3 Assistant Coaches Get Board Approval

A seventh member of the coaching staff was added and boys' long hair was subtracted, but most of the time was devoted to re-employing faculty for 1971-72 at a regular school board meeting here Friday

Trustees accepted seven resignations at the session, including five from coaches who will be leaving as a result of re-organization of the athletic department and the employment of a new head coach last month.

Resignations came from Jim Jefferies, basketball coach; Lyndon Gathright, John Goubeaud, Jerry Trees and Larry Allison, assistant football coaches. All are effective at the end of the school year.

The other two faculty members who resigned are Mrs. Loda Hardin, first grade teacher who is planning retirement at the end of this school year; and Lindal Nelson, vocational agriculture teacher whose resignation is effective July 1.

IN ADDITION to re-hiring the faculty, the board approved names of three assistant coaches submitted by new Athletic Director Jerry Blakely.

Jim Weaver and Robert Bolton, assistants to Blakely at Olton, will be coming here as varsity line coach and freshman coach, respectively

Rod Hinch, now a graduate assistant at Eastern New Mexico and a former high school head coach in Iowa, was employed as varsity defensive secondary coach. The addition of a seventh man to the staff, approved by the board after a request by Blakely, means that three more coaches will be employed. One will be for basketball, another for junior varsity and the third for 7-8th grade. Blakely explained that he, Weaver and

Hinch would be working with the varsity next fall, and that the board's approval of the seventh man would allow a schedule to be worked out so that two men would be available to work with each of the other teams at all times

With the seven-man staff, Blakely said, 'we will have enough coaches to make certain we can teach fundamentals at all

Blakely emphasized the need for the additional staff member in other sports, program, he said, particularly in view of the board's plans to expand the girls' basketball program in the next two years.

BLAKELY'S DUTIES here will begin here April 19, the start of the last six weeks of school.

Although his staff will not begin work officially until two-a-day's in August, he hopes to recommend names for the three remaining vacancies by the time of the school board's April meeting

Weaver will be the first assistant. The 30-year-old coach received his bachelor's degree in 1968 from ENMU, where he was football letterman. Originally from Spearman, Weaver was an assistant coach at Clovis one year before going with Blakely to Olton in 1969.

Hinch, 25, is a graduate of Westmar, Ia., College, where he was a football letterman. He was head coach at Manilla, Ia., High School two years before going back to his alma mater for a year as a defensive secondary at ENMU and is in the process of completing his master's Bolton is a Littlefield High graduate of 1964. The 25-year-old coach received a master's degree from Texas Tech in 1970. then completed his first year of coaching experience last fall at Olton under Blakely. His wife, Judy, also graduated from Littlefield High, in 1966.

IN OTHER ACTIVITY at the trustee meeting, the board reappointed the tax equalization board of last year, approved recommendations of the textbook committee and determined the order in which names will be placed on the trustee election ballot in the April 3 vote.

The equalization board, composed of Floyd Coffman, Don Joyner, James Cook and E. C. Hardeman, will hold its first meeting May 13.

CHARLES RICHARDSON

An Undercover Farmer

By NILAH RODGERS

Can you call a guy with one-third of an acre of land a farmer?

Charlie Richardson farms by the square foot-12,000 square feet to be exact-and the Internal Revenue Service lists Richardson's occupation as a farmer.

He isn't a windshield farmer, but a shirtsleeve farmer wouldn't miss it far. Any season of the year Richardson works in his shirtsleeves in his climate controlled tomato hothouse that produces about 40,000 pounds of vine-ripened tomatoes

Richardson has been growing tomatoes indoors for six years, and according to him, "that's the only way to grow tomatoes in West Texas." He bases his decision on one attempt at regular tomato farming when he was hailed out and lost 4,000 plants.

His farming is now confined indoors, and his third of an acre produces as much income as most farmers make from 320 acres of good land. "And at considerably less expense, too, I might add," Richard-

He uses a Ford tractor once a year when he chisels 12 to 14 inches deep, and a tandem disc is used to pulverize the ground behind the chisels. If there is any more tilling needed after that, a hand-operated rotary tiller will do the job.

The ground isn't worked any more after the plants are put in. "But there's always something to do in a green house, Richardson added, "if you're looking for and watered twice a week. Richardson and three part time employees work an average total of 60 to 70 hours per week. And the working conditions are ideal. Daytime temperatures are from 75 to 80 degrees and seven big fans with temperature controlled switches pull the air through the building so that there is a complete change of air every 27 seconds. The full length of the west side is covered with evaporative air-conditioner units to cool the greenhouse through Before Richardson got into the tomato business, he was an accountant for Texaco 20 years, then he was business administrator for the Robstown public school system for three years. His first three years of tomato growing was at Robstown, and he has been operating the green house just outside the Littlefield city limits on the Bula Highway for three years.

Plants are pruned and kept on strings,

His 12,000 square feet will successfully support 2,500 plants at a time, and he grows two crops a year. The first crop produces from the first of October to about Feb. 1. Then the plants are replaced and the second crop produces from April through August

By the time his second crop is harvested area field grown tomatoes are ripening 'But I've had people tell me they'd rather have my tomatoes the year-round, Richardson said.

There is always a bigger demand for tomatoes than Richardson can supply The market is almost unlimited, said. All of Richardson's sales are wholesale to stores in Littlefield, Anton, Shallowater and Lubbock. Richardson makes all the deliveries, because he likes to add this personal touch and visit with the people who buy his tomatoes and learn first hand how they are being received.

Tomatoes are cut when they are in their second pink with a special clipper that leaves the green calax. The bright green stem is the trademark of a hothouse tomato. Experiments have been conducted by greenhouse operators putting the tomatoes on market without the green stem and they don't sell because people have learned to associate the green top with vine-ripened and the stemless varieties as those pulled green

After trying about 25 varieties, he's settled on Tuck Cross 520. Richardson grows his own plants from

In addition to growing tomato plants for his own use, he grows tomato, pepper and petunia plants and sells them to the same stores that buy his tomatoes. This gives him an additional outlet, yet keeps him out of retail trade.

CHARLIE RICHARDSON displays a box of tomatoes ready for delivery. His 12,000-foot green house successfully supports 2,500 plants that produce 40,000 pounds of vine-ripened tomatoes in two annual electric air conditioning

OVER 30 YEARS OF PROVEN DEPENDABILITY

Just like your refrigerator, electric air conditioning uses the same experience-proven method of cooling. A dependable compressor keeps on cooling no matter how high the outside temperature.

LOW OPERATING COST

Before you buy, be sure you have complete information. Electric air conditioning saves you money when you buy and because it uses only electricity and free air, your operating cost is low ... no extra installation costs, either!

HIGH ALTITUDE - NO PROBLEM

Despite our high altitude, electric air conditioning keeps on doing its job because the electric cooling method is completely sealed against the effects of altitude changes.

CHOICE OF BRANDS

There are 58 manufacturers of electric air conditioning and all major brands are available in our area. Brands in your area are listed in the Yellow Pages or identified on your neighborhood dealer's store front.

CHOICE OF SIZES

Electric air conditioning offers the right size for your cooling job. Too large a unit makes your first cost unnecessarily high: too small runs up operating cost. Electric air conditioning can save you money on both counts.

COMPLETE SERVICE

The principle of electric air conditioning is so well understood and the parts so easy to change that any air conditioning man can give you service quickly should you ever need it.

In addition to academic subjects, Russian children are taught to work in the schools. Each child from kindergarten through high school has to work one hour each day. Upon graduation, the student is required to work two years for the state.

Miss Pillow stated "the temperature while she was behind the iron curtain was between 5 degrees to 25 degrees below zero all the time, and snow was everywhere." LIKE I'VE advocated before, life without rules ain't much fun!

These patrolmen are the refrees of the game, and should be respected for their work's sake. Especially for the law and order they represent.

Yeah, I know-it makes you mad to get a traffic ticket .- When all you did was run a stop sign!

Oh, the speeding tickets hurt, too. Especially when you were only doin' ten

SO, YOU SIT over your coffee and tell your neighbor what a sorry lot our patrolmen are. This is really UNHELPFUL especially when you tell your kids a similar story

Suppose, fr' instance, you're a highway patrolman You're faced with the job of keepin' the highways safe. You, after a

YET, IN SPITE of all your efforts, it's an almost daily job to investigate and report on the accidents that are constantly happening on our highways. Many of these leave people mangled, dead, or crippled for life!

It's your job to be at the scene before any bodies are removed. You see the blood and bits of flesh, maybe parts of bodies strewn over the roadways.-These are the very people you're trying to protect!!

YOU MAY HAVE the feeling that you've let them down.

So?-You call the ambulance and the wrecker, in that order, and begin to try to piece together the reason for this tragedy. whether excessive speed, drunkeness, or, pure carelessness.

AND THIS GOES on time after time and week after week!

Do you wonder, then, how a Highway Patrolman can be so cold-blooded as to give you a ticket for violating the laws of our highways? I think, as for myself, that I'd be a pretty hard-hearted officer!

AND WHILE YOU'RE at it, heave a sigh for the ambulance drivers and the wrecker drivers that have to clean up the mess!

Don't look to me for sympathy if you're ticketed for violation of the laws. I paid mine without complaint!-(Almost.)

THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Give Heed

By BOB WEAR

GIVE HEED, pay close attention, is one of the essential guidelines for satisfactory living. Success in living by this guideline is made difficult by the numberless demands being made for our attention.

We are bombarded day after day by these multi-voiced demands. This goes on to the extent that we may become totally distracted, unless we expend great effort to make our own choices about what receives our attention.

MUCH OF THE DISTRACTION is just meaningless noise. Some of it comes from individuals and organizations wishing to use us or what we have for their own profit. Some of this is offered for amusement and entertainment Then, there are the troubles of the world, about which we can do nothing. This can be a constant source of distraction.

IF WE GIVE AWAY to the multiplicity of distractions which surrounds us, we will not be able to give heed to the things which are important to us and essential to our well-being. It is better to choose our own life fashion, than permit ourselves to be fashioned by the influences imposed upn us.

IF WE SUBMIT to these distractions, we will be something less than well-developed human beings. We will have given our thought, time, ability, energy and money to the things which others have chosen This is a very inferior living if, indeed, it can be called living. The right sense of choice is fundamental in learning to give heed to what is worthy of our attention. We must learn what to ignore, and what is worthy of our close attention. This means that we must develop and maintain a true value system.

WE HAVE THE obligation and the right to choose the things to which we wish to give heed. Of course, this is a privilege, too; and one of our greatest privileges. If we are wise, we will choose the important things.

GIVE HEED TO SELF. It is imperative that we give close attention to our own self so we can manage our own lives wisely. We must respect self before we can respect others. We must love self (not selfconceit) before we can love others.

We must form the proper value of self before others mean anything to us. Therefore, we must give heed to self in order to be the kind of person we can respect, and love, and appreciate.

GIVE HEED to obligations. All of us have obligations which are uniquely our own. We have our work to do; our family to provide for; financial obligations to meet; our citizenship responsibilities; our contribution to the common good, etc. We must not permit ourselves to be distracted to the extent that we may neglect any of these obligations. GIVE HEED to opportunities. We have opportunities for self-improvement; for learning helpful information; for doing useful things; for making our lives count for something worthwhile; and, over all, opportunities to keep doing our best.

GIVE HEED to saving the time-tested and time-honored principles of truth and right; the good and wholesome things which must live, if they live at all, in the minds and lives of the people who care. Let us give heed
