Jack Despres fired from police force

A Littlefield policeman, Jack Despres, was terminated from his job effective July 21, and he turned in his uniforms this Monday City manager Jim Blagg said Despres was taken off the force due to conduct the city council believed to be unbecoming to a city employee. Blagg said the action was taken after Despres was released by his doctor to come back to work in mid-July. Despres had been inactive on an injury leave but on the payroll since the first part of April.

Blagg said under personnel rules, Despres appealed the decision to terminate his duties and that all parties involved met for a discussion on Aug. 10. Blagg said he issued his determination to uphold the terminatin in writing on Aug. 13, as outlined in the grievance rules.

Despres had already filed a charge against the city of Littlefield with the EOC earlier in April. Despres filed another charge with EOC after his termination.

MOVE OVER DIAMONDS . . .

Turquoise is a girl's best friend

By NILAH RODGERS

A few years ago the Wall Street Journal printed something about diamonds and turquoise being the two best investments a person might make. This earth shaking prognostication caused a tide that sent waves of turquoise and Indian jewelry everywhere.

Suddenly jewelry buyers and fashion coordinators of the nation's better department stores and specialty shops came to the southwest while traders of Indian jewelry traveled eight different directions filling display cases of merchants eager to cash in on the 'new high fashion look" of Indian jewelry.

The fashion plate pages of Harper's Bazaar and Vogue featured the turquoise and Indian look. Concho belts were worn low and lazy on swinging hips of slim waisted television and movie personalities, often complimented by flamboyant, massive squash blossom necklaces.

Never before has turquoise been so popular. Sometimes called the jewel of the gods, turquoise is often used along with coral which is often dubbed red gold.

After turquoise was declared a precious stone and sold by the carat like diamonds, turquoise jewelry came out of hiding. People like Mary Jo Weige say turquoise and Indian jewelry have passed the fad stage and are here to stay. "It may taper off where there aren't so many people dealing in it." she said, "but it will remain a good investment."

Turquoise and Indian jewelry can be bought from many sources ranging from the Indian craftsmen themselves to individuals like Mary Jo to nooks in exclusive department stores and jewelry stores.

Because of its value and the expense involved, Mary Jo said the first thing a person should do before buying is to know who they are dealing with. "You should buy from a person with a good reputation who has been in the business awhile," she said. "There is a world of difference in the grades and quality of stones and Mary Jo bought her first sky blue squash blossom about 15 years ago while turquoise was considered a semi precious stone. Even then turquoise was considered one of the top three investments, but was in third place behind diamonds and land- not on equal par with diamonds.

She was fascinated by the intricate at her when she paid $175 for a beautiful light blue Zuni inlay necklace. A few years ago it was appraised at a value between $1,200 and $1,500, and now Mary Jo laughs all the way to the safe deposit box at the bank. There isn't any savings plan that comes close to that kind of interest in 10 or 12

Both Mary Jo and Bill Weige have become something of experts in the turquoise and Indian jewelry field. They say they've learned by asking a lot of questions and "picking brains"

Individuals can't go on the Zuni Indian reservation and trade now without securing a $1,200 a year trading permit. Sometimes a person can trade with a Navajo, but it is best to know the Indian you're trading with and that isn't easy. Mary Jo said the Navajos aren't above wearing fake jewelry as well as other traders who hope someone will ask to buy what they are wearing. Just because it is an Indian wearing a certain piece doesn't necessarily mean it is authentic. They've got a sense of humor," she added with a wry laugh.

'Many times the Indians keep their best jewelry in pawn shops," she said. "This is their way of insuring it. And most of the time they only get it out when they have ceremonies and such

Just because it's pawned doesn't mean you can buy it," she said. She said she couldn't remember the exact rules of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, but said the BIA allowed making payments on pawns for a certain amount of time. Then after that there is a certain amount of time that pawns must be kept without any payments. Pawn brokers must notify persons after this, and the shop keepers must hold the items for a certain number of days before he can sell items after the person who pawned it has been notified.

Nevertheless, pawn items are usually very valuable and sometimes collectors stand in line to redeem old pawn pieces. Thus the old, authentic turquoise, coral and silver pieces have become known as old pawn, and the term doesn't necessarily mean what is in a pawn shop. Mary Jo has one old pawn squash blossom made of nuggets. The Navajos like nuggets and their silver work is exceptional. "I like all of it," Mary Joe said. "The Zuni inlay, the nuggets, the Hopi silver. Now the Zuni and Navajo copy each other's designs, and the Hopi who used to use only silver have been working with stones the last 10 years

"When I got my first squash blossom I was about the only person in town who wore Indian jewelry." Mary Jo said. "And I wore it everywhere except to bed. People would say There goes that Indian woman.

"I've never sold anything I bought for myself," she said. "It's not that it's so valuable, it just that they are things I've wanted for a long time."

People who really love Indian jewelry often become sentimentally attached to certain pieces and will not sell them. Dealers often refuse to wear their best pieces at jewelry shows because they know someone will come along and try to buy them.

"Indian jewelry goes with everything from cut off Levi's to your prettiest formal," Mary Jo said. "Bill loves it just as much as I do. He likes the belt buckels, rings, bolos, chokers... We like the work made by Indians. To me that adds to it. They don't stamp out their patterns. The designs are in their heads.

She admitted that there are very good craftsmen beside the Indians, and often this is valued just as highly as that which is Indian made, but to her it is a personal preference and adds an intrinsic value.

"Ve've been to Santa Fe, Albuquerque and Sedona several times," Mary Jo added. "For years we went every place we heard of where there was turquoise and silver. We made all

Well, what is to be done? Let us begin by reminding ourselves of a very simple moral fact. It was well phrased by the Swiss author, Henri Frederic Amiel. "Truth," he said, "is violated by falsehood, but it is outraged by silence." ... Shakespeare observed in King Henry VI: "A little fire is quickly trodden out which, being suffered, rivers cannot

To a very great extent, the degeneration of public standards of conduct and the increasingly corruptive charactor of literary, artistic and dramatic works are simply the result of what the citizens tolerate without voicing their strong objections.

Like the small child who keeps going a little farther to see how much he can get away with, the pace setters of the news and entertainment industries seem impelled to reach deeper and deeper into the cesspools of sensationalism, animalism and degradation. Their success is only possible because of the tolerance of those who know

We must bear in mind that in public matters there is no such thing as moral neutrality. Those who do not stand up forthrightly in behalf of their convictions, by their inaction are supporting the opposite view. On any scale wherever a person perceives right and wrong, silence turns out to be a vote

I earnestly believe that it has been the silence of the good people much more than the yammering of fools or the persuasion of international evil which has converted this once predominantly lawful and beneficient nation into a moral wasteland. That process can be reversed if enough citizens of moral conviction will raise their voices. I call upon you to join that chorus and prove yourselves worthy of our proud the back roads, stopped and talked, weeded out people, and learned all we could from asking questions. "A lot of people go to Santa Fe for the sole purpose of buying Indian jewelry. In Albuquerque you need to know what you're doing, because they have a lot of assembly line work there.

There is a little shopping mall in Sedona copied after an old mission down in Mexico that is an intriguing and expensive place to go.

The Indians in Montana, Wyoming, and Oklahoma do bead work that is valuable. The feather jewelry from Arizona and Oklahoma is catching on. Indians first started trading with feathers, beads and bones, then the sky blue stone. It is all valuable work.

Abalone and coral play an important part. Ocean coral is mined and therefore expensive. Trading posts must make turquoise and coral from overseas available to Indians for resale.

Before the turquoise revival, the lapidary and silversmith art almost died out among the Indians because it was a low paying art and the younger people wanted a trade that paid well.

But the craze for turquoise changed that. It changed turquoise mining, too. There was a time when Indians went out and mined their own turquoise. But it is impossible to dig it now without heavy equipment, so silver. turquoise and coral are made available to the Indians at their trading posts.

There are a few veins of turquoise left like the Bisbee and Morenci mines in Arizona where conventional mining is done. Most turquoise is now strip mined.

"A few years ago Bill and I went to see the turquoise mine north of Questa, Colo.," Mary Jo said. "We went out there and the whole mountain was gone where they had strip mined.

The last few years turquoise cutters in southwest America refuse to cut turquoise in rounds, oval or marquise because it wastes part of the stone. They all cut baroque or free form which doesn't require so much care in cutting and results in more carats from a given weight of stone. Turquoise is a soft stone and it must be strengthened by a thin layer of liquid metal on the back of the stone. Mary Jo said she never does housework while wearing her jewelry. "It is a real sensitive stone that can't stand heat and is easily broken.' she said. "There can be two pieces of turquoise in the same stone and they will change color by the time they get them out of the ground and air hits them. Body oils can make stones change color.

"I don't like for my stones to be in hot sudsy water. Turquoise can absorb some of the fats from soap, and hand lotion. And hair spray isn't good for them. If silver needs cleaning, I wash it quickly with a good non alkaline soap and dry it with a soft cloth.

"But silver needs to be worn. If you don't wear it it will turn tacky looking. People who are lucky enough to have some old pieces around should get them out and wear them," she concluded.

Kelley pledged nuptial vows Saturday afternoon, Aug. 7, in the Earth United Methodist Church with Rev. Bill Watson, pastor, officiating for the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gene Gaston and Mr. and Mrs. Guy F. Kelley, all of Earth, are parents of the couple.

The cross at the altar was the focal point of the bridal

On the altar table was a white unity candle encircled by rainbow satin bows and streamers entwined with greenery. Baskets of pastel gladioli, spider mums and carnations with baby's breath and greenery were placed on brass tables which flanked the altar. In front of the pulpit and the lectern were brass candelabra entwined with English ivy and fitted with white tapers. A kneeling bench was used by the couple as the Other members of the Lord's Prayer was recited. Family pews were accented by pastel ribbons and baby's

The A-line skirt fell to form a chapel train. The hemline was be dered with an heirloom lace flounce. The headpiece was a prayer veil of lace edged silk illusion attached to a matching lace Victorian capulett. The bridal bouquet was an ivory lace fan backing a cascade of gardenias, stephanotis and baby's breath. For "something old" the bride wore a penny in her shoe. "Something new" was an amethyst pendant, a gift from the groom. "Something

Misses Shirley Beck, Southwest Texas State University, San Marcos, and Miss Doris Schwertner, Floydada, presided at the table serving the cake, clear party punch, nuts and pastel mints from crystal and silver appointments.

The groom's table was covered with a round white linen cloth. Miss Kleta Haberer of Earth served coffee and cake from silver appointments. The chocolate cake was decorated by blue flowers and the inscription "Whither Thou Goest" in blue lettering.

Miss Cynthia Curtis distributed rice bags of pastel hues from an ivory straw basket. She wore a gown of blue nylon with self ruffles covering the bodice and cascading down the full skirt. Pastel daisies, mums, carnations and baby's breath formed her wrislet.

For a wedding trip to Colorado Springs, Colo. the bride selected an ivory gauze dinner dress with an ivory ribbon choker displaying a cameo brooch. She added bone accessories and a gardenia corsage.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Springlake-Earth High School, and is a senior special education major at Texas Tech University.

The groom is a graduate of Springlake-Earth High School and Texas Tech University. He will begin graduate work this fall in the civil engineering field at Texas Tech.

bach of Waterlou, Ontario, Canada, came Aug. 7 to stay four weeks in Earth in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Blackburn. The young lady is 16 years of age and is a Lions Club exchange student.

Her mother is a principal at a school for students from kindergarten through eighth grade. Her father owns and operates a men's clothing store in Waterlou, which has a population of 50,000.

Wheat and corn are the principal crops around the Waterlou area. Around the Niagara area, fruit is grown extensively. Irrigation is not needed because of the bountiful rain fall.

The economy of Waterlou depends on the manufacturing of tires and automobile parts.

Miss Bierschbach says she has never seen so many cattle in one place as are in the feedyards here. In Canada the cattle which are mainly of the dairying type are permitted to graze on pasture

When asked the greatest difference in the land in her country and the land here, she said "The land here is flat. I just can't imagine acre after acre of such flat land, big fields and long rows."

Gas pipeline to be retested

The section of gas pipeline that ruptured near Sundown Tuesday was not in the portion of line that had been retested earlier this year, according to a spokesman for Mid-America Pipeline Company.

Gilbert Rohleder, vice president of Mapco Inc., of which Mid America Pipeline is a division, said the section of pipeline six and one half miles southwest of Sundown was scheduled for retesting in September, but was not retested in February of this year after a section of the same pipe ruptured near Whitharral and the gas ignited, claiming five Hockley County Sheriff's office was notified about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, August 10, by the Mid America office in Hobbs that there was a rupture in the line.

The Levelland Fire Department, the Hockley and Cochran Counties Sheriff's Department and the Civil Defense Coordinator evacuated two families in the area of the rupture and readied Girlstown in case they had to be evacuated. The line was shut down, and win dispersed the cloud and of liquid petroleum gas. No fire or injuries were reported.

Rohleder said the company has been retesting all the lines in its system, including out of state lines, and this section of line, which was scheduled to begin retesting September 15 was one of the last to be retested.

The line is the same type and manufactured by the same company as the line that ruptured near Whitharral. The line, which runs throughout the Texas Panhandle was test the Texas Panhandle was tested from Tulia to the Slaughter Plant near Sundown, but was not tested southward from the Slaughter plant, to Hobbs according to Rohleder.

The faulty section of line has been repaired and was put back into service yesterday. Rohleder said. The pressure in the line hs been reduced another 50 pounds, to 1,300 pounds.

In February, the pressure was reduced from 1,650 to 1,350 pounds. No reason has yet been determined for the failure of the line

The Railroad Commission has been working closely with the company on the repair. replacement and testing of the

"Living in Century III" was theme for this year's conference.

Keynote speaker was Dr. Jennie C. Kitching, assistant director for home economics, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Kitching discussed "Extension Home Economists in Century III'with a look at plans for implementing programs of informal education in home economics and related areas among Texas families.

Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, addressed the group, also-as did Dr. John E. Hutchison, Extension Service director emeritus.

Also among conference events was an address by State Representative Wilhelmina Delco of Austin- concerning legislation and its effect on family living.

Mrs. R. P. Smith of Fredericksburg spoke to the home economists about national trends in home restoration and renovation as they relate to her involvement with projects in the Fredericksburg area, currently receiving attention throughout several states among restoration authorities.

Presentation of the Ann B. Sonner Scholarship by the agents' association and installation of officers, among other events, closed the annual meet-

Embarrassed OSHA retreats on rules

RP COMPLAINTS from every the country against regulations ed by OSHA (Occupational and Health Administration, a part of the Labor Department) have caused the agency to take another look at some of its plans. Time for comment on its proposed ranch and farm sanitary proposals, for example, was extended to Aug. 16.

It looked as though some of OSHA's sanitation ideas- such as requiring a toilet facility within five minutes' walk of all field hands- would be revised.

The American National Cattlemen's Association reported that Hilliard

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Always testing

PATH OF LIFE is not always Yes, there are some smooth but there are some rough too. It is interesting to note evement along this path, over smooth and the rough places, ays testing" us. is some failure and some some loss and some gain; orrow and some joy; some y and some prosperity; times ess and times of good health; of these are "always testing"

RE IS NOTHING WRONG with ingement, because it can be no way. It is all part of being and we must not be resentful. g how it is, we can be prepared testing and accept it as part of in also be prepared to pass the f course, there will be some but there can be an over-all kind of success. We cannot ect, but we can do very well privilege of living.

DEMANDS OF LIVING are not enable or too heavy, but they ways testing" you and me. We ccept this fact in the most manner, and this will help us ith each testing. It is part of ablished order for life, as we to it.

e wrong, if we think that only and losses, and sorrows, and ies, and illnesses provide testare also tested by success, and gain, and joy, and prosperity, and good health. Living is "always testing" us, and we must not pretend that it is otherwise.

IT IS ADMITTED that life seems unnecessarily difficult for some folk. If it is, it is because they either make it so; or they let it become so. The condition can be very rough, if we do not prepare ouselves and equip ourselves for satisfactory living. We can make it even rougher by permitting feelings of resentment.

We are also asking for serious troubles, if we pretend that we can live in some sort of sheltered situation; or that we are different, or special, and will not be tested. Then, some people keep trying to run away; but there is no place to go.

SINCE LIVING IS "always testing" us, we must learn how to handle the testings so the strain and stress do not build up and further handicap us.

We can make our lives substantial, if we will build upon the foundation facts of truth, honesty, self-control, morality, hard work, and the best available value system. We can do this, and pass the tests; from whichever side of life they come.

WE CAN HELP each other, and we should. In the family, in friendships, and in the larger and less intimate associations; we must be both supportive and encouraging to one anMiller, a rancher from Colorado Springs, "analyzed his likely costs of installing pipes, and othe facilities OSHA proposed, and came up with a figure in excess of a million dollars."

New rules having to do with safety guards on many types of farm equipment were postponed until Oct. 25. Originally, the date was to have been June 7, but OSHA announced the postponement in order to meet its own deadlines for producing information materials to explain the new rules.

Then there's the booklet OSHA got out for cattlemen that has been ridiculed by the press across the country. Entitled "Safety with Beef Cattle," it advised cattlemen that "When floors are wet and slippery with manure, you could have a bad

The first line of the text told the reader that "The best way to not have an accident is to prevent it."

These lines from the book and similar gems kicked up such a storm that the assistant secretary of Labor. Morton Corn, who runs OSHA, recently announced the agency was halting distribution of the booklet "pending its revision." The government, he said "did not intend to insult anyone's intelligence." The criticism, however, he added, "directed our attention to several sections that must be revised.

Several candidates for omission are Rats like to make homes in junk...You can get cut by bolts or nails that stick out...Latches or hooks that are worn out can break and let cattle loose...Ladders that are not strong or have broken steps can cause a bad fall...Bare feet or sneakers aren't safe around cattle...Tired or hungry or frightened cattle can bolt and trample

Be patient, talk softly around the cows...Many people trip over animals and fall... When you are hauling cattle, do not put too many in the truck...Be careful that you do not fall into the manure pits...

Rep. Tom Hagedorn of Minnesota, noting that it was one in a series of OSHA pamplets which would cost taxpayers an estimated $466,700, said: "The material in these pamphlets seem to be written for a New Yorker about to visit a farm for the first time...l can't believe these (booklets) are intended for persons who have spent all their lives on farms.

'Jesus saith unto her, I AM the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." John 11:25

This promise has been a source of comfort to many when a loved one who was a Christian, has passed away. The hope of seeing that one again has eased the pain of separation from the familiar face and companionship. However, it is not future events with which we should be concerned, but it is the Person of Lord, ever present with us, that we need most. Strength, blessing and comfort, are imparted just so far as we are do we see a picture of the risen radiant Son of God. On one occasion Michael Angelo turned upon his fellow artists in a spirit of great indignation and said. "Why do you keep filling gallery after gallery with endless pictures of one everiterated theme of Christ in weakness, Christ upon the cross, Christ dying, most of all Christ hanging dead?

Why do you concentrate upon that passing episode as if that were the last word and the final scene, as if the curtain dropped upon that hour of disaster and defeat?

At worst, that only lasted a few hours. But to the end of unending eternity. Christ is alive; Christ rules and reigns and triumphs.

To John on the isle of Patmos, our glorified and exalted Lord said, "Fear not, I am the first and the last; I am he that liveth and was dead; and, behold I am alive evermore.'

'Oh death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is they victory?" 1 Cor. 15:55

LIFE IS A GAME

Discovery that life is a game is one of Life's milestones. Sometim we feel as if we are only sitting in front of a television set, watching game we cannot control. Most often, however, we are in the same, being battered and bruised by fellow players. We often dream of being carried triumphant. from the field on the shoulders of teammates, but it's almost always no more than a dream.

Finally we reach the place where we shed pain, heartache and disappointment as casually as we would discard a disposable diaper somewhere in this life and death ontest we must make some sitive identifications

The flashing pass does not create panic. "Spiritual" peripheral usion keeps us aware of the needs of those who play by our side. And winning the approval of our "coach" is best of all "Well done!" He exclaims. "Well done!" the crowd of witnesses echo. And then it will all have been worthwhile!

Whitharral to play six-man football

By ANDY ROGERS

Around Whitharral these days, the big question is not whether the Panthers will be a better football team than last year, not what graduation losses have done to the team and not even how they'll do in their new district, 3B.

The big question is, "How in the world do you play six-man football?"

'After playing eight-man all this time, which is quite a bit different from regular football in the first place, the kids are kinda puzzled about the techniques of six-man," says Panther coach Jerry Miller. When the UIL dropped eightman last year, we had our choice of going II-man or six-man. Since we've only got 17 out for the team, the choice was pretty clearly to go six-

Kristinek will be snapping the ball to sophomore Jimmy Polk, who started last year also. Other returners are Brent Gage, a junior end, and 5-10, 175-pound senior defensive end Marcus Salinas. Passing will be the strong point, says Miller. "It was our strength last season, and we've got the quarterback and both receivers back. It's important to score a lot in six-man: a team can score 50 points and still lose.'

Lack of overall team speed is a definite weakness, but the coach is pleased with the added depth.

The race in the north zone in District 1B will be tight. predicts Miller. "Wellman will be strong. They were 5-5 in eight-man last year and just lost one guy. Also, Three-Way is getting back into football and they've got some good

TRANSPORTATION

The wheels of transportation have turned America. They have turned her from the very beginning from a young and struggling and poor colony to the most powerful nation in the world.

In the beginning they were few and far between and most of those who carved this young colony traveled on foot or by 'shanks mare' as they called it. Those somewhat luckier 'hoofed it' also on the hooves of horses and oxen.

The wheels of transportation: They've come a long way - from that humble beginning came the stagecoach ... the canal and river boats... the prairie schooners ... the railroad ... the steam boats ... the horseless carriage and, eventually the airplane; the Jets, the solid and liquid propelled rockets which ushered in the space age and mans first journey to the moon.

For many years they dominated travel all over America. They soon, with their new ideas of comfort and speed, completely dominated transportation. And today, they handle a lot of raw material and are still a necessity.

In the early part of this century the big trucks, vans, and other freight carriers have made great progress in local and long distance hauling. Today most all local and finished products are moved by truck.

But another phase in transportation seems to be the travel by air. Air freight is fast becoming a reality and will soon dominate man's furthernass of transportation.

Gas purchase information distributed to cities

Pioneer Natural Gas Company delivered detailed gas purchase information Monday to the various city governments throughout its West Texas system. The packets contain company testimony and exhibits for Pioneer's hearing to be held before the Texas Railroad Commission (RRC) in Austin, Sept. 14.

In May, Pioneer petitioned the RRC for a special hearing to enable Pioneer to publicly review its cost of gas for its West Texas system, to evaluate the correctness of the company's cost-of-gas adjustment, as well as to determine the appropriateness of the policies of Pioneer in maintaining its gas supply.

In announcing this action, K. B. Watson, Pioneer President said, "We are confident that Pioneer gas acquisition practices have been in the best tracts would have drastically testimony shows that we have the lowest gas costs of larger companies in Texas and, in spite of this, we have been able to buy more gas than we have sold in each of the past two years."

Watson went on to say, Without these purchases Pioneer would have been un- contracts and documents used able to fulfill its gas commit-ments to customers." He said that Pioneer's West Texas system has a peak-day requirements of approximately 598,000 Mcf.
