SUZANNE HUNSINGER, C-C secretary, has her work cut out for her answering all the inquiries about Littlefield after Security State Bank ran an ad on Littlefield's favorable climate in three northern "snow belt" city newspapers last Sunday. Another Littlefield ad is running today in three metropolitan papers in Ohio and Missouri. C-C Manager Bill Payne shows his secretary 59 letters received this week.

59 WRITE FOR C-C BROCHURE

Approximately 7,000 Littlefield residents enjoy suburban living, away from heavy traffic, pollution, high tax rates and big city problems.

If the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, the Board of City Development and the Security State Bank have anything to do with it, Littlefield's population will be on the increase soon.

The bank recently received permission from the bank directors to spend up to $6,000 on a trial advertising campaign to go into big city newspapers in the "snow belt", retirement supplements in the armed services publications, and later other Texas cities.

Ads telling about Littlefield's favorable climate were run in the Sunday editions of newspapers in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, and by Friday morning the Littlefield C-C had received 59 requests for a brochure on Littlefield.

The two column by 10-inch ad said "Come live in Littlefield, you'll like it! A town to call home. Escape from big city congestion and unrest. Discover contentment in a friendly, small town atmosphere. Healthful climate, lots of sunshine, low humidity, reasonable property values and favorable tax rates, 30-minute drive to metropolitan area and regional airport, and superb medical, cultural and living opportunities.

An ad saying "the good life, that's what you enjoy in Littlefield" is running today in Missouri and Ohio newspapers.

Bill Payne, C-C manager, said return addresses showed several of those inquiring were professional people. Judging by handwriting, he said others were retired persons. Two of the inquiries

BREAKFAST PLANNED

32 In DE Program

Thirty-two LHS Distributive Education (DE) students are employed by 25 Littlefield business firms where they are selling and handling everything from bolts to nuts.

Through practical experience from on-the-job training, these young people learn about the world of business and become useful, self-supporting citizens.

March is DE Month, and this week the Littlefield DE students are observing DE Week to thank the businessmen who hire them. Among many other activities this week will be a DE breakfast Friday when Littlefield DECA students host their employees.

DE students carry a regular load of high school work in addition to working an average of 30 hours per week. Fifteen of these hours must be between Monday and Friday, so strictly weekend jobs are out in the DE program.

Approved jobs include distribution, selling and working with people, excluding health and mechanic occupations.

At least half of the DE students here plan

Absentee Balloting Cut Off Is Tuesday

Absentee voting in all the local and area school trustee and city government elections closes at 5 p.m. Tuesday, March 28.

Voting by absentee is especially heavy in this area this year due to the long school spring vacations which go through the April 1 voting date and Easter weekend. Almost 30 persons had voted by absentee at the Littlefield school tax office by Friday afternoon. Most school board elections here draw about seven or eight absentee votes.

Mayors' races at Amherst and Earth are contested this year, and six of the 10 area school races have drawn opposition.

Wildcat Band Wins Sweepstakes Honor

Littlefield High School's Wildcat Band and the Springlake-Earth High School Band are now seeking state band honors after they were awarded the sweepstakes trophies Wednesday afternoon following the North Zone, Region 16 concert and sight-reading contests at Dimmitt.

Numbers the Wildcats played in contest are "L'Inglesina March" by D. Delle Cese, "Overture For Winds" by Charles Carter, and "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" by Dukas.

Director of the Springlake-Earth Band is Tom SoFelle, former director of the Littlefield Junior High School Band.

Judges for the Dimmitt contests were Bruce Cook, Don Craig, Pat Patterson and Bill Brady.

In commenting on the Wildcat Band, "My congratulations on a very fine job," commented the concert judge, Pat Patterson of Sweetwater. "The bassoonist (Mark Rogers) is terrific!"

IN BICYCLE ACCIDENT

Rummage Sale To Aid Victim

When people around Littlefield are down and out, neighbors come to their aid. Little 10-year-old Tina Kay Black, who was hit by a car while she was riding her bicycle Feb. 23, is no exception.

Tina spent more than a month in the Methodist Hospital in Lubbock while medical bills piled up at the cost of approximately $150 per day. Not only was Tina without insurance, but the man who accidentally struck her had no insurance. Added to that, her dad, who is a single parent, stayed with her at the hospital and hasn't been able to work since the accident.

Tina was released from the hospital

Friday afternoon and is at home in a full body cast, but she will have to return to the hospital for therapy and possibly surgery.

Littlefield residents who want to help Tina are holding a giant garage sale this week. Mrs. Grace Haberer co-ordinated the effort. Virginia Walker McCarty donated a building in the 300 block of Phelps Ave., and residents all over town have contributed items toward the sale.

Doors open at 10:30 Monday morning, and the sale will continue throughout the week until 5 p.m. All of the proceeds will go into the Tina Black funds at the two Littlefield banks.

1972 Summer Scout Camps Being Prepared

Bill McMillan, South Plains Council Camping Chairman, said today that several new features are in the planning stages for the operation of the Boy Scout Council Camps at Post and Tres Ritos, N. M. this summer.

Lamb County Scouts will benefit from the changes which will be reflected in the food menus, program events, as well as a new idea for programming at Camp Post to "beat the heat", he stated.

Several innovations have already been publicized to the Scoutmasters with the predominant one being the conducting of a "Maverick Troop" operation at Post. This very simply is where a Scout who has to miss camp when his troop goes can sign up in a Maverick Troop for either of the two weeks, June 4-10 or June 11-17, as an individual. The Council will have provided the necessary leadership for him to have a good experience.

McMillan continued by saying the special camps for aquatics and junior leader training will again be conducted, this year during June 18-23. Here again an individual Scout may register for either of these specialties through the Council Service Center.

Troops who have already made reservations for Camp this summer from the George White district are: T600, T611, T614, T625, T633, T634, T637, T638, T640, T641, T675.

McMillan concluded by stating he hoped those other Troops throughout the 20 county Council area who plan on attending Post or Tres Ritos this year will hurry with their reservations before the camps are filled. Post is now 90 percent reserved and Tres Ritos 60 percent.

Status Of Pants: 'As You Like It'

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

Pants have reached "as you like it" status. Now a standard wardrobe item, pants are in a variety of designs to suit different tastes and figures and to offer the interest of changes in looks.

Silhouettes are slim or full, end in hems or cuffs. Hipline fit is close and sleek or eased by cut and waistband tucks.

Waistbands are at the natural line, slung low or widened into high-rise effects.

The relaxed look of slacks of the '30s and '40s are back as the "newest" for spring and summer. Fuller legs are hemmed or cuffed, and tops are tucked or pleated at the waistband. The slacks have a roomy swagger that goes well with tucked-in blouses and blazer jackets.

Slender silhouettes with straight legs and neat hipline fit have become pants classics. They are compatible with all sorts of toppers. Blouses, shirts and sweaters may be tucked in or pulled over. Fitted, boxy or full jackets are equally at home above their clean-cut lines. It is a look frequently chosen for tunic and pants costumes.

Wide waistbands top both slim and full pants. At cummerbund width, they often are worn with bolero or cropped jackets emphasizing the cinched waistline. Those with suspenders added have a young personality.

Low-slung pants are for young figures with no hipline problems. They give an elongated look to tucked-in shirts and sweaters — except at the beach where they become cover-ups leaving midriffs bare between low pants waistlines and high cropped little blouses or bikini tops.

Jeans are steadfast as the classic slim pants. Favorites among teen-age and college students, they maintain their popularity from year to year.

But, even they have been hit by variety. To the original blue jeans shade have been added bright solid tones, stripes, plaids and checks.

Chino has gained a fabric lead in sporty pants for spring. Lightweight woollens are selected for many of the most smartly tailored pantsuits, but knits are the over-all popularity winners in materials. They are in a variety of weights, textures, colors and color patterns.

MRS. JAMES E. TOMPKINS

Miss Dutton Bride Of James Tompkins

Double ring nuptial vows were read for Miss Deborah Dutton and James Edward Tompkins Saturday evening, March 25, in the First United Methodist Church of Littlefield.

Rev. David Hamblin, minister, officiated for the reading of the vows.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Melvyn B. Dutton of Petersburg, formerly of Littlefield, and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Tompkins of Rotan, Tex. The church was centered with an archway entwined with white lilacs and pink and white daisies. Candelabras with pink tapers, and baskets of pink gladiolus and pink and white daisies flanked either side of the archway. The communion table featured an arrangement of pink gladiolus, pink and white daisies, and baby's breath.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown fashioned of candlelight organza and French lace, featuring an Empire bodice and high scalloped Dutchess neckline. Her full organza sleeves gathered at the wrists of the scalloped lace cuffs. The slightly gathered skirt of her gown flowed to a chapel-length train. Her matching mantilla veil of ivory illusion, bordered in scalloped chantilly lace, was attached to a lace caplet and extended past the train of the bridal gown. She carried a cascade of Hohus ivy, and lily of the valley, entwined with glamelias and stephanotis.

Musical selections of "The Wedding Prayer" and "More" were presented by Pat Hinds, organist; Charlotte Hinds, pianist; and Jimmy Williams, Paul McKinney, Kenneth Horn, soloists, all of Littlefield.

Mrs. David Myrick of Corpus Christi attended the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. David True of Lawton, Okla., and Mrs. Bill Nowlin of Austin.

The candies were lighted by David Davis of Earth and Archie Overly of Lubbock.

Charles McCall of Rotan, Tex. served the groom as best man.

Groomsmen and Ushers were David True of Lawton, Okla., and Stan Edwards of Rotan, Tex.

The attendants were attired in gowns of ice pink doeskin crepe, designed with Empire waistlines. White ribbon enhanced the necklines and waists of their gowns. A white Bible was carried by the attendants, with a floral arrangement tucked in the opened pages.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Dutton chose a candy pink knit crepe dress with a wide inset waistband. The rolled collar of her dress was accented with matching tiny pearl and bead trim. To complete her ensemble, she wore white lace gloves and candy pink shoes to match her dress.

The guests were registered by Mrs. Dan Bryson of Lubbock, and David Young of Rotan, Tex. distributed the rice bags.

A reception followed in the parlor of the church. Assisting in serving were Mmes. Doyle Tapley of Amherst, R.J. Murphey, Billy Williams, Lloyd Lust, Marsene Holt, Glen Robertson, Eldon Hill, Mike Richardson, all of Littlefield, and Miss Sherry Lynn Dutton of Anton.

For a wedding trip to Alcapulco, Mexico, the bride wore a spring green, semi-fitted, sleeveless dress with a jeweled neckline, accented at the waist with a belt that laced through bound button holes. Her matching coat was accented with yellow jacquered polyester.

After their honeymoon, the couple will live in Lubbock, where she is a senior at Texas Tech majoring in elementary education. Mrs. Tompkins is a member of A.C.E. and S.E.A., education clubs.

The groom is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a degree in civil engineering. While at Tech he was a member of the Saddle Tramps.

This Cat Is Cool And Maybe Dizzy

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

The next time you drop your cat into the washing machine for the full cycle, don't be too sure he's all washed up.

Take the case of Dinky the cat from Eastleigh, England — better known to the boys on the back fence as "Dizzy Dink."

It seems old Dinky's mistress inadvertently tossed him in with the morning's wash one day. Poor woman had no idea Dinky was sleeping one off in the clothes hamper, so she didn't notice as she loaded her washer that her wash was loaded.

Imagine her surprise when she opened the door — after a 15-minute swirl-dry cycle — and out stepped Dinky, none the worse for wash-and-wear. Alarmed, Dinky's anxious owner hustled him off to the nearest veterinarian for a complete physical.

But she needn't have bothered. The vet allowed that although Dink had spun with the wash approximately 800 times, he would survive. You bet your pants he would survive. I can now, flattened against the side of the washer, catching a forepaw as his socks flew past him for the 743rd time.

"This, too, will end," I doubt thought, and of course was right — as cats always are in their maddening way.

I used to think the theory was a myth, but now I know it is a fact. Cats have a nimbleness in the face of disaster which we would well to emulate.

I've known women who ready to give up on the morning — throw in the towel — just before the washing. But Dinky is right in with it and his feet.

One cool cat. A little maybe, but cool nevertheless.

'This, too, will end.'

Eggs Sweeten Easter Time

By ALICE MORRELL
Copley News Service

FASHIONED EASTER EGGS

Remember as a very small child your grandmother had in her parlor an old carved egg made of sugar paper figures inside. You forgot that egg and later I learned to make them and have added a few of my own which you find fun to try.

Make sugar eggs you will use plastic molds, 1 pound of sugar, cold water, coloring, waxed paper, plastic wrap, large bowl, plastic slightly larger than bowl and a set of cake-cutting tips. I use No. 67 (No. 225 flower), and (single line). Make the basic egg, thoroughly mix one cup sugar with two spoons of cold water. Dilute this mixture and fill section of the plastic egg pack firmly and level off edges smoothly. Now use a spoon measuring spoon or hand-tipped teaspoon and cut the sugar in a mold using a 1/4-inch shell on all gently smooth the inside shell and then remove the top of the egg, so a half-circle remains. This becomes a window (Fig. 2).

Use a piece of cardboard the mold and turn over and place on the table. Gently squeeze the mold off away. I let my sugar dry at least one week before assembling them. I usually use the total number I want and assemble them later.

Make colored eggs, add drops of desired color to sugar mixture. It's best to use the colors a light pastel. Let the eggs are dry. I mix my nonfiring clay into tiny rabbits, hens, small flowers and mushrooms (Fig. 1). Let dry and paint with either food coloring or watercolor paints.

I buy green or purple paper grass for the little nest and have it ready when I assemble the eggs.

To make icing to use in trimming and assembling the eggs, combine 3 egg whites, 1 pound sieved confectioner's sugar, one-third teaspoon cream of tartar. Beat in a mixing bowl about 8 minutes. Divide and mix food coloring with each division.

Make nests in the egg bottoms with paper grass; add several tiny clay eggs and animals, fasten animals to sugar with a dab of icing.

Make waxed paper cones, add decorator tips, and fill with colored icing. Use icing on the edges of eggs to cement top to the bottom. Now cut a piece of clear plastic wrap slightly larger than the size of the front window and fasten it to the egg with dabs of icing.

Decorate the window edge with fancy icing in the flower decorator tip and add several clay flowers. Decorate the seamline around the egg in the same way. Make green leaves on top, using the leaf tip, and add flowers, animals, eggs and mushrooms. Let the eggs stand until the icing is thoroughly dry.

These eggs are lovely and will last years with proper care. I have several that are 10 years old and have mailed others all over the country.

If you are not handy with decorator tips, add ribbon bows, beads, sequins, tiny plastic animals, paper flowers and small plastic flowers. Cut out pictures of your children or even cut out pictures of animals just as my grandmother did.

You and the whole family will have fun making and assembling the eggs. They are also good bazaar items. Experiment and have fun.

Orient Influences Spring Styles

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

The Oriental influence on spring and summer fashions is often gentle than overbearing. Most designers favor a blend of East and West provides the mood without costume look.

The flavor frequently is in sleeves, collars and copied from Eastern and Oriental motifs in jacquards. The kimono often is cut to jacket and worn with Occidental skirts.

Monochrome sleeves flow in wide, formal size on evening gowns and are modified to power proportions for day. Washes usually are a second vital touch on kimono-sleeved gowns. Mandarin collars and frog closings are touches on Western gowns, dresses, suits and coats that may have wide or narrow sleeves.

Oriental prints and jacquards appear in dresses or suits designed with other Eastern features or carry the theme alone. Butterflies, parasols and Chinese hieroglyphics expressing such good wishes as happiness and health are among favorite motifs. Popular in jacquard knits are dragons and medallions of Oriental design.

Costume jewelry makes it possible to turn at least a little toward the East in any kind of outfit. Large pins, pendants and rings are of simulated jade, carved in Oriental designs.

RIGHTS 'N WRONGS

Call Son Before Visiting

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: We have been married six years. It was always the policy of my husband's family to drop in on us for a visit with no advance notice. About a year ago my husband told them they were welcome in our home but before they come they are to call us. This has turned out to be a big issue.

A year has passed and the subject is still as fresh as a daisy with them. Since that day they say they will never call their son's home, and if we want them to come we should call them. We can't see how they can feel that calling to see if we will be home can make them feel unwelcome.

They maintain that their home is open to us at all times and ours should be open to them. They say that they have always been good to us and that our request was a slap in the face and they are deeply hurt. Whenever they go to their daughter's home they always call her first. Do you know why they feel this way and how we can solve the problem? — Wondering in Illinois

Dear Wondering: Perhaps your husband's parents feel a WOMAN's home is her castle and that is why they phone their son-in-law before they drop in. Either that, or your brother-in-law has also laid down the law. Most parents are good to their children but that doesn't give them any special rights. Visitors should ALWAYS call before making a visit. The solution? Call your husband's parents frequently and make a special effort to make them feel welcome in your home. Good luck!

Dear Mrs. Tobin: We are planning an engagement party for our daughter. Friends tell us that such a party requires a gift. How can we gracefully say, "No gifts, please?"

Are the young man's parents invited? Who else should we invite? Who formally announces the engagement? Should the bride-to-be give her fiancé an engagement gift? Should the two sets of parents give the couple a gift? — Mrs. Z.

Dear Mrs. Z.: Most engagement parties are a surprise to the guests. These guests should most certainly include your daughter's future in-laws. The guest list should also include all the people the engaged couple is THINKING about having in their wedding party and close friends of your family. The party can be as simple or as elaborate as you wish. At any appropriate time your husband calls for attention, lifts his glass and says something such as, "It is with great joy and happiness that Jane and I announce the engagement of Martha to Frank Doe. We welcome him and his mother and father into our family circle. Please join me in a toast to Martha and Frank."

Everyone raises his glass EXCEPT your daughter and her fiancé. They merely smile and nod to acknowledge the toast. The party should be the first time your daughter wears her engagement ring publicly, but let me stress that a ring makes the engagement no more binding. No gifts are required, either from the guests or the parents. Your daughter does not need to give her fiancé a gift, but may do so if she wishes.

leaves a community, a little trailer manufacturing business in the heart of earth is responsible for more than a million dollars annually.

In November, 19 Earth residents formed the Earth Manufacturing Co., Inc.

What do they manufacture? "The best stock trailer you can buy," Robert Gossett said. Gossett is an officer of the Earth bank and secretary of the new manufacturing company. Larry Tunnell is president. "Tumbleweed Trailers" is the name chosen for the custom built jobs.

Tumbleweed trailers are for people who really use trailers. "You can tie a big bull in one, and he won't yank out a panel," Gossett said. The trailer is extra strong, with a welded unibody.

When the gates boom shut, they're an integral part of the trailer. The gate reinforces the trailer, making it a solid unit of strength. There are no loose parts to rattle or wear.

There are no square corners, so there isn't a place anywhere on the trailer to cut a rope. The non-skid floor is covered with asphalt over metal lath. Side fenders are welded in place and extra stout.

Full and half top designs are available. Extra strength in the tops protects animals and withstands severe damage in a turnover.

Brakes, lights and all safety devices meet state requirements. All new pipe and structural steel are used. Arc welding is done with automatic wire feed welders to make the trailers as rugged as they come.

C.C. Light designed the trailer and his design, which utilizes more than 20 years experience, is under contract.

The trailers are built in the old Ford building across the street from the Earth bank. There are now four shop employees. The four are building six or seven trailers a month now, but equipment is being added to speed the manufacturing process.

They hope to start turning out eight a month and hold the number at that point.

Spring Recess Set At WTSU

West Texas State University students will have a 10-day spring recess this year beginning Saturday.

Residence halls will close at 10:30 p.m. Friday, and will reopen at 1 p.m. April 3. Classes will resume at 8 a.m. April 4. The university business office will close at 5 p.m. Friday and will reopen at 8 a.m. April 4.

Holiday hours for the school library are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. next Monday-Wednesday and be closed March 30 through April 3. The library will resume regular hours April 4 at 7:50 a.m., said Frank M. Blackburn, librarian.

The payroll and materials bought locally add $3,000 a month to Earth's economy. Six or seven trailer sales per month at an average of $1,500 each adds $9-10,500 more per month. If a dollar changes hands in a community seven times, the Earth Manufacturing Company is responsible for a $94,500 turnover each month. Multiply this times 12 months for the $1,134,000 shot for the Earth economy.

Police Arrest Three, Check Out Vandalism

City police arrested a man Thursday on a capias for past due fine. He paid the fine and was released.

Two others were arrested Friday. One was jailed and charged with disturbance and interfering with an officer while in line of duty, and the other was arrested and charged with resisting arrest and disturbance with a motor vehicle. Both have been tried, fined and released.

Police are investigating a vandalism report at the home of a citizen sometime between 6 and 10 Friday night. She reported that when she started to go to bed, she found a rock and broken window.

Another citizen reported that someone had put spray paint and toothpaste on his vehicle while it was parked at his home late Friday night or early Saturday.

Sometime last weekend, a 2-year-old green Sears three-speed boy's 26-inch bicycle with chrome fenders, a green and white banana seat and high rise handlebars, was taken from the yard of another citizen.

FAMOUS TEENS

Monroe Was Born Protester

Editor's Note: James Monroe, 1758-1831, a Virginian, came fifth president of the United States.

By BETT ANDERSON
Copley News Service

When James Monroe, teen-ager, he didn't study American history book.

It was being made on the streets outside his house window.

The long-smoldering war between the British and Colonists was approaching climax. It was hard for a young man to go to study about the Latin language when the American was abandoning his musket and preparing to for his rights.

James, a student at William and Mary College, was a protester. When student organized into an unofficial unit, drilling on campus, James was a member. A petition was circulated to test bad food at the school. James was a signer.

When some teen-agers marched on the British governor's palace to demand muskets and swords, James was the youngest of the patriots. He considered the tea party of 1773 as "happening."

George Washington, James' hero. Finally, he decided that merely protesting was not his thing. He was action.

So, at 17, he dropped out of school and joined the Virginia Infantry. His mother wore hunting shirts with fringed rows of fringe on the flapping imitation of a kingfisher who sat perched on a dead limb nearby would dive into the brook and come up with a fish in its bill, and sometimes a squirrel or a rabbit would stop by and look curiously at the stranger in their midst.

But though all these things passed before his eyes and he was conscious of them in a way, he didn't really see them. No fish so much as nibbled on his worm, but he didn't care. He wasn't really trying to catch any fish. He was just fishing.

And finally, when the long drowsy afternoon began drawing to a close, the boy came back to the everyday world again, slung his fish pole over his shoulder and strolled homeward.

Maybe mother or father might ask him where he had been, but when he replied "fishing," nobody asked him where the fish were. They knew where the fish were. They were swimming around peacefully in the brook just as they always had been.

The grown-ups were wise enough to know that the young fisherman hadn't gone fishing for fish. He had gathered an invisible but far richer harvest which would stay with him for the rest of his life.

James Monroe, the cowboy boy from Virginia, eventually became the fifth president of the United States. There have been no president of the United States when James Monroe was a teen-ager!

REMINISCE Ways Of Doing Nothing

By HELEN M. PAGEL
Copley News Service

It seems as though people today have sort of lost the art of doing nothing constructively. You have to be doing something or you feel guilty, and just in case you don't feel guilty enough to remedy the situation, there is always some organization ready to do it for you.

What in the world would we do without the organizations? There are clubs for teaching young mothers how to care for their babies. There are clubs to teach boys and girls to play baseball and bind books and ski and polish stones. And there are clubs to teach adults how to paint china or paint a house, play bridge or run a lathe. Even ma and grandpa, who have now become senior citizens, have clubs where they can go for amusement and entertainment.

Now these are all fine ideas and there is no doubt that they accomplish a great deal of good, but they just don't leave the average person much time for doing nothing.

There was a time, years ago, when people realized the importance of doing nothing — absolutely nothing — once in awhile. Even grownups, with all the lack of modern conveniences, found time to sit on the porch on a summer evening or in front of the glowing base burner in the winter twilight before the lamps were lighted, and do nothing.

And the children, although many of them had to work hard, had their own methods of indulging in that particular pastime.

Maybe a boy would decide to go fishing. His fish pole was probably a long willow stick with a string tied on one end and a bent pin fastened to the string. He might or might not be lucky enough to have a cork for a bobber and a piece of lead for a sinker, but it didn't matter much one way or the other.

With an old iron spoon he would dig up a few angleworms in the back yard and put them in a battered tin can. And with this far from scientific equipment, he headed for the nearest brook.

After finding a likely looking spot under a tree on the bank of the brook, he would bait his hook, drop it into the water and prop the pole against a stone while he lay in the long grass or sat leaning against the tree trunk with his hands clasped behind his head, and did nothing — really nothing.

He could see the brook tumbling along over the pebbles and hear its murmur. He could see the dragonflies dart jaegerly out over the water, and an occasional chub or shiner or minnow swimming beneath. Every once in awhile the old kingfisher who sat perched on a dead limb nearby would dive into the brook and come up with a fish in its bill, and sometimes a squirrel or a rabbit would stop by and look curiously at the stranger in their midst.

But though all these things passed before his eyes and he was conscious of them in a way, he didn't really see them. No fish so much as nibbled on his worm, but he didn't care. He wasn't really trying to catch any fish. He was just fishing.

And finally, when the long drowsy afternoon began drawing to a close, the boy came back to the everyday world again, slung his fish pole over his shoulder and strolled homeward.

Maybe mother or father might ask him where he had been, but when he replied "fishing," nobody asked him where the fish were. They knew where the fish were. They were swimming around peacefully in the brook just as they always had been.

The grown-ups were wise enough to know that the young fisherman hadn't gone fishing for fish. He had gathered an invisible but far richer harvest which would stay with him for the rest of his life.

In the championship game it was 6-6 at the end of the first quarter, 14-8 in favor of the Hawks at intermission, 22-12 going into the final stanza and at the gun the Hawks had a 13-point win.

Grades Do Help Athletes

By PAUL CORCORAN
Copley News Service

No matter how much potential a high school athlete may have, whether in throwing a football or shooting a basket, his college career may depend on something far removed from sports competition.

And that is how well he does in his studies.

An "A" or "B" average gives any boy who aspires to compete in college athletics a definite advantage over one who has been a borderline case academically, even if the latter can run the 100-yard dash in 9 seconds.

This is more fact than theory. Ask any coach.

Informed of an outstanding prospect, Holy Cross (Massachusetts) football coach Ed Doherty asked almost immediately, "What is his grade index?" Told it was 3.5, or an A-minus, Doherty said, "That's good. It is very important. We have lost some good boys because of that."

A grade index is the same thing as a grade average. A 4 is comparable to an A, a 3 to a B, and so forth.

Almost all schools demand an athlete have a 2, or C, to start with and keep it during the academic year.

Many universities and colleges with major athletic plans employ tutors — usually graduate students — to assist the players who are borderline cases. Such schools as Alabama, Arizona State, Providence and Texas are but several institutions recognizing some students can't make it on their own.

Too, grades are an indication of how disciplined the boy is and how well organized he is so far as his study and life are concerned.

Sports are more sophisticated and complex as time goes on, and the athlete who disciplines himself off the field is going to stand a considerably better chance than the poor student, all things being equal.

There are always exceptions, however, when a boy has had no real chance to learn how to study nor any incentive except to stay in school. This is particularly true for youngsters coming from a ghetto, or a section of the country where the schools are poor.

There are relatively few so-called football factories, it should be noted, where the purpose is to produce teams. The students themselves demand academic excellence.

There is no uniformity of quality of education at level, high school or college. Nor does this appear to be in the near future.

But a student attaining good grades is going to face an academic barrier that much easier, whatever school he attends.

The road will be that tougher for the boy whose studies go. His hopes for college could go out the window with bad marks.

COMMON CANCER The "cancer" nobody talks about, bowel cancer, is common.

Meat Price Tells Story

It was not at all unusual the other day for the Administration to be heartened by figures which indicated that the national unemployment rate is dropping, while Democrats read ominous signs for the economy into other labor statistics.

Reading the daily fare of economic indicators is almost like waiting for the roulette ball to drop, somebody loses; somebody wins. So far as economic indices are concerned, the roulette pockets are read, these days, in such terms as employment, unemployment, industrial output, balance of payments, prime interest rates, wages, prices and so forth. They all have some validity, of course, if examined in concert with each other. Nevertheless, even the most dedicated economic statistician would have to agree that the most popular indices are artificial. Any fiscal index we look at today is a distorted economic indicator because it is heavily affected by government programs or subsidies. Most Americans would probably agree that this sort of pump priming should not become a permanent part of the economic landscape because it also restricts our rights and hurts our pocketbooks.

FAR MORE PERMANENT indices are such realities as efficient use of resources of the United States of America through healthy businesses, productive workers, competition that produces proficiency and a government that is as austere with its resources as it expects the people to be with theirs. Unfortunately these indices are hard to translate into graphs and percentages, and the average citizen must take his clue from the fact that the price of hamburger is as high as steak was only a few years ago — and steak is becoming a luxury item that soon may have to be delivered by armored car.

It is plain now that over the past decade, the nation has been unable to come to grips with itself economically. A part of the blame today can be laid at the stopgap door of the national wage and price councils. As essential as they were initially to grasp and hold our attention, they never were intended to become a national security blanket.

A LARGER PART of the problem is that Congress is bemused by a presidential election year — a period when legislative bodies chronically are generous with public funds, have an aversion to taxing when they spend, and are likely to postpone sensitive economic issues if they can.

These traits are evident in the immense federal budget deficits that in themselves add to the problem of inflation and generate the impetus for even more federal programs.

Clearly the time has come, whether it is an election year or not, for Congress to focus less upon the economic straws in the wind that portend whatever the interpreter wishes them to portend and pay more attention to the reason that the price of hamburger is where it is.

Be Maneuverable, QB Told

By PAT AND MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Marilyn and Pat:
Why are girls so fickle? Two weeks ago I gave my class ring to a girl and already she is flirting with some of my friends. I have seen this happen to others. I have had it happen twice before, and I am sick and tired of it.

I am a member of the football team and somehow the girls must think that the players are some sort of a status symbol. I have been told that girls go steady with a letterman just to add to their popularity. What can I do to keep a girl friend who likes the real me?

Quarterback
Dear Quarterback:
I suppose you are too young to remember the old song which says, “You got to be a football hero to get along with the beautiful girls.” So you see your problem is not unique.

In high school, the status symbol seems to be sports. In college, girls are often impressed with fraternities and the officeholders. In any event, your best bet would be to play the field.

Maneuverability counts for a great deal in football. Why not apply it to your social life? Spread your charms around.

Dear Marilyn and Pat:
My boyfriend is 21 and I am 19. We have been engaged for six months and I just discovered that he has been dating my best friend for about a month. He has been extremely attentive to me and we see each other nearly every day. I still do not know when he has had time to spend with her.

I found this out quite by accident. I saw them in a restaurant during my lunch and thought nothing of it. They work in the same office. Then I discovered her lipstick in his apartment and confronted him with the evidence. He said that he just needed a little variety to see if he really loved me.

I feel betrayed. Is this logical or should I tell him to fly a kite?
Betrayed

Dear Betrayed:
Your fiancé does not sound like a good bet in the husband department to me. Trade him and your friend in on better models rather than get stuck with a lemon.

Dear Marilyn and Pat:
I am embarrassed to write to a newspaper columnist, but there is nowhere else to turn. I am involved in a very ticklish situation. My teacher is 30 and I am 20. In our small town, with its college atmosphere, professors just do not date students.

I cannot go into detail because everyone would know who we are. However, we have been seeing each other for over a year, and we are in love. Both of us are afraid that he will lose his position at the college if we marry. I have another year but even if we wait until I graduate people will whisper. My major is English and I have taken many of his classes.

What can the answer to such a problem be?

Concerned Coed

Dear Coed:
You can remain a student, graduate, wait a few months and then marry. Perhaps the consequences would not be as drastic as you fear.

No one is going to inspect your school record and then concern themselves with a student-teacher relationship.

Dear Marilyn and Pat:

I am 24 years old, fairly good looking, intelligent, and I have not had a date for four months. My friends say that they do not understand and I certainly don't.

I work as a legal secretary and dress nicely. In my work I meet many eligible attorneys, but few ask me out. My last boyfriend dated me for two months; and when I would not play along with his ideas, he dropped me. This seems to be the rule of the game.

Don't men date girls just to have a nice time? Must a dinner always be paid for? Perhaps men feel that anyone who is 24 and still single must want to cooperate. In fact, some of them have suggested there must be something wrong with me. Am I the one who is abnormal?

Chris

Dear Chris:
You are perfectly normal and so are your dates. From the beginning of time, men have used the same line ... and you'd be surprised how often it works.

It seems as if you have hit a slump. Why not join some clubs? The Young Republicans or the Young Democrats are worthwhile organizations. Perhaps your church has a group of singles. Remember this, too. Many times the girls who say “yes” lose the boyfriends just as fast as the ones who say “no.”

If you have a question, write Pat and Marilyn Davis, Copley News Service, P.O. Box 190, San Diego, Calif. 92112.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

On To Maturity

MATURITY OFTEN SEEMS to be something that is nebulous and also elusive.

This may be due to the different areas of personal maturity, and it may be due to the fact that there are so many different views of what maturity is.

IN SOME AREAS of human experience, such as our biological and physiological development, we seem to understand what constitutes maturity.

There seems to be a general idea among people that maturity is a state of being which is attained automatically upon reaching a certain chronological age level. This is true, generally, but it refers to only one area of maturity.

THERE IS MORE to full maturity than the physical development. We are not mature in a total sense of being mature just because we have lived a certain number of years.

Assuming that we are is a false assumption, and is the basis of much of the difficulty which arises in one's personal life and in human relationships.

MATURITY AND AGE are often considered to be the same, but they are not. Age is not nearly all of maturity, but it may be a factor in becoming mature.

Of course, it is not automatically so; because some very old people spend a lifetime of immature behavior. Other persons develop the basic principles of maturity relatively early in life.

IT IS TOO EASY for us to tell ourselves, “I am mature now”. With this attitude, we are, for all practical purposes, closing the doors to continuing personal improvement.

It is better for us to realize the greatest possibility for fullness of recognizing and eliminating immaturities which may be present in lives.

THERE IS TOO MUCH of the immature attitude to accept the various manifestations of immaturity, with the attitude: “the way I am”. We may excuse these deficiencies.

Some people seem to be content with their infantism on the failure of parents and teachers. If we do thus relieve ourselves of all responsibility for trying to make corrections, foolish mistake!

IT IS NOT UNCOMMON for desirable persons to continue to certain childhood fixations of immaturity to annoy them, mar their personality and lessen the effectiveness of their lives.

They never seem to realize that immature characteristics can be reduced, and many eliminated.

WE MAY BE ABLE to develop, and improve to the extent we are, in some ways, mature; however, this does not mean that we have reached the limit of maturity.

There is more for us, if we are to try.

“MATURITY IS NOT a state of being; it is a state of becoming. You must become yourself. ‘I am a human becoming.’”

Life has much to give to all who qualify themselves by moving along the way of ever-increasing maturity.

HONEY GRITS

By CORNBALL BLEVINS

WELL, IT'S HAPPENED!—The unseasonably warm weather has held on until the baseball buffs are beginning to raise a fever.

The leagues are beginning their organizational meetings, and are setting dates for signups and the like. Soon will be heard that of familiar noise of: “BATTER UP!”

PEOPLE WILL ALWAYS be people, and human nature runs true to course.

Everyone wants to be on the receiving end of the bargain, and shunning the “giving” side of the question.

It's hard, indeed, to get enough people together to have a decent organizational meeting, but after the wheels are set in motion, the teams put together, and the bats begin to crack, comes the crowds!

NOW, I AIN'T ONE to complain (much) but, there's always a certain amount of hard work goes into the promoting of a good baseball program. (Or any other, for that matter.) And it would certainly be a great source of encouragement to these hard-working guys, if they could get more support from the parents and other interested individuals in getting these things off the ground!

I'M OF THE OPINION that our program is getting better each year. Also, it's good for these kids, as well as giving them something to look forward to, and to do.

Nothing quite equals the feeling of a bat making good solid connection with a ball, or the participation in a successful fielding play.

Anyway, if you have a youngster that likes to play ball, help him out by helping carry out this program. OK? You'll enjoy it more yourself!

NO, AUNT EDNA, the “o.d.” on your bank statement, does NOT stand for “OVERDEPOSIT.”

HO BOY! Only 19 more days to April 1st!

LITTLE AS YOU think about it, your local schoolboard is about your only means of having a voice in the operation of your schools.

At the rate “SAM” and the state are taking over the operation of this important enterprise, it may in the future, be decided to declare the “Board” unconstitutional, and let the government take complete control.

REALIZING THAT THIS is one of the last of our diminishing privileges, don't you think it'd be wise to register interest in this right, by turning out to vote?

up to our necks

Some men look to the heavens and only see new worlds to explore. Other men see God's handiwork. Some witness scientific and medical achievements and see evidence of the genius of man. Still others see what a God-given talent can accomplish. Some men look at poverty and misery and see their proof that God is dead. And no wonder, for to such men, life is merely something to be endured from birth to death. For them, life holds no excitement...no hope. These men are up to their necks in a sea of despair. They are drowning in their ocean of self-pity. There is another group who witness the same poverty and misery and see proof that a life without God is no life at all. They find life a challenge, a chance to serve God by fulfilling the Great Commission. These men are up to their necks in the service of God. They go out of their way every day, to extend a helping hand and say, God cares.

NARROW-ROW COTTON

Narrow-row cotton production is booming in Texas. Narrow-row acreage could reach as high as 30,000 acres in 1972, and more than 100 narrow-row harvesters may be in operation by then. Last year narrow-row yields ranged from 5 to 30 percent more than cotton planted in conventional rows.

County Now Has 1,279 Farms

Lamb County showed a total of 1,279 farms in the 1969 Census of Agriculture, according to figures released by the U.S. Department of Commerce's Bureau of the Census, a part of the Department's Social and Economic Statistics Administration (SESA).

In the last previous Census of Agriculture (1964) the number of farms reported in the county was 1,294.

Of the county's total farms in 1969, 1,160 are reported as selling $2,500 or more of agriculture products in the year, as compared with 1,228 in 1964.

The report also shows average farm size in the county was 558.1 acres, and average value of these farms (land and buildings) was $166,769.

Other figures from the report are:

1. Value of all farm products sold in 1969, $32,571,955; in 1964, $47,797,500.

2. Value of all crops sold in 1969, $17,136,187; in 1964, $35,800,454.

3. Value of all livestock, poultry, and their products sold in 1969, $15,435,718; in 1964, $11,991,791.

Reported for the first time in an agricultural census is information on the extent to which the corporate structure is being used by operators of farms from which agricultural products totaling $2,500 and over were sold. Including family farms using this type of business structure, three of the county's $2,500-and-over farms are incorporated.

Barmen In Texas Learning To Mix It

An acute shortage of experienced barmen has been the first result of a decision by the Texas legislature to allow the sale of mixed drinks in public bars.

To remedy the situation two Dallas men have opened the Bartending Academy of Texas. Besides drink recipes, students are taught how to handle drunks and are provided with a 24-hour emergency number to answer all questions about new drinks.

Studies Cotton

J. D. Smith of Littlefield was among America's cotton growers who have steered their research and marketing programs for the coming year on a course they hope will lead to increased uses for cotton in expanding fashion markets and more profitable operations on the farm.

The action came from committees of Cotton Incorporated, the research, sales and marketing company sponsored by growers through their dollar-per-bale program, during two days of intensive work in Dallas March 11 and 12.

In dawn to dusk, shirtsleeve sessions, the committees heard recommendations for fiscal 1973 from their research, sales and marketing managers, who carry out Cotton Incorporated's programs from New York City and Raleigh, N. C.

Members of the three standing research committees — cotton growers themselves — collectively make up Cotton Incorporated's board of directors. The board represents over 300,000 cotton producers in 19 states.
