First Gas Shortage 'Squeeze' Felt

While some wholesalers and retailers expressed fears of gas rationing in the near future, almost all said they thought the country would be better off without such measures. Wilemon said he believes rationing can be avoided if people will just rock along with the short supply, cut down on unnecessary driving, and not hoard. Wilemon said gas rationing is a sure way to start black marketing that's unequalled.

Ace Bridwell is another consignee who was in the gas business during WWII. In the event of rationing again, Bridwell said he doubts if farmers will get all the gas they need. "Farmers got plenty during WWII," he added, "but even farmers will get shorted if gas is rationed now."

Bridwell said his station operators ran out of gas Monday, even when he'd been running on next month's allotment for several days. Bridwell said he got a new gas supply Wednesday.

Slo Grissom said the only reason his retail outlets had gas the first of the week was because he was selling on next month's allotment. Most of the Gulf service station "enjoyed" three days off Christmas week when they closed Sunday, Monday and Tuesday because of the gas shortage. All were closed Jan. 1.

Jim Jones said all of his retailers still had gas this week. "We've been operating on January's allotment since Dec. 24," he added. "We have gas right now, but we may be out the third week in January." Jones wasn't limiting the number of gallons, but he said there was a very good probability of limits later this month.

Pierce Oil Company ran out of gas Monday and wasn't expecting any more until yesterday. Herbert Pierce termed the shortage "serious" and added that the diesel picture looks bad, too.

Texaco consignee Gene Ratliff and Shamrock wholesaler John Richey said they had plenty of gas so far.

Ratliff's retail station on the loop at the Levelland highway did a booming business Christmas Day. When travelers spied the open station they lined up two deep from U.S. 385 to U.S. 84 and didn't seem to mind the 20 to 30 minute delay before an attendant could wait on them.

Ratliff said he had enough gas in his storage tanks to allow the station to remain open all day Christmas and New Year's, but he added that he is hauling gas on next month's business.

Richey opened Jan. 1 and Wednesday. "And we'll get another load of gas Thursday," he concluded.

DON BELL displays some WWII gas rationing coupons given to Robert Bridges. The three series represent the coupons for individual, commercial and special purpose gas purchasing in the 1940's.

Approximately 24,000 sets of plates will be sold in this county this year. This year's tags are lettered CJD 25 through CJP 124. County residents can start putting the '74 license plates on Feb. 1 and must have them on vehicles by April 1. (Staff Photo)

Vehicle Registration Renewals To Be Mailed

Owners of approximately 8.4 million motor vehicles in Texas will have important mail coming their way early in January.

Registration renewal application will be put in the mail shortly after the holiday season by the Motor Vehicle Division of the Texas Highway Department.

City Councilmen Meet Tonight

Littlefield's city councilmen meet tonight to discuss a short agenda containing only two items of business, in addition to the routine business.

Jack Thornell will be present to discuss the cable television franchise, and councilmen will review the changes made in the Personnel Rules book.

No new business is slated, and the only other business to be transacted will be the approval of the minutes of the previous meeting, approval of the bills, and receipt of departmental reports.

DST Returns Sunday, New School Hours

Daylight Saving Time makes an early debut this year, and the "Spring Forward" motto formerly used will apply to the winter this time; and no prospects are visible at present for returning to standard time in the fall.

Residents who wish to be awakened at the right time Sunday morning should move their clocks and watches forward an hour before retiring Saturday night.

The new DST goes into effect as a result of national legislation passed in an effort to save fuel.

When school begins Monday for Littlefield students, the following daily schedule will be followed:

- First period, 9 to 9:55;
- Second period, 10 to 10:55;
- Third period, 11 to 11:55;
- Noon hour, 11:55 to 12:55;
- Fourth period, 1 to 1:55;
- Fifth period, 2 to 2:55; and
- Sixth period, 3 to 3:55 p.m.

Banks and some other businesses will be observing new opening hours, effective Monday, Jan. 7. Both the First National Bank and Security State Bank will open at 10 a.m. and close at 3 p.m.

The same quick and easy method made possible by modern computer technology will be in effect this year as it has been in the last few years.

Vehicle owners can save time that used to be spent waiting in long lines at county tax offices throughout the state by ordering their 1974 license plates by mail.

All that must be done is to send the entire three-part application by mail to the county tax assessor collector in the owner's home county, enclosing the registration fee plus $1 for each vehicle to cover handling and mailing.

There are three things to remember:

1. Leave the three-part form intact. Don't separate the three parts.
2. Mail it to the county tax office in your home county. (Mailing it to the Highway Department will only delay getting your 1974 license plates).
3. Be sure to include the registration fee, plus $1 for each vehicle for postage and handling.

You may apply for license plates by mail after Jan. 1. However, county tax offices won't mail plates until after Feb. 1. Owners should allow at least 30 days from the time they apply for the license plates to be returned.

In-person registrations will begin at county tax offices and, in some counties, at substations on Feb. 1. Even though the automat d registration application procedures have speeded up the process, waiting lines will grow progressively longer as the April 1 deadline approaches.

FERTILIZER USE IMPORTANT

Despite higher prices, farmers should keep economics in mind when planning their fertilizer program for the coming season. Fertilizer is a vital production input necessary for maximum economic yields. Producers should figure their fertilizer costs per bushel or pound of their expected yields and then look at the expected prices for their commodities. A soil test will help producers use fertilizer for maximum efficiency.

EDITORIAL

A Landmark Year

AS IT ROLLS OFF the calendar, each year has one terminal characteristic in common with every other year—a mass of year-end reports, summaries and prophecies.

In this, 1973 is no exception.

In other respects, the year may be remembered as one of the most significant in American history. It began with the ending of America's longest and most detested war. It traversed the long months of an awakening environmental realism. It witnessed the rise of what Rogers C. B. Morton, Secretary of the Interior, has called the "Greatest Issue" before The American People—the energy shortage.

And finally, it ushered in a stunning debacle in governmental affairs. As a result of Watergate and other scandals, the country was left with no Vice President and a President on the verge of impeachment.

These events overshadowed further achievements in space and the steady march forward of other phases of technological progress that hold promise of resolving environmental and energy problems and of opening the way to a higher civilization.

IN RETROSPECT, the multiple adversities of 1973 could turn into blessings. The energy shortage, for instance, is forcing recognition of the fact that shutting down power plants, halting gas and oil resource development, compelling closure of factories and the laying off of countless thousands of American citizens in a poor way to control pollution and improve the environment.

As for Watergate, the general feeling seems to be one of mass disillusionment with government and government officials. But here again, events that have the appearance of near catastrophe may cloak long-range blessings.

CENTURIES AGO, the forefathers of present generations of Americans came to the shores of what is now the United States to escape the oppression of kings. As the great documents—such as the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution—that accompanied the American Revolution and the founding of our nation indicated all too well, our forebears had no intention of escaping from one tyranny only to deliver themselves once again to despotic government in the New World.

They believed in the supremacy of the individual and in religious, political and economic freedom. They believed in property rights and in government as the servant rather than the master of the people. With infinite wisdom, they established a representative form of government, using every safeguard against tyranny they could devise.

FOR WELL OVER a century, the basic tenets of the American system remained vivid in the hearts and minds of American citizens. Then somewhere along the line the American philosophy became adulterated with new concepts—concepts that embraced the philosophy of looking to government as a leader rather than a servant.

With ever-greater frequency since the turn of the century, and particularly in the past thirty years or so, government was called upon to solve local problems, and each such occasion meant delegating more responsibility to Washington, the creation of new bureaucracies and new government and spending programs.

As the preoccupation with centralized authority grew, respect for private enterprise declined. The President and the Congress became all things to all men and were expected to end depressions, provide perpetual abundance and, in general, shield the public from the inevitable storms of human existence. It was, of course, an impossible job.

IN STRIVING to do the impossible, the American government became the greatest bureaucracy on Earth. Watergate has been the result. It provides a graphic example of what happens when people expect too much of government and become too dependent upon the good offices of politicians who are no longer servants.

The year 1973 may very likely go down in history as a memorable landmark because it was the year that government was proven fallible to the people of the United States. It could be the year that demonstrated the necessity of decentralizing federal authority, of returning to the basic principles of state's rights and of renewed faith in the superiority of the individual.

IT IS INDEED possible that 1973 will become one of the most important anniversaries in American history. It may have signaled the nation's turning away from the long slide into dependence on the state and rule by omniscient, centralized authority.

It could herald a resurgence of belief in the principles that undergird a national life founded on individual responsibility and freedom protected by representative government and liberty under law.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Not Scared

"I'M SCARED" is a statement being heard with greater frequency nowadays, and there are reasons for being alarmed. All of us probably have some of this feeling, now and then.

We can certainly find what seems to be sufficient reasons to be scared, and it may be difficult for most of us to face up to these without some apprehensiveness.

Nevertheless, we must try to learn to face the challenges and threats; without feelings of anxiety and alarm. We may not succeed completely, but we can succeed to the extent that our living is worthwhile.

WE CANNOT LIVE SCARED. We may exist in this darkness and dread, but such existence can hardly be called living. If we permit ourselves to be scared, we will be less effective in trying to cope with life.

We will find it impossible to do our best in what we do. We will not be able to fully appreciate and enjoy our blessings. We cannot apply our maximum skills to our work. We will be less capable in solving our problems.

THIS VICIOUS FEAR IS the absence of courage, and embraces the paralyzing emotions of alarm, panic and terror. It may force its way into our thoughts, and probably will; but we must not let it abide there; we must never make it feel welcome.

There may be just cause for such fear, but much of it is groundless. Regardless, we must not let this fear be the dominant force in our mind. The groundless fears

REMEMBER THE GOOD ole days? If the trend continues, we may not only remember them but will also get a chance to re-live them.

This energy crisis may get to be a serious situation and if it does, all the conveniences and luxuries that the wheel has brought us through the centuries may become memories.

Shortage of gasoline, now the auto industry is beginning to lay off thousands of employees, material shortage of all sorts and the environmentalists would rather see a hundred people out of work and possibly starve than to give up one tree.

Of course, we here in America are not the only ones who have a shortage problem or an energy crisis. This is being felt the world over, and if the heads of all the countries don't have a meeting of the minds rather soon, it is my prediction that the depression in the 30's will be mild compared to the crisis we may get into.

This time there will be money, but nothing to spend it on and in the 30's there were products to buy but no money.

IN REFERENCE TO the environmentalists, oil companies have spent millions of dollars to perfect the off shore drilling so it would not harm or pollute the water and again produce oil in abundance, but they are handicapped by a few fish lovers who only think of what happened last year or a decade ago
