Justice Of Peace Files Salary Grievance

Stanley Doss, justice of peace of precinct 4, has filed a salary grievance with the Lamb County Salary Grievance Committee which was established here in January of this year.

The grievance committee was established in Lamb County in January after authorization by the Texas Legislature. The committee is to review any elected official's salary who files a complaint after he has asked the commissioners' court for a raise in salary and the raise has been denied.

Doss requested a salary raise in January which was not granted. Doss' salary is $415 per month or $4,980 per year. In filing the grievance, Doss is asking for a salary of $6,600 annually plus an additional $600 for personal and automobile expenses incurred in the performance of duties as justice of peace.

In his petition, Doss said in addition to being in the office 40 hours per week he is required to be on call 24 hours per day, seven days a week. He noted that he is required to use his personal car to travel to various points within the county to perform his duties.

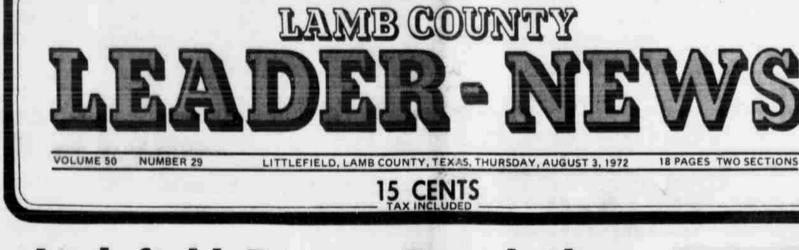

Under law, the grievance committee is made up of seven elected county officials and three laymen drawn from the list of grand jury members who served the previous year.

County Judge G. T. Sides is chairman of the salary grievance committee and as chairman does not vote. Elected officials are Curtis Wilkinson, county attorney; Lucy Moreland, county treasurer; Mary Beth Willey, county clerk; Ray Lynn Britt, district clerk; Herbert Dunn, tax assessor-collector; and E. D. McNeese, sheriff, Drawn from the list of grand jurors who served last year were James "Sandy" Sanderson, Winston Cummings and Quentin Hodge Judge Sides said the hearing would be within 30 days following Monday's receipt of the written grievance from Doss.

If, after a hearing, the committee by a vote of six of its voting members decides to recommend a change in the salary, expenses, or other allowance of the person requesting the hearing, it shall prepare its recommendation in writing and deliver it to the commissioners' court which shall consider the recommendation at its next meeting.

Should all nine on the committee be unanimous in a decision to grant a raise, such a statement is signed by all nine and it goes into effect without consent from the commissioners' court.

City Clean-Up Week

An all-out effort will be made by Littlefield citizens to clean up the city during a special clean-up week, Aug. 14-

CECIL MASON JOHNSON

Several youth groups have volunteered to contribute their energy in cutting weeds, picking up trash and running mowers to make their city look well groomed, and older citizens in the community are devoting time in making phone calls to inform the entire citizenry of the concerted effort.

The special week has been changed from the formerly designated week of Aug. 7-12, to allow more time for organization.

Every citizen is being urged by the Community Improvement Committee to clean up his own premises, place the debris and trash in containers that can be easily handled, and help the neighbor that is unable to take care of his property.

Volunteers are being sought to help pick up trash on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the week. Some trucks and pickups are needed, and persons donating the use of such vehicles and volunteering muscle power are asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce office for assignments.

Large plastic bags have been ordered by the city, and may be here in time for distribution throughout the city for placement of debris for a quick pick-up.

The city is asking help of volunteers to hand cut weeds around trees and other objects on vacant lots that have been mowed by the city. Other volunteers can be used in numerous projects throughout the city, and assignments may be received by contacting the Chamber of Commerce office.

Farmer, County Agent, Optometrist Are Honored

Three Littlefield men, David Jones, Bobby Brunson and Dr. Craig Wallace have been chosen for inclusion in the 1972 edition of "Outstanding Young Men of America," according to the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce office.

Nominated by the organization earlier this year, the men were chosen for the annual awards book in recognition of their professional and community leadership.

"These young men are truly outstanding because they have distinguished themselves in one or more aspects of community and professional life," said chairman of the board of advisors of the yearly volume.

Nominations for the awards volume are submitted each year by civic organizations, Jaycee chapters, college alumni associations and military commandants.

Jones farms south of Littlefield. He is a member of the Littlefield Lions Club, the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, the Lamb County Sheriffs Posse and Crescent Drive Church of Christ. Jones takes a very active interest in the youth in the Sheriff's posse, is active in Little League, serving as secretary of the local league, and is scout master of pack 641.

Brunson is assistant county agent and 4-H leader for Lamb County. He is a member of the Littlefield Lions Club and is bulletin editor. He is active in Chamber of Commerce activities, and his 4-H responsibilities and work with the youth of the First United Methodist Church keeps him busy.

Dr. Wallace is a Littlefield optometrist. He is a director of the Littlefield C-C and served as membership chairman this year. He is very active in First United Methodist Church activities. Dr. Wallace is program chairman for the Littlefield Lions Club this year, and is active in the Peewee Baseball League also.

Tax Suit Filing

In the second called meeting in July, the board of trustees of the Littlefield Independent School District met Monday night to clarify the procedure and time limits to be used in the filing of suits for delinquent taxes.

Meeting with the board was Tom Tollett, attorney with the law firm of Gowdy and Hall who represent the school system in legal matters. Tollett stated, "we are guided by the statutes in the matter of time here." Briefly described, there is a period of ten days between the time the tax accessorcollector sends out the delinquent notices in which a tax payer could pay delinquent taxes without going through an attorney. After 10 days however, the matter is referred to an attorney and there is approximately a 30-day period before suit is actually filed.

The board voted however, that "after property taxes become delinquent, the tax accessor-collector or the attorneys are authorized to accept delinquent taxes, penalty, and interest for one year or in multiples thereof before suit is filed, but after suit is filed, no partial payment will be accepted."

(Editor's note: For example, suppose a person is six years delinquent and agrees to pay the delinquent taxes (plus penalty and interest) before suit is filed. A year's delinquent taxes would have to be paid each month for six months in order to keep suit from being filed.)

Other items of business included a new contract with the law offices of Gowdy and Hall for legal work involved in collecting delinquent taxes.

The new contract calls for the law firm to receive 15 per cent of taxes collected on the account they have been actively engaged in.

The old contract called for the firm to receive 15 per cent of all delinquent taxes received after Sept. 1, whether or not the accounts were turned over for collection.

Attending this special meeting were board members Doug Walden, Mickey Ratliff, Pat Downs, Werner Birkelbach, David Hampton, Tax Accessor-Collector Sid Hopping and Supt. Paul I. Jones.

CONTRACTORS began seal coating some Littlefield streets early this week, and the project is calling for the repair of approximately 105,000 square yards of territory. Here, a gravel spreader covers the center of the street where the sealer has been sprayed. (Staff photo) year in Littlefield, and they, along with several civic clubs in Littlefield, have done the leg work and rounded up the finances for the project.

Kari comes from Rorvik, a city in Norway with a population of 2,000 people. Her father, Martin Rivelsrud, manages a dairy, and her mother is a Norwegian housewife. Kari has two brothers, Otto Martin Rivelsrud and Kietil Agnar Rivelsrud, one of whom came to the United States under an American Field Service scholarship.

The information sheet on Kari states that she is 1.77 meters tall (5' 10"), weighs 68 kilograms (150 pounds), was born Dec. 25, 1954 in Rorvik, and is a Lutheran.

She is a gymnast, does needlework, knitting and plays the piano. She has been in the Girl Scouts and in the Philharmonic Society.

The Littlefield Chapter of the American Field Service will approve her out-of-town trips during her residency here, and the rules state that she may make no public speeches until after Jan. 1, after she is more acquainted with the customs of the country.

According to the rules, she cannot drive a car or fly an airplane while here. She will receive a monthly allowance from the national organization of the American Field Service, which will also pay medical expenses when needed. The host family will provide her food and lodging, and the local chapter will provide school lunches, laundry and dry cleaning, school supplies and her class ring. The school will provide her yearbook, class photos, student activities tickets, and graduation supplies.

Maximum Sense Needed

Can you imagine your congressional representatives voting for a bill to make it harder for black teenagers to get jobs? No? Well then, how about imagining them voting for a bill to increase rural unemployment?

Sounds most unlikely, doesn't it? Well, the trick is, you call the bill a bill to raise the minimum wage rate. Then everybody can vote for it with a clear conscience, because everybody likes to get a raise.

The problem is that while Congress can require an employer to pay his employees more money, it cannot create the money to pay them with. And employers have money problems, just like employees. So when an employer is forced to pay more money than a job is worth, he simply eliminates the job. He has to. Otherwise, he'd go broke himself. Obviously, the first jobs to go are the low-paying jobs. And the low-paying jobs are those that require the least skill, the jobs that are usually "first" jobs for teenagers and school dropouts.

Low-paying jobs are not ideal, but they are better than no job at all. Also, they may enable the jobholder to upgrade his skills while he works, so he can advance to higher-paying work.

WHEN THESE JOBS are not available. the person who is ungualified for higherskilled work may be forced onto welfare. Or, he may be tempted to try crime. In rural areas, living costs are not as high as in the great urban centers. Pay is usually correspondingly lower, too. But when Congress raises the minimum wage rate, or extends its coverage to new occupational groups, it applies equally everywhere in the country. As the low-paying jobs in rural areas are eliminated, the unemployed often turn to the nearest big city in hopes of finding a job there. The effect of all of these factors is to aggravate the social problems of the big cities. And that places a further burden on both local and federal budgets.

UNEMPLOYMENT AMONG the 16-19 year-olds is very high now —about 25 per cent. That breaks down to 19.9 per cent for whites, and 34.7 per cent for blacks. But believe it or not, Congress is considering increasing the minimum wage from $1.60 to $2 an hour right awayand away, and to $2.20 a year later.

In the past, whenever the minimum wage has gone up, so has teenage unemployment. There is every reason to expect that history will repeat itself this time. So what do we do about all those unemployed teenagers? Well, Congress may have an answer for that, too. The government is being asked to spend $444 million on the Neighborhood Youth Corps, to create jobs for them at the taxpayer's expense.

By increasing unemployment, higher minimum wage rates may also have an indirect effect on inflation. What happens is that the Federal Reserve System, worried by the unemployment rate, increases the money supply faster than economic conditions warrant, to stimulate the economy. And the Fed has in fact been doing just that.

But there is a time lag of several months between an expansion of the money supply and the desired stimulative effect. Therefore, if the economic recovery continues to gain momentum, the Fed's boost may be felt at a time when the economy is again at MOST OF US KNOW the importance of being discreet at certain times and in certain situations. It is indiscretion that none of us can afford. It is bad in itself, in the very act; but the consequences can be, and often are unbelievably unpleasant.

Some folk seem to delight in throwing caution and good judgement to the wind, but the delight is soon turned to dejection. Others mistakenly assume that they are asserting themselves, and exercising their personal liberty by indiscretion, but discretion is much wiser, and more profitable as the assertion of self and the exercise of personal liberty.

group of dedicated football fans that provide a lot of little extras for the local football teams.

THINGS SUCH AS cameras, projectors, football programs, weightlifting machines, and other special equipment, are provided through the efforts of this group. AND, oh, yes, don't forget the football banquet.

These are items that go to make our football program better, but have trouble finding their ways into the athletic budget.

ALL THIS AMOUNTS to, for these guys, is a lot of hard work, and the satisfaction of seein' a better football program in action. This is for the primary benefit of our youngsters, of course, that they may have better equipment to work with, and may have a little more pride in their school.

So? When these fellows come callin', or phonin', be nice, huh? After all, they are not askin' for a handout. They have something to sell!

IT'S SAID THE wage and hour investigator was interviewin' a local farmer, as to the number of workers he had, and how much they were paid. "Wal," he said, "I've got one hand that does the milkin' and waterin', that I pay a hundred-fifteen dollars per week. — Then there's the one that just does the plowin' that I pay an even one-hundred per week."

"Then, there's the maid, that draws room and board and eighty dollars per week."

"Any one else on this farm?" the investigator wanted to know.

"Wal, yes, there's this half-wit that hangs around here and draws about twenty dollars per week, and puts in about as many hours as all the rest put together!"

The investigator became all ears, "Could I speak to this fellow?" he asks. "Sir," the farmer answered, "you're SPEAKIN' to him!"

> Small boat operators now have available to them complete nautical charts of the Gulf of Mexico Intracoastal Waterway from Carabelle, Fla. to Brownsville, Texas. The final link in small craft coverage of the 1,063-mile waterway was recently completed by the United States Department of Commerce's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The last link was a 105-mile stretch from Ellender, La. to Galveston Bay

The accordion-folded charts are especially made for use in the small cockpits of recreational craft. They contain useful information not included in the large conventional charts, such as a listing of docking facilities for recreational boats and areas where supplies, fuel and services can be obtained by small craft operators. There are now 23 small craft charts covering the Gulf waterway from Carabelle to Brownsville, replacing 33 conventional charts of the area which are no longer being issued. Each of the 23 charts may be purchased for $2 from the Distribution Division (C44), National Ocean Survey. Washington, D.C. 20235 or from National Ocean Survey nautical chart sales agents.
