men," hence women are not eligible, under law, to serve on juries in Texas.

A necessary qualification for jury service is that the juror must be either a free holder in the state or a householder in the county. The former term is construed to mean ownership of real property anywhere in the state, while the latter is interpreted as referring to marriage.

Persons over 60 years of age may claim exemption from jury service if they wish. U. S. and state officials, with the exception of first and second class postmasters, may claim exemptions.

Others who are entitled to exercise their exemptions from jury service are ministers, practicing doctors and attorneys, publishers, school teachers and administrative heads, drug store operators, undertakers, telegraph operators, railroad station agents, ferry managers, millers of grain, flour and wood, presidents and vice presidents, conductors, engineers, and firemen on railroads, members of organized fire departments in towns of more than 1,000 population, and those who have served on a jury commission within the past 12 months.

After the jury commission has weeded out most of those entitled to claim exemptions, it is easy to see why many names are familiar on jury lists. Perhaps the poll list is not long enough.

CONSTIPATION MAY LEAD TO COLDS

Every doctor will tell you the first thing to do to avoid suffering from colds—is to be sure you are not constipated. Constipation clogs up the system. It weakens resistance, and infections take hold.

End common constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. This cereal supplies the "bulk" your system needs for normal, natural action. It also gives vitamin B to tone up the intestines—and iron for the blood.

In the body, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water. It forms a soft mass, which gently exercises and sponges out the intestines.

Eat two tablespoonfuls a day, either as a cereal with milk or fruits, or in cooked dishes. Chronic cases, with each meal, will help you stay regular without having to take pills and drugs—that often make conditions worse.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold at all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Floods

thousands of refugees streamed into the city. Health hazards mounted. One out of every ten refugees suffered from sickness—usually influenza and pneumonia.

Wary physicians redoubled their efforts, needing typhoid and other vaccines into thousands who volunteered for treatment in the fight against plague.

Five mothers and thirty-nine babies were harbored in the juvenile court building. Ten exceptional mothers waited for their "flood babies" in another make-shift hospital.

Rehabilitation Work Meanwhile, assured that the worst was past, stricken communities in middlewestern states pushed plans for rehabilitation, aided by state and federal governments, and the care of the homeless. These victims of the disaster numbered 1,035,000, latest estimates said, with 353 dead. Property loss estimates were $400,000,000.

As the crest of the nation's most devastating flood passed slowly down the Ohio, a pick and shovel army of 100,000 men fortified a fertile, cotton growing valley in the south against the impact of flood waters which will pour down the Mississippi next week.

Danger points along the 1,000-mile front between Cairo, Ill. where the Ohio spills into the Mississippi, and the Gulf of Mexico were at New Madrid, Mo., Hickman, Ky., and Millwood, Ark., 38 miles below Helena.

Like a fort in military siege, 4,000 men battled behind a 60-foot seawall to save Cairo, southern Illinois shipping center, from the oncoming flood crest. Most of the city's 13,000 population had fled to safety.

Others Evacuated Several days ago engineers "pulled the stopper" in the great 131,000-acre floodway below Cairo to ease the pressure against the seawall. Last night they dynamited another hole to relieve the pressure on a setback levee near New Madrid, Mo.

Thousands of refugees who lived in the inundated area camped along the Missouri border hoping Cairo and southeast Missouri's "boot heel" would be saved from engulfment.

As 500 men labored to strengthen the levee near Millwood, Ark., evacuation of 100,000 threatened acres of farmlands was completed. Another crew was at work repairing the levee at Hickman.

The big test of the government's billion-dollar flood control system along the Mississippi will not come until next week. While the engineers were prepared for any eventuality, Gen. Malin Craig, U.S. army chief of staff, said qualifiedly he expected Mississippi relief would hold. He based his belief on the expectation the levees will hold at Cairo and no abnormal floods develop in tributary rivers.

Farmers Cheated In Sales Of Livestock MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 29 (AP)—Out of flood-harvested east Arkansas came reports today that livestock speculators had bilked frightened farmers of thousands of dollars, while along the levee line men with shovels and sandbags pitted their skill and might against the onrushing Mississippi river.

Officials heard complaints that buyers had persuaded farmers the levees would break and pour over their lands, buying livestock for a fraction of its value.

Shifting of part of Memphis' refugee load to inland cities began. Special trains carried the homeless to Chattanooga and Jackson, Tenn.

Meanwhile the Mississippi river rose to within two feet of the 1913 all-time flood crest of 46.6 feet. Today's weather bureau gauge read 44.6 feet, a rise of but three tenths of a foot in 24 hours. The stage at Cairo reached 56.4 feet, a rise of a half foot while New Madrid, Mo., reported 46.7 feet.

REICHSTAG WILL CONVENE SATURDAY BERLIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Germany, ready for Chancellor Hitler's announcement of some momentous decision completed preparations today for the first session of the Reichstag since reoccupation of the Rhineland.

Advance plans indicated the session called by Der Fuehrer for tomorrow to receive "an announcement of the government" would be of epochal importance.

Most observers expected the announcement would concern one of three things:

1. Acquisition of a colony or colonial rights with appointment of a cabinet minister for colonies.

2. New powers and honors for Col. Gen. Hermann Goering, his chief aide, who has long been rumored to be the next chancellor.

3. Dissolution of the Reichstag in its present form.

Opposes Big Increase In Crude Levy

Excess Tax Would Place State At Disadvantage, Legislator Says

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Proposals to tax oil as high as 10 cents a barrel reacted in the senate today. Sen. E. M. Davis of Brownwood, who resides in a marginal oil district, had one of Governor Allred's campaign speeches of last summer placed in the journal. In it the governor said he favored a "reasonable increase" in the oil tax, but not one which would place Texas at a disadvantage in competition with other states and foreign countries.

"I cannot help but view with apprehension the proposals to raise the tax to 16, 12 and 14 cents a barrel," Davis said. "Oil is worth more than all the crops of Texas combined and gives employment to more than a million people."

Several house bills would increase the oil levy from 2-3-4 cents to 10 cents a barrel.

Sen. Will Pace of Tyler concurred with Davis, saying he believed the governor's campaign speech stated the policy of his administration.

"I believe oil can be taxed more," Pace observed, "but I'm fearful we will be placed at a disadvantage with out-of-state competition if we put too great a levy on the producers."

Sen. Claud Westerfield of Dallas took an opposite view.

"They say somebody's going to tax oil," he thundered. "Sure, we'll tax oil and 10 cents a barrel won't miss it much. Why, the oil companies of this state are paying no taxes. The people who drive the automobiles and trucks are paying it. They're paying the equivalent of 41.75 cents a barrel in tax."

CITRUS SHIPMENTS WILL BE LARGE DESPITE THE COLD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29 (AP)—Despite damage by the recent cold spell, described as "the longest of record in California," citrus fruit shipments this year may not fall more than 25 per cent below 1935.

This is the prediction of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, based on a preliminary survey but it is subject to revision.

The survey places the loss at 35,000 carloads. Some 20,000 cars of citrus fruit had been shipped before the first serious freeze of Jan. 7. An 8th exchange estimates there will be 50,000 additional cars for marketing this season.

"It is not possible to place a money value on the loss," said Paul Armstrong, exchange manager.

Last year's crop was valued at $112,000,000 and previously unofficial estimates had placed the damage this year, including the cost of oil for repeated smudging, at $60,000,000.

Business Varied Due To Flood And Labor Troubles

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—The course of business was indecisive this week, with both spreading floods and increased labor entanglements contributing. Dun & Bradstreet said today in its weekly review.

"Retail distribution ran a wide gamut of variations," the agency said, "with weather conditions working to its disadvantage. Wholesale markets were less active. Aside from those located in the path of rising waters, industries held close to top speed operations."

"Temporary curtailment of retail trade progress was spread over so many districts this week by unchecked flood waters, unsettled labor strife, and recurrent storms," the review continued, "that reports of a rise in sales from the preceding period were in the minority."

QUITS MEETING Kirby Doesn't Like Talk About Constitution

BEAUMONT, Jan. 29 (AP)—John Henry Kirby of Houston, chairman of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, walked out of a meeting of the Beaumont chamber of commerce last night when he objected to references to the constitution.

Speaking on "The Changing Order," John E. Owens, Dallas banker, said the constitution should be flexible and not held in some "hallowed sense."

Kirby said later he objected to Owens' references to the supreme court.

"I could not reply to Mr. Owens," he asserted, "when he said he had no more reverence for the constitution than he did for a deed of trust or a mortgage because I was only a guest. So the only thing for me to do was to get up and leave."

WANTS FARM PLAN READY THIS YEAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (AP)—Secretary Wallace said today he hoped "a well-rounded workable program providing for the ever normal granary can be perfected this year."

The statement, issued from Wallace's office while he was in Chicago, stirred speculation on possible changes in the administration farm program.

Such a plan, Wallace said, "will function with justice with respect to the farmers and consumers in years of good and bad weather alike."

TO SEEK SALE BY THE DRINK

Liquor Law Changes To Be Asked Despite Allred's Views

AUSTIN, Jan. 29 (AP)—Advocates of local option on sale of liquor by the drink were determined today to push for legalization of such a dispensing system despite Governor Allred's condemnation.

Reps. H. Emmett Morse of Houston and Harold Bankamer of El Paso said the governor's opinion that a constitutional amendment would be necessary to legalize sale by the drink would not alter plans for legislation to liberalize the liquor control act.

In his second message, the governor asked for "mpro teeth" in the control law and also for repeal of the 1935 act legalizing pari-mutuel wagering on horse racing.

His recommendation with regard to wagering drew tighter lines for a contest which may have its prelude February 9 when the house state affairs committee scheduled a hearing on a repeal bill.

Meanwhile, members of both legislative branches continued to offer laws for committee consideration.

Rep. Bowen Bond's bill to establish ports of entry for out-of-state trucks was sent to the motor transportation committee. He estimated it would raise $1,000,000 annually through license and mileage fees.

Revived by Rep. Edgar S. Keefer of Palestine and others was a proposal to place certain state employees under civil service regulations. The state affairs committee placed it on the docket for hearing later.

The senate awaited printing of the enabling acts to the constitutional amendment creating a new board of pardons and paroles and curtailing the governor's clemency powers. Two bills were reported favorably out of committee.

A resolution by Rep. Ben F. Camesa of Quitman to enlist the aid of county commissioners in investigating applications for old age pensions was reported favorably by the house state affairs committee.

A bill by Rep. R. E. Quinn of Beaumont authorizing A. and M. College to lease experimental station lands for oil development received a favorable report from the house public lands committee.

Blaze On Ship Under Control

Coastwise Vessel Earlier Had Sent Out An SOS Call

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (AP)—The captain of the coastwise vessel Shawnee wireless late this morning he had succeeded in extinguishing a fire in the No. 2 hold after a fight of several hours during which he dispatched a SOS distress call.

Laden with 190 passengers and a cargo of fruits, vegetables and cotton, the Shawnee, of 2,200 tons, with a crew of 174, was bound from Jacksonville and Miami for New York when her skipper wireless a call from a position off Cape Henry, Virginia, for assistance at 7 a. m. (EST).

The City of Birmingham and the coast guard responded. An hour and 20 minutes later the Shawnee advised all ships in the vicinity the fire was under control.

Then, at 9:50 a. m. (EST) the captain wireless his New York office: "Fire now out. Proceeding to New York."

Before the fire had been completely extinguished, however, the Shawnee added this precautionary message:

"We do not require assistance at this time," the coast guard quoted her message from the Shawnee. "Please keep a sharp watch on 600 meters broadcast if we should require your aid."

The S. S. City of Birmingham, 135 miles from the position the Shawnee gave, turned immediately to aid the ship which had sent out an "SOS" at 7 o'clock.

The fire apparently broke out during the night, radio reports said, while the Shawnee was between Cape Hatteras and Cape Henry. There were no details as to the cause of the blaze.

Need For Makeup Care Emphasized By Return Of Evening Decolletes

A BEAUTIFUL BACK
Blonde Jean Arthur, motion picture actress, powders her shoulders and back with care when she wears evening gowns with deep decolletes. This one is of gray-beige satin, designed with crossed back straps of shimmering crystal and turquoise beading which reveal the smooth contours of her shoulders. Notice the gloves which are made of the same gleaming satin as the frock.

By ADELAIDE KERR
NEW YORK, (AP)—Becks and necks are as important as faces in making or breaking beauty reputations.
Low cut evening decolletes which the coming coronation has brought to the mode by scores make firmness of flesh and lack of blemish as important below the chin as above it. A lined throat, poor posture and careless arm makeup rubbing off on your escort's dinner coat can do more to wreck your chances of becoming a to look their best. In fact it is a permanent rite. In the morning they give at least five minutes to exercises, rolling the head about the shoulders in a complete circle, first left, then right, and swinging the arms in a circle, forward and back, using the shoulder as a pivot. At night they massage cream carefully into the throat working from the center to the side and finishing with a careful application on the shoulders and elbows, which have a tendency to grow dry. They finish with an astringent to firm the skin.

Superfluous hair on the forearms and under arms is removed with a good depilatory, and the dangers of perspiration's ruining a beautiful frock eliminated by the use of a reliable deodorant at least a half hour before going out.

Shoulder Makeup
On the evening when they wear their most glamorous low-cut gowns, they begin their make-up at the bust and tip of the shoulder blades, working upward to the throat and finally to the face and arms.
First comes a powder foundation, generally a liquid or creamy tone, smoothed in an even coat over shoulders, throat, face and arms. Next comes the powder often applied with a good sized roll of absorbent cotton and patted into the skin. They apply more powder than they wish to wear then dust off the loose particles with a camel's hair brush. The result is a smooth even finish which extends without a break from the forehead to the top of the frock and doesn't rub off in a powdery streak on an escort's coat.

Reading And Writing

By John Selby
Some sort of curbs hangs over the heads of people who try to write biographies of great actresses and great singers. The biographies seldom come off. Statesmen, sailors, explorers, even clergymen sometimes trudge good reading when embalmed in words. Actresses, no.
It would be silly to pretend that Hector Bolitho has made Marie Tempest into a good story. As a matter of fact, Mr. Bolitho apologizes through several pages for his product, and explains some of the reasons it is so. Miss Tempest, it seems, refused to cooperate. She would talk charmingly with him on almost any subject but herself. She had forgotten, or refused to remember, most of her life. She had not kept letters, and other written records were few. Hence poor Mr. Bolitho's plight.
He solves it just as most of us would. He writes a book, messenger supplied with detail, and generously padded with "impressions." He even calls the chapters "episodes," and gains a certain swing by treating them that way. And he does one thing more which has vitiated other works of the sort in the past—he puts his chief character on a pedestal. True, he mentions intrusions here and there, but one effect upon this saddest reader was a strong desire to hit this "radiant" creature with a hammer to see whether she would say "ouch."
So much adulation on the part of Mr. Bolitho should not have been necessary. Miss Tempest had the good fortune to have gone on the stage in spite of a personal protest from Gladstone. She fell into glamor with ease. She is full of the most outrageous crochets; for example, her thousands of games of patience, which she employs to clear her mind. She has the reputation of being a somewhat difficult star to play with, and there are plenty of stories to be had, most likely, about that matter.

Filet And Crocheted Bedspread

By RUTH O'NE
Pattern No. 420
Crocheters as a whole are divided into three groups. The first like to do filet crochet; the second like all crocheting except filet; the third, like anything, if it's to be crocheted. The design for this bedspread was made up with every one of these people in mind. Alternating squares, as well as some of the border, are made of filet crochet. The remaining motifs are worked in imitation of Cluny lace. And, the whole effect is so attractive that it can't help but appeal to everyone.

The pattern envelope contains complete, easy-to-understand illustrated directions, with block and space diagrams to aid you; also what crochet hook and what material and how much you will need. To obtain this pattern, send for No. 420 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needlework Dept., P. O. Thursday Luncheon Club Members Are Guests Of Mrs. Roy Lawrence

Thursday Luncheon club members were guests of Mrs. Roy Lawrence when she entertained at the Settles hotel Thursday for the noon meal and bridge.
Mrs. P. W. Malone substituted for Mrs. R. P. Kountz.
Mrs. Sam Goldman and Mrs. Roy Combs scored high and second high during the games.
Places were laid for Mrs. Lee Hubby, Mrs. Roy Combs, Mrs. Adams Talley, Mrs. Hardin Wood, Mrs. Sam Goldman, Mrs. Cal Boykin, Mrs. Roy Lawrence and Mrs. P. W. Malone.
She also has met "everybody," as she perhaps would phrase it, everybody has been presented to her. A certain amount of friction must have been generated, and the heat from this would have improved the hook a lot. As it is, I find myself remembering such details as Miss Tempest's suggestion, while in Sweden, that the party run over to Geneva for the afternoon.
"Marie Tempest," by Hector Bolitho (Lippincott).

Sprightly Comedy And Warm Drama Combined In "Turn To The Right"

COLD WAVE LIKELY WON'T REACH TEXAS

DALLAS, Jan. 29 (AP)—Dr. J. Cline, meteorologist in charge of the United States weather bureau here, said today a threatened cold snap probably would not materialize in most of North Texas.
Dr. Cline said Oklahoma City had a minimum of 26 degrees last night and a misting rain was freezing in day but the chill would probably stop short of Texas.
He said the Pennsylvania would probably be colder Saturday and Saturday night.
According to Ray Simmons, director of the play, the cast has captured the spirit of the popular comedy, and will give a finished performance when the curtain is rung up.
Setting for the play is on a farm which has, as its chief asset, a fine peach orchard. Mrs. Bascom, the beloved widow, stands to lose her farm to Deacon Tillinger because her wayward son, Joe, has left home. The deacon plans to pinch the place for a small pittance and resell at a big price.
But the son returns and together with two New York underworld characters he met while spending a year in prison, takes charge. The three at first pay the deacon with his own money, then rake up some of their own, and at one time the village Shylock has three rolls of bills for his debt.
There is a lively touch of comedy in the final act when Muggs and Gilley, the reformed characters, philosophize over the transformation in their lives. Gilley modestly confessing that "I ain't missed Sunday school in 40 weeks."

Gov. Allred previously had asked liberal contributions for flood relief. He also had tendered national guard troops if needed.

BEHIND THE NEWS

By MALLEN

Roosevelt's hand seen forced on wages and hours.
 Advisers had counted heavily on Lewis's program.
 Purpose held defeated by "sit-down" controversy.
 Woodring's evacuation order proves premature.

Shift

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—A subtle but complete change of front was behind President Roosevelt's announcement that he is framing legislation now on wages and hours. The news was handed out so nonchalantly, it appeared to be just a routine evolution of policy. No explanation was offered, however, as to how it happened to break right in the middle of the auto strikes and two months before the all-controlling Wagner labor law decision from the supreme court.

The answer is that, until recently, presidential advisers on labor had counted heavily on John L. Lewis. His campaign might have solved the whole wages and hours problem without a constitutional amendment or federal legislation. If he could have organized steel and autos, he could have established minimum wages and maximum hours in the two largest industries of the country. Smaller industries would have been compelled to fall in line. The least expected was that Lewis would throw the spotlight of national attention on the issue and clear the road for solution.

His spotlight seems to have switched to another subject. More attention is being forced to the sit-down method of labor protest than to hours and wages. The trouble he has encountered has certainly made a solution of the original problem through this means more remote.

The president's hand thus seems to have been forced before the proper time arrived.

Confusion
 The flood moves only 90 miles a day, but the problem has been moving so fast that even the secretary of war has been unable to keep up with it.

Newsmen went in to see Secretary Woodring the other morning about the matter. Their editor jumped off when he said his army engineers were going to evacuate everyone within 50 miles on both sides of the Mississippi. He advised the boys to get the details from Chief of Staff Craig. They rushed back to see General Craig, found him busy, agreed the story was too hot to hold until General Craig came to a leisure moment. So they rushed to telephones, sent it out.

By the time they got back to see General Craig, he was busier than ever, but not too busy to see them. Their stories were already coming in on his private news printer and he was very angry. It seems the evacuation was to be attempted if and when necessary. He denied his superior's story, returned the panicky effect it might have on river communities down stream.

Predicament
 What happened was this: Craig and the army general staff had been up all night formulating evacuation plans, submitted them to the president and had them approved. They were not just trying to amuse themselves. He has signed the evacuation plan, but the necessity of having an evacuation plan ready. The engineers can calculate the expected height of the river downstream accurately, but cannot tell which levees will hold. They know they will have to use portions of the plan, at least.

Woodring came in in the morning, learned the president had approved the plan, but did not get the "if and when" feature, which the general staff had been careful to devise for psychological reasons. In other words, they have their fingers crossed.

Helper
 Son James Roosevelt is taking a hold on his new secretarial duties at the White House. He has joined the daily breakfast conference circle with the other secretaries. They thresh out the business of the day at the presidential bedside while the president munches toast and bacon.

The president has told callers that Jimmy speaks right out. On one occasion recently, he told his father strongly who could be trusted in relation to a certain matter, and urged a course of action, which the president happened to have been avoiding for some time.

The president is said to be still reeling it, but was secretly delighted to be lectured. He is convinced Jimmy has a flair for politics.

Notes
 They say Treasury Secretary Morgenthau only had to look over the top of his desk to find his new undersecretary, Prof. Magill. While Magill has been teaching at Columbia this semester, the job seems to have been purely a sideline. He has been working in the treasury as a tax adviser for more than a year.

Change signals on Robert Jackson, the assistant attorney general, to be next SEC chairman. Unless Mr. Roosevelt whispers otherwise, the most likely successor to Chairman Landis next June is Commissioner Douglas, whom Wall Street does not like. No decision will be made for months, and the situation may again change entirely.

A former democratic congressman from New England has developed a new method of campaigning

TODAY'S ANNIVERSARY—William McKinley, 25th president, born January 29th, 1843.

CARING FOR THE INSANE

Nearly three million dollars is needed, Governor Allred told the legislature this week, to provide adequately for insane persons in Texas. A report from the state board of control advises the governor that hospitals now operating have 727 patients more than they were intended to accommodate, and that there is a waiting list of 884 in the care of relatives or in jails—persons already declared insane after inquiries by courts according to statute.

Several hundred thousand dollars of the amount the governor suggests would be used to build, equip and maintain another institution somewhere in West Texas, and other thousands would be for enlargement, repair and improvement of existing hospitals.

Texas must care for her insane, not only for the benefit of those unfortunate enough to lose their mental capacity, but for the safety of persons who might otherwise fall victims to the homicidal mania of many persons who become unbalanced. And while at it, there might be something done to locate and confine this latter class before they commit the murders. Even if this is not done, there will yet be need for more asylum room, for many of the murderers who are put on trial nowadays plead insanity and often are saved from the chair or penitentiary by that means, being sent to asylums instead.

Even after being sent to asylums, too many of the patients are released, and this is probably due—to some extent at least—to the desire to make room for some who are considered more in need of treatment. The danger of these releases is shown all too often, a notable example being the recent act of a father in Northwest West Texas who locked himself and family in the house, sprinkled gasoline on them and set fire to the whole group. The maniac died, but he took with him members of his family. He should never have been released and more room is needed for others like him.

County officials who have knowledge of the confinement of insane persons in jails long have sought an extension and improvement of the system of hospitals for the insane. They should have, in this move, the support of every citizen.

If there is call for new or larger state appropriations, certainly that for better facilities to care for the insane is one call that should be heeded immediately.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

NEW YORK—Mr. J. Haddon Tilk, whose apartment is a sort of Hall of Horrors, telephones that the sketches I wanted to see have been completed and to come right over. He has rounded out a cycle in charcoal depicting the evolution of torture through the ages, and one is astonished to learn that the so-called higher civilizations are much more adept in crucifying their enemies than the more barbarious ones.

Friend Tilk has graciously consented to let me have these sketches photographed, and so while a photographer (who has been bribed with some theater tickets) makes a photographic record of this horrendous revue, let's see what made the victim squirm.

The Chinese were past masters at this art. With their death was seldom the immediate object. When a victim dies, you can't torture him any longer. They liked to drive him mad with fear and pain.

Here is a quiet little study in which a lady is being forced to swallow a live snake. The snake isn't poisonous; it is very hungry. . . Sometimes it takes three days to eat its way to freedom.

And here is a soldier, bound hand and foot, who has been put through a special ritual of horror. The next move, and the last one (for him), is when a cylinder of high explosives is crammed into his mouth. His jaws are securely lashed and a tooth knocked out. Through the aperture trails a long fuse, which is ignited. Upon being released, the victim thrashes madly about, trying to put out the fuse. But the fuse never goes out.

If you think this is a quaint, wait until you hear about a primitive form of surgery exercised upon unanesthetized victims. An incision is made in the abdomen and a string attached.

(Note: my editor, who has been peeping over my shoulder, says nip to this one. He says, "Don't you know this is a family newspaper?" However, if you plan to come to New York sometime, and are still interested. . .)

Phil Baker is a restless sort of comic. He moves about with the weather, dodging rain and snow as best he can. His latest move was to Miami, but now he wishes he was back in New York.

Irene Wicker, the radio singer, really spells her first name with three E's. . . Willie Morris, the singer, is of an old banking family, which is one reason why she never makes bad financial investments. . . She just lets papa take care of everything.

Meri Bell is a contralto. Her real name is Mary Balsley, but a press agent made her change it. Incidentally, her husband is Dell Sharrbut, but another P.A. had similar ideas, and now he signs himself Del Sharrbut. No numerology involved.

VARIETY OF MUSIC ON COSDEN HOUR
 The Cosden Traffic Cop program to be broadcast through WBAP at 7:30 p. m. Saturday will include a wide variety of musical offerings in addition to the "Safety skit" by the Cosden Traffic Cop and his "Little Pals." For "western" atmosphere, the Cosden Broncho Busters will sing, "I Want to Be a Cowboy's Sweetheart"; and "My Ole Cow Pony." Ted will open the program singing "One in a Million." The "Humming Birds" will harmonize in "One Never Knows, Does One" and "Plenty of Money and You." Lee will sing the lead with the Humming Birds in "Cocktails for Two" and Prissy will be featured in "Where the Lazy River Goes By." The Higher Octaves will play "I Love You From Coast to Coast" and "Loveless Love." This program goes on the air through WRAP every Saturday evening at 7:30 to 8 o'clock and is an outstanding half hour of delightful music and entertainment.

SKI, SKATE OR SWIM; IDAHO RESORT OFFERS A VARIETY IN SPORTS
 Take it from Count Felix Schaffgotsch, eminent Austrian sportsman and skiing authority, the annual trek of Americans to European skiing resorts is likely to be reversed. Foreign as well as American winter sports enthusiasts will be flocking to Idaho just to soon down the marvelous ski runs at Sun Valley!

Such is the promising picture afforded by America's newly established winter playground, according to Carveth Wells, who will describe the transformation of the old mining town of Ketchum into one of the most elaborate and fashionable skiing resorts in the

TOM HUNTER'S LIBEL DECISION REVERSED
 FORT WORTH, Jan. 29 (AP)—The $15,000 judgment awarded Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls in his $100,000 libel suit against the Houston Post, as an outgrowth of the 1934 gubernatorial campaign, was reversed and remanded by second court of civil appeals here today.

The appellate court ruled the trial should not have submitted the world in his Continental Oil Company broadcast, "Exploring America with Conoco and Carveth Wells," over station WFAA, Dallas, at 6:30 Saturday evening.

"You can get a Florida tan in Idaho in the winter," the famous world explorer declares. "Stimulating sun baths taken in Sun Valley's roofless igloos give you a healthy 'ice tan.' And you can take a mid-winter plunge in absolute comfort—in an outdoor pool fed by a flow of natural hot water that has to be cooled artificially. This region is so sheltered from the wind by the rugged Sawtooth Mountains that all outdoor sports can be enjoyed in lightweight clothing."

Wings For Sally

by BAILEY WOLFE

Chapter 44 RESCUE IN THE DARK

Sally went to the window. Sam was sitting on the grass outside, playing with the big dog, tumbling him about on the ground.

"Sam!" she called. "I want to talk to you. Will you come upstairs in the hall? We can talk through the door even if you can't unlock it."

"Can't," said Sam stolidly. "Boss says not to have anything to do with you till he comes back."

"Is Giles Benton your boss?" asked Sally.

"What do you think?"

"If Giles Benton told you not to speak to me till he got back, he's trying to make a fool of you," said Sally. Sam said nothing to indicate that he heard her. Sally leaned out of the window and called to the dog to come in.

"I happen to know that Giles Benton and Mrs. Picard are going away. They've gone to get the money from Mr. Morris, then they'll be leaving. They're going to leave me here with you until my friends come and find us."

"I don't fall for that line of gab," said Sam calmly.

Sally's hopes sank. She had spoken the lie with conviction. For all she knew, it was true.

"Please come up to the hall," said Sally. "I'll tell you everything I heard Giles Benton say. Besides, there's not much time. My friends will search for me. One of them is part owner of this lodge. He'll be sure to think of coming here."

This was the first time she had happened to remember that Bob Dawes had mentioned coming to the lodge to shoot sometimes. Sam could not know that Bob Dawes was a hundred miles away, and not likely to join the search for Sally.

"Who's your friend that owns this place?" demanded Sam.

"Bob Dawes," Sally answered instantly.

Sam was disturbed. He got up, puffed his hands in his pockets and walked around the house. Sally waited breathlessly for him to come upstairs, but he did not. A few minutes later, she heard the sound of a motorcycle. The dog barked for good, and she would be alone in the house. Sally was sure, now, that Sam was Giles' accomplice, the man who had gone to McDonald's house on the motorcycle. But she got no comfort from clearing up this part of the mystery.

As the sound of the motor died away, she was seized with panic. The little room seemed close and stifling. Sally felt the walls were closing in on her. The lamp flame flickered and threatened to go out. Sally ran over and turned up the wick. There was very little oil left. Soon she would be in the dark, alone in this house in the woods.

Sally pressed hot hands against her temples and tried to keep from screaming. She opened her eyes to find that the moon had risen high and a shaft of light made a path across the room. But that was not what had roused her. Someone was working at the lock on the door.

How long she lay there, Sally did not know. She opened her eyes to find that the moon had risen high and a shaft of light made a path across the room. But that was not what had roused her. Someone was working at the lock on the door.

Just Pure Fright

"Damn!" said a voice outside. Sally got to her feet and moved away from the door fearfully. It was not Giles, for he had a key. It must be Sam, who had come back, not knowing the others had left.

The lock yielded to the efforts of the man in the hall and the door was flung open.

"Sally!"

It was Philip Page, but Sally could not believe that she had not dreamed him there. Not until he had crossed the room and taken her in his arms.

"What's happened? Are you all right? Sally, my darling, tell me!" Philip's voice was sharp with anxiety.

Sally trembled in his arms. "Please—please take me out of here, Philip."

"All right. We're going now. I'll carry you."

"Noose," said Sally tremulously.

"You wouldn't get so far carrying me. I'll walk. There's nothing on earth wrong with me but pure fright."

"It's had our share of that, too," said Philip.

Together they crept down the stairs in the dark, Philip feeling his way down the wall. Sally clinging to his arm. In the living room of the lodge, the lamp still burned. The dog lay on the hearthrug, and gave a low growl as they entered.

"It's Sam's dog," said Sally. "Do you suppose he'll come back for it?"

"No," said Philip. "Sam's in the Warrenton jail."

"But how—" began Sally.

"I'll tell you while we ride. Your father's waiting to know about you."

"Let's take the dog," said Sally. "He'll starve out here!"

With some difficulty they got the big dog to sit in the rumble seat. Philip blew out the last lamp and closed the door of the lodge while Sally waited for him in the car.

As they drove down the narrow woods road, Philip was silent. Sally waited for him to speak, but finally she said timidly:

"Did Sam tell enough to clear McDonald?"

Philip nodded. "He's the man who twice lured McDonald to the Palace theater. He laid the fire that destroyed the building, but he swears he did not light the fire. He says the plan was to burn the theater site that night when it was empty. He doesn't know who started the fire. But he'll have to prove that."

"What about Giles Benton?" asked Sally.

"He got away and left Sam to face the music. The police have his description."

"How did you get Sam?"

"I went to Hillcrest and asked for Benton," replied Philip. "He had checked out for good. Just as I was leaving, the desk clerk called me and told me there was another man waiting for Benton, a man who came on a motorcycle. That was Sam. I took a chance and questioned him. He was convinced Benton had checked out on him. I bluffed him into believing I had the right to hold him. By the time I got the sheriff there, he was ready to let anything on Benton to clear himself."

"Then I did solve the case," said Sally, "even if I didn't get anyone to confess. You couldn't have caught Sam, if you hadn't been hunting for me."

"No," said Philip. "Except for you, I wouldn't have caught Sam."

Sally told how she had listened to the row between old Mr. Morris and Giles Benton, and how Giles had tried to collect the blackmail money in return for Mrs. Picard's letters. She told the story of how Giles had brought her to the lodge and finally abandoned her there.

Philip listened in silence.

"Are you angry with me for causing you such trouble?" asked Sally. "I suppose it was wicked, sassedropping, and foolish of me to think I could bully Giles Benton into confessing."

"It was very foolish," said Philip. Sally was puzzled by his manner. When he had found her, he had been glad. He had held her in his arms a moment. Now, for some reason, he was sorry he had done so. He seemed angry. Or perhaps there was something else wrong, something she didn't know about. Sally kept a hurt silence, and Philip Page said nothing until he drew up at the curb before Sally's own home.

Farting Advice

The living room clock chimed as Sally climbed her own front steps. The hours Sally had been imprisoned in the hunting lodge were few, but the intensity of her experience had made her feel that she had been away for days. The house was dark and quiet. Somewhere a cock crowed.

Philip Page's only words to Sally when he parted with her in front of her house were words of advice, rather sternly delivered.

"If I were you, I would not say a word about having been kidnapped, only your father need know. He hasn't even roused your family yet. He's simply waiting for me to bring you back. I can keep your name out of the court proceedings, unless something unforeseen happens. Of course, I shan't agree if you insist on disclosing your case and free McDonald. You've been away for part of a day and half the night and you should be able to make up a tale that would satisfy anyone's curiosity."

"I won't say anything to anyone," said Sally humbly. "Not even to father, if you don't think best."

"It's necessary for your father to know," said Philip. "Well, goodnight. Don't come to the office in the morning unless you feel up to it."

"I'll be all right," Sally had said. "Goodnight, and thank you for all you've done for me tonight."

"I got you into this case," said Philip. "I guess it was up to me to get you out. Goodnight."

Then he had gone away, and Sally had walked slowly along the path toward the house. Why had Philip been so cold when he said goodnight? She could not reconcile his joy at finding her with the coldness that succeeded it.

Merle Oberon, Brian Aherne Co-Featured

Appear At Ritz Friday and Saturday In Drama, 'Beloved Enemy'

Two native English players are given the leading roles in the Samuel Goldwyn production, "Beloved Enemy," which opens for a two day run at the Ritz Theater beginning Friday.

Merle Oberon has been given her greatest role to date along with another native Britisher, Brian Aherne, in this powerful love story of the investigations of Irish leaders in the early '20s.

Miss Oberon, cast as Helen Drummond, goes to Ireland to enter in on the investigations along with her father.

There she meets Dennis Riordan (Aherne) and discovers his association with the troublemaking Irishers.

They are drawn together despite the fact that their worlds are far apart and suddenly fall madly in love.

Overwhelmed by a sudden surge of patriotism, Helen betrays Dennis to her father but he escapes his soldiers who come to trap him. His love for the English girl is so great that he cannot hate her even for this.

Jane Withers In New Film

Madcap Child Player Star Of Sunday Feature, 'Holy Terror'

That personification of mischief and excitement, Jane Withers, romps merrily through laugh-provoking situations in her new picture, "The Holy Terror," which plays Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the Ritz theater. In this latest funfest, involving Jane's hilarious doings with the navy, the little madcap is supported by Anthony Martin, Leah Ray, John Davis, El Brendel and Joe Lewis.

Jane appears as the pet of the naval air base, a "holy terror" who so often involves herself and friendly sailors in distressing situations that the irate commandant assigns a sailor, Anthony Martin, to look after her. Anthony already is interested in looking after Leah Ray, operator of a tavern.

Excitement enters the story when she uses the tavern as a base of operations to learn naval secrets.

ROMANCERS

Two of the great romancers of the screen, Robert Taylor and Garbo, are co-starring for the first time in the production, "Camille," a film adaptation of the famous Dumas story. The picture is at the Ritz Saturday midnight, Sunday and Monday.

Back into the great outdoors, where he earned his greatest fame, goes Richard Arlen in the Friday and Saturday attraction at the Lyric Theatre, "Secret Valley."

Arlen, who leaped to fame from the ranks of the extras in the wartime picture, "Wings," along with Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Clara Bow and Gary Cooper in 1927 and later made one of the most popular western pictures of all times in "Light of the Western Stars," for the third time is cast in one of Harold Bell Wright's novels.

It is a typical outdoors picture and gives newcomer Virginia Gray ample opportunity to introduce herself to the movie going public.

Arlen takes the part of a rugged rancher who comes to the aid of Miss Grey when she runs away from her gangster husband. She has been tricked into marriage by an eastern hoodlum and seeks refuge on his "layout" when pursued.

Miss Grey is almost kidnapped by her former associates, led by Norman Walls and Russell Hicks but Arlen, aided by his pal, Jack Mulhall, rescues the girl, captures the unwanted visitors turns them over to the Federal authorities.

Supporting Arlen in the Twentieth Century-Fox release are Sid Saylor, Willie Fung and Maude Allen.

Garbo, Taylor At The Ritz

In 'Camille'

Co-Starring In Famed Dumas Romance Which Opens Sunday

All possible box-office appeal factors are combined in the new production, "Camille," which plays at the Ritz starting Sunday and Monday following Saturday midnight matinee showing. For the great romance, Alexandre Dumas presents as principal characters none other than the glamorous Garbo and the young sensation of the year, Robert Taylor.

In addition to magnificent production details, striking setting and able acting, "Camille" stands out as a poignant and stirring portrayal of the love of a beautiful and fascinating woman for the man of her heart. Garbo steps into the same great role that was filled by Bernhardt, Duse, Modjeska and—on the screen—Norma Talmadge—that of the "lady of the camellias" who gave up wealth and social position for the man who could offer her little except his ardent devotion.

Garbo is said to reach the heights of dramatic ability in the character that calls for great emotional scope. It is a part she calls for both laughter and tears. Robert Taylor, as Armand, likewise has an important role that demands romantic portrayal of into which the handsome Taylor fits nicely.

The outstanding supporting cast is headed by Lionel Barrymore, Elizabeth Allan, Jessie Ralph, Henry Daniell, Lenore Ulrich and Laura Hope Crews.

Imbibing Drivers Crash The Movies; Film Evidence Brings Guilty Pleas

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 29 (UP)—here's a motion picture studio in the basement of the police station suburban Mt. Lebanon and a driver can "crash" the movies there getting drunk.

The driver believed to be intoxicated is taken into the studio, complete with camera, Kleig lights and projectors, and asked to perform such routine tasks as walking a straight line, putting the tip of his finger to his nose or dropping to a "squat" position without support of his hands.

If he zig-zags in his path, if his finger misses the nose, or if he tumbles to the floor while trying to squat, he might as well plead guilty when called in court. And that's just what most of the suspects have been doing.

Rather than plead not guilty, then appear foolish when the motion pictures are flashed on the screen in the courtroom, the driver usually admits his guilt and accepts the 30-day sentence.

It's all part of Mt. Lebanon's crusade against the intoxicated motorist and it has proved quite successful.

The idea belongs to Dr. J. M. Johnston, physician who examines most of the motorists under suspicion. It used to be, he said, that a defense attorney could make the examining physician look foolish on the witness stand—but let him try to do it when motion pictures tell the story.

Dr. Johnston set up his camera last October. Every driver he has pronounced intoxicated since then has pleaded guilty.

"A jury doesn't have to take my word for it," said Johnston. "They can see for themselves. I challenge any defendant who has been 'screened' to face a jury which has seen his antics through the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy: 'The wintry blasts of earth may uproot the flowers of affection, and scatter them to the winds; but this severance of fleshly ties serves to unite thought more closely to God, for Love supports the struggling heart until it ceases to sign over the world and begins to unfold its wings for heaven' (page 57)."

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, January 31.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing" (Zephaniah 3:17).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth" (Job 19:25).

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The wintry blasts of earth may uproot the flowers of affection, and scatter them to the winds; but this severance of fleshly ties serves to unite thought more closely to God, for Love supports the struggling heart until it ceases to sign over the world and begins to unfold its wings for heaven" (page 57).

UNICAMERAL SYSTEM ENDS PARLIAMENTARY PELL-MELL IN ITS FIRST NEBRASKA MEET

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 29 (UP)—The Nebraska one-house legislature, serving as a laboratory in political science for the nation, has adopted measures which members believe will prevent passage of hastily and ill-considered legislation.

Under rules perfected during the first two weeks of the session, 17 days is the minimum time for consideration of any proposed measure unless the rules are suspended.

Since the unicameral legislature, by its very nature, implies a partial departure from the historic American system of "checks and balances," the Nebraska senate-as the legislators chose by resolution to call the lawmaking body—has erected safeguards against pell-mell action on bills.

Committee Hearings Open In the first place, every bill must be sent to a standing committee. The committee must hold an open hearing on the proposal and conduct research on it, reporting its recommendations to the house. The committee must give five calendar days notice of the hearing.

When the bill is reported back to the house, it first is considered in the committee of the whole—a method of legislative procedure which many advocates of the unicameral system, including Sen. George W. Norris who sponsored the plan in Nebraska, wanted abolished.

Three days must elapse between the time the bill is considered in the committee of the whole and its consideration by the legislature as an assembly. Rules provide for another five-day delay between the time the bill is reported to the committee on correlation and review and final passage.

Rules Can Be Suspended The legislature can suspend the rules by a two-third vote. The rules were suspended on the first three bills to reach the floor—appropriation measures for salaries of members and legislative expense.

Three other policies were adopted in an effort to avoid mistakes. 1—The legislature voted to hire, at $25 a day, two legislative counselors to advise committees on constitutionality of pending bills. The counselors at the present session are L. J. Te Poe, dean of the Creighton University law school, Omaha, and Robert Van Peit, former assistant U. S. district attorney, Lincoln. It also employed an additional bill drafter at $25 a day.

2—Committee meetings were set for afternoons and scheduled so that there would be no conflicts. Under ordinary circumstances the legislature will meet only in the forenoon.

3—Plans were discussed to create a legislative council, similar to that which exists in Kansas, to study legislation between legislative sessions.

Large Saving Seen The unicameral legislature probably will effect a large saving to the taxpayers of Nebraska insofar as its own expense is concerned. Total cost of the last regular two-house session was $202,593.49. It is estimated the present session will cost not more than $150,000 and probably much less than that.

Aggregate salaries of the 43 members for the biennium is $75,000. This is fixed by the constitution. During the first two weeks of the present session, only 26 were introduced as compared with 169

IT ALL DEPENDS ON THE Lighting!

Women were among the first to appreciate good lighting in stores and in their homes. They found that light made a great difference in the appearance of merchandise they saw in stores and instinctively turned to those places where good light aided their shopping. At home, they found that well-diffused lighting made home furnishings look brighter and their home more comfortable.

Helpful suggestions on the arrangement of lighting in your home, store or office are yours for the asking. Call our office and a trained lighting man will make a light-meter survey without cost or obligation which will aid you in getting the best kind of illumination for your particular needs.
