Plans For New Lakeview School President Backs Solon Building Okayed In Attacking McCarthy

City school trustees approved preliminary plans for a Lakeview High School building Tuesday eve-

The architects were immediately instructed to proceed with work on the working plans and specifi-cations so that bids may be asked at the earliest possible day.

The new building at Lakeview will be one of several projects financed by a $500,000 bond issue approved by taxpaying voters of the district last Feb. 9. The preliminary plans were approved following a conference with Atcheson and Atkinson, architects from Lubbock. Faculty members of the Lakeview School sat in on the conference and expressed their approval of the plans.

The building will include a natural science laboratory, homemaking laboratory, shop room and gymnasium, in addition to class-rooms. The two laboratory units will be multi-purpose facilities, as will the gymnasium. The architects pointed out that the gymnasium will serve as an auditorium, with a large stage at one end. The stage is large enough in the event a band is organized at the school.

The floor plan is arranged so that additions to the high school can be made easily, and an elementary school wing can be add-ed in the future.

Exterior walls are to be of brick in the Senior Promoted By Ike similar to those used in the Senior High School building, and interior finishing will be similar to that employed in some of the new school units in the city.

Board members also heard a request from the Kate Morrison P-A for improvements to grounds here. Spokesmen for the P-TA said their organization was prepared to finance planting of hedges and a grass plot on the playground, provided the board approved their plans. The board approved the plans for hedge planting and advised the group that the maintenance department nual Howard County FFA and lambs and capons which were Williams, 4-H, 5th; Jimmy Griffith, would take care of trenches for Fair County this morning indeed by Dub Day county agent 4-H, 6th; DeWayne Richter, 4-H, the hedges. A Bible Thought For Today-

"Weeping may endure for the night but joy cometh in the morning." — Ps. 30:5. Millions have imagined that their world would always remain dark. Just a few days or even a few hours often dispel the deepest depression. God's love we have if we throw ourselves upon his mercy.

President Selects Capable Man To Be No. 2 Man In Defense Dept.

as successor of Robert B. Kyes as deputy secretary of Defense certainly will receive approbation down this way.

This is not because Bob Anderson happens to be a Texan, but because those who know him best have the greatest confidence in his ability. He has proved his as secretary of Navy.

The step up was a little out of the normal pattern, for the secretary of Army ordinarily would step up to take the No. 2 post on defense unless an outsider were brought in. However, at the moment Army Secretary Stevens is embroiled with Senator McCarthy in a well publicized tiff. Bob Anderson's silence probably gave him the inside track.

He has managed to keep aloof from interdepartmental rows, which is no surprise to Texans who have known him all his life. Bob Anderson doesn't operate that way. He has had a brilliant career as a lawyer, public official, oilman and rancher. In addition he has been of outstanding service in the field of education and as a layman in religious activity. Although comparatively young (only 44), he has been an unusual administrator of the Navy, working in easy harmony with his subordinates in relation to other services. It is altogether that the President's appointment of Anderson will contribute toward smoothing operations of the vital defense arm of the government.

Although Kyes insisted, and Secretary of Defense Wilson affirmed, that his resignation had no connection at this time with the Stevens-McCarthy incident. Photos of Stevens, at the time of his "capitulation" incement shows Kyes at his elbow. President wasn't happy over the turn of these events and he may use a good man who was in no way involved.

Obligation Of President To Cooperate No One-Way Affair

On Wednesday of last week the President said he was glad "to state that Sen. Knowland has reported to me that effective steps are being taken by the Republican leadership to set up codes of fair procedure." That same day Sen. Knowland and Sen. Ferguson, who speak for the Republican leadership, said that each chairman of a committee, and Sen. McCarthy is one of these chairmen, would be allowed to decide whether he would accept-indeed whether he would even consider-recommendations that the "leadership" might make.

from Sen, McCarthy that he will not mend his ways and he is on notice from the Republican leadership in the Senate that they will not regulate the activities of McCarthy. The President cannot, therefore, continue to "assume," as he said in his statement, that "every governmental employe in the Executive branch, whether civilian or in the armed forces." will be accorded the same respect and courtesy that I require that they show to the members of the legislative bodies."

There is a solution for this problem of the President's deep down in the fundamental conception of the American Constitution. The founding fathers understood perfectly the problem which for the time being we call McCarthyism. The problem arises from the facts of human nature. namely that self-restraint cannot be counted upon to keep the lust of power within bounds. When all the exhortation and the preachings have been applied, there will still be a tendency in almost all men, a strong tendency in some men, a vicious tendency in a few men, to expand their power until they encounter an obstacle which checks them.

The mechanism of the American Constitution is designed to bring into being checks and balances which will keep all parts of the government within reason-

This system of checks and balances is there as the final resort when pleading and persuasion fail, as so often in human affairs they do fail. The show-down last week was conclusive on this point, not primarily because of the brutal insolence of McCarthy's reply to the President but because of the open refusal of the Republican leadership in the Senate to impose any restraints upon McCarthy. That mark-

The Big Spring Herald

ed the failure of pleading and persuasion

It is the President's right and it is his duty to check the invasion of the Executive branch of the government by the McCarthy Committee. When the next overt act occurs he should do what he should have done when Gen. Zwicker had been maltreated. He should say that it against the public interest to subject the employes of the Executive branch of the government to McCarthy's treatment, that this terrorism and intimidation are destructive of the morale of the government, barnch of the government, while it recognizes the value and importance of Congressional investigations, will not deal with this particular committee because it is abusing the power of investigation. Until its powers have been curbed and its procedure reformed, he will not as Chief Executive permit anyone in the Executive branch of the government to deal with this commit-

The application of this check will reverse the field. The President will no longer be pleading, quite in vain, for fair treatment. He will have acted to protect the Executive branch of the government against abuse. It will then be for McCarthy find out whether the Senate can and will enable him to compel the President to withdraw his order. There is no power in the Senate, which could be exercised in support of McCarthy, to coerce the President in a matter of this kind. The "leadership" would not dare to challenge the President on the ground that McCarthy must not be restrained.

The President's obligation to cooperate with Congress and with its committees is not a one-way affair. There is a corresponding obligation on Congress to cooperate with the President. It is pernicious nonsense, and a complete denial of the principle of the Constitution, to assert the supremacy of Congress and to claim for it powers that can be abused and for which there is no

In the American system no man, no institution, no branch of government is a power to itself, and all are kept within the bounds of the Constitution. This is done not only by their own self-restraint though that is so necessary - but by the checks and balances which restrain all powers. In the present case the leader-ship in the persons of members Knowland and Ferguson, being unable to re-strain McCarthy, the restraint must be imposed by a check from the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue.

This is the way the Constitution is meant to work. It contains no precise and com-prehensive definition of the prerogatives of the three branches of the government three branches of the government The founding fathers were too wise to at-tempt the impossible, which is to de-fine in advance how men in the future were to deal with all the conflicts and abuses of power that were likely to arise. Nor have the courts over laid down clear and precise boundary lines.

The ultimate principle is simply that arbitrary power is abhorent to the Conatitution, and under it men are expected, they are given the facilities, and they are required, to resist arbitrary power when-ever it becomes manifest.

Flow is it to be determined whether power is arbitrary and is being abused? It is determined in the American system through the debate which is carried to the people when the exercise of power is the people when the exercise to putter checked, and the issue has been drawn.

Show Calves Have Not Always Been Known For Gentle Spirit

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

Few people will appreciate the gentle spirit and comfortable surroundings of the stock show this week more than I. While I lay no claim to the pioneer's role, I nevertheless was an agricultural reporter (not to mention the city hall, courthouse, post office and half a dozen other types of reporter) in the days when O. P. (Pappy) Griffin began to sow the initial seeds for 4-H Club feeding.

Prior to the shows, it was a custom to sort of tour the county with Mr. Griffin, get a few pictures if possible, and get a low down on the calves to be shown. Pappy never got too enthused over prospects, and looking back, I can see why. He knew good cattle and that these weren't in the proper mould. He knew also that not many of his youngsters were at that stage destined for showmanship awards.

I could never be sure whether he found my company stimulating or tolerable, or whether I came in handy as the official gate opener. But he simply crammed that Chevrolet in low gear and took me across places I felt had been properly reserved for mules and goats. For a time I had an accordion type camera that put the power of prayer to acid test. You simply estimated the distance, hoped you were in focus, trusted that all the calf and boy would be in the picture and that nothing would move until you snapped the pic-

This wasn't easy, for I was no part of a photographer, and least of all in the special field for livestock photographers. Moreover, those calves were about the wildest critters I was ever privileged to

To make sure I had everything properly lined up, I borrowed an old view camera from one of our local photographers (he had more sense than to go with us). Now if I thought that the calves had been wild before, I had yet to see terror and re-bellion in the raw. Those skittish animals eyed the tripod with deepest suspicion. Once I hoisted the black cloth over the camera so I could behold the images in the ground glass, I could hear snorting, bellowing mingled with cracking of boards. Unable to perceive anything in the camera, I would look up, and sure enough the calves were bolting away on the other side of the lot, dragging their young man-

The process was repeated, it seemed to me endlessly, until finally the creatures were earred in a corner. While a couple of helpers stood at either side ready to brain the first one that bolted with a piece of 2x4, the feeder would pose with yank on the nose loop. This inevitably led to the calf's neck being extended and the head twisted to one side. Eyes were bugged and slobber on the lips unless the tongue happened to be protruding in testimony of near strangulation. It was impossible to be utterly quiet while I worked under the black cloth, for inserting the plates caused a elicking sound. In token of this, I occasionally came up with the fleeing rear end of a calf rather than a classic broadside.

Today calf feeding has been developed under County Agent Durward Lewter to a fine science. Calves are better-they are as good as can be had-and boys (and girls) spend a lot of time handling, brushing combing and leading as well as feeding. They do such a superb job that even Pappy and I, were he alive, could probably get a presentable picture. Notwithstanding. I think I shall be content simply to admire the handiwork of the 4-H and FFA exhibitors today and tomorrow. -JOE PICKLE

Politics May Be Tiresome To People, But Few Can Escape

I am often told that people are tired of politics, that they are weary of the constant chatter of politicians, that they would prefer to escape from it all. Of course, it is possible to escape from politics by going to one of those Iron Curtain countries where you can get shot for even thinking politically. Hereabouts, politics remains a continuing sport. Every other year somebody comes up for election for Federal office and there are always state and local offices to be filled and the excitement is always high.

Now up in Maine, which is kind of a solemn state. Robert L. Jones is being pitted against Senator Margaret Chase Smith in the Republican primaries. Whoever wins the Republican primaries in Maine is likely to be elected, because, generally speaking, the Republicans prevail in that state. Occasionally they do not and that becomes nationally exciting because the adage that as Maine goes, so the country goes, is still believed.

The reason anybody runs against the learned lady is that Senator Margaret Chase Smith never could quite decide whether she is Republican or Democrat, because she voted her conscience, which can be variable. It is therefore believed that there is a fair chance to beat the lady in the primaries, although not a certain one.

Robert Jones comes of French-Canadian and Yankee stock. If elected, he would probably be the first Senator of French-Canadian ancestry and in Maine, particularly in the northern end, that is politics. At any rate, the potato farmers and the fishermen would take it seriously. He is a graduate of Bates College and has been active in alumni work. Jones has recently been associated with Senator Charles Potter of Michigan, who is embarassed by his running against a colleague, so Potter let Jones go, which the latter was going to do anyhow. This may prove to be more embarrassing to than Senator Smith's wrath cause Jones is a particular favorite of Senator McCarthy. In Illinois, where Senator Paul Douglas, the learned economist, runs for re-election as a Democrat, the Republicans think so well of their chances that about seven of them are trying in the primaries. Among them are General Julius Klein, the public relations counse), who is a friend of General Douglas MacArthur, and Edward... A. Hayes, who years ago was National Commander of the American Legion. Hayes gained fame by actively oppos ing the recognition of Soviet Russia in 1933 and, as head of the American Legion, going to Franklin D. Roosevelt to lay his opposition on the line. This was a daring thing to do in the atmosphere of the time and gives Hayes a record of anti-Stalinism which many a Johnny-come-lately must

Whether the Republicans will win in Illinois or Paul Douglas will keep his seat is for the voters to decide in far off November, but meanwhile there will be an astonishing amount of politics, vituperation, excitement and anguish, Sensitivity there is not likely to be much of, for that is a new trait in Washington where many grown men dislike being slapped on their bare wrists.

I do not yet know what is to happen in New Hampshire. It has been suggested that the White House keeper of the gate, Sherman Adams, expects to run in the Republican primaries against Senator Styles Bridges. Adams was governor of New Hampshire before he went to work for the President. He was recently made a speech or two to project his personality before the people and he used the term, "fear deal," which I thought was very smart of him, but it did not take. Most Republicans will be very annoyed with Sherman Adams if he tries to oust Styles Bridges, who is a very big man in the Senate. Adams, rightly or wrongly, is disliked among Republicans because he gets all the blame for everything that goes wrong. If no one else is accounted for, Adams is accused. He is in the awful position once held by Raymond Moley, Rexford Guy Tugwell, Tommy Corcoran and Harry Hopkins. It was probably true about Hopkins. As for Adams, he would do better if he ran, say after 1956, when his virtues can catch up with him and somebody else is the whipping boy.

Conant Makes It Clear That America Is Counting On EDC

Bryant Conant, former president of Harvard University, came here a year ago to be American High Commissioner for West Germany, he is reported to have made a talk to the top members of the diplomatic staff. He told them that President Eisenhower has staked his whole career on bringing the European Defense Community into being and, since this was so. Conant considered that his sole objective was to help get EDC ratified. Ratification of EDC is his story, Conant says today, and he is still sticking to it. When he arrived, it was considered only a matter of months before the paritaments of the six Western European countries would act and bring the defense community into existence, which would have changed Conant's status from High Comchanged Conant's status from High Com-missioner to Ambassador. But whether fi-nal action will be taken in France and Italy remains uncertain, with the likeli-hood of a further delay until after the Geneva conference to consider Korea and the Indochinese War.

The possibility of failure after all these months of waiting has brought Conant and BONN, West Germany -- When James and the ominous consequences if it cannot be played.

Conant talks about the deeply disrupting effect such a failure would have on Germany, but he adds that no other plans have been considered as a substitute for EDC. This is a point on which newspaper-men invariably press him and in his twangy New England voice he always comes back to saying that it is EDC, and EDC alone.

Reports from American diplomats in Paris has been consistently optimistic. This has been true particularly of the reports of David Bruce, special ambassador to the six countries by the European coal and steel pool, which would also be part of EDC. Bruce is now predicting that the French Assembly will take up EDC before April 25, the date of the Geneva conference, and at least there will be a decision, whether for or against the pact that is the beauty and code all of American that is the be-all and end-all of American
