judicial investigation would pay great dividends in a future return to law and order and a return to a feeling of confidence in the rights of the lawabiding citizen. Law and order is maintained only because the vast bulk of the people want to obey the laws. There cannot be enforcement of the law, short of a complete police state, unless the people want and cooperate in keeping the law. If this willingness on the part of the people to obey the law disorder will also disappear and our society as we know it will disintegrate. We look upon the judiciary as the keystone in the arch of orderly government. It must not be allowed to crumble.
