The Electric Car People Like Us --- Littlefield Likes 'ElectriCar'

BILL TURNER
News Editor & Publisher

The city of Littlefield got up on the right side of the bed Wednesday morning...with a Leader-News "Extra."

Headlines blared: "Electric Car Firm Makes Littlefield Headquarters." Reading the details of Littlefield's accomplishment, citizens came to and talked...and talked...and talked.

and they smiled.

It was a smile of progress here, born of prospects anticipated if a group of Amarillo men can successfully develop their "ElectriCar".

The "ElectriCar" may be the world's first practical, marketable electric automobile. Its designers and builders believe it is.

Littlefield residents who have seen the car in action think it has possibilities as an industry all its own, not to mention dozens of applications which might be made.

Another tremendous potential, according to members of Littlefield Industrial Corporation, is the ElectriCar's value as an attraction for allied industries, such as manufacturing or warehousing of batteries, tires, dynamometers, wheels, motors, etc.

Eight Littlefield men, plus a representative each from the Leader-News Radio KZZN, traveled to Amarillo Tuesday night to hear the decision of the Electrically Motivated Vehicle (EMV) Corporation.

After a meeting of EMV's board of directors, headed by President D. L. (Don) Whatley, stockholders of the Amarillo corporation met to decide the site for future production of the ElectriCar.

At 9:30 p.m. the announcement came:

"It's unanimous. All shareholders agree the car will be built in Littlefield."

It was great news for the 10 Littlefield people on hand.

They included: J. E. Chisholm, mayor; Paul McCormick, city chairman; Arthur Duggan, attorney; Jack Wicker, bank president; Troy and Mancel Hall, auto dealers; Gene Pratt, C-C industrial operating chairman; and Doyle Patton, C-C vice-president for business development.

Local newsmen on the scene were J. B. McShan of KZZN and this reporter.

The "ElectriCar", in a nutshell, is a 2,000-pound prototype of the production model, complete with 5-horsepower electric motor; 8 six-volt industrial batteries; a patented, transistorized control unit; four-speed transmission; and a shining, tangerine metal flake fiberglass body.

The car is being designed to ultimately go 120 miles between recharges, at a top speed of 50 m.p.h. and a cruising speed of 35 m.p.h. Tests already indicate the car will go 60 miles between recharges, and improvements are continuing.

The single seat of the "ElectriCar" comfortably seats three adults in its 64-inch spread.

"It is intended solely as a second car," says Whatley, who adds "it will never take the place of a luxury car because it is not intended to."

Although no timetable is set for full production of the car in Littlefield, EMV is hopeful a plant producing 300 cars per day and employing 500 to 600 people can be established here as early as 1971.

The next six months will be filled with work toward producing a second prototype in Amarillo. After that, probably about the first of the year, production of up to 25 test models will begin at some temporary location in Littlefield.

These models will be placed throughout the country to absorb widely varying conditions and handling. When this test program is concluded, EMV is hopeful work can begin immediately on a large plant to house full-scale production.

The factory will be located south of Littlefield on land now owned by the Finley Estate. Littlefield Industrial Corporation has an option through Dec. 1, 1969, renewable for 12 additional months, on 175 acres of land at $350 per acre.

The plot is directly south and west of the Lamb County Electric Co-Operative.

Other details on the ElectriCar project are in the Leader-News "Extra" distributed Wednesday morning in Littlefield and going out to other subscribers with today's edition.

$100,000 REMODELING COMPLETED

Church Dedication Set

A $100,000 remodeling project at First Baptist Church will be dedicated Sunday.

Helping the church's members celebrate the event, which will also be a celebration of the 55th anniversary of the church, will be three former pastors of the church, numerous friends and former members.

Rev. Roy Shahan, retired, now living in San Angelo, was pastor of the church from 1938 to 1942, and will speak for the Sunday morning worship service.

Dr. Lee Hemphill, who served the church from 1943 to 1959 and is presently serving as vice president of Hardin-Simmons University at Abilene, will speak at the 3 p.m. formal dedication ceremony.

Rev. Robert D. Longshore of Mesquite, now serving as Associate Secretary of the Endowment and Capital Giving Department of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, served the church as pastor from 1959 to 1966, and will speak at the 3 p.m. dedication service.

At 11:45 a.m. Sunday, an "Old Fashioned Dinner On The Ground" will be served in Fellowship Hall, located below the auditorium. Every family is to bring a basket lunch.

Other special observances for the day include 6:00 in Sunday School, which begins at 9:30 a.m.; and the final event of the day, an open house and reception beginning at 4:15 p.m.

"We hope all will take time to see our beautifully-remodeled facilities," said Rev. R. B. Hall, pastor.

"All former members of First Baptist Church and friends in the area have a special invitation to return for this Dedication Day and Fifty-fifth Anniversary observance," Rev. Hall concluded.

Greenbug Infestation Is Now Building Up

Greenbugs, the small insects which damaged grain sorghum in 1968, are now building up in large numbers according to Elbert Harp, executive director of Grain Sorghum Producers Association.

Lamar Aten, ASCS, and Buddy Logsdon, County Agent, were both out of town and unavailable for a comment on the immediate area at prestime Wednesday.

Harp has reported that farmers throughout the High Plains area are reporting some damage and a few are spraying.

"We are not recommending that all fields be sprayed at this time, but we do think farmers should be checking their fields to see if they do have a dangerous number and continue checking them regularly," Harp said.

The greenbug seriously damaged thousands of acres in 1968—cutting the yields to 50 percent sometimes. This was the first severe damage to grain sorghum, even though they have hurt wheat and barley for many years.

A number of insecticides are available for treatment where the aphid damage is evident. These include carbofenthoion, demeton, diazinon, malathion, mevinphos and parathion.

THEY KEEP BUSY WITH TIN CANS

Livingoods Living Well

By NILAH RODGERS
Leader-News Staff Writer

He cuts the can and she makes the cushion, and they've made a tiny tin can chair in about an hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Livingood, 301 E. 15th, laughingly refer to themselves as "tired" not "retired".

The couple keeps busy making numerous items out of tin cans. To date, Livingood has made about 400 chairs. Mrs. Livingood makes wall plaques out of the ends of tin cans.

"All you need," Livingood said, displaying his working tools, "is a pair of needle-nose pliers, some kitchen shears, big cotter pins, and a little time."

COLD DRINK CANS are used to make the delicately scrolled chairs. "As far as I know," Livingood said, "I've never made two chairs with backs just exactly alike."

Grape drink cans make purple chairs, orange drink cans make orange chairs, lime drink cans make pretty green ones, and cola cans are red. Mrs. Livingood selects scraps of material that blend or contrast well with the color of cans for the cushions.

Kids that drink canned soft drinks often bring the Livingoods their empties, and people who sew and know of Mrs.

Livingood's need for bright scraps often supply her with material for the cushions.

"AND WHEN WE run out of cans," Mrs. Livingood said, "we can always go out to the junk yard and pick up a few."

The Livingoods also collect rocks, bottles and shells. Mrs. Livingood makes wall plaques out of shells. Different types of shells are glued to cardboard-backed fabric and framed.

Most of the shells are gathered off the beaches around Port Aransas where the Livingoods spend their winters.

All of Mrs. Livingood's shell plaques have a sand dollar on them because of the legend behind this shell. "The sand dollar symbolizes the life of Christ," she said.

IN THE CENTER of the shell is a five-pointed star, the Star of Bethlehem, or the star that guided the wise men to the manger.

The five narrow openings are said to represent the crucifixion—four wounds in the hands and feet, the fifth in His side.

When the sand dollar shell is opened, there are five little doves (doves of peace) found.

On the reverse side is an outline of the Christmas poinsettia.

It is said that the grey side of the sand dollar represents life and the white side is for the resurrection.

BOTH ENDS OUT of different sized cans are saved for the three dimensional rose plaques Mrs. Livingood makes. "I wait until I have collected about 60 lids before starting," Mrs. Livingood said.

She cuts these lids into petals and then bends them into shape. The completed tin-can flowers are sprayed gold, backed with black velvet and framed for a real conversation piece.

MR. AND MRS. Livingood farmed near Abernathy for many years, then Livingood did mechanic work on motor scooters and electric golf carts in Lubbock for eight years.

They have lived in Littlefield a year.

For several years they traveled in their house trailer. "We just decided we wanted to live in a house for a while," Mrs. Livingood said. Her brother, Royce Teaff lives at Bula, and a sister, Mrs. C. W. (Zadie) Parkman lives in Littlefield.

But the Livingoods keep their traveling trailer in shape. "As soon as the summer gets a little cooler we'll go back down to Haskell for a while," Livingood said.

He likes the fishing there and she likes to look for rocks, bottles and shells.

LL Ball Park Work Needed

In preparation for the July 17-18-19 Little League area tournament here, local president Bob Bromlow has called for a work party at the park Sunday.

Bromlow asked that all volunteers who can help be prepared to work painting, mowing, repairing, back stop fencing and so forth, when they come. Items needed include rakes, shovels, hoes, pliers and other tools.

Considerable work has already been done on the park by Sonny Bell, but Bromlow points out that there are several hours more yet to be spent before preparations are complete.

Bawcom Heads Littlefield Lions

D. W. "Deb" Bawcom was installed as new president of the Littlefield Lions Club Tuesday night, succeeding out-going president Jim Jones.

The new Lion Boss and his board were installed by District 2-T2 Governor Don Taylor of Plainview.

Officers for the 1969-70 term with Bawcom are: Clem Sorley, first vice president; J. B. McShan, second vice president; James Walker, third vice president; Jim Upton, Tail Twister; Tommy Brawley, Lion Tamer; and directors Bob Bromlow, T. A. Hilburn, R. B. Hall and Roger Lowe. Holdover officers are Roland Bell, secretary, and Calvin Jones, treasurer.

Among a number of awards presented were 21 perfect attendance awards and the coveted President's Appreciation Award, which went to Doyle Patton, Kip Cutshall, Bromlow, Walker, Jones and Bell.

Approximately 70 Lions and their wives attended the event, held in the Community Building.

County Jails Four

Four persons, three of them indicted by the grand jury, have been jailed this week.

Thomas Ysasa, recently indicted by the grand jury on three separate counts of burglary was jailed June 20.

Duffey Gonzales was jailed the same day on a burglary charge.

Matilde Rangel is in jail following grand jury indictment for forgery and passing.

Benny Bethel was jailed Sunday after being indicted by the grand jury for driving while intoxicated, second offense.

EARL LIVINGOODS make doll-sized furniture and wall-plaques out of soft drink cans and tin can lids. Livingood has made about 400 chairs since he first saw a woman making one in Port Aransas last February.

Youngsters Report On Washington Trip

EDITOR'S NOTE: The article below was written by DeAnn Brock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Brock, and Jimmy Littleton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Littleton, all of Earth. They, with several other youth throughout the nation, were Government-in-Action Youth Tour Contest Winners and were sponsored on a 12-day tour by Bailey County Electric Coop in Muleshoe.

Friday, June 6, 74 youth from over the entire state of Texas gathered in Waxahachie with seven sponsors and a registered nurse to begin the greatest 11 days of our lifetime.

Following an evening of fellowship we turned in early to prepare for leaving the following morning for Washington, D. C. Three days later after stopovers in Memphis and Knoxville, Tenn., we arrived in Washington, D. C. Immediately after supper, we left to tour three national monuments, the Washington monument, Lincoln monument, and the Jefferson monument. All three of these monuments left us deeply impressed. There are 898 steps to the top of the Washington monument and we climbed them all! (Needless to say, we rode the elevator down!) The following morning we laid a wreath of yellow roses on the grave of the late President John F. Kennedy during a typical Washington down pour.

We then proceeded to the National Archives Building where we viewed the Constitution, Declaration of Independence, and the Bill of Rights.

Afterwards we went to the National Wax Museum where we saw vignettes of our Nation's history—the signing of the Constitution, the Battle of the Alamo, the landing of Columbus, and many other scenes of history presented in wax.

From there we went to beautiful Mt. Vernon, the home of the great George Washington.

That evening we attended the Marine Corps Ceremony at the Iwo Jima Monument which was presented by the Marine Drum and Bugle Corps and silent drill team. This was one of the most impressive sights of the entire tour.

Wednesday morning we attended the Rural Youth Day program sponsored by National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA). One of the highlights of this program was a quiz show composed of youth from the various states represented at the meeting. It was hosted by Washington T.V. personality, Mac McGarry.

That afternoon over 1000 youths representing electric cooperatives over the country met at and toured the White House. Even though President Nixon was unable to make an appearance, it was quite an experience.

After departing we went to the Capitol where publicity pictures were taken. We went to the Sam Rayburn Office Building where the Texas Delegation hosted a congressional reception. After meeting Representative Robert Price we were taken to his office where pictures were taken.

After returning to the motel we attended a dinner and shindig along with the other youths from across the country.

The following morning after seeing the changing of the guards at the tomb of the unknown soldier, Representative Jake Pickle took us on an extensive tour of the Capitol. That afternoon we again guests of Representative Bob Price. He then gave time to ask questions who attempted to answer.

After a lively question answer session, we attended a party given by Senator Ralph Yarborough. Senator Yarborough addressed us on the merits of a co-education and the usefulness of Junior Colleges in program.

That evening we took leisurely cruise down Potomac River to the Mt. Vernon and back.

Friday morning found the office building of NRECA where we were treated to a Coke party and film of operations of the NRECA.

We went from there to a fascinating Smithsonian Institute Complex where we spent the remainder of the day.

We arose early Saturday morning to begin the long back to Texas.

Sunday morning he devotional services on Look Mountain in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Monday night at Texas we enjoyed a last night party.

Tuesday evening we are back in Earth very tired glad to be home, but sad by having to leave the friends we had made.

For all the glory of the of Washington, the Capitol White House, and monuments one states made by a national park at the Jefferson Memorial remains in our hearts.

He said that the monuments were not to the men, particularly to the men had done, but to give honor to all Americans to live in their responsibilities.

It was truly a experience. The education the national pride which gained were indescribable. For all this, the greatest part of our trip was the friendships made.

In eleven days of together we molded ourselves into the name we chose ourselves—"The Pride of Texas".

We were privileged to go this trip and our sincere thanks goes to the Bailey County Electric Cooperative who made this trip possible.

Summer Care Of Roses

Proper care for roses at this time of the year will insure attractive plants and abundant flowers this fall, says Lady Clare Phillips, County Home Demonstration Agent.

A small amount of work now will pay big dividends this fall when weather conditions are more favorable for roses.

As the flowers fade and petals fall, remove the old flowers. If this is not done, food and energy will go into useless seed production rather than plant growth and continued flower production. When removing spent flowers make the cut just above the second five-leaflet leaf above the main cane or branch. This same rule holds true when cutting flowers for use in arrangements. Cuts made higher on the cane will usually result in blind shoots or deformed flowers.

Roses are heavy users of nutrients and require regular applications of fertilizer for optimum growth. Use a complete fertilizer every four to six weeks and follow the rates recommended by the manufacturer. Do not fertilize after mid July or early August in order to allow plants to mature and be less susceptible to winter injury.

During hot dry weather, water rose beds thoroughly every week, soaking the soil to a depth of eight to ten inches.

Continue the preventive spray program for blackspot and mildew every 10 days or two weeks. Dusting with fungicide is fairly effective; however, much better control can be obtained by spraying. Maneb or Phaltan are excellent materials for preventing blackspot; whereas, Phaltan or Karathane are best for mildew control.

The afternoon was spent in group singing with Mrs. Harlan Witten at the piano.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Smoot of Olton and their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Carson and Kodi, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Witten, and Melanie, all of Olton, and Mrs. S. C. Witten of Olton. Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Brown and Claude Witten, all of Plainview; and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Witten, Glenn Witten, Bill Witten and Jack Witten of Olton.

OLTON—Susan Nicholas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nicholas, has recently received her senior life saving certificate.

Miss Nicholas, a senior Girl Scout, attended Girl Scout camp at Rio Blanco and completed the requirements for earning the Red Cross life saving certificate.

MINNIE LEE WILLARD

Millie Willard Receives Honor

Minnie Lee Willard, daughter of Mrs. Jim Nella Willard of Littlefield, who is receiving her LVN training at South Plains College has been placed on the Dean's Honor List.

She is a 1968 graduate of Littlefield High School. Miss Willard plans to attend Methodist Hospital School of Nursing following her graduation from South Plains College in May 1970.

Girls Attend Grand Assembly

Grand Assembly of Rainbow for girls was held in Fort Worth last week.

Carron Henchcliffe, Susie Adrian, Camilla Haberer, Sharla Haberer, Becky Littleton and Annita and Donita Kelley attended.

Adults attending were Mrs. Phillip Haberer, Mrs. James A. Littleton Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kelley.

Annita and Donita Kelley were honored as members of the Grand Music Committee. Susie Adrian sang in the Grand Choir.

Voting delegates were Susie Adrian, worthy advisor, Sharla and Camilla Haberer as past worthy advisors. Becky Littleton and Carron Hinchliffe served as Grand Guards for the session.

What The Leader-News Thinks

The Best Is Yet To Come

AFTER MONTHS of discussion, all of us in Littlefield finally realized a step toward building a better community Tuesday night. The announcement by the ElectricCar people that Littlefield will be the firm's home base brought immediate exclams of "Welcome" throughout the city and area.

It also brought some relief to many of the people who have been working diligently on the project.

There is no doubt that enthusiasm in the city was built over a period of several months. There also is little doubt this enthusiasm brought on some tension as Littlefield's "D-Day" came close.

People close to the project knew it meant a lot to this community, not only now but also in the future. "D-Day", our day of decision, turned out just like we in Littlefield hoped it would, possibly even better.

The vote by the ElectricCar people to establish headquarters here was unanimous.

Who could ask for a better endorsement of this community? But the ElectricCar people said it best: "Littlefield showed us a genuine, sincere interest."

THERE ARE MANY people who should be thanked for bringing Littlefield this far on the project. Space doesn't permit that, so we'll offer our best to all of them, and especially to Paul McCormick.

Paul is the man who first made the contact for Littlefield, and he is the man who doggedly pursued this new industry for us during the past two years.

He has been joined in recent months by many others who worked hard for this community. But it is doubtful their efforts would have been fruitful had not McCormick laid the groundwork for them to follow.

LET NO ONE doubt the sincerity of this new industry. It is for real.

We may not get a factory for several years, but the step taken Tuesday night was required if ever we are to be successful in attracting industry.

It could mean, in the next few years, that Littlefield will begin an era of progress never before approached in this area.

It may very well result in a factory employing 500 to 600 persons, or possibly more, with a payroll that certainly would help to stabilize our economy.

But a tremendous amount of work remains...not only for the ElectricCar people, but also for us.

THE NEXT FEW MONTHS are critical. The $100,000 promised in the contract by Littlefield Industrial Corporation for initial capital must be raised.

The ElectricCar people must build their Prototype II some time in the next four to five months.

That leads up to 1970, the year of the production test models, all to be built in Littlefield.

And from there, who knows? Success is still out ahead of us, but it will become more attainable as we continue on the path that has brought us this far.

IF YOU MENTION that welfare recipients have now "formed their own union," people generally laugh.

It's not funny.

The National Welfare Rights Organization (NWRO) is, in effect, a union of freeloaders. Welfare recipients use part of their welfare checks to pay as dues to the organization which hires lobbyists in Washington, D. C., to lobby for more something-for-nothing.

NWRO INCOME from 30,000 members in 100 cities is adequate to finance the activities of its director, Dr. George Wiley. But he has been further subsidized BY YOU!

The NWRO is presently receiving a grant of $434,930 of your tax dollars from the Department of Labor.

FURTHER, Welfare Secretary Robert Finch is contemplating giving this organization another $300,000 of your money.

The man behind and in front of this NWRO is no dunce. Wiley poses for the news cameras in an African dashiki, but he goes to the mat with government and business leaders with the cool, studied persistence of a man who has tasted power and prominence and wants more.

RECENTLY HE DEMANDED that Sears and Montgomery Ward issue credit cards to all welfare recipients. The NWRO further demands a guaranteed annual income of $5,500 for those on welfare plus free life insurance, clothing, household furnishings and extra money for "recreation!"

The zany demands would indeed be laughable except that Welfare Secretary Finch, intimidated by threats and welfare votes, is considering using more of your money to pay this indefensible political blackmail.

"I'LL LOAN YOU my make-up man. You can also have my speech coach. He can firm up that quivering voice of yours and teach you not to blow every line like you usually do."

"Thanks just loads, Lyndon. Say, wouldn't it be sort of cozy to have the telecast from the garden of the Governor's Mansion?"

"No! No! You need to be surrounded by symbols of power right now, Preston. Have it in your office, with all the official seals and flags and awards and plaques you can dig up."

"WITH MY WIFE by my side?"

"Not this time. She's a handsome woman and all that, but you must act very stern during the whole telecast and if she's there, you'd be forced to smile. Not once during the whole thirty minutes must you show any sign of weakness whatsoever."

"THIRTY MINUTES! I can say it all in ten."

"Preston, there you go again. Always take more time than you need. But don't announce in advance how long you WILL take. Not even to the networks. NEVER TELL ANYONE ANY OF YOUR PLANS!"

"By gum, I feel more forceful already. Lyndon, I just don't know how I'll ever be able to repay you."

"Oh, you'll find out in due time, dear boy. In due time."

THE FARMER'S WIFE Never Tell!

By LIBBY MUDGETT

IF YOU ARE LIKE most people, you have been wondering what came over Governor Smith.

On his statewide telecast, he seemed to be a different person entirely from the picture the majority of his constituents had of him.

WONDER NO MORE. I've got the inside story.

"Lyndon, why have you sent for me? I do like to visit your ranch and all, it goes with my white Stetson, but I'm a busy man now."

"Preston, I've really never particularly liked you, but I'm going to help you. Even though you'll never be as good a pupil as John Connally, you can improve. As you are right now, you're a disgrace to the state of Texas."

"Gee, that's kind of you, Lyndon. I know I'll never have that handsome profile of John's, but I am tired of being called a weak sister with no backbone and no guts."

"WELL, YOU'VE ALREADY taken the first step. You've got the DESIRE and that's very important. Now then, you must learn to be secretive. The press is busting to know whether or not you're going to veto that two year budget and accompanying bills. TELL NO ONE!"

"I CAN'T tell anyone. I don't know myself."

"Of course you are! You have to! You can't let committees cross you like that and get by with it. Never!"

"I SORT OF HATE to raise a ruckus right off the bat."

"Preston, that's part of your trouble. Quit being afraid of a ruckus. Can't you see that the House and Senate both are waiting to see if you're going to take up that challenge?"

40 MILLION CARS

There are 40-million U. S. cars that are driven less than 12 miles per day. Ordinary driving with the ElectricCar, if driven 12 miles per day, could be driven 10 days without a re-charge.

SECRET TO PROJECT

Men of the EMV Corp. in Amarillo spent $6,000 developing the controls for the ElectricCar. Dr. Alfred A. Kraus solid stated the controls and is working on bringing them down from the size of a cigar box to the size of a cigarette lighter.

TORQUE CONVERTER

It took six times as much power to drive the ElectricCar up a hill before a transmission was put in the car. In the experimental stages, three drive lines were torn up before the torque converter was installed.

PAUL HARVEY It's Not Funny

IF YOU MENTION that welfare recipients have now "formed their own union," people generally laugh.

It's not funny.

The National Welfare Rights Organization (NWRO) is, in effect, a union of freeloaders. Welfare recipients use part of their welfare checks to pay as dues to the organization which hires lobbyists in Washington, D. C., to lobby for more something-for-nothing.

NWRO INCOME from 30,000 members in 100 cities is adequate to finance the activities of its director, Dr. George Wiley. But he has been further subsidized BY YOU!

The NWRO is presently receiving a grant of $434,930 of your tax dollars from the Department of Labor.

FURTHER, Welfare Secretary Robert Finch is contemplating giving this organization another $300,000 of your money.

The man behind and in front of this NWRO is no dunce. Wiley poses for the news cameras in an African dashiki, but he goes to the mat with government and business leaders with the cool, studied persistence of a man who has tasted power and prominence and wants more.

RECENTLY HE DEMANDED that Sears and Montgomery Ward issue credit cards to all welfare recipients. The NWRO further demands a guaranteed annual income of $5,500 for those on welfare plus free life insurance, clothing, household furnishings and extra money for "recreation!"

The zany demands would indeed be laughable except that Welfare Secretary Finch, intimidated by threats and welfare votes, is considering using more of your money to pay this indefensible political blackmail.

APRIL OF THIS YEAR, NWRO leaders staged a massive welfare rally in New York's Central Park when Wiley led an unscheduled and illegal march into downtown which resulted in violence.

As his marchers pounded on cars, Wiley shouted: "When poor people want money they are going to get it by people-power or there will be hell to pay!"

May 25, Wiley's followers stormed into the Grand Ballroom of the New York Hilton and demanded that the National Conference on Social Welfare pay them $35,000 then and there!

WILEY SEIZED the platform, blocked the exits and demanded, "Get it (the money) up! That's why we are here!"

How can they get away with it? Members of Congress who could at least cut off government support for these violent antigovernment activities have painted themselves into a corner, can't move.

BY BUYING VOTES with your money, Congress created a militant welfare army which now threatens any congressman who dares oppose them. About 7.8 million welfare recipients plus their families add up to an insurmountable hurdle for any elected official.

You know, in our nation's beginning, only taxPAYERS were allowed to vote. Now we can see why.

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Talk It Over

By BOB WEAR

WITHIN THE FRAMEWORK of our social order, there are well-established procedures to do all that needs to be done to change, when change is justified, and to meet whatever new challenge that develops.

Talking it over will be the solution most of the time.

Of course, there will be instances when judicial application of established lawful force will be necessary.

WE WILL NEVER make any satisfactory progress by trying to bully each other, force each other, frighten each other or, by any other low-level methods of trying to settle differences or solve problems.

In fact, such methods actually create difficulties and complicate situations.

HUMAN WELL-BEING, individual and collective, is not served very well by the pushing, shoving forceful manipulation, and violent, lawless impositions of people upon other people.

There is a better way, and a much more effective way.

Talk it over.

Open and free discussion among persons, who are free to make their decisions, without some kind of force being applied, will always serve humanity best.

TRUTH IS STILL TRUTH, and must be fully considered by all persons who have a sensible concern for what is really best for all. Even though many continue, one way or another, to pretend that there is no truth in human behavior; all evidence is against these people.

Then, there are others who obviously think that truth can be ignored, mishandled and pushed around with impunity. They are wrong.

TRUTH WILL BE SERVED BEST by the sensible approach to our problems. This means that we must always find a time and place to talk things over.

We must seek and accept all of the factual information that is available in each instance.

"Free and fair discussion ever be found the firmest friend of truth." —G. Campbell.

TALKING IT OVER is a process that will work in most of our difficulties.

For the sake of all concerned everything we hold dear, we put forth the greatest possible effort to exalt truth, good and that which is reasonable.

To whatever extent double-talk, insincerity and are practiced, our chances for better understanding and desirable relationships are reduced to nothing.

"COME NOW, and let us reassemble together" was God's plea and invitation to another people another time.

This is still the only hope for all of the present-day disorders, confusion, lawlessness and other disruptive actions produced by them.

They cause more problems added to the existing, unsolved problems.

SURELY WE HUMAN BEINGS can do better than we are doing.

Communication can be improved; understanding can be increased; potentially, explosive feelings can be released harmlessly; if we will talk it over.

"Men are never so likely to solve a question rightly, as when they discuss it freely." —Macaulay.

Howdy Neighbor

Years ago, a skirt that was "halfway to the knees" meant from the ankles.

In women's hosiery, what's sheer today is gone tomorrow.

A good time to retire is before it's too late to have a good time.

Blessed are the meek because what would bossy people do without us.

Don't make a mistake and count your checks before they're cashed.

Money travels so fast these days, the germs on it get seasick.

What some people don't know about driving a car would fill a hospital.

Junk is something you keep many years and then throw it away two days before you need it.

Think this one over—When your outgo is more than your income, then your upkeeps then your downfall.

If you want to forget all of your other troubles, try wearing a pair of shoes that are a size too small.

Olton Enterprise Tops In State

The Olton Enterprise, an all female weekly publication, took first place honors in general excellence Saturday in Dallas at the Texas Press Association Convention.

The Olton newspaper competed in the class of newspapers in communities under 2,000 population and won the general excellence award on the basis of total points earned in seven categories.

They also took second places in news photography, column writing and appearance, and copped a third place in editorial writing.

Bill Turner of Littlefield is owner of the offset publication which is managed and edited by Mrs. Sue Cannon of Olton.

Other staff members who helped cop the honors are Margaret Burrus and Maenette Houston, compositors; Juanita Thomas, operator; Lily May Silcott, society editor; and Mozelle Trotter, news editor.

The Enterprise won third place in general excellence in the 1968 National Newspaper Contest for newspapers with a circulation under 2,000, and a year ago the paper received first place plaques in advertising composition and general excellence for cities under 3,000 in the Better Newspaper Contests of the West Texas Press Association.

The Leader-News was not eligible to enter competition this year. According to TPA contest rules, a newspaper cannot compete in the contest the year after winning the General Excellence award.

Another Lamb County paper, the Earth News-Sun, took a third place in news pictures at the Saturday presentation in Dallas.

Keep Police Busy 5 Drunks, 3 Thefts

City police have arrested five drunkenness since Friday.

One was jailed Friday, two Saturday and two Sunday.

Three accounts of theft have been reported to city police this week.

Wednesday, H. C. Randall reported theft sometime during the night of a cleaner assembly from a new Chevrolet parked on the lot west of Art Chevrolet.

Friday, Mrs. Billie Feagley reported theft of several items from a store house. Missing were air conditioning pumps and padding, electric motors and refrigerator pumps.

Saturday, Whitley Enco Station reported theft of about $75 from a 7-U machine. The machine had been pried open with a screwdriver and the money box and money were missing.

Irvin Street Baptist Schedules Banquet

Irvin Street First Baptist Church will conduct its third annual building fund banquet Friday night at 8 p.m. in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Company.

Special speaker for the occasion will be Rev. Adolphus Cleveland, pastor of New Jerusalem Baptist Church at Lubbock.

To begin the program, the congregation will stand and sing "America", followed by the invocation by James Holmes.

"What A Fellowship" will be sung prior to the serving of the dinner.

Mrs. Robelen Johnson will introduce the master of ceremonies, Tony Johnson, who is a deacon of the church, and Miss Minnie Willard will present a special solo.

Rev. Cleveland will be introduced by the pastor, Dr. W. A. Terry.

The program will be closed with a solo by Miss Beverly Thompson, remarks from the master of ceremonies and the benediction by the pastor.

Written Test Offered Weekly Five Days

Persons wishing to take the written test to obtain a Texas Drivers License will now be able to do so five days a week at the Littlefield Community Center.

The actual driving test will be given on Wednesday only by the patrolman on duty.

An exception to this schedule will be the two-week period June 30-July 11, when the department will be open on Wednesdays only.

The patrolman will be giving both the written and the behind the wheel driving test July 2 and 9.

The department will re-open on a regular schedule basis July 14.

ABOUT YOUR VISION Seeing, Deceiving

"The moon looms large on the horizon but shrinks to smallness when it is overhead. Yet, it is exactly the same size on a picture taken in each position.

The difference is that the camera is not hooked to a brain, with its record of past experience and its storehouse of knowledge. The brain attempts to make things look "reasonable," and sometimes it is fooled in the attempt.

Seldom is a visual image a perfect copy of the real thing. It may differ in size, shape, color, and may not even appear where the object really is. If there is wide difference between the tangible object in space and the mental impression it creates, it is an "optical illusion."

Take two squares of paper exactly the same size. Set one on its edge and the other on one of its corners. In this position they do not appear equal—the one standing on end looks considerably larger. But, this is really not an illusion at all! The observation is correct" as far as the concerned. Everyone sees the same way. The deceived by the position squares—but it sees the way it can, by a right rules.

The most common seeing are in size and shape. There are many optical illusions which are angels, lines, and shapes such a way as to make look different than they are. One object may appear to move when actually another one changes positions.

Illusions are more "parlor tricks." Movie entirely upon the false produced by a rapid still pictures. The which create illusion useful in architectural design, to hide size or the enhance pose and balance.

The lines of a dress, paper on the wall, can deceive a little about what seen.

But, in spite of the eye can be fooled, it remarkable apparatus distinguish 500,000 different light and color sensations brings man a great share knowledge of the world him. It is one of his valuable possessions."

Olton Declares Mosquito War

OLTON—War has been declared on the mosquitos in the City of Olton and the first attack against them by air was made Monday, June 23 at 6 a.m. City councilmen agreed unanimously to approve the aerial spraying of the town for mosquito control. "Mosquito Control of the Southwest" of Plainview was hired for the project. The area sprayed included the whole town section, plus 300 feet on all sides; 80 acres, including the Turner addition, city dump and city lake; also a 500 foot spread along Highway 70 in the Hillcrest and Smith-Fite addition.

YOUNG SWIMMERS—Swimming classes are capped this week at Crescent Pool, with student ages range from three to 10. Two of the six instructors, Chambers and Pam Christian, are shown working with their students.

Anton FHA Ends Meetings

ANTON—The Anton FHA concluded a series of meetings, June 17, on the program of work for the coming year. This year the officers had a new National Program of work to plan their work. They are: Objective 1: to strengthen bonds with the family and between the family and community by widening the scope of youth activities. The projects are: stable home, stable life, homemaking—our future, make time work for you and decisions that count. Objective 2: To help youth comprehend the problems of society and contribute to their solutions. Projects are: our priceless heritage, to care and preparedness—to opportunity. Officers working on objectives and projects: Sherry Herrin, Vicki Jeanie Fisher, Gene Herrin, Patrice Byrum, Peters, Annette Davis, Stone, Sharon Caswell, Mrs. Bill Johnson, advisor. Sherry Herrin, Zita Jeanie Fisher, Gloria Patti Stone and Patrice Byrum are working on State Declaration of Intentions due July 1. This is the highest degree achievement is FHA and the hardest to achieve.

Texas Institute Presents Artifacts

has a purpose in life. He retired 12 years ago but still works every day. He is on a long trip for the study of Texan Cultures of the past.

making the first geologic survey ever made by the Institute in the South Plains area of new and unusual artifacts for display.

the course of his current survey will visit such as Lubbock, Hereford, Matador, Claude, Childress, Dickens, Floydada, Littlefield, Farwell, Dimmitt, Silverton, Canyon, Vega, Stinnett, Dumas, Stratford, Perryton, Lipscomb, Canadian, Miami, Pampa, Wheeler, Wellington, Clarendon and Memphis. From the Tsa Mo Ga Memorial Museum in Plains, Ramsey has obtained an unbreakable Anglo-American brass-headed doll, an early Danish telephone and an Anglo-American, combined apple peeler, corer and slicer.

In Andrews, he located a rare, French bustle bench about the size of a love seat. Dating from the 1850's, it provides room for one bustle-clad woman to sit.

Near Midland, he discovered an unusual double metate used by Mexican Texans to grind corn for making tortillas.

Lamesa provided him with an Anglo-American, combination silver sugar bowl and spoon holder, circa 1890.

For the Indian section of the Institute, Ramsey got a pair of buffalo horns from the last buffalo killed in Borden County in the early 1890's.

This item is from the Borden County Museum in Gail.

From the ranch of Gene Haley near Kermit, he found an oil painting of Sitting Bull by the Indian artist, L. Ship Shee. The West of the Pecos Museum in Pecos provided Ramsey with a man's coat made of buffalo skin for loan to the Institute of Texan Cultures.

A wedding dress dating from 1862 comes from the Odessa College Museum.

Ramsey has visited in Pecos, Monahans, Mentone, Kermit, Odessa, Midland, Stanton, Andrews, Seminole, Lamesa, Gail, Post, Brownfield and Levelland.

Freeze Melons In Peak Season

Freeze watermelon, cantaloupe and honeydew cubes or balls for year round desserts, salads or appetizers.

It is easy and quick, just be sure the melons to freeze are firm-fleshed, well-colored and ripe, says Lady Clare Phillips, County Home Demonstration Agent.

AMHERST

MRS. LESTER LA GRANGE 246 3336

CAPT. AND MRS. Benton E. Morris and sons, Mike and Billy, arrived from Okinawa last week after being there since September of 1965. They were overnight guests of Mrs. Morris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Lightsey Friday. They took six year old Mike to Reese Air Force Base Hospital Saturday.

MR. AND MRS. W. H. Berry Jr. and Lisa of Littlefield visited his mother Sunday. They recently returned from a vacation trip to Yellowstone Park and other places of interest in the northwest.

GUESTS SUNDAY of his parents the Ray Blessings, was their son, Pat, and family of Lubbock.

MRS. LESTER LaGRANGE visited her daughter, the Gene Louders, in New Home Thursday through Sunday. Friday evening they were at Buffalo Springs Lake for a picnic. ERNEST WILLIAMS and Purdy Baker fished at Buffalo Springs Lake during the weekend. They reported good luck.

BAN THE BLADE—Beards are sprouting on faces around Littlefield the way farmers like their cotton to grow...thick and heavy. Ernest Mills is the model. They are all part of the beard-growing contest that is part of the annual Littlefield celebration Aug. 29-30 (which hasn't got an official name yet). Sponsored by the Littlefield Lions Club, the beard-growing contest will have five divisions of judging longest, best all-around, ugliest, most decorative and a class for the reddest, blondest or grayest. Beards started July 1 and later are the only ones qualified for the longest or best all-around judging. Shave permits will be sold and a jail made available for non-carriers of permits without beards.

Jehovah's Witnesses To Assembly

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Littlefield area have been invited to attend an eight-day International Assembly to be held in Kansas City, Mo., July 18-25.

According to representatives, approximately 36,000 delegates will attend the gathering at Kansas City's Municipal Stadium.

Although the majority of delegates will come from the Midwest, some from Germany, Venezuela, India, Peru, Mexico, Korea and Canada have sent requests for accommodations to Convention Headquarters.

The Kansas City assembly is one of seven such meetings in the United States this summer, with 25 scheduled in various countries around the world. They all have the theme: "Peace On Earth."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. and Mrs. Ollie M. Barker of Amherst received a letter from Commanding Officer, R. N. Hipp, Jr., of the U. S. Navy in Seattle concerning their son, Albert Barker.)
ALBERT BARKER

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Barker,

It is with great pleasure that I commend you and your son Albert on his selection as the Helicopter Combat Support Squadron SEVEN Man of the Month for April 1969.

This award was presented to him for the month of April, but is truly in recognition of his continuing year round performance of duty, excellent military bearing and exemplary conduct.

Your son Albert has been a continuing aid to HC-7 in completing its assigned task of supporting Task Force 77 and their many functions. He combines the qualities of leadership and mechanical knowledge that we need when our helicopters are not functioning and we need a job done.

Recently, Albert led a crew in DaNang in changing the transmission on our Search and Rescue SH-3A helo and was directly responsible for its quick return to service. That type of performance is directly responsible for the 63 lives we have saved since HC-7 started functioning last year.

Your son and his shipmates here are playing a vital role in the security of the free world.

In conjunction with the award, Albert was presented a $25.00 savings bond, 48 hours of special liberty and $10.00 cash to help him enjoy it more. In addition, a letter of congratulations will be a permanent part of his record and our own HC-7 Certificate of Merit will be included in that record.

We are proud to have Albert in Helicopter Combat Support Squadron SEVEN and the U. S. Navy. We feel you have every right to be just as proud.

Sincerely yours,
For R. N. Hipp, Jr.
Commander, U. S. Navy
Commanding Officer

JOHN D. NAIL

Cadet John D. Nail, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Nail of Littlefield, is currently receiving six weeks training and practical experience in military leadership at the Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps summer camp at Ft. Sill, Okla., from June 4 to July 16.

A record number of ROTC students are expected to receive their commissions by completing the course offered at an increasing number of universities.

By enabling a cadet to actually command fellow students in tactical situations, summer camp strengthens his sense of responsibility for both his actions and his men.

Cadet Nail is a student at West Texas State University and his wife, Glens, lives at 4616 Hayden, Amarillo.

J. F. MILLER JR.

Army Captain Joseph F. Miller Jr., whose parents live on Route 2, Springlake, was assigned to the 588th Engineer Battalion's Headquarters Company near Tay Ninh, Vietnam, May 27 as adjutant. His wife, Carol, lives at 4332 Mesa Circle, Amarillo.

GARY JONES

Ensign George Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Jones, will graduate from VT-10 training at Pensacola, Fla., this month and will be transferred to Corpus Christi for three months training on the P3.

A graduate of Olton High School and Texas Technological College, Jones has been stationed at Pensacola since October 1968 when he entered the Navy.

Jones received his promotion to Ensign in February.

George arrived in Olton Saturday for a 10-day leave.

He will report to Corpus Christi July 3.

GARY A. SCHOVAJSA

Army Sergeant Gary A. Schovajsa, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Schovajsa, has been assigned to the 62nd Artillery at Ft. Bliss in El Paso as a squad leader.

Gary returned from a tour of duty in Vietnam this spring.

County Agent's Corner

BUDDY LOGSDON

Key agricultural leaders and agribusinessmen from 19 South Plains Counties will gather in Lubbock today, Thursday, June 19, to discuss and formulate plans to boost the economic development of the area.

Purpose of the meeting is to revitalize unified efforts of the South Plains Development (SPD) Program which was launched about two years ago. Officers and an executive committee will be elected.

The 2 1/2 hour session will begin at 1:30 p.m. at the Plains Co-op Oil Mill, 2901 Avenue A, Lubbock, according to Billy C. Gunter, District Agricultural Agent for District 2 of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Areas of emphasis for economic growth and development of the area will be discussed," says Gunter. "These will include Increased Livestock Production, Producing Cotton for the Market and Reducing Cost of Production, South Plains Agricultural Economy Past, Present and Future and Future of Irrigated Farming on the South Plains."

Featured speakers will be Dr. H. O. Kunkel, dean of agriculture at Texas A&M

University and acting director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station; John Hutchison, director of the Extension Service; Dr. Lowell Schake, Extension area livestock specialist; Dr. Robert Metzger, Extension area agronomist; Dr. James E. Osborn, Associate Professor of Agricultural Economics, Texas Technological College, Lubbock, and Billy Wayne Clayton, State Representative and Executive Director of Water, Inc.

The 19 counties participating in SPD are Bailey, Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Cochran, Hockley, Lubbock, Crosby,

Committee Holds Called Meeting

ANTON—On call of chairman, Jerry Biffle, the committee for the development of Yellowhouse Creek and Reservoir met at the Citizens State Bank meeting room Monday night.

Those in attendance were John Phillips of the law firm of McCleskey, Nelson, Haeger, and Phillips; Ralph Douglas of the Engineering firm of Douglas Engineering Co.; George Broome, mayor of Anton; Bill Jones and Bill Thompson of Spade; Richard Howard of County Line; Nelson Reinsch of Smyer; Jerry Biffle of Anton and Douglas Teague and Orval of the Anton Chamber of Commerce.

OLTON—Mrs. Robert Struve was hostess recently to a bridge party.

Guests were Mmes. John Speck Jr., Charlie Burrus, Jack Witten, Eddie Miller, Joe Caddell, Mike Smith and Don Sanderson.

Mrs. Jack Witten won the high prize.

Refreshments were snacks, coffee, lemonade and cakes.

Grand Master Visits Lodge

Grand Master Claude Morris will pay an official visit in this area when he visits the Plainview IOOF Lodge on Tuesday, July 8.

All Littlefield Odd Fellows are urged to contact the host lodge and make plans to take a guest and attend this meeting.

Littlefield members say this will probably be the Grand Master's first and only official visit of the year to this area.

There will be a regular program and, if there are five or more candidates for the Past Grand and Grand Lodge Degrees, a special session of the Grand Lodge will be held to confer degrees.

Puts Body In Fabrics

Littlefield Cleaners puts body back into limp summer clothes that have been washed to death.

L. D. Pate, owner and operator of Littlefield Cleaners, 303 W. 4th St., calls the new finishing agent "food for fabrics," and they can feed new life back into cottons, synthetics and woolsens.

Pate does the hard back shop work himself, because he feels that is the most important part of the dry cleaning business, and he wants his customers to be satisfied.

L. D. understands fabrics, stains and all the things related to the cleaning business. He has been cleaning clothes for the past 21 years.

He does a good job "and I've got good help," L. D. said.

Mrs. Pate assists her husband in the cleaning shop and has for the past 16 years since the Pates have owned the business.

They give individual attention to all garments brought in, such as treatments of vinyl sleeves to keep them soft and supple.

Even before becoming owner of Littlefield Cleaners, Pate worked in the shop for former owner H. B. Thorp. The Pates knew Mr. Thorpe when both families lived in Tahoka.

Mrs. Pate formerly worked for the Thorps in a Tahoka bakery. The Pates moved to Littlefield in 1948 and L. D. began his cleaning apprenticeship under H. B., later buying the business from Thorpes in 1953.

The Pates have one son, Lewis Ray, who will be a junior student at LHS this fall. Young Pate is an avid sportsman, with special interest in track and football.

Watching football on television is L. D.'s favorite past time, and he can always find an excuse to stay at home on Sunday's when games are televised.

Mrs. Pate likes to sit still on a bank somewhere with her fishing line out and baited. "She has that real fisherman's patience," L. D. said.

The Pates invite everyone in the Littlefield area to bring their dirty clothes problems to them.

Littlefield Cleaners will take care of your dirty work.

Paul Puts In Pflash

Paul McCormick has played first fiddle in bringing a potential new industry into Littlefield.

If there is any single individual who deserves a big chunk of credit in getting the EMV Corporation to select Littlefield for its test building site, it is Paul.

Paul has known the inventor of the EMV ElectricCar for six or seven years. Cotton Whatley used to call on McCormicks Service Station when he was district sales representative for Amalie Oil Co.

Since Whatley started his experimental model almost three years ago, Paul has made numerous trips to Amarillo to see how Whatley was coming along and to encourage him.

Paul McCormick has been in the gas business from the days of tin lizzes. The first gas Paul pumped went under the front seat of the Model T, when the driver had to get out of his car before he could gas up.

This was before gas gauges were installed on cars and foot rulers were stuck down in the tank to measure gallons. For the modern Model A's, gas tanks were under the windshield.

Ten gallons were pumped up into the glass pump and customers watched the gas gurgle down into his tank. The new electric pumps that replaced the hand pumps took some getting used to on the customer's part who saw numbers on the pump instead of gas flowing into their tanks.

Cold patches, hand air pumps, and a lot of do it yourself was the order of the day for flat tires, and there were plenty of them with dirt streets all over town and even a dirt road to Lubbock.

McCormicks Service Station is the oldest business of its kind in Littlefield, starting operation in 1928. Paul has been sole owner of the station since 1945.

Put Pflash in your driving by driving into the Fina Station at 917 E. Delano. Fina with pflash is the outstanding fuel sold today. Paul will take any major credit card on your purchases of gas, oil, batteries and the many services offered at McCormicks.

Among these are installing Mark IV Air Conditioners and servicing all brands of auto air conditioning.

McCormicks is wholesale distributor of Amalie, Quaker State and Havoline oils.

McCormick sells and balances Star and Cooper tires. They sell and install A. P. mufflers and tailpipes, and carry a full line of spark plugs, points, oil filters and condensers for automobiles, irrigation motors and tractors. And this is the place to get those Southland batteries.

For complete one-stop service, call on Paul at McCormicks Service Station.

Computers Aid New Industry

The Texas Industrial Commission is offering every community across the state the modern technology of computers in seeking new industry. "This new program will give Texas communities a rifle rather than shotgun approach in attracting industry," Chester Wine of Corpus Christi, chairman of the Industrial Commission, said in announcing the recently approved plan using existing computers owned by the state. The Industrial Commission offered use of the four phase program to Chambers of Commerce across the state recently in asking Chamber managers to assist as Computer Program Evaluators. "By serving as evaluators, local leaders will have the opportunity to get a comprehensive look at the program being developed before its introduction later this year," Wine said. Four basic programs are to be offered in the industry-attracting plan. It will give communities an instant site location service for national companies seeking to locate branch plants in Texas; printouts for existing Texas companies for the export potential for their products; matching of location resources with location requirements for each of the more than 400 specific types of industry; and studies for communities to compare their facilities with other cities of similar size. The site location service will provide manufacturers with the opportunity to specify up to 700 requirements for characteristics the company considers suitable for location of a new plant. Given these requirements, the computer would scan the bank for information on every town in Texas, pulling out the specifications requested. Texas manufacturers can check their export potential through a printout of overseas countries in which their particular product is in demand, and information on the value in that particular market with names and addresses of contacts in the markets. Communities can take advantage of the candidate industry phase of the program, checking to determine which types of industry they would most likely attract, and names and addresses of national concerns in these areas. Communities will also be able to request a printout comparing local facilities such as hospitals, recreational areas, community services, etc., with cities of similar size. The phase of the program will allow communities to establish specific goals for improving their attractiveness to industry in the next decade. Cities wishing to serve as Computer Program Evaluators should contact the Texas Industrial Commission, Sam Houston State Office Building, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas, 78711.

Wheat

Olton's first load of wheat was brought into the Plains Elevator, Thursday, June 12 at approximately 4:00 p.m. from a 10 acre patch of wheat on the Whitaker farm east of the Olton Elevator. The Tascosa variety of wheat weighed 11,260 pounds and tested 13.3 percent protein. The farmer, who is the land, and was the farmer with the first load of wheat in the area to get an elevator was paid a price by Garland, owner and manager of the elevator. Wheat was sowed about the first of September and the farmer said he used no fertilizer. He made about 20 bushels of wheat. He also said the wheat was harvested until about March 15.

Census Bureau Survey

Households in this area will be included in a nationwide survey of consumer buying and saving habits during July, according to Director Francis Wimer of the Census Bureau's regional office in Littlefield. The Census Bureau representative who will visit households in this area is Mrs. Mary McNeese of Ft. Worth. Householders will be asked whether they expect to buy a car or major appliances during the next year and whether they have made recent purchases of these items. Homeowners will be asked about home improvements and additions during the last three years and any planned for the future. The survey is taken quarterly throughout the year to gather information which will guide federal agencies in other groups with programs based on consumer spending patterns. The most recent survey of this area, taken in April, U. S. Census Bureau indicated that their plans for buying houses and cars were about the same as a year earlier, but on average they expect to buy more household appliances and furnishings. Households included in the survey will not be identified. All answers are kept confidential by the Census Bureau, and information obtained in the survey will be used only for statistical purposes.

Electric Car Firm Makes Littlefield Headquarters

Amarillo Men To Build Test Models Here; Successful Development Would Guarantee Future Manufacturing Plant For City

Car's Design Attractive

It's a combination of five U. S. sports car styles all wrapped up in a bright metal flake fiberglass package.

This is the design of the electric car test models proposed to be built in Littlefield.

Plans call for these Littlefield-built test models to be tried for proficiency in different parts of the U. S.

These proficiency tests hopefully will result in assembly line production of the EMV ElectricCar in Littlefield.

The first truly practical electric car seems to be near reality with D. L. Whatley's ElectricCar that he says will compete economically with existing economy and second cars.

The flashy, head-turning body of the car pops out of the mold in one piece.

A familiar sport model now marketed has 22 pieces glassed together.

The fiberglass body takes unbelievable punishment without leaving a dent, Whatley said.

If a hold does get knocked in the body of the car it can be patched like a fiberglass boat, or an entire new body for the car can be bought for "about $250", Whatley added.

The overall length of the ElectricCar is 14 1/2 feet.

It has a 96-inch wheelbase, 53-inch trackage (from wheel to wheel), is 3' 10" high and the front seat, which carries three persons, is 64 inches wide.

RIGHT AT HOME—The ideal family second car, though it probably will cost only $2,000 when assembly lines start rolling, looks right at home in front of the most expensive home.

THE TRADEMARK that will someday make Littlefield famous.

FORERUNNER of the EMV ElectricCar was published about a year ago in the Amarillo Daily News. Cotton Whatley, standing with it, said a wire news agency reporter asked him to put a body on the car so it could be photographed. This, he admits, was a very rushed-up job, and a long way from the prototype now used.

Littlefield Home Base For Electric Car Firm

A contract was signed in Amarillo Tuesday night calling for Littlefield to become headquarters for the development of a vehicle its designers believe will be the first practical electric car.

Littlefield representatives said they believe the "ElectriCar" has great potential for financial success and as a worthwhile industry for this South Plains city of 7,500.

Agreement on the contract was reached between Littlefield Industrial Corporation and Electrically Motivated Vehicle Corporation (EMV) of Amarillo.

It came after several months of testing on the first prototype model of the ElectriCar, including one trial run from the floor of Palo Duro Canyon to the top—a curving, twisting climb of 700 feet in a distance of 1.1 mile.

This test, as well as others, was viewed by a delegation from Littlefield which watched the 2,000-pound car, driven by a 5-horsepower electric motor, take the steep grade with ease.

Final stages of testing on the first model followed almost three years of work on the project by its designers and builders.

EMV will produce a second prototype model in Amarillo in the next four to five months. If that model reaches anticipated results, several production models, possibly up to 25, will be built in Littlefield.

This is part of the agreement, which also states that "all stages after the (second) prototype model will be in Littlefield, Texas, and the corporation will move its base of operations, its production, its full-time employees and its normal home activities to Littlefield, Texas, a permanent basis."

The production models, to be built in late 1969 and early 1970, will be placed in the hands of consumers to be driven in varied locations and conditions.

Although no timetable has been set on the beginning of full scale assembly line production in Littlefield, representatives of both EMV and Littlefield are hopeful this can be accomplished as early as 1971, barring unforeseen setbacks.

Littlefield Industrial Corporation agreed in the contract to raise $100,000 and loan that amount to EMV to produce the second prototype and several production models "as circumstances warrant by the progress and success" of the venture.

Expenditures are to be under the control of EMV with periodic progress reports to be made to the Littlefield corporation.

In addition, the Littlefield corporation agreed to sell up to 175 acres of land at $350 per acre to EMV, with the sale to be made on or before five years from a date set by EMV.

In the five-year period, EMV may use the land rent-free, and tax free, with Littlefield Industrial Corporation responsible for payment of local taxes.

The industrial corporation has an option at $350 per acre on this 175 acres of land now owned by the Finley estate, located in labor 8 of league 673, a plot directly south and west of Lamb County Electric Co-op.

The option is effective through Dec. 1, 1969, and is renewable for an additional 12 months.

Capsule Comments

J. E. CHISHOLM
Mayor of Littlefield

"This is one of the most encouraging and exciting industries that we have talked about in years of trying to build Littlefield.

"I personally am optimistic about the successful development of the ElectriCar. It is something that staggers our imagination on what can be done for Littlefield.

"Certainly we realize we will not have a large payroll in the next few months...it could be in one, two or three years.

"With all the work and testing that has gone into this car, the developers and those who have seen it in operation realize there is a very small per cent of work left to be done.

The people of Littlefield have been talking about wanting a good payroll—a payroll that will keep our city stable and create jobs for our people.

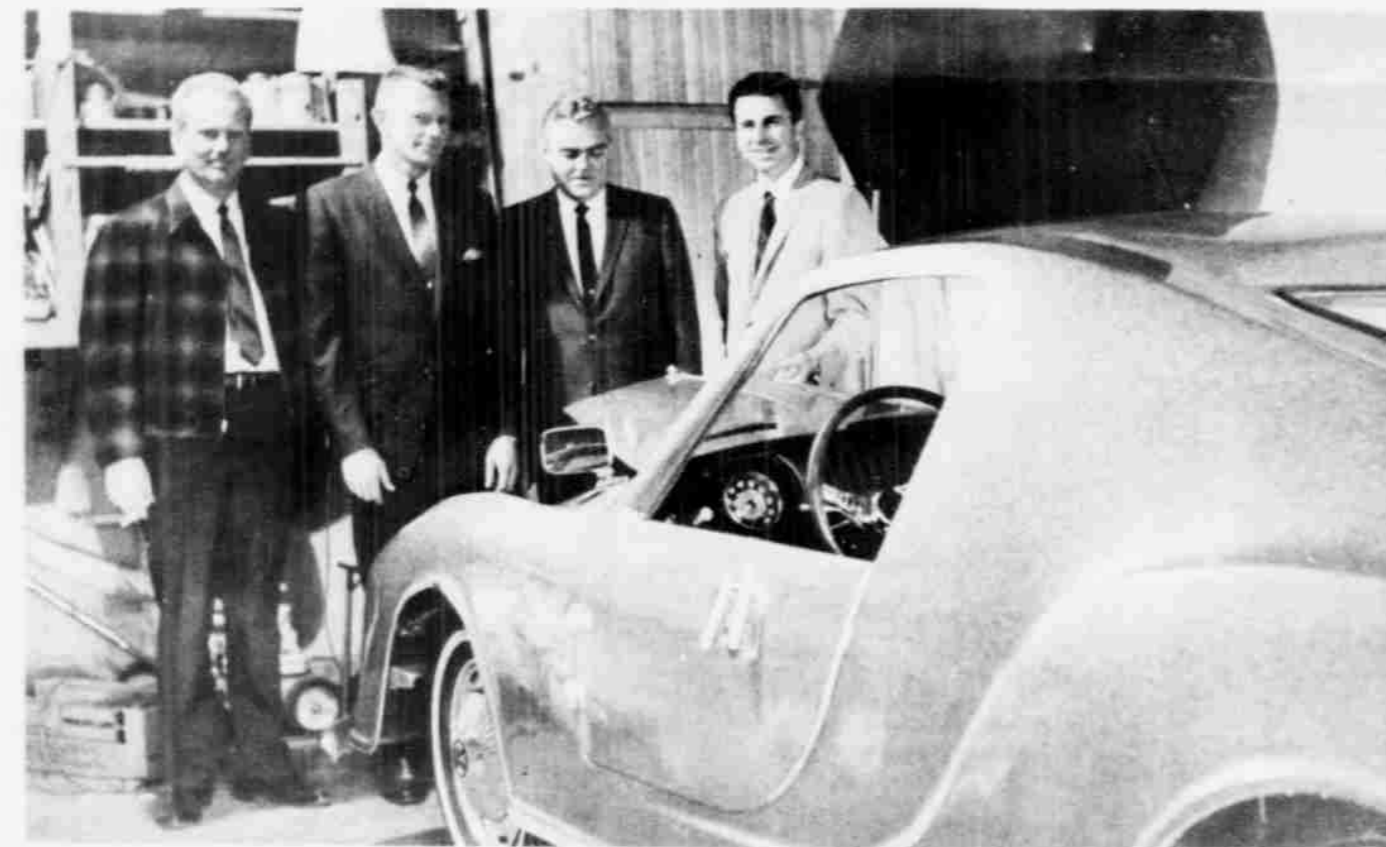

"This is the time for everyone who has an interest—either business-wise or pride-wise—to join in and make this operation successful."

JACK WICKER
Bank President

"The ElectriCar is our opportunity to participate and grow, with an industry which we believe has tremendous potential not only on its own, but also for related industry."

KENNETH WARE
President, Industrial Corporation

"This is our chance to build our community. I personally believe it's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for Littlefield's progress. It's a chance that might not come about again, and we ought to take full advantage of it."

TROY ARMES
Car Dealer

"The ElectriCar is something Littlefield ought not to pass up. Now is the time to make the decision to get behind it completely."

PAUL McCORMICK
City Councilman

"It's what we need to create jobs for our young people, and this has to be one of our most important goals. We have been losing our young people just as fast as they finish school. The ElectriCar can provide the sort of opportunity we need to hold them here. I'm thrilled about the potential this industry gives us."

ARTHUR DUGGAN
Attorney

"This is an industry that will help balance our economy—one that will not be subject to the weather conditions which in some years damage our agricultural economy."

GENE PRATT
C-C Industrial Prospecting

"I don't believe I ever recall a time when I've seen so many people get together and work toward progress in Littlefield. We have a very real and exciting chance to make this community grow and prosper."

JERRY KIRBY
Attorney

"The experimental model looks like a winner to me. It is a first class product vastly superior to any type electric vehicle on the market. This includes golf carts, mail delivery vehicles, and other type electric vehicles used on Army bases, Navy bases, Air Force bases and motels. If the production model is relatively the same, it has unlimited potential on the 'so-called' by products of an electric automobile.

"The potential is certainly worth whatever time and money that Littlefield is called upon to put out. EMV has sold this old skeptic, and, while realizing there are risks involved, I think we ought to get after it."

EMV Product Possibilities Unlimited

With the eventual production of the ElectriCar in Littlefield, possibilities have already been discussed for expanding the production to other electrically powered vehicles.

Sand buggies are becoming increasingly popular throughout the country and they could be produced in quantity at the plant, along with electric bicycles, golf carts, delivery vans, taxis, and lawn mowers without the troublesome cords.

D. L. "Cotton" Whatley, president of EMV Corp. (Electrically Motivated Vehicle), has dreamed of the time when he could mow his lawn without having to worry about keeping the cord out of the way.

He said the U. S. Postal Department could rack up a tremendous saving on mail trucks.

"In Amarillo, the longest delivery route is 33 miles and the shortest route is 3 1/2 miles, an average of 17 miles per day. The electric car would mean quite a saving."

Whatley said, "I lie in bed at night and think of the potential Littlefield could have. Think of 300 cars a day, eight batteries per car, four tires per car, electric motors, transmissions, electric switches, controls, upholstery, gauges, etc. All have to be built somewhere—why not in Littlefield?"

"About 60,000 batteries would be required per month.

"It would be more feasible to make them in Littlefield, and batteries are simple to make," he continued.

"Think of all the people who could be employed, think of the fleet of trucks with drivers coming in and going out, think of the people who would have to be specialized in various fields of manufacture, it's almost overwhelming," Whatley said.

GOVERNMENT VEHICLES

EMV Corporation officers say they foresee the first large scale production of their practical ElectriCar to be used as mail cars and jeep type air base vehicles.

INTERIOR design, all hand-built, of the EMV ElectriCar prototype is shown by Cotton Whatley. The final design will meet all federal safety regulations, he says, and be as comfortable as "anybody would want." Note the gear shift in the floor. It has three speeds forward and a reverse, unique for any electric car ever built.

THE EMV ELECTRICAR looks just as natural out on the super highway as any other make, and cruises along at a comfortable 50 MPH. The car is considered ideal for city driving, from both angles of comfort and economy.

STREET CAR COMEBACK PREDICTED

ElectriCar Is Made On Trolley Principle

Street cars were built on the principle that electric cars operate on, and Cotton Whatley predicts that street cars will come back just as the renewed interest in electric cars has had a startling revival of interest in the past several years.

Whatley isn't the first to make an electric car, but he has done some things with his car that even major corporation experts said couldn't be done.

Whatley's EMV ElectriCar purrs along at speeds of 35 to 50 miles per hour for a week at a time between recharging in town driving tests, and uses less than 50 cents' worth of electricity to recharge the eight six-volt batteries, located behind the car's single seat.

In performance tests, the little battery-powered car drove right up the steep grades of Palo Duro Canyon.

Test after test, Whatley's EMV ElectriCar has done what the experts said couldn't be done.

"I see it, but I don't believe it," is a common expression from the learned.

The secret to the battery powered car is its control. Six thousand dollars was pumped into the development of control unit that even engineers said "there isn't any way it can be done."

"Anything can be done sooner or later," Cotton Whatley said.

Dr. Alfred A. Kraus transistORIZED the control unit that makes the feats of the ElectriCar possible.

An Amarillo man, Jim Baker, developer of the control, "squared the waves," Whatley said, "allowing it to vary the speed of an electric motor. Dr. Kraus solid-stated the controls, and now there isn't a moving part in the unit.

Dr. Kraus received his master's degree from Cal Tech and his doctorate from MIT. He formerly taught at West Texas State University and now operates the Canyon Research Co.

The control unit is said to be adaptable to any electric motor on which various rates of speed might be used and controls both AC and DC current.

The control unit is said to be adaptable to any electric motor on which various rates of speed might be used and controls both AC and DC current.

Controlling the rate of speed on an electric motor makes it possible to conserve voltage, Whatley said.

Backup Model Protects Investment

As a back-up for the EMV ElectriCar, it can be made minus the electric motor and batteries, equipped with a gas engine and sold for approximately $1,300, according to the builder, Cotton Whatley.

"Keep in mind that we started from scratch," Whatley said. "Some major car manufacturers are now in the process of building cars for 1975."

"This way we have a back-up, to keep those who have money in this venture from losing," Whatley said.

500-Plus Personnel And 200 Truckers

Cotton Whatley, inventor of the EMV ElectriCar, spends sleepless nights counting motors, tires, and batteries.

"It can get to be a nightmare," Cotton said.

If things go as planned, an assembly plant in Littlefield for the ElectriCar could become a reality.

"On a 300-car-per-day schedule," the inventor said, "We'd need approximately 500 personnel—this would include about 100 supervisory, office and clerical personnel," he said.

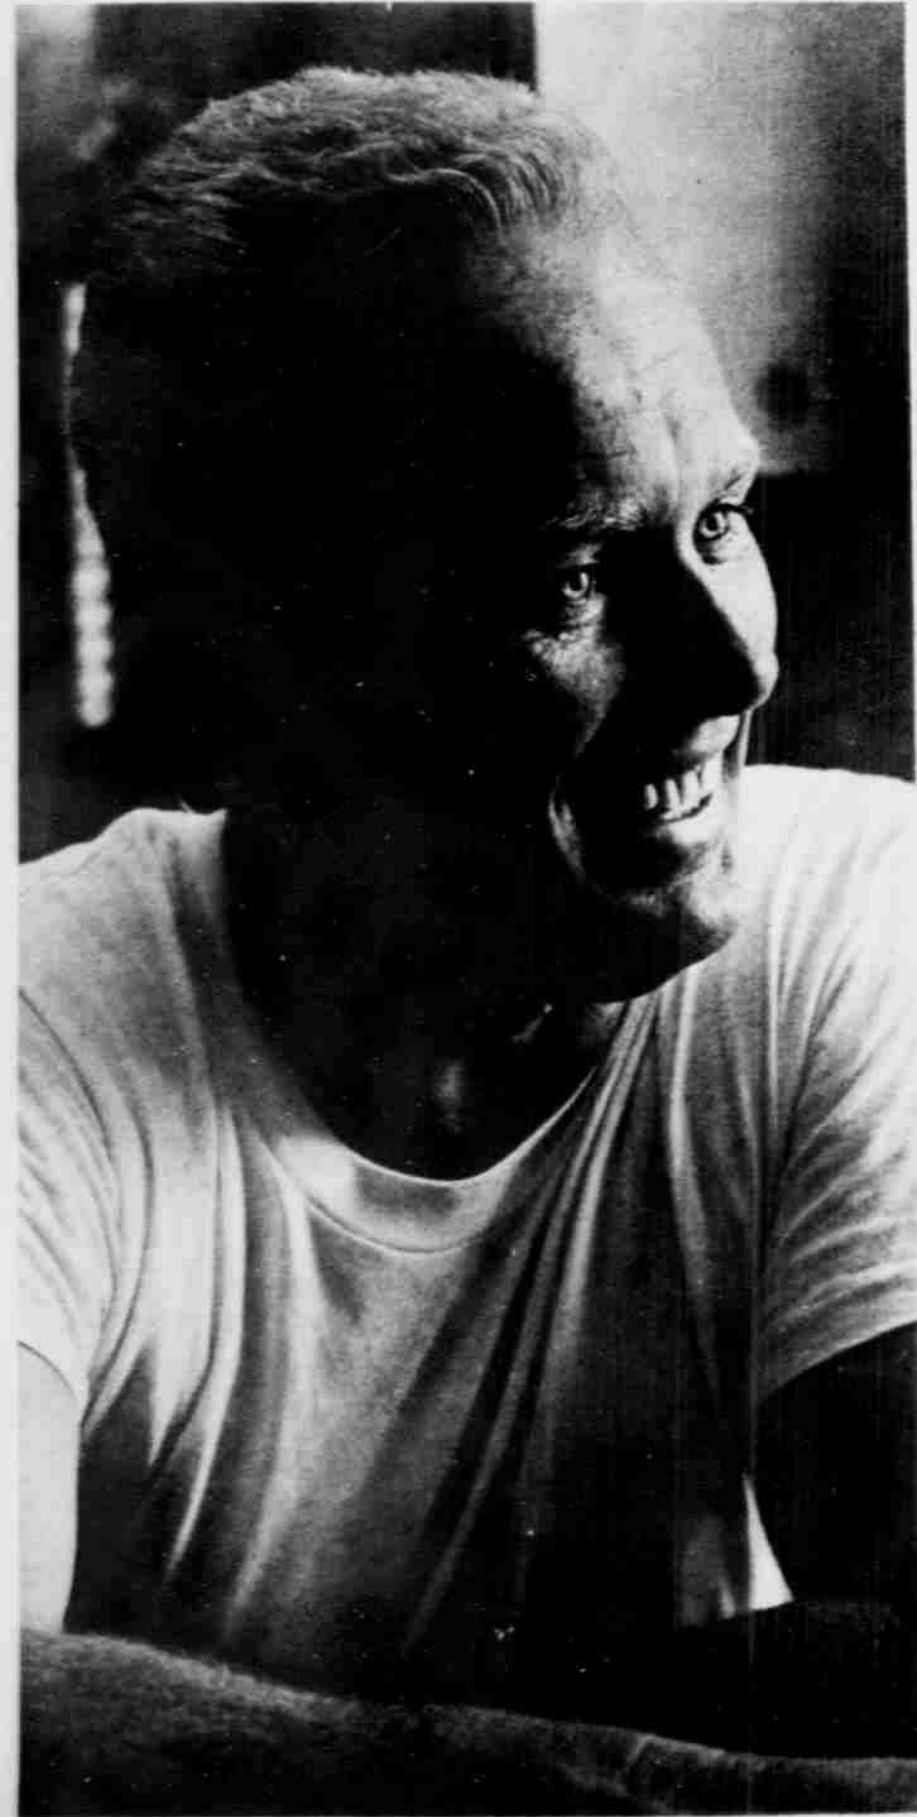

"This would mean that we would need 2,400 batteries per day—or 60,000 batteries per month. Eight hundred batteries can be shipped per truck. This would mean there would need to be a fleet of 200 truck drivers in Littlefield.

"There would have to be warehouses for the storage of tires and batteries.

"It gets scary just thinking about all the things that are involved," Whatley finished.

Cotton Whatley Had Dream

D. L. (Cotton) Whatley had a dream. He dreamed of an economical new electric car for town driving—a new and also inexpensive second car that ran without gas, oil or costly upkeep.

He put himself in the shoes of a man who lives in town, makes about $400 a month and has a wife and children to support.

Then he asked himself what kind of car this man would need.

The only difference between Whatley's dream and that of countless other men who may have dreamed about building an electric car is that Whatley went to work on his dream. Right in his own garage.

His dream is a reality and production is being planned on the first practical electric car ever built.

Whatley estimates maintenance cost will be $12 to $20 per year.

Whatley's dazzling little sport model is called EMV (Electrically motivated vehicle) ElectricCar.

It weighs 2,000 pounds and he estimates it will sell eventually for about $2,000—about one dollar per pound.

The EMV ElectricCar runs on eight common 6-volt wet acid batteries that now can be bought anywhere for about $18 to $20 each.

These batteries will last three to three and one-half years before replacement is needed.

The ElectricCar is being designed to go about 120 miles between recharging. And when recharging is needed, it will be a simple matter of plugging the recharger into any household electrical outlet. The batteries are completely recharged in eight hours. Possibly in the near future a

1,000 Franchise Dealers To Sell

When the EMV ElectricCar reaches production on an assembly line basis, stockholders hope to supply 1,000 franchise dealers with 90 cars per year.

There will be no problem in selling the electric cars, they say.

The first hurdle is getting into production and getting it made, according to those who have interests in the business venture.

Franchises will sell for $5,000 each to 1,000 dealers who will have exclusive dealerships in towns of 200,000 population and less.

The ElectricCar will sell for the same price everywhere. If the price is set at $2,000, there will be neither price jacking nor lowering, regardless of where the car is purchased, according to Cotton Whatley, president of EMV.

15-20 minute recharge battery will be perfected.

Twenty-eight amperes are needed to get the car to 50 miles per hour, its top speed. A person can cruise over town at 35 mph all week for less than 50 cents, Whatley says.

The tiny 5-horse power electric motor costs about $125 and "lasts and lasts" like those in a refrigerator. If anything happens, rewinding the motor will be the most expensive upkeep required.

The batteries need a total of one or two gallons of water at intervals in a year's time, and about eight cents worth of grease annually will keep the torsion suspension in good shape.

Controls can be quick-changed with the snap adaptor plug-ins.

Over-all design is so simple that any garage can repair the mechanical brakes, repack the wheel bearings, or refill the transmission.

Whatley has combined reasonable speed with reasonable cost to come up with an electric car he believes will someday compete with foreign and domestic compacts.

Over 3,000 Hours Went Into EMV-1

Cotton Whatley of Amarillo has spent more than 3,000 hours in his garage working on the electric car that will be test built in Littlefield.

"I think my wife would divorce me if I started another one," Whatley said. "Many nights I've been out there in the garage until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning."

Whatley started building his first electric car in October of 1966. It had four wheels and that was about all there was to it.

"My wife, little girl and I test-drove it all over town," he said.

"A news network heard about my experiment and offered to do a story and take a picture if I'd put some kind of body on it."

Spurred on because "talk of an electric car is on everyone's lips," Whatley spent $600 putting a sheet iron body in his home-made car.

The resulting body resembled a small tank with its hastily built squared design.

The first Whatley-built car averaged up to 70 miles without a recharge, had four forward speeds and had two banks of batteries and two engines "so that it could run off one motor, leaving the other idle to compound power."

City, EMV Make A Start**

Toward Building A Dream

All dreams have their start somewhere. This one began in late 1966 for the EMV Corporation and its president, D. L. (Cotton) Whatley; vice-president, Glen Cowsar; and secretary-treasurer, Jim Finch.

Whatley built his first electric car. A gas and oil man, Glen R. Mabry of Amarillo, financed that first experimental attempt, the EMVXI. It was weird irony—a gasoline man actually trying to put himself out of business.

The XI looked more like a tank than a car...but it did get up and go, carrying Whatley, his wife Allyne and his daughter, Cathy, then 14, all around Amarillo as people looked on in curiosity as well as disbelief.

Ironically, it was another gas and oil man, Paul McCormick, who brought Littlefield into this dream.

It was McCormick's determined interest in Whatley and Whatley's pet electric car idea that kept Littlefield in the picture as development of the project continued over the next two years.

It was logical, this meeting of McCormick and Whatley. They had known each other six or seven years, after Whatley became a salesman for an oil company and peddled his wares to McCormick Service Station here.

But this was more than a business relationship. It developed into a real friendship, and a kindred spirit, because each was intensely interested in an electric car.

When Paul McCormick first began telling his friends in Littlefield about the project, they listened politely, but no one immediately took him seriously.

But McCormick kept talking anyway, continued with his sincere belief in the car's possibilities.

McCormick knew the people in Amarillo were deadly serious about the project, because he knew that Whatley, Glen Cowsar, and Jim Finch had poured hard-earned money and long hours of night and weekend work into their car.

"Their car" was their first prototype model of the ElectricCar, pictured on the cover of this extra.

Whatley, Cowsar and Finch worked into the wee hours in that garage at Whatley's home in an upper-middle class neighborhood in Amarillo.

None of the men was particularly primed for the work that went on in Whatley's garage. None is a college graduate.

Whatley started out as a roughneck in oil fields of the Wichita Falls area, where he grew up.

He later went into the oil supply business there, and spent quite a bit of time electrifying oil leases. That's where his background and "education" in electricity began.

"I suppose every man has dreamed of an electric car, but I dreamed of building one," said Whatley.

Glen Cowsar, whose main talent is drafting, brought his talents into the project by designing a drive train for the car.

Jim Finch, who is more familiar with finance than the mechanics of building an electric car, turned grease monkey in Whatley's garage.

"Jim put in all kinds of hours assembling, tearing down, starting over, testing, starting over..." says Whatley.

These men did most of the manual labor on the car, but they had backing from stockholders in their EMV corporation, and they got a major assist in a control unit invented by Jim Baker, a music store salesman in Amarillo.

It turned out to be a blending of just plain common sense for these men, and a willingness to try again when something didn't work.

They were joined by a man with an education, Dr. Alfred Kraus, who was graduated from Cal Tech and MIT. It was Kraus who put his talents and education into solid stating Baker's control unit. Littlefield's McCormick knew all this...and he continued telling his story here.

People began to listen. Several began to go and watch. Finally, early in 1969, about 20 men from Littlefield went to Amarillo and heard the story straight from Whatley, Cowsar and Finch.

From there, Littlefield became part of the dream. Whatley and EMV were delighted that someone finally showed large interest in their project.

Littlefield became enthusiastic about the possibilities of an exciting new industry with what appeared to be great potential.

Mayor J. E. Chisholm joined McCormick in enthusiasm. A jeweler, Gene Pratt, did his "battery charging" in the coffee shop, talking electric car to everyone who would listen.

Attorney Jerry Kirby, at first a severe skeptic, went to Amarillo and came back scratching his head. The ElectricCar was something that would work, he admitted, and later on he became enthusiastic, ready to spell it out for anyone who scoffed at the electric car idea.

Banker Jack Wicker, with the weight of his banking business commanding his attention, began to spend time on the project, and later, when the details of the contract and financing came up, asked himself when he was going to get his banking business done.

Arthur Duggan and Kirby, the attorneys, began devoting all the time they could to the details of the contract. Kirby drew the job of finally drawing the contract, and he did the work without charge, as did everyone connected with the Littlefield end of the project.

All of this enthusiasm came to a climax Tuesday night, when EMV and Littlefield Industrial Corporation came to agreement on the contract.

The dream is still far from becoming a reality, because months and years of work still must go into the first phase—that of successfully developing the car and building a plant.

The plant would employ at least 500, possibly 600, in producing 300 cars a day.

The people who buy franchises will get them for $5,000, and at least 1,000 of them will be put up for sale. That would total $5 million, and would serve as a starter for operating capital.

A total of 300 cars a day would mean 90 a year for each dealer.

If the car works in the manner expected by Littlefield and EMV, these figures could be a drop in the bucket....

But that's another dream.

FIRST ITEM OF BUSINESS:
RAISE $100,000

The agreement reached by Littlefield Industrial Corporation and EMV at Amarillo Tuesday night hinges on an important stipulation in the contract.

The next few months are critical for successful development of the ElectricCar, from the point of view of both Littlefield and EMV.

One main item to be fulfilled is the agreement that Littlefield Industrial Corporation will raise $100,000 for initial capital.

Contributions toward Littlefield's $100,000 are protected in the contract should control of EMV later be sold by the present control group.

The $100,000 or any part already advanced would be repaid immediately should such a sale ever be made, together with 8 per cent interest on the entire amount, from the date each portion was contributed.

THE ELECTRICAR drew close-up inspection and anticipation just before its test run at Palo Duro Canyon. Shown here are numerous Littlefield people, plus curious passersby, as they look over the car on the floor of the canyon.

Cost $12 A Year To Run

The average internal combustion engine on the average automobile costs its driver $750 per year if driven 10,000 miles—or 7 1/2 cents per mile.

In comparison, the owner of the ElectricCar would spend approximately $12 to $20 per year for recharging batteries; a few cents for grease and transmission oil when needed, and use of about a gallon of water per year to keep the batteries up to par.

Batteries would not need to be replaced until about three to three and a half years, and tires would be replaced according to how the car was handled and according to what they were driven on—just as any tire on the average automobile.

"There would be no service problems", said Cotton Whatley, president of the EMV (Electrically Motivated Vehicle) Corp. "Most of the problems one would encounter could be handled in the average service station. The electrical controls and batteries could be replaced by a quick snap-out exchange, and the driver would be on his way again in a few minutes."

"The average service station could recharge the batteries, too", he said, "as one can plug the charger into any ordinary outlet."

"We're working on a 15- to 20-minute recharge on batteries", Whatley said, "when a person could have his batteries recharged in the time it takes him to get a cup of coffee."

"At present I can drive into my garage, plug it in at 10 p.m. and it will be ready to go again at 6 a.m."

CRUISING SPEED

Top cruising speed of the ElectricCar will be 50 mph, for best economy on battery usage. The car, designed for the commuter down town driving, will go approximately 120 miles before a recharge—according to how it is driven. At present it takes eight hours to re-charge the system, but the Amarillo men are working on a 15 to 20 minute re-charge method.

ElectricCar Has 40-Million Market In U.S.

"There are 40 million second cars in the U. S. that are never driven more than 12 to 17 miles per day," D. L. Cotton Whatley said, explaining the potential of the ElectricCar, which is designed especially for town driving.

Cars are no longer a luxury, but a necessity, he said, and figures show that the average person spends $750 per year on his family auto.

"And how many out-of-town trips does a family take in a luxury car per year?" he asked.

Statistics show most persons take about four trips per year, with the rest of their driving done within just a few miles of their homes.

"You'd be surprised how hard it is to put more than 50 miles per day on your speedometer for just in-town driving," Whatley said.

"Say you buy a stripped car for $3,000," he speculated. "It costs $750 just to drive 12,000 miles each year. It also depreciates $2,000 in three years."

"In three years you've spent $3,000 plus $4,250 for a $3,000 car."

This is where Whatley, his corporation officers and the Littlefield backers see the real potential in the ElectricCar—an economical new second car for town driving.

"Even without the air pollution problem many parts of the U. S. are leaving, there is no end to the possibilities," Whatley said with an enthusiastic nod of his head.

Whatley said he felt sure the car can sell as fast as it could be produced.

Cotton Whatley predicts a million electric cars could be sold in Los Angeles, Calif., alone.

No Limit Known To Electric Speed

There is no limit to how fast an electric car can be made to go, inventor Cotton Whatley said, "if you just put enough volts in it."

Whatley said it would be a very simple matter to give the ElectricCar more speed than its present top speed of 50 mph.

"I always get weird ideas," Whatley said.

"A lot of voltage builds up. If you can trap this voltage, it'd make a lot of difference." His light blue eyes almost disappeared in the crinkle of his smile.

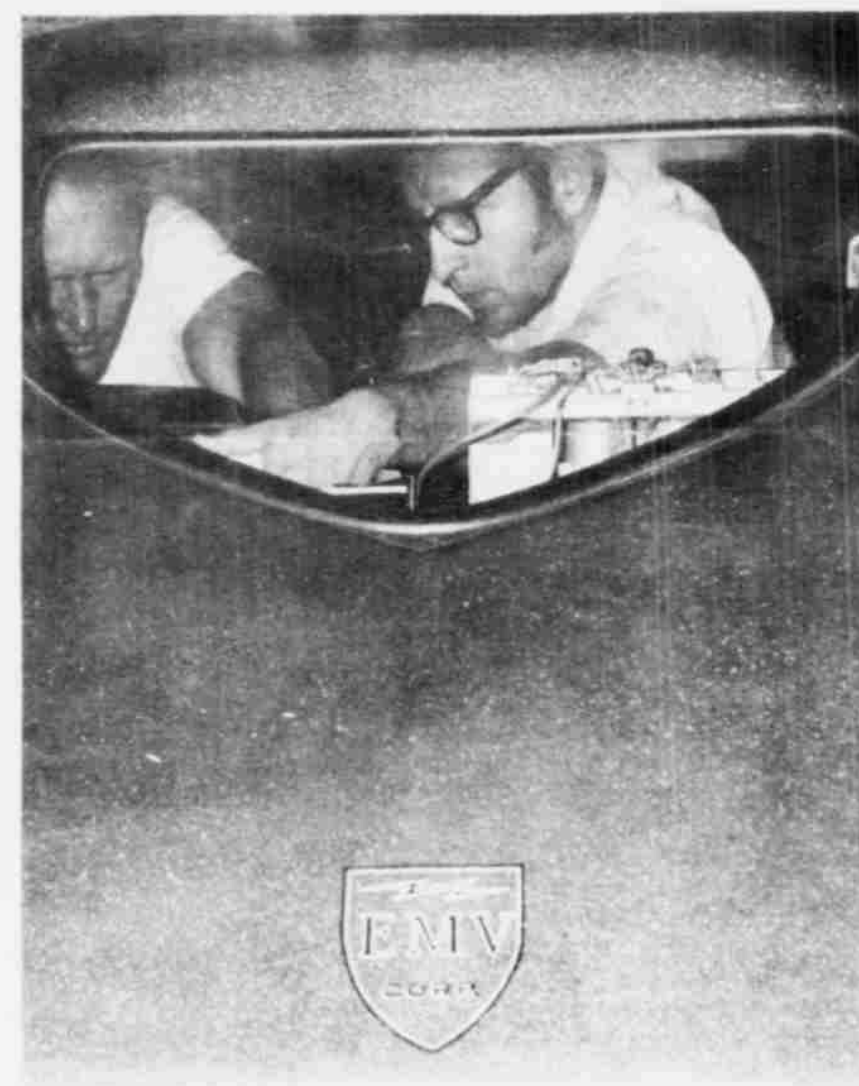

"I'm working on this principle right now," he said running his fingers through the wavy blond hair that dictates Whatley's nickname Cotton.

EIGHT BATTERIES

The ElectricCar will be equipped with eight six-volt batteries, weighing 70 pounds each, and are to be re-charged according to usage.

STARTING UP Palo Duro Canyon, the 2000-pound car, driven by a 5-horsepower electric motor, began a 700-foot ascent in 1.1 mile. EMV's ElectricCar made the grade with ease.

ELECTRICAR

SPECIALIZED HELP—Technical advice is made available to the ElectricCar development by Dr. Alfred Kraus, former professor at West Texas State University and now owner of a Canyon research company. He is shown through the car's rear window, on the right, tracing a problem with Whatley.

Car Dealers Want Franchise

Oddly enough, the persons showing the most interest in becoming franchise owners for the ElectricCar are used car dealers, Cotton Whatley said.

Since the ElectricCar is primarily for in-town driving, it is logical to assume that the ElectricCar will hurt used car sales, he said.

Whatley said he wasn't surprised at the number of used car dealers that want the ElectricCar franchise for their town.

"A man going to and from work buys an old junky car that ten good, twenty dollars him to death," Whatley said, "and he spends $300 to $400 on gas and expenses in a year."

"An electric car with total expenses of about 50 cents a week appeals to him."

Whatley says even wealthy people have indicated that they would like to have one of the best cars manufactured, just for a hunk.

"The days of prestige in auto are gone," Whatley said. "Millions drive old cars. You can hardly tell by the status of the owner any more by the make and shape of the car he drives."

Desire, Not Sheepskin, Built Car

Ironically, not one officer of the EMV Corporation is an engineer—nor even a college graduate.

President D. L. Whatley is an oil salesman and is putting himself out of business with his electric car.

When Whatley made his first electric car and gained national publicity he was selling Amalie oil and traveling approximately 50,000 miles per year.

"The Amalie people felt that my fooling with electric cars was a conflict of interest," Whatley said. "They told me to either quit the electric car business or the Amalie oil business. I chose to quit them."

Whatley now sells oil in 54 counties for Air Speed Oil Co.

Whatley's practical electrical experience comes from 12 years of electrifying oil fields.

"When labor was scarce, I electrified oil fields so that a person could stay in the control shack and keep wells going five miles off."

"I've always had a bug for electrification."

Vice president Glen Cowser works for the government in the helium plant near Amarillo. He is assistant branch manager.

Secretary of EMV Corporation is Jim Finch. Finch is employed by Southwestern Investment Co.

Jim Baker invented the control of the ElectricCar. Baker sells musical instruments for the Tolzien Co. in Amarillo.

Control Unit Is Unlimited

President of EMV Corporation sees no end to what can be done with electric motors operating under the firm's patented control unit.

Two years ago, Cotton Whatley made an electric bicycle with a front wheel drive, so he could peddle when he wanted to.

The motorized bicycle was made from his little girl's bike. "But 25 m.p.h. is entirely too fast to travel on a bicycle," he said. "I learned that when I nearly got killed on it."

"I've got some more ideas now. I'm going to build another bicycle one of these days, but my wife doesn't know about it yet."

"There's a lot of potential for such bicycles. Eighty per cent of the people in France ride bicycles, and 90 per cent of those in Tokyo travel by bike. Lots of people like to get out on pretty days and cycle."

"I'm going to build an electric lawn mower without any cord, too. With two six-volt batteries, you could mow the grass half a dozen times without recharging."

"There'd be no starting, no cord, no pistons, lines nor gas. No nothing. I think this would go over, too."

Youngsters Say They Like It

Kids get plumb bug-eyed over the ElectricCar.

"Boys just flock to my garage," Cotton Whatley said. "They want the car—electric car or not."

"What'll you take for it without the motor and batteries?" they ask.

"Kids want to put a high powered gas motor in it," Whatley said.

"When you take the batteries and motor out, it only weighs 700 pounds."

"Man! It would be practically air-borne. That'd be one heck of an automobile."

WHERE IT ALL HAPPENED—Construction of the ElectricCar, and most of its testing, has all taken place in this two-car home garage of Cotton Whatley's in Amarillo. He says he and his partners did the work in the evenings and on weekends, as all have been working on regular jobs.

Paul McCormick Is Credited With Littlefield Selection

Why has the EMV Corporation chosen Littlefield for its site to build the first ElectricCars?

Paul McCormick deserves a great deal of the credit.

Paul became personally acquainted with Cotton Whatley when Whatley was area sales representative for Amalie Oil.

"I told Cotton that Littlefield wanted his product when he got ready to put his electric car on the market," McCormick said.

Paul McCormick made numerous trips to Amarillo and set the spark that enthused Littlefield Industrial Corporation to push the project.

"The interest Littlefield showed is the reason we picked your town," Whatley said.

Other towns making a plug for the ElectricCar were Quanah, Wichita Falls, Canyon and Dumas, Whatley said.

Whatley said Littlefield's location was another factor. "Littlefield is just 30 miles from the biggest trucking center in the Southwest (Lubbock)," Whatley said.

Whatley said the EMV officers considered the potential labor force in and around Littlefield also.

With the small towns that surround the town, he said he felt the labor force would be adequate.
