Officials Blame Greenbug Increase On 'Resistance,' Farmers Say It's Strictly The 'Weather'

By NILAH RODGERS

Farmers are having a hard time killing greenbugs this season.

Officials at the Texas A&M Research Extension Center in Lubbock say the insects seem to have developed a resistance to sprays used in the past.

Bob McIntyre said this precarious situation is the result of what they've been trying to tell farmers for a long time—that if they use too much insecticide for too long a period that the bugs were going to build up a resistance to the control measures.

In the past the Center has advised farmers to use the least amount of insecticides possible and yet keep yields high. "That was the solution," McIntyre said, "but that solution was taken away before we got started."

Many farmers and dealers in this area disagree with this "resistance" theory. They say they are having plenty of trouble controlling greenbugs and are using much more in their applications this year. But they think the problem is in the weather.

According to many, this hot dry weather is keeping the poison from working like it should.

Gerry Langford is a Hart Camp farmer who consistently produces yields well above the 7,500 pounds per acre mark. He, like most other area farmers, says that this is the first year he has ever had to spray more than once for greenbugs. He has already sprayed three times this summer.

Last year he said 1/6 of a pint of Disyston took care of the greenbugs. That amount isn't fazing the "suckers" this year.

Liquid Disyston seems to work better in many cases. The granular isn't getting down into the whorls as well. Again, many producers say the reason the granular isn't working as well as in the past is because of lack of moisture. The granular works fairly well for some where it's followed with irrigation or by a shower, or where the ground is moist from a recent irrigation.

Chick Conway at Tide said farmers are hitting the greenbugs with everything but bricks and hammers. He blames the lack of kill on hot, dry weather conditions "where there isn't enough moisture to form a gas."

Sorghum can tolerate the loss of two mature leaves. This usually starts at the bottom with the older leaves. This usually takes 1,000 to 1,300 greenbugs to the plant to cause this damage.

Bob McIntyre at the Lubbock Center said they've used as much as two pounds of Disyston at the Pest Control Center. This is well above the legal use. But they are trying to get an indication of whether the greenbugs are truly becoming resistant.

According to McIntyre, every bug reproduces itself just like the one which produced it, without the mixing in the gene pool. They are all female, and we have this population year-round. We've been using too much material too long," he said.

He blames a good part of this resistance on the use of poisons on wheat, adding that most of the trouble with greenbugs with this seeming resistance is in the areas which produce more wheat than other parts of the South Plains.

"We aren't having this problem in Lubbock, Hockley and Crosby Counties where there isn't much wheat and where low rates have been used," he added. "There doesn't seem to be a consistent control pattern."

Different chemicals seem to be accomplishing varying results over the area. Some have gone from Disyston and Parathion to Thimet and Cygon or a combination of the various materials. "It's highly variable," McIntyre said. "And unexpected things are happening."

Additional sprayings and use of heavier applications are adding to production costs. Prices are up well over last year. Parathion runs about $3.10 for a pint where it was $2.50 last year, including the flying. Liquid disyston is $3.85 compared to about $3.50 last year.

With no underground moisture and no rains, irrigation costs are mounting steadily—with no end in sight until the grain starts ripening.

An unstable price situation makes farmers shaky. Many say they may count themselves lucky if they break even. And it's a long time until harvest time.

Think Before Snitching, That Corn May Be Poison

Beware of "steals" in roasting ears, whether it's someone peddling good buys on ears of corn or an urge to help yourself to a corn field.

The bug problem this year is resulting in heavy usage of systemic poisons.

In previous years most producers posted signs with skulls and cross bones warning that the fields had been sprayed. This year the companies putting out the poisons aren't making signs available. So any given field of corn stands a high chance of being recently sprayed.

Some Lamb County farmers have reported pickup and truck loads of corn being picked from their fields during the night. This week one farmer said he had sprayed only two days before someone helped themselves to a truck load of his freshly poisoned corn.

The Disyston label is very specific in warning its high toxicity and insistence on a 28-day waiting period from the time of the last spray until food is picked to eat.

A good part of this corn which is being taken is undoubtedly being sold to unsuspecting persons. A real "steal" on corn offered for sale by any person other than the producer would bear investigation.

And help-yourself-hospitality for the wary went out with wide-spread poisoning.

'Texas' Bus Trip Slated Thursday

Another bus trip to Palo Duro Canyon and to view the musical "Texas", is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 1, by the Chamber of Commerce.

The bus will depart at 4 p.m. from the city hall.

For reservations, call 385-4451. Cost per person is $12, which includes the cost of a steak dinner, reserved show seat and the round-trip bus ticket.

Water Usage Hits All-Time Record

Jack Davidson at the city pump station logged over 3 million gallons of water used by Littlefield residents here in a single day.

Tuesday, those on city water used 3,071,000 gallons. That is the pumpage in one day since Davidson has been working for the city of Littlefield.

This represents a total of about 4,300 gallons per person for every Littlefield resident. Of course, the majority of this was applied to lawns, gardens, shrubs and trees.

This week the water used inside the city limits has run close to three million, with 2,707,000 used Thursday and 2,673,000 used Wednesday.

So far the wells have been holding up, according to Davidson. He said it seemed like the wells take longer to pump since the sandhills surrounding the city water wells north of town have been leveled and wells have been drilled.

Those developing the sandhills placed wells as close to the city water wells as permits allow, and there has been some apprehension about depletion of city water due to the tremendous use of irrigation water in the newly developed land.

Some farmers in the Fieldton and Hart Camp area say their water has lowered again with the breaking out and irrigation of so much of the land in the sandhills.

4-H Dress Revue Slated Tuesday

Swimmers Make 396 Laps During Cancer Swim-A-Thon

Spirited swimmers swam a total of 396 laps for the Lamb County American Cancer Society during the Swim-A-Thon.

$506.06 in total pledges made, returned in Tuesday night.

Nilah Rodgers of Whitharral swam the most laps when she made 76 laps at one end of the pool and back. Runner-up was Marty Mangum who swam 70 laps. Next in line was Billy Leon Templeton of Littlefield who swam 50 laps.

Key of Littlefield will receive the most money brought in for having the most sponsors and could possibly be the most money brought in.

The winner of that category will be determined after all pledges have been collected and turned in to Gloria Jackson at the Security State Bank. Deadline for turning in collections is Tuesday, July 30.

Lifeguards who donated their time for the event were Myrtle Haire, Bernice Teague and Andy Rogers. They each swam some laps to make monetary contributions to the Swim-A-Thon.

Other swimmers and their number of laps swam were: Cindy Purdy, 20 laps; Cena Stowers, 20 laps; Ann Mackey, 20 laps; Cathie McLelland, 28 laps; Delinda Sebring, 20 laps; Greg Payne, 30 laps; Robby Newton, 28 laps; Andy Rogers, 20 laps; and Nilah Rodgers, 14 laps.

Littlefield and the other with a map of Lamb County. Text includes: 'RESERVE YOUR COINS NOW BY PLACING YOUR ORDER WITH THE LITTLEFIELD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND AGRICULTURE'.

GERRY LANGFORD inspects his grain sorghum for greenbugs. He is one of many Lamb County farmers finding more bugs that are harder to kill than ever before. Lack of moisture to activate the poisons and a possible resistance to the sprays from too much poison for too long a period are blamed for the higher infestations and difficulty in controlling the bugs. # Speck-Morton Wedding Solemnized Double-ring wedding vows were pledged Saturday night in the Chapel of First Baptist Church in Littlefield between Karen Jean Speck of Littlefield and Virgil Ellis Morton of Anton.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Speck of Littlefield and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Morton of Anton.

Rev. Harmon Bishop, pastor of Central Baptist Church of Anton, officiated for the reading of the vows as the couple stood before the altar, centered with an archway of huckleberry foliage, trimmed in shades of pink asters and babies' breath. The archway was flanked by two column arrangements of shades of pink gladiolas and asters and babies' breath.

Jack Speck presented his daughter for marriage. She wore a traditional style gown, designed especially for her of white silk organza and accented in peau d'ange and bands of crocheted lace. The moulded all-over lace bodice featured a Sabrina neckline and bands of crocheted lace marking the empire waistline. The sleeves were of trumpet design and accented in appliques of peau d'ange and bands of crocheted lace. The skirt repeated the trumpet flare of the sleeve and was shirred to fullness at the back. The entire hemline and chapel-length train were trimmed in bands of crocheted lace and a deep border of peau d'ange lace scallops.

Her wedding veil fell from a Camelot capelet which was covered in peau d'ange. Her veiling fell in three tiers to her fingertips and was edged in a border of peau d'ange lace scallops.

For "something old", the bride wore a set of pearl earrings belonging to her aunt, Trixie White. "Something new" were her wedding dress and a pearl droplet given to her by her brother, Jack Alan Speck. "Something borrowed" was a white Bible belonging to Mrs. Lyndon Findley, and she wore the traditional "blue" garter. In her shoe, she wore pennies minted in the years of the couple's birth and wedding dates.

She carried a tapered bouquet of hot and light pink asters, stephanotis and babies' breath atop a white Bible.

Connie Cannon of Littlefield was her maid of honor, and Lisa Roberts of Littlefield was her bridesmaid. They wore gowns of hot and light pink polyester crepe, fashioned with scoop necklines, flare sleeves, and empire waistlines trimmed with light pink braid.

They carried nosegays of shades of pink asters and babies' breath.

Dewey Peacock of Anton served as best man, and Danny Bishop of Anton was groomsmen.

Ushering the guests to their pews were Jim Hall of Littlefield and Steve Burt of Anton.

A niece of the groom, Kay Stephenson of Anton, served as flower girl.

Traditional wedding selections were played by Mrs. J. H. Parkman, including "Time in A Bottle" and "Close To You".

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Speck wore a long light pink dress with a lace bodice and accented with light pink braid.

Mrs. Morton wore a long light blue dress with matching jacket. The dress featured knit wristbands and waistband. Both wore white accessories.

Following the wedding, a reception was served in the parlor of the First Baptist Church. Serving the traditional wedding cake and punch were Mary Kay Matthews and Kim Wood, both of Littlefield.

For their wedding trip to Amarillo, the bride chose to wear a green dress with trim and white accessories.

They will reside on a farm six miles east of Littlefield.

New Handbook Available On Emergency Services

A new handbook on emergency medical services (EMS) prepared by the Southwest Research Institute through a Regional Medical Program of Texas (RMPT) grant is now available to small communities or rural areas that want to launch EMS systems locally.

The guide, "Planning and Implementing Community and County Emergency Medical Services Systems," is available through the RMPT offices, 4200 N. Lamar, Suite 200, Austin 78756.

Written by research analyst Stephen W. Seale, Jr., the handbook helps individuals or organizations plan and implement an EMS system in a small or rural community.

The guide helps to determine what kind of EMS a community wants and can afford and emphasizes employee and equipment needs. It is a "collection of ideas" with a "focus to the individual who wants to accomplish something in EMS, has the capabilities, but needs written guidance," Seale explained.

The five separate functions of an EMS system—organization, communication, personnel, hospital, and transportation and equipment—are discussed clearly to meet the needs of this kind of reader. The guide also outlines how to reach an EMS agreement with individuals including doctors, hospital personnel, ambulance operators, and local and county government officials.

Implementation of EMS is explained including setting up the organization, finding and training personnel, choosing and buying equipment, negotiating contracts, and setting up policies.

Before writing the EMS guide, Seale gained experience in EMS by working in the planning stages of the Bexar County-San Antonio EMS and extending coverage of the system to other communities and counties in the 12-county Alamo Council of Governments region. Follow-up included working on a consulting basis with 10 rural counties in the Alamo Council. Seale also served as a consultant on the Galveston County EMS system.

The EMS guide has readership possibilities throughout the country, according to Seale, "but in direct application, it is limited to Texas because of the assignment of financial sources, the political subdivisions, and the requirements for EMS.

Filling the gap in planning information, smaller community handbook explains switch from private operation of local services can be a transition to an EMS system. The EMS system is public safety service, comparable to fire and protection.

RMPT, a federal health agency, assists professionals in patient care and the capacity for quality care delivery for citizens.

Sisters Tell Of Tour To Visit Australia

Mrs. Elray (Georgeann Rasco and Mrs. Wayne (Nelda) Monroe, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Walker, have returned from a trip to Australia where they visited their brother, Dr. Neal Walker, and his family.

The Neal Walkers have been in Australia a year and expect to be gone at least one more year.

Neal is a graduate of Littlefield High School, holds the B.S. and M.A. Degrees from Texas Tech, and the Ph.D. Degree from Oklahoma State University. He is connected with the University of New England in Armidale, New South Wales in a research project.

Mrs. Walker is the former Linda Joyce Vaughn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Vaughn, Route 2, Littlefield. They have 2 sons, Jay, age 11, and Jon, age 5.

The two women left from Lubbock and flew to San Francisco, then on to Honolulu, the Fiji Islands and Sydney, Australia. This is the winter season in Australia, but the section where the Walkers live is between Sydney and Brisbane, and the winters are mild. In fact, lemon trees were in bloom as well as poinsettias, and grass was green. There was light frost at night.

The Neal Walkers met the travelers in Coff's Harbor, which is a seacoast resort town, and they spent some time here collecting shells on the beach, visiting a banana plantation, and observing the animals in the National Park and Game Reserve there. The car trip from Coff's Harbor to Armidale was scenic and enjoyable, although the roads are, for the most part, narrow and in poor repair. They saw many kangaroos along the road, and at one point counted more than 50 in a group.

Armidale is 150 miles inland from Coff's Harbor. It is a small city of around 20,000, and was an old mining town at one time. The area is rich in historical interest.

The administration building at the University of New England is a showplace. It was a ranch headquarters 100 years or so ago. It is called Booloombah. It has stained glass windows and hand-carved wood staircases. There are 12 fireplaces in the building. It is very beautiful, and has an interesting background. One wing originally was the servants' wing, another the nursery, etc. The dominate influence in Australia is British, but there are other cultures very much in evidence. For example, on the University campus, most of the faculty members come from around the world—from Chile, New Zealand, Spain, Japan, Scotland, African nations, as well as from England and the U.S.A., and possibly others.

When these travelers arrived, there was a holiday spirit and businesses were closed celebrating the Queen's birthday, and even though they are far from England, English customs, speech, background, and ties are reflected in the lives of the Australian people.

Neal and his family traveled with Georgeann and Nelda to places of interest, sometimes by car, and sometimes by rail. The natural beauty of New South Wales is impressive. There are deep canyons, gorges, waterfalls, and all unspoiled by tourists. Many times they could almost believe they were in an isolated part of Colorado, except there were no pine trees and hence no pine odor. There are dense forests and 'tree ferns.

The trees, native to Australia, are Eucalyptus and there are many varieties. Since Australia is roughly the size of the United States, it was impossible to see all of it in so short a time. They chose to explore New South Wales, which is the Southeastern part of the continent, and a very beautiful part.

There were two Australian families in particular who were very hospitable to the visiting Americans. One family lives 30 miles from town on a large sheep "station" (ranch). All stations have names, and the name of the Waters' station is Silverton. The Waters family invited them to come for lunch, and they had a typical Australian meal, with lamb stew.

They spent the entire day at Silverton, with "tea" in the afternoon, of course. Waters even sheared a sheep for his visitors. It is hard to explain the social structure in Australia. We would consider the Waters family well-fixed. Their children have traveled extensively, for schooling and for travel experience, and they are large land owners. Yet, they live in a 100-year-old house and Mrs. Waters cooks on a wood stove. The other home was of a different type altogether. They were invited to dinner and were served a five-course meal that was impressive.

They met people who were interested in cultural affairs. For example, the hostess was instrumental in bringing a traveling ballet group to small cities away from metropolitan areas. No beverage is ever served with the meal, except when wine is ordered in a restaurant. In the home, after the meal, the group goes into the living room and tea (TAY) is served along with a "slice" which is a brownie or a cookie.

Of course, many of the expressions were funny to these Americans. In the U.S., we see signs along the highway directing us to "Litter Barrel". In Australia your attention is called to a "Rubbish Tip".

In fact, they don't take out the trash, they "tip the rubbish". Their grocery carts are "rolleys", and their pick-up truck is a "utility". Mothers use baby carriages extensively, and it is not uncommon to see a public bus with several carriages racked on the rear of the bus. When she reaches her destination, the passenger takes her carriage off, deposits her baby in it, and is on her way—of course, she calls her baby carriage a "pram".

The first time the women went to a bank to get some travelers' checks cashed, they were in Coff's Harbor, and the teller looked at the checks and asked, "What is this?" One of the more experienced personnel came to their rescue, and they had no more trouble along that line.

Since Georgeann is a teacher, she was interested in visiting an elementary school. She found the children polite and well-disciplined. When she was introduced by the teacher, the children stood and said in unison, "Good morning, Mrs. Rasco". School children wear uniforms.

There are three schools of higher learning in Armidale, so it is strictly a college town. There is a teachers' college, a technical school and the university. Though their travels did not take them to the "Out Back", they saw many Aborigines in a 100-mile radius of Armidale. One American they met was in Australia on a Fulbright Scholarship doing research on legal treatment of these people.

They spent two days in Sydney on the way home, and there was so much to see and do there, they had to choose carefully how to use their time. They found it to be a beautiful, modern city.

They took a boat trip of the harbor area, went to church on Sunday morning, looked up a fabulous zoo where they got to see the strange little duck-billed Platypus, as well as many other unusual animals.

Though they were not in Sydney long enough to arrange for tickets to a function at the famed Sydney Opera House, they were impressed with the beauty and size of the exterior and took lots of pictures from every angle.

They found hotel and motel accommodations comparable with the best in our country, and travel conditions were, for the most part, pleasant. Public transportation is good and is widely used, since roads are not good which makes driving slow and tiring. The trip from San Francisco to Sydney took about 22 flying hours, and it was night all the way over, due to the changes in time zones.

Of course, on the way back, it was day all the way. Since their return, Nelda and Georgeann have been busy sorting and labeling their pictures and slides, and reminiscing about the beauty and charm of the "Land Down Under".

To The EDITOR LETTERS

Dear Editor:

This is a follow-up of a recent letter to the editor that I wrote. The reporting done in the Leader-News was very good, up to a point.

Judge Boone said the plaintiffs presented no evidence. We want to take strong issue with that. The court facts are as follows:

FACT: Wayne Wilkinson testified he was in full charge of the Littlefield operation of weather modification. He has no degrees in physics, science, or meteorology. He knows enough to fly a twin engine airplane and push a button in it to start filling our skies with silver iodide. Presto, we have an instant expert on our hands in full control of what happens over about 7 counties. He all but denied seeding a cloud anywhere on the South Plains except in the target area, and wouldn't give the court the time of day. When asked why a cloud broke up behind his seeding plane, he said, "Mother Nature". He testified they had to seed clouds way outside the target area "because it takes time for it to work".

FACT: Dr. St. Amond doesn't agree with our expert. He testified "placing silver iodide in the middle of an updraft makes the crystals grow rapidly". A contradiction of really what goes on as to when to seed a cloud. He also testified "if you seed a cloud too small or too early, you can BLOW IT". None of the cloud seeders would be pinned down as to how small was too small. So, our expert takes care of all of them. He also testified "its better to have some hail with the rain than have none of either". This means when you suppress the hail, you get no rain.

FACT: Dr. Schmuedner of South Dakota did a lot of testifying of what he had done for his state, such as increasing rainfall and what have you. He finished his testimony by refusing to answer 2 questions put to him by plaintiffs attorney. He just sat there with a grin on his face. He was not instructed by the court to answer the questions.

FACT: Now we get to Dr. Lewis (Grant). He testified that all these great things that have been done with cloud seeding is figured on a "predictive equation on computer tape". All weather modification going on anywhere in the world except the South Plains is financed with either state or federal money. Once a year the cloud seeders have to give an account of what they have done so they can get some more of mine and your tax dollars. The computer can only read what is fed into it, and this feeding is controlled by the cloud seeders. This simply means that if the computer does not make the seeders look good with a lot accomplished, they could lose their tax subsidy, and would all have to go to work. Dr. Grant testified that the period from 1962-1972 experiments in Colorado had according to his computer increased rain fall by 37 percent. Almost in the same breath he said "in the same period of time and the same area, the underground water table dropped 1 to 3 feet due to increased pumping". If the 37 percent increase had actually been produced, the pumping of wells would have been decreased. With all this rain increase above normal, and the heavy pumping of wells, they must have had a flood up there somewhere. What could we have done with a 37 percent increase above normal this year? Some wells would not have been pumped at all. We say this big increase was his computer talking and heavy pumping of wells would verify that Dr. Grant finished his testimony by answering plaintiffs attorneys question with "I don't know. I don't know. I don't know." We fully agree with the man. He doesn't know, but his computer controlled by him makes him smell like a cake.

FACT: Dr. Booker. He lives in Norman, Okla. He is a cloud seeder also. His own state doesn't want his airplanes, so he takes them to South Dakota, where he gets $92,000 in tax dollars per year doing his thing. He was involved in the $100 million disaster that the state said was directly caused by cloud seeding. When asked by plaintiffs attorney how a cloud grew, he used both hands and gestured upward and outward, and said "poof, poof, poof."

He testified "you can do nothing with a full grown thunderstorm". This means destroy it while it is little.

FACT: Tom Henderson is 56 percent owner of Atmospherics, Inc. Every cloud-seeder testifying either works for or with Tom Henderson. Their annual income is $1.2 million. He has 2 years college work. His testimony consisted of a lot of pretty pictures he said were made in foreign countries, and about a 1 1/2 hour club talk. I do not remember him laying any claims as to what he has done to benefit the South Plains. His own man, Charlie Chagnon, proved he has decreased rainfall since his planes have been operating here, and he has given such good protection to the target area, that the worst hail damage ever recorded has happened in 1974.

FACT: Dr. Workman has spent his life "time in weather modification. He is in Who's Who. He did most of his work in the White Sands of New Mexico. This work was financed with our tax dollars. He says "there is no way you can seed a cloud for hail suppression and get any rain." He spent a life time trying to with our money and failed. He blamed our drought of the 50's on cloud seeding operations in New Mexico. He was running the operation. Prof. Moore was also very active in modifying weather. When asked what he thought about cloud seeding, he said, "it's bad business." Putting 5¢ of silver iodide in a cloud is like dropping a small atomic bomb in it". The state of New Mexico where most of the fouling up of weather has happened with millions and millions of tax dollars thinks so little of what was accomplished, they have banned weather modification in the whole state.

FACT: This all happened in the court room of the 154th district when the plaintiffs were trying for an injunction against cloud seeding. This is court record, but not enough evidence to invoke injunction.

FACT: In securing more facts against cloud seeding, we checked with the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. In Lubbock. We wanted to know the extent of hail damage to our area before seeding (1966 through 1969) and since seeding began (1970 through the present date 1974). By looking at these dates, the manager said, "without checking any records I can tell you two of these last four years, 1972-1974, suffered the largest hail damage ever recorded, and 1974 destruction by hail, especially in Hale County, the prime target area, is UNBELIEVABLE. We are almost 100 claims behind, and more are coming in every day". Federal Crop Insurance can be bought only by irrigation farmers. The hail damage recorded in the Lubbock office can not reflect the total over all destruction, because not nearly all irrigation farmers are insured with Federal Crop Insurance Corp. A big part of them insured with Atmospherics, Inc. of Littlefield and Plains Better Weather in Plainview. They paid their premium, but will collect no damages.

FACT: The water wells for the city of New Deal have gone dry. Some of the Lubbock wells at Muleshoe are dry. Domestic wells at Hart Camp are drying up. Irrigation wells on the South Plains have pumped more water this year than they have in the last two combined. If there is only one chance a year for rain for our area, we do not need airplanes to take that away from.

FACT: Cloud seeding operations are never accepted by the public as a whole. One operation ended in Pecos with live ammunition being fired from real guns.

Another one ended in Colorado with very expensive equipment being blown to bits with dynamite. In Pecos and Colorado they stopped the rain, just like they have here. Who can say it won't come to that here, or what form it would take. Violence is not the way, but it gets the attention of the courts. A friend told me this, "violence is the forerunner of justice", but justice through the courts is a better way. We have a few dictators now forcing the cloud seeding on the majority. This cloud seeding and the verdict for it affects every citizen living in the 12 county area where it is going on. The South Plains was built into one of the best farming areas of the United States without weather modification, and the airplanes have not added anything to it. Because of them, we may just be millions and millions of dollars short on crops this year. There is an ironic twist to this cloud seeding deal. They start seeding in Lamb and Bailey Counties to increase rain and suppress hail.

We have no rain, and the irrigated belt of eastern Lamb and Hale Counties have all the flash floods and hail. The cloud seeders miss on all counts. Dry on one side, and an abundance of hail on the other. The cloud seeders want us all to believe our drought is a natural one. Let's say that it is. If it is, they have proved two points for Dr. Workman. They can not make better weather, and they can not improve on nature, so who needs something that can't do anything?

Sincerely,
s/Tommy McKinnon

AN OLD TIMER RETURNS

AYALON -- FEATURES

A Woman's View

By PEARL BRANDON

ONCE I HEARD a man say there would be people by his family name living as long as the world stands—there were so many of them. I think this must be true of our family. My maiden name was Jaquess and there are so many of us, I think the Jaquess name will go on and on, at least for a very long time.

IT GIVES you a sort of queer feeling, (doesn't it?), to think about your family going on from generation to generation after you are gone. What will they be like? Will they look like us—will they have the same family features and mannerisms?

It also places a responsibility on us, to live in such a way now that those to come will not have to look back on us and feel a little ashamed.

THE LAST few months I have been reading the history of the nations. We have some names that are familiar now that reach back thousands of years. Just think of that.

The human race goes on and we are just a small part of it. It is hard to realize that we are important at all—just tiny grains of sand—but we are important in the sight of God.

ONCE I HEARD an old lady, who was from a large family say, "There is a big bunch of us, but we don't have a one to spare.

Speaking of those to follow us, our children, grandchildren and on and on, if it were possible we would like to make it a little easier for them, however we know their world will be filled with cares, and disappointments and some despair, as well as much joy and happiness—also much change, even as ours have fun.

I am so grateful they will have our God to guide their lives. He doesn't die out with each generation, but lives on and on into the future as well as the past.

THE BIBLE will remain, too, as a "lamp unto their feet," the same as we have had.

Many changes will take place and they will be doing things and going places we never even dreamed of, but God doesn't change. He will be there to fill their needs in that far off, distant future time, as He has from the beginning of mankind.

They will just know more about Him than we do.

THE BIBLE is God's inspired book to fill man's need. Although it was written thousands of years ago it still applies to us today and will continue as long as time lasts.

With God there is no time as we know it. He is forever—"one day is as a thousand years and a thousand years as one day."

In our country the Bible graces almost every home and it guides millions of people passing through this world. It guides us though the "valley of the shadow of death"—it is His message to the people on earth.

LET US read it for comfort, for understanding and for guidance, as well as for joy.

And let us teach our own loved ones to reverence it. If we do this we need not fear for those who follow us.

We leave them in His loving hands. He is their God, too, and we will trust Him to care for them until we all meet again in that future time when we will quit counting days and years as we do now, but we will be forever and that is eternity.

I'LL SEE YOU over there.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE No Magic Key

FACTS AND TRUTH are not always easy to accept, but it is a mistake, sometimes a tragic mistake, to ignore either. Of course, there are wise and unwise ways; right ways and wrong ways to accept and face up to things as they are.

One of the first things to do, in all situations, is to realize that there is "no magic key" we can turn and thus change that which is real; or bring about everything we desire.

THE WORLD OF FANTASY is appealing to many folk, and they are able to make their fantasies serve them momentarily. This includes daydreaming which is admitted to be useful, if it is not prolonged to the extent that it becomes confused with reality.

Daydreaming is "a pleasant reverie of wish fulfillment", but there is no real fulfillment; "no magic key" we can turn to make these dreams come true. If there is too much of this daydreaming we become disoriented and incapable of functioning well in the world of reality.

HALLUCINATING has become a widespread practice, and this obviously the futile attempt of many persons to find a "magic key" which they can use to change the real world of "facts and truth".

There are different ways to produce hallucinations, varying from overworking the imagination to the use of harmful drugs. There is, however, "no magic" in any of this; and a little of it is to much.

DIFFERENT TYPES of religion are used by many people as "magic key". Some of these people children die by refusing their assistance; others die from poisonous snakes; others special things are happening to them. The claims are completely real and out of harmony with "truth".

Things they say are happening; and they do not think they have found the magic there is "no magic key".

WISHING IS often used in effort and work. Some people whole lifetime wishing they could do things and do things which are not attained or realized only by diligent and patient endurance.

Many of these people are disappointed, but some magical wishes will be realized, but the "magic key".

WISHES ARE THE SOURCE and vain dreams, and of those which have no solid foundation wish sends one on a vain journey which he gains nothing but emptiness and discontent with and it may be, some religious science, if it is sharp enough to folly." -Anon.

THERE ARE SUCCESSFUL in hope with "facts and truth", but "no magic key" that can be made things the way we think them to be.

BY CORNBALL BLUES

WAS SOMEWHAT grateful to tv channel 13. I'd heard the president speak on inflation and the promised commentary and analysis by the network intellectuals was, somehow, overlooked by the station.—Too bad, that.

Anyway, best I could gather, the president intends to cure the whole mess by a cutting of government spending and a tightening of John Q. Citizens belt —(You first!)

OVERLOOKED, was the fact that HE might not be around, very long, to cut anything. A possibility, but don't bet on it.

So, if you've been spending more, and enjoying it less, don't look for a sudden and miraculous change. Could be that we'll end up like the Scotsman's horse he'd been training to do without food. About the time he got used to it, he died!

WHAT ABOUT THIS new-fangled World Football League? Not only do we go around buying everyone's football talent, they start play right in the middle of the baseball season.—

Turn Row COMMENTS

By EMIL MAGEE

WONDER IF MOTHER Nature has heard about the energy crisis? Apparently she has not, because a record use of energy is being experienced by farmers who have irrigation wells.

Many irrigation wells have not been shut down since the first of April and from all indications, this mass irrigation will continue until the middle of August on cotton and maybe longer on other crops. It is nice to have irrigation, but when you get the bill from the utility company or fuel supplier, it makes you wonder if it is really worth the extra effort.

Many farmers have indicated that their energy bill is almost three times as high per month as it was last year, and most of this is due to the increased cost of energy. One farmer west of Littlefield said that his little "dripper" wells cost him around $1,200 per month to operate and I'm sure that that is a drop in the bucket, compared to some other farmers who have several large wells.

The big problem with this increased use of irrigation water this year is the lowering of the underground water table. Several domestic wells have either gone dry or are pumping less water, and many irrigation wells are not able to pump their original capacity.

Oh well, there is always next year. Probably our water table will rise and it will be a sure bet that inflation will rise with it!

HERE IS ANOTHER question for you sports enthusiasts to work out: The crowd is cheering. An official league game is in progress to settle the state championship. It is the top of the fifth inning, and the sluggers lead their opponents, 4-0. Yet despite following all the rules, and the sluggers having a four-point lead, not a man has passed second base.

Truth is stranger than fiction, sometimes, in order to have this happen. Think of the rules you have learned regarding baseball. See if you can figure Manners, they ain't got. Another thing, what with the summer activity, by the regular football season comes there'll be a shortage of Gates.

ANYWAY YOU look at it, by the NFL winds up its slow and season in mid-January, it'll be football season don't you think anyone?

WAS ALL SET to say something the weather, then remember about all had been said, over and over. Dry, dry, dry!

Here it is, we'll soon be faced fall of the year, and our dry farmers haven't even had spring. AND, YA KNOW, it's been years that we're in for more of the same year. It's nice to be able to be a house without having to wipe mud drive around without getting the muddy, and being able to plant without taking the weather into consideration. And, at this rate, soon be able to go through mud without soiling any dishes!

THE ANSWER to last problem is: One half-dollar coin cent pieces, and 60 pennies.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION symposium on forage and management will be kicked off four of improved grasses and plots at the USDA Southwest Plains Research Center at Bartlesville, Okla. and at the USDA Southwest Plains Research Center at Bartlesville, Okla. Thursday, Aug. 15.

After the tour, which begins at conferees will return to the series of presentations on forage alfalfa production, improved grazing, crop residue grazing discussions on implanting pasture and what to do with stressed lightweight calves.

GOTTA GIVE JOELLA LOVVORN plug on her column. Was visiting subscriber to the Leader-News in Mesquite and no comments made on Cornball's column, but praise was given to Joella on her recipes. This reader has tried them and said they turned out great. A special comment was made her "Shipwrecked Stew" or what you call it.

MANY OF THE students in Littlefield will have shiny freshly painted rooms greeting them as they begin new school term. A tip of the hat to the school personnel for the

Variable Interest Rate Loans Increased By Fed. Land Bank

McCown, manager of Federal Land Bank of Littlefield, has announced that the Federal Bank's billing rate on ranch variable interest rate loans would be increased from 7-3/4 percent to 8-1/4 percent effective Aug. 1.

The billing rate on rural mortgage loans will be increased from 8-1/4 to 9 percent effective the same date. The new interest rate loan was introduced by the Federal Land Bank in July, 1969.

The billing rate on loans is being "floated" with the increase in the money market.

In making this announcement, McCown stated, the bank's decision to make the change was necessary because of the increased cost of funds which had increased with every issue since the beginning of the year, with the most recent issue selling at an all time record high of 9.21 percent average effective rate.

"The Bank had delayed action in raising the billing rate in order to assess the duration of present high interest levels, and there is nothing in the present monetary situation to indicate any improvement in the immediate future."

The Federal Land Bank of Houston makes long-term real estate loans on farm and ranch land and rural residences throughout Texas and now has more than 913 million dollars in volume of loans outstanding. The local Association makes and services loans in Lamb County.

Officers and directors of the Association are Harry Brantley, president; Ray C. Hulse, vice president; Drexel Lawson, director; Paul S. Chisholm, director; Elmer Hall, director and W. H. McCown, manager.

Pioneer Natural Gas Reveals New Field

Pioneer Natural Gas Company executives, appearing before groups of security analysts July 23 in Boston, Mass. and New York, announced that the company's new Jennings Townsite Field in Louisiana would generate to the company's interest approximately $15.5 million in cash flow (before federal income tax) in the next three years from the presently defined proven reserves in the field.

Available geology and geophysics would indicate a possible additional before-tax cash flow of approximately $9.5 million during that period.

K. B. "Tex" Watson, Pioneer president, said that the company anticipates "good improvement" in second quarter earnings this year in comparison with the same quarter in 1973. He said, "These improved results will be due to higher earnings from new production, greater liquid hydrocarbon revenues, a return to normal or above irrigation revenue, increased heavy construction equipment sales and the new revenue from Pioneer's oil and gas well drilling subsidiary." He also told the analysts that planned capital additions for 1974 are $43 million, a record amount for the company, to be financed by previously arranged bank credit.

E. S. Morris, Pioneer vice president and president of Pioneer's producing subsidiaries, reviewed Pioneer Production Corporation's multiple-pay oil and gas discovery in Jefferson Davis Parish, Louisiana. He pointed out that four wells have been drilled in the Jennings Townsite Field and the company is currently drilling the fifth well.

Morris said, "Production has been established in seven different reservoirs with the drilling that has been done. We anticipate an initial production rate of 25,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day from these four wells. But after some preliminary testing, we will increase this rate to 40,000,000 cubic feet a day."

Detailing the estimates on Pioneer's cash flow from the field, Morris said, "We anticipate $1.65 million in 1974, $6.2 million in 1975 and $7.6 million in 1976. The $9.5 million might be added to this income progressively over the next three years from oil and gas reserves in the possible category." Morris went on to say, "The income projections we have discussed here today do not include the additional revenues that can be realized from a gas processing plant which the company intends to build in the field."

Morris told the analysts that the process of formation of a voluntary reservoir-wide unit for the main oil sand in the field. He said when this unit is established, the company will start development of the oil reservoir.

Morris told the analysts, "It will probably be the first of the year before we have any significant volume of oil on production; however, we hope to start drilling to develop the reservoir before the end of the year. It is anticipated that we will be able to market our crude oil from the Jennings Field to a purchaser who can make gas available to Pioneer Natural Gas Company in West Texas. In other words, we expect the Jennings Townsite discovery to be helpful to the gas supply of Pioneer."

In his discussion with the analysts, Watson said that Pioneer's gas sales volumes in May reached a historical high.

Watson told the analysts that the gas acquisition results for Pioneer so far in 1974 have been very encouraging. He said, "The high level of drilling activity in Hemphill, Wheeler and Roberts counties, which are at the north end of our system, sparked by higher gas prices has been a major factor in the successful acquisition program. Based on preliminary reserves studies, we estimate 1974 additions for the first six months to be in the range of 160 billion cubic feet, which is about 30 percent above gas sales for the same period."

Watson discussed Pioneer's continued efforts in working with the various communities on the system to develop new industry and said that the industrial growth of the area continues at a rapid rate. He told the analysts that about $150 million in new building permits have been issued since the first of the year.

Watson announced that the second quarter earnings for Pioneer would be available about the first of August.

Babe Ruth All Stars Fall Against Graham

The Littlefield Jr. Babe Ruth All-stars got a strong pitching performance from Jerry Williams Wednesday, but costly errors allowed Graham to score four last inning runs and gain a 7-6 win.

The game was a second round matchup in the West Texas State Tournament, and the loss eliminated Littlefield from further competition. The locals, composed of players from Sudan, Anton, Amherst and Littlefield, lost 8-3 Tuesday to Tri-city.

Williams fanned 13 Graham batters and allowed just six hits. But according to Coach Warren Cate, "We made some errors in the last inning that just killed us. We let them score four runs in the last inning, and they got ahead 7-3. And in our last bat, we left two men stranded on base."

Graham was the visiting team and scored once in their first bat. Littlefield bounced back with three to take the lead, but Graham tied it in the third with two scores.

Lonnie Tims, Rex Jones, Kyle Martin and Norva Simington led the Littlefield batters with two hits each. Williams and Stan Jackson added a hit apiece.
