

Independent Oil Men Seek Legislative Aid

HOME TOWN TALK

By BEDDY

Readers are reminded that several weeks ago we invited all citizens who desired to send signed articles to The Herald either supporting or opposing the city hall bond issue. Thus far we have received no articles opposing the measure. Let us remind you once more that the columns of the Herald are open to an open forum discussion of the proposition so long as articles are made to deal solely with this issue and are signed by the writer.

How many of you have taken a trip through the Howard-Glascok oil field from end to end?

From conversations with residents of the field and officials of the producing companies we have come to the conclusion that Big Spring, as a community, has perhaps unwittingly shown a lack of gratitude and appreciation for these valued citizens of the county.

If you need a good tonic to counteract the blues you ought to spend an hour or two in the field.

When you leave Coahoma and drive through all parts of the field, the Chalk, the Clay, the Roberts, Settles, Phillips and Coffee areas—a long drive—you will return home convinced that statements of the past from well-informed oil men that oil will be produced from the field for many, many years is wholly true.

True, conditions in the oil industry are terrible. But that has nothing to do with the fact that much benefit comes today to Big Spring because of the field. The boom has died and now our fellow citizens down there are more settled and have fully assumed the role of good, sound citizens.

The best indication of this is seen in election returns from the Fort Worth. Compare the number of votes cast in the last road bond election with the number Fort Worth counted in the state primaries of last year.

The field is an important part of the county. From it came the forces that made Big Spring a city of more than 12,000 in a few short years.

This field is here to stay. Bad times may come to the industry but the field will go on and with it cycles of prosperity as well as quiet.

Many a large tract right in the middle of the field is untouched by bit. Tens of thousands of acres of oil leases along the edges of the field have not been touched. Millions of dollars have been invested by the producing companies, the Texas Electric Service company, which serves the field.

The number of people employed in the field has, of course, decreased. But you'll be surprised if you go down there and see for yourself, just how many men are now required to operate the entire field.

Yes! A close inspection will serve as a good antidote for the "hard-timble".

Girls of the orphanage home said that they frequently visited the Indian camp. They said that the Indians did nothing more than hug and kiss them.

L. A. Williamson, Already Charged In Wife's Death, Being Held Here To Answer Complaints In Dallas

Troubles multiply for L. A. Williamson! Already charged in Justice of the Peace Cecil C. Collins' court with the murder in connection with fatal shooting of his wife, Beale Williamson, 28, May 26, he is arrested here Monday by the sheriff's department and held for Dallas charges.

According to a telegram received here two indictments charging burglary are pending against Williamson in Dallas county. It is alleged the offenses occurred in 1929.

Sheriff H. A. Hood notified the local sheriff's department that men would arrive here Wednesday to return Williamson to Dallas.

Williamson was charged with murder after his wife was killed almost instantly by a bullet from a .380 caliber pistol. Williamson and I. R. Harris were scuffling over the pistol at the time it was discharged. The slaying occurred at the home of Harris, 2000 Johnson street.

Williamson was arrested by Bonham officers after he returned to Ector to attend the funeral of his wife. He had been released here on $5,000 bond, and made bond in Fannin county on charges there.

Leadership In East Texas Is Criticised

Resolution Calls Upon Producers To Quit Random Drilling

DALLAS, June 9 (AP)—The conference of Texas independent oil men, after several addresses dealing in emphatic fashion with what was described as "uninformed and incompetent leadership" among certain East Texas oil interests, decided to seek legislative aid in damping the crusade of East Texas oil, and to negotiate with non-cooperating owners to the same end.

Estes Fanned, Defended

There was no unanimity in placing the blame for the conditions that have beaten down the price of Texas oil from above a dollar a barrel a year or so ago, to the present purported ten cents, said to be the price of a good deal of the crude now coming from the East Texas fields.

Carl Estes, Tyler newspaperman, who led the more or less successful fight against proration in East Texas, was the target of a number of speakers, while others defended his course, and said that while he may have erred in some respects, his actions sprang from a desire to protect the interests of East Texas landowners, brought from the desperation of a severe drought to approaching prosperity by the discovery of oil.

Pena Motion

Robert E. Pena, member of the Texas proration advisory committee, proposed an adopted motion that a general committee appointed at today's session to attain the ends of the meeting be instructed to negotiate with representatives of the major companies, landowners and any others concerned in efforts to choke down the production.

The general committee, composed of fifty-seven members, in a session immediately after the main meeting, made plans to attack the problem from every angle. W. L. Todd, Dallas drilling contractor and former vice president of the Simms Oil Company, was elected chairman of the general emergency committee, with Frank P. Zoch, San Antonio, vice chairman and Ed A. Landreth, Fort Worth, secretary-treasurer.

The committee named a subcommittee to work out complete organization plans and to make overtures to Governor Sterling for a formal committee visit this week probably Thursday. At the same time, the whole committee will meet in Austin to further plans for the campaign.

To See Sterling

At the meeting with Governor Sterling, committee members will attempt to convince him that a special session of the legislature is a "dire necessity" to put teeth into proration laws as a preliminary step to choking off the field.

Another move of the general meeting was to adopt a resolution by Charles F. Roeser of Fort Worth calling on all producers to put a stop to the drilling of unnecessary wells. Roeser also put a motion, adopted, to name two representative oil men from East Texas, two from South Texas, two from West Texas and two from North Texas, a comprehensive conservation statute to offer Governor Sterling and the legislature in the event a session of the legislature is convened.

Nearly a dozen members of the Texas legislature attended the meeting, three of them coming with a first-hand knowledge of conditions gained from a week's study in the East Texas fields. Among them were A. M. Howley of Albany, author of the Howley bill about which much of the argument concerning proration has raged. The bill failed of passage at the last session of the legislature.

Criticism Carl Estes

Background for the plight of the oil industry was pictured during the morning session in addresses by Charles F. Roeser, chosen temporary chairman of the Texas oil emergency committee, and chairman of the East Texas advisory committee; E. A. Landreth, chairman of the West Texas advisory committee; and A. L. Guilfoison, who was chairman of California's first unofficial proration committee. J. D. Collett, Fort Worth independent producer and one of the signers of the call for the meeting, presided.

Both Mr. Roeser and Mr. Landreth were severely critical of Carl Estes, Tyler newspaperman, and to his leadership was credited much of the present condition.

"It was clearly apparent," Mr. Roeser said, "when a whole bunch of wildcats became producers over

Relative Of Slain Dimmit Woman Held

DIMITT, June 9 (AP)—A relative of Mrs. Nora Barrett, 20-year-old mother who was found dead in her back yard, 20 miles southwest of Dimmit, Castro county, yesterday morning, with shotgun wounds in her body, was arrested late yesterday near House, N. M.

The man was arrested by Sheriff John Flanagan of Castro county at the home of a son-in-law northwest of House after a chase from Texas to a neighboring county for surrendering Sheriff Flanagan said to night.

To File Charges

Murder charges will be filed against him Tuesday, the officer said.

Mrs. Barrett was found in the yard of her home shortly before noon by George Keller, and members of his family, who were on a party two miles from the Barrett home.

Officers were told that the relative of Mrs. Barrett had informed Foster Mrs. Barrett was dead. Two charges of shot entered the young woman's body according to officers. One of the charges took effect in her left arm and the other in her right arm just below the heart. She was dead when the neighbors found her, officers said. Mrs. Barrett's husband was not at home when the shooting occurred. Her ten-month-old baby was said to have been in the farm house.

Did Not Resist

Sheriff Flanagan said that the man did not resist when the sheriff's party of four men surrounded the New Mexico farm house. The occupants of the house, including five men, were ordered out of the building and entrances to the dwelling were covered by members of the posse.

The man made no effort to fight extradition from the neighboring state, the sheriff said.

Details of the tragedy were jacked tonight. County Attorney Charles H. Dean and Sheriff Flanagan are to make a thorough investigation of the affair Tuesday.

Funeral arrangements for the woman had not been made tonight, as far as could be learned.

Mrs. Barrett was the step-daughter of W. T. Oliver, store keeper of the Big Bend community.

West Texas' Only Unprorated Pools Suffer Price Cuts

Crude prices in the West Texas, high gravity, sweet oil field in Loving county and in the Tobogg-Tippett shallow, low gravity, sulphur oil pool in Pecos county, West Texas' only producing areas not prorated, have suffered sharp reduction in crude prices.

Loving county 40 gravity crude who, slashed June 3 from a flat rate of 46 to 22 per barrel. Daily average production by 43 wells during the week ending May 27 was 3,500 barrels. The Paso-Tex is running all the oil to El Paso, where Rio Grande is taking 1,000 barrels a day, paying 15c per barrel for the movement. The oil flows by gravity to the Paso-Tex pump station in a basin, whence it is sent three miles north to a junction with the company's trunk line from the Hendrick field in Winkler county to El Paso. The Rio Grande has a 3-mile, 4-inch line to a leading rack at Arno on the Santa Fe railroad but has not been shipping oil in tank cars to its El Paso refinery for sometime.

Price reductions have followed the drilling of each of three producers by Eppenauer Drilling Co. of San Angelo. It simply is a coincidence of course, but A. R. Eppenauer is wondering if such misfortune will continue should he drill in another well. He is drilling two now for the California Co. but none of his own. Shortly after Eppenauer No. 1 Allen came in during January the price was cut from 11 1/2 to 7 1/2 a barrel, the gravity being 30.

A half dozen producers in the Tobogg-Tippett pool immediately northwest of the Yates field in Pecos county began receiving only 12c per barrel Saturday morning, June 6. The price has been 22c since April 23 when it was reduced from 23c. The oil brought 50c a barrel until March 16 when it was cut to 16 1/2. Still higher all the crude which ranges from 19-22 to 24-22 gravity. Daily average production from 54 wells ranges from 1,300 to 1,800 barrels daily.

Only one test now is being drilled.

the production which is obtained between 400 and 500 feet. It is No. 2-E Tippett by the Cardinal Oil Co. of San Angelo and was spudded Monday. Location is 331 feet west and 150 feet north of the center of section 10, block 194, GCM&F Ry. Co. survey, 780 feet due west of Cardinal No. 2-R Tippett and about a quarter mile north of Cardinal producers on it "E" lease. There is one other test drilling in the area, Cooley Production & Royalty Co., No. 1 Humble-Tippett, in section 40, but it is seeking deeper oil. Drilling early last week had passed 1,300 feet in anhydrite.

Judge Agrees With Husband That Wife Doesn't Care Now

CHICAGO, June 9 (UP)—It took 34 years to convince Oliver E. Bon Durant, 65, that his wife didn't love him any more, but he's sure of it now, he told Judge Randolph F. Desort, so the judge gave him a divorce.

The Bon Durants were married in 1885, the husband testified. They were divorced in 1894. Then they got married again a month later.

"But she left me again," Bon Durant testified, "I tried and I tried to get her to come back, but she wouldn't. I didn't give up hope, however, until 15 years ago, when I lost track of her."

"Recently I learned she was in New York so I went there and tried again to get reconciled. But she wouldn't listen, so I guess maybe it's no use."

Survey Of T. & P. Land Trust Tracts To End In July

SAN ANGELO, June 9.—H. L. George, surveyor and student of the old days west of the Pecos, was in yesterday for a breathing spell from his job of surveying the T. & P. Land Trust properties in the Trans-Pecos. He returns today to the Davis Mountain country on the X ranch and will finish his survey by the middle of July. He has collected a great fund of interesting facts on the Trans-Pecos country during his one year's intimate association with its landowners and in surveying lands. He tells one story of a hidden spring, on the Casey ranch east of the Davis Mountains and about 15 miles from Balmorhea. There was a dry section of land but a Mexican woman who worked for him told him that it was the site of a great spring, that the Indians kept covered up. He dug up the spring and now waters by ditches a great portion of his ranch. It could irrigate three sections of land.

Mr. George says the country

Wailing Wall, Ancient Holy City Shrine, Held Property of Moslems

LONDON, June 9 (U.P.)—A commission headed by Ebel Loefgren, former Swedish foreign minister, has unanimously decided the Moslems are sole owners of the historic "wailing wall" in Jerusalem, and the Jews are to have free devotional access to the wall subject to certain stipulations.

Those stipulations require permission to block the ceremonial Ram's Horn nearby, while at the same time the Moslems are prohibited from holding the Bikh ceremony or otherwise interfere with Jewish devotions.

The wall is considered sacred by both Jews and Moslems. The question of Jewish access to the wall led to the rioting and bloodshed of 1929.

Modern Rustic Furniture Offers Comfort

By MARGERY TAYLOR
Interior Decoration Editor Mo Call's Magazine, Writer for The Herald.

For the summer camp, the living room of the house in the country and the porch of the suburban home, the new modernized rustic furniture is comfortable, sitting on peal.

In pioneer days rustic furniture was made for living purposes. But in the past 30 years, with the rusticity a kind of pose, designers seem to have tried to make rustic furniture uncomfortable, sitting on it was really "roughing it."

In the modern type, however, the knob and splinter effects are abolished, and the result is comfortable and sophisticated with the quaint rustic air still there.

Hickory was always the perfect wood for this furniture, and the new designers are true to the tradition.

A dining room in this style is crisscrossed around an interesting trestle table, on which Italian pottery and green glass strike the right color note. A bright touch is supplied by the pads of red chintz on the ladder-back chairs.

Unpeeled hickory forms the frames of the living room pieces. The arms of the sofa and chairs are twice-wrapped, and deep, restful spring cushions satisfy the requirements of comfort.

The sofa and chairs are covered with an attractive printed linen showing the log cabin birthplace of Andrew Jackson—"Old Hickory" himself—and green trees. To give a pleasing variety a settee in black, red and green carpet fabric is a suggestion.

Unpeeled hickory is used in the magazine rack, desk, side-table, straight chairs and the stem of the floor lamp. Table tops and case work are of stained oak or chestnut. For the floor a woven rag rug in a red, black and green plaid is

No longer need rustic furniture mean literally "roughing it."

Indeed, while she told him about Fran. His bent head did not even move. But when at last he lifted his eyes she saw such anguish there, that her own lips quivered.

"You will do something, won't you? You will save her!" He walked over to the window and looked down into the hot street.

"I've been cudgeling my brain to find a way out," he said at last. "Fran has been getting so thin. I told her she must get away. But she wouldn't leave the children."

"Nora was on her feet. She cried fiercely. "It's all so horribly unjust. Your life, your very happiness, depends on money!"

He turned about and began to walk up and down his office. He did not seem to hear her.

"There's a sanatorium up in the mountains. The doctor who runs it is a friend of mine. I think I could get Fran in there."

"But the money?" "Well, I've been saving to go to Germany," he told her. "Not that that matters. Not that anything matters."

In all the time that she had known him, Nora had never seen Fergus anything but hopeful. Her patient he had been when the boy was burned - faithful always! And now that Fran had to go away, he would be willing to sacrifice for her the sum he had wrunged from his poverty. Her heart was stirred in admiration as she stood there waiting for Fergus to continue.

"But there's another thing," he went on. "Halie won't be able to care for the children. And her mother is doing all she can now."

Nora sat down suddenly. For he was watching her now. She twisted about in the chair and laid her cheek against its back. She could not take care of Dickie and Alice. He couldn't ask her to do that. At any other time, but not now. Not now.

"Well?" Fergus said. He was waiting for her answer; and she felt torn in two. She and Fran were going to be married. At once. As soon as her father's show was launched. They were going away without a word to anyone. She had to get away from this cramped and pitiful red brick house. She forgot at that moment all the times they had laughed together and planned together, flung out their dreams, shared their disappointments.

No, she could not stay here now. Life was growing too bitter in the red brick house. Fergus stood there waiting for her answer, his velvet dark brows drawn together, his eyes on her clasped hands. But she must be free. It was her life and she would not sacrifice it. Sacrifice was an out-worn ideal. After all what did she owe to them? They had taken her in when she came home, alone, but they would have taken in any stranger.

"You know what it will mean, don't you?" Fergus' voice was harsh as he went reluctantly on driving in the truth. "You'll have to give up much that you have now. Other friends perhaps. But I'll help you all I can."

"I can't do it," she cried. "I can't! I don't care what you think of me. I know I'm selfish. But my life and I'm going to live it." He smiled a little wistfully as he continued to look at her. "Your life?" he asked. "Does it matter so much?"

"It matters to me dreadfully. I won't be tied down. I won't be an old maid in this old house, always remembering what I might have had. It isn't my fault, is it, that this all happened? I'm going to be happy and nothing - nothing can stop me."

Jack Hurley Once Had To Fight Own Fighter; He Lost
General Indictment of Present System of Prosecuting Breakers Of Law Rendered By Commission

WASHINGTON, June 9. (UP)—A general indictment of the present system of prosecuting lawbreakers was handed down today by the Wheeler commission. In the fourth report, prosecutors, the report said, are indirectly allied through political affiliation with crime in some localities.

The report revealed out of every 100 prosecutions in Chicago or New York, only four or five resulted in conviction. Cincinnati's percentage was 37, Milwaukee's 60, and Baltimore was higher than 90. In that city there were 2,248 prosecutions and 1,211 convictions in 1928.

There is a close connection, the report said, "between corrupt local political organizations and criminal organizations. The former exploit and the latter organize law breaking and vice."

Five corrective measures were suggested. They were: 1. Elimination of politics in appointment of federal district attorneys.

2. Better selection of state attorneys, with longer terms and higher pay for assistants. 3. Organization of local bar associations to insure the competency of those engaged in the federal courts.

4. Systematic control of prosecutions in each state under a director of public prosecutions. 5. Provision for legal questioning of accused persons under proper safeguards.

Nation Bankrupt In Leadership Is Relief of Dr. Frank
KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9. (UP)—The nation today is "bankrupt in leadership," Dr. Gimm Franks, president of the University of Wisconsin, asserted here today.

"This depression has developed a serious need for the broad-shouldered type of leadership," Dr. Frank told reporters. "That is what we are in need of today."

"What about our political leadership?" "Will it lead us out?" he was asked.

"What are they doing now?" he asked.

"Blind" Evangelist Able To Use Sight
PHILADELPHIA, June 9. (UP)—The Rev. Robert Fraser lives in a new world today for he has seen his wife for the first time since he married her four years ago.

Fraser, long called the "blind evangelist," was operated upon in May by Dr. G. H. Moore, who removed the sight of 21-year-old Earl Musselman.

"While I couldn't see her face distinctly," he said from his bed, "I was able to see the outline of her face. Soon I hope that I'll be able to see better."

Fraser had the bandage removed from his eyes for a few minutes. The bandages were replaced to prevent the light from injuring the delicate tissues while they are healing.

Mississippi has ten counties with dual county seats.

Leadership

A twenty-five-mile area that some method of control had to be worked out and applied. We pointed out the needs there, but we were blocked by political influences that said no. I have all sympathy for East Texas in its plight, but East Texas followed off after the leadership of a newspaper editor who knew nothing about the oil business and wouldn't listen and learn. Uninformed and incompetent leadership has had much to do with this situation. In a meeting early this year I told that editor that his efforts if successful would cost the landowners of East Texas a dead loss of $25,000,000. I want now to correct that statement. The cost to the East Texas landowners will be at least $100,000,000, to say nothing of the losses suffered by all of the producers of oil in all of the States.

Lease Values Decrease
There has been much talk about great oil concerns seeking a monopoly, but it has been paid a substantial fee to further the cause of those who would give a monopoly their cause could have been better served. In December land leases could be sold for as high as $2.00 an acre and what can you lease land for these days?

Mr. Roosevelt said it would take ten years to absorb the overproduction of oil if East Texas runs wild. He said there would be 1,500 producing wells there by Sept. 1 and that the public is not going to stand for the ruination of a great basic resource and that "the sort of leadership that has prevailed will be utterly discredited in Texas within thirty days."

Mr. Roosevelt likewise directed a shaft or two at Tom E. Crandall, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas, and at that connection gave credit to that organization for pushing through the common purchaser act to require stable takings of oil in the Forty-First Legislature.

Mr. Roosevelt said it would be the first to violate the principles he had fought for two years ago.

Danger to Every Producer
East Texas is entitled to a large place in the world of oil production because of its potentialities. Mr. Roosevelt said, but it does not deserve to produce oil until it breaks every producer in the whole State. Already thousands were prosperous in Texas and West Texas, he said, are broke because of the activities of four or five huge ones in East Texas. He declared that the only solution lies in the field of enforced stabilization and co-operation and said that the whole question is up to the people of Texas, the Governor of Texas and the Legislature.

When Mr. Roosevelt had concluded Clifford Moore, Longview producer, told the assembly that "Charlie Roesser is abiding by the principles he has enunciated here."

"It happens," Mr. Moore said, "that Mr. Roesser effects a tract held by one of the biggest violators in East Texas. I own a tract near to Mr. Roesser and have proposed to him that he file a suit against the violator, but he has said, 'Let's be patient and work this thing out. Charlie Roesser is sincere and he is willing to take punishment.'"

Wants Permanent Organization
Mr. Landreth covered much the same ground and urged the formation of an organization to handle the emergency and then continue it as a permanent body to treat with the major oil companies and seek to bring about effective co-operation. He read dispatches from California predicting that oil there will advance from 30c to 75c a barrel because of healthful producing conditions. Mr. Landreth also criticized the leadership that has sought to thwart production in East Texas, and said that the "common purchaser act" has been ineffective because Dan Moody, as Governor, vetoed the appropriation to enforce the act. He said that former Governor Moody's "ignorance of oil matters was shameful in the hearing at Austin before the Railroad Commission last April."

Sheep and Goat Sale To Be Held In Angelo

$385,000 To Be Spent On 30-Mile Highway
SAN ANTONIO, June 9. (UP)—Expenditure of $385,000 by the state, county and city on construction of a new highway to Seguin, about 20 miles south of here, the work to start within 90 days, was announced by County Judge W. A. Wirthbach.

The state has $20,000 ready to spend on the work. E. P. Arnsperg, engineer for the state highway department, said. Bexar county will put up $50,000 for the purchase of 16 1/2 miles of right-of-way within the county and the city will give $25,000 to purchase right-of-way within the city limits. Seguin and Guadalupe county already have secured right-of-way for the southern end of the road.

With a width of 100 feet the new highway will be the best modern extending out of San Antonio. It will shorten the distance to Seguin about seven miles, and it will be known as highway No. 3-A.
