Area Hail Suppression To Be Talked At Meet

All persons interested in the nine-county hail suppression study are urged to attend a regional meeting Tuesday, Jan. 6, at 2 p.m. in the Hale County Agricultural Center in Plainview.

The ag center is on the south side of Plainview on business route U. S. Highway 87.

The hail suppression study conducted by Atmospherics, Incorporated in California reports to the Texas Water Development Board (TWDB) that 50 to 70 per cent of the damaging ball storms that occur on the South b ans and Panhandle of Texas can be prevented by seeding threatening clouds.

The TWDB reviewed and passed on the report but failed to take action on additional phases of the program due to a lack of funds.

This program can still be utilized, according to F. F. Calhoun, Plainview farmer and member of the TWDB's Weather Modification Advisory Committee, is local support can be found. As many representatives as possible from Lamb, Hockley, Hale, Swisher, Briscoe, Floyd, Castro, Lubbock and Crosby Counties are asked to attend the Tuesday meeting. Calhoun said the program needs evidence of support, especially.

Two-Car Accident Damages Heavy

The official holiday death watch for the Texas Highway Patrol ends tonight (Sunday) at 11:59.

Major traffic accidents for Lamb County were surprisingly light through Christmas and New Year holidays despite hazardous road conditions following the Sunday snow storm.

Ironically, the wreck causing the most extensive damage occurred in a funeral procession

A Denison minister, Elza Barton England, driving a 1962 Chevrolet, hit the 1966 Pontiac in the procession in front of him, driven by Mrs. Callie B. Houston of 801 N. Sunset in Littlefield

The accident was Friday afternoon west of the Embry Gin on FM 37 while the body of Herbert Roberson was being taken from Amherst to Springlake for burial

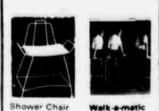

Department of Public Safety official Bill Angel investigated the accident and estimated damages of $400 to each car. There were no personal injuries.

Wedding Vows Said In Brownfield Church

Double ring wedding vows were exchanged in Union Baptist Church at Brownfield between Troyce Ann Phillips of Brownfield and Billy Jap Anderson, formerly of Spade, in a ceremony Sunday afternoon, Dec. 28. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Troy H. Phillips of Brownfield and Mrs. Jap Anderson of Anton.

Rev. Cletus Caswell, pastor Union Baptist Church, officiated for reading of the vows before an arch of greenery, centered with a kneeling bench and flanked by tapered candle arrangements on each side.

Troy Phillips presented his daughter for marriage. She wore a formal-length gown of white alencon lace and peau de sole, featuring a scooped neckline and column sheath skirt. Lace beaded appliques were scattered over the bodice and skirt, and tiny covered buttons accented the back.

Her chapel-length train flowed from the shoulders to the floor and was accented with lace beaded appliques. An Indian head penny placed in her shoe by her father was her "something old"; her "something new" was her wedding gown; "something borrowed" was the veil, which she borrowed from Mrs. Troy Tolbert of Amherst; and her 'something blue'' was a garter. Mrs. Dennis Givens of with her father, Ralph Rudd of Springlake, who has been confined to Methodist Brownfield was matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Karen Phillips of Levelland and to John Sealey Hospital in Galveston Saturday. NEW YEAR'S dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Feagley were her brother, his wife, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McCain of Littlefield. Louise McNiel of Brownfield.

They wore royal blue, apire style, floor-length empire gowns with bodices of crushed velvet with long puffed sleeves, and skirts of peau de soie. They carried pale pink carnations tipped in royal blue.

Best man was Jimmy Dale Anderson of Anton, brother of the groom.

Groomsmen were Billy Wright of Lubbock and Allen Bingham of Spur.

Serving as ushers for the guests were Hollis Ballard of pur: Bobby Faught of Brownfield, cousin of the bride; Gene Huddleston of Denton, brother in law of the groom; and Dickie Faught of Brownfield, junior usher, is cousin of the bride.

My ole Dad is trying his best to make enough money to send me thru college before he gets too old to work (you see he was old enough to be my grandpa when I was born), so as an incentive I persuaded him to have a lucky 25. THE ABUNDANT LIFE

Simplify Life

MANY PEOPLE CARRY an overburden of life. This is obvious from all of the available evidence. There is, however, nothing about life, wisely lived, to cause such overburden. Most of this heavy load is made up of unnecessary complexities and complications.

MOST PEOPLE WANT to change, and they can change.

Of course, there are some folk who use busy-ness as a regular form of escapism.

There is, however, no good reason why we should be always in a rush; never having time to do anything as it deserves to be done. This way of living is not fair to anybody.

There are, no doubt, many relatively unimportant demands made of us. Yielding to these is a great loss of time, energy, ability and life itself. We must reject the unimportant and unnecessary activities, so we can handle effectively the truly important things. There is much we can do to control our lives, and thus simplify them.

IT MAY BE THAT OUR LIVES have become cluttered with too many activities; good, better, best, and some not even worth the doing.

If this has happened, it is urgent that we drop them. This will not be difficult to do if we honestly try. The truth is that it will be a continuing process.

A CAREFUL LOOK will reveal that some of the activities of life are overlapping. We can make changes and adjustments that will help simplify life.

This careful look will also reveal that some of the things we do are of no value to us or anyone else. It should be easy to drop these.

TO SIMPLIFY LIFE, we must first choose well-tested guidelines for living, and let them serve their rightful purposes.

Then, the remainder of the life pattern will be a continuing re-arrangement of activities which we can either do or leave alone.

WE DESERVE SOMETHING BETTER than a life that is strained, harassed, fragmented and generally miserable because of unnecessarily over-crowded days. We have great potential for useful, efficient and happy living.

It is better to do a few things, important things, well than spread ourselves thin in futile efforts to cover so many activities-not doing any of them well.

All of us can, in reasonable degree, control our reactions to the demands made on our time, energy and strength.

SIMPLIFY YOUR LIFE and live more abundantly.

Dear editar:

Although I fought against it, at the turn of the year I had to make a trip into Lubbock and the man I was riding with got caught in a traffic jam, cars in four lanes backed up for 15 or 20 blocks in both directions with all motors running and I have concluded the articles I've been reading in the newspapers lately about air pollution are right. It's terrible.

Then last night, after reading another article, I got to thinking and have figured out what we ought to do about it.

There are five divisions in the association starting with Division V and working up to Division I. Fifty points are required to go from the fifth division to the fourth. It takes 150 points to move from Division IV to Division III, and the points become greater as officials advance. Points are accumulated along with experience. Referees get a half point for each junior high and junior varsity boys' game, one point for Class B through AA high school boys games and junior college games, two points for AAA and AAAA high schools and three points for calling senior college games. There aren't any points given for calling girls' games. Making an obvious bad call is embarrassing to the officials. "Once you make a call, you have to stick to it," Vaughn said, "whether it's right or wrong.

There are some funny moments, too. "I was calling a game at Springlake-Earth," Vaughn said. "They had a rubber mat in front of the benches that ran the length of the court, and this would give with you. I was trying to get down court to cover a play and my feet flew out from under me and I sprawled all over the place-not just once, but twice in the same game. It was pretty funny to the fans, and I just laughed it off, too."

Christmas came and went, the Indians remained.

Now, in their second month there, leaders of the sit-in are beginning to convince Washington that this is more than just "another minority protest." These occupiers are citing terms of the 1868 treaty with the Sioux permitting Indians 'to have and use any unoccupied federal lands."

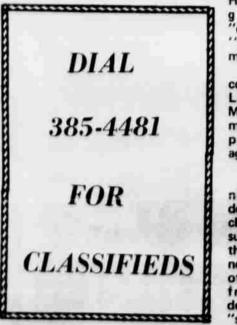

THE WORD "UNOCCUPIED" is subject to a number of interpretations but it is a fact that Alcatraz has lain fallow since its abandonment as a federal prison in 1963.

BUT THAT OUR ANCESTORS chased them from their homelands and herded them onto reservations was perhaps less cruel than the manner in which subsequent generations have tended to kill them with kindness. The various government agencies which you support for the care and feeding of American Indians have a combined annual budget in excess of $500 million. That is $1,200 per Indian

THERE IS ONE PAID government official for every 18 Indians.

Yet, poverty is everywhere among them; 60% of Indian children never get to high school or half of those who do drop out. And health problems are at the crisis stage in many areas.

AMERICAN INDIANS living in California, for example, have a life expectancy of only 42 years. The average Californian lives 62 years. California's Public Health Department blames widespread 'alcoholism, malnutrition, poor sanitation, birth defects and infectious diseases" on California's bleak, unproductive reservations.

INTERIOR SECRETARY Walter Hickel acknowledges that our government has been overprotective," says the Indians "must be brought into the mainstream of American life."

Yet Hickel's choice for commissioner of Indian Affairs, Louis Rooks Bruce Jr., son of Mohawk father and a Sioux mother, is perpetuating the paternalistic attitude of that agency.

Hello, how are things getting along with you in the newspaper business. Tell all that I said hello. I am doing fine at this time. I am getting ready to go out into the field where all the happening is.

I am with the 25th Inf. div. here in CU CHI. I am going to Tri Nan (they call it Rocket City.)

Does Bob Hamilton still work for you...if so tell him I said hello.

How was your Christmas this year? Bob Hope came up here, I got to see him. I want you to send me a paper for a year and I will send you the money for it. Tell me how much it is.

Before I came over here I thought that it was bad, but so far it hasn't been too bad. So you all put in a prayer for me and write once in a while. And have a wonderful New Year.

Well, I will close my letter for now, but never my friendship.

Burglary Cleared

County officials have cleared the theft of the colored television set from the Tim Campbell home. The property was found in a Lubbock pawn shop, and a warrant has been issued for an arrest.

Two more burglaries occurred in Lamb County this week.

Vandals got only $4 when they broke into the High Plains Fertilizer plant Tuesday, but more than $525 in damage was done to office machines and the building.

Entry was gained by breaking out a window in a door on the west side of the building. One dollar in change was taken from the soft drink machine after it was pried open. Another dollar in pennies was taken from the chewing gum machine after it was broken. The office safe was pried open and four $1 bills taken, and the office ransacked.

Kenneth Campbell of Olton reported a 16-foot white Haynes stock trailer taken from his property the day after Christmas.

"Many legislators who worked on the new code would have wanted to outlaw common law marriages altogether regardless of age-but work on the model statute of the bar association was not completed in time.

"Before common law marriages can be outlawed, there must be laws written protecting the legitimacy of offspring of common law unions," the opinion states. Mrs. Willey states that only she, as county clerk, will issue the "declaration and registration of informal marriage" forms from that office. "If couples are of age and if one of the party is a Lamb County resident, the form will be issued to the couple."

"In the event minors come in-males under 19 and females under 18-identification will be required and the parents will be notified of the registration," Mrs. Willey emphasized.

The new law gives parents a greater control over their teenage children by allowing them to file annulment suits when underage youngsters marry without consent. This applies to both ceremonial and common law marriages," Mrs. Willey said. "Previously, parents had no legal right to sue to annul their offsprings' marriages," she emphasized.

"Such annulment suits must be filed within 90 days after the marriages," the law states.

Please God, Help Us!

In every man's life there is a moment when he is inadequate to the forces he faces. At such a time only his moral integrity will sustain him.

Those who have based their lives on their own strength inevitably will face the time and the place when that strength is insufficient to the necessity of the moment. They will crumble unless they know that they are never alone ... that there is a power that can and will help them, no matter how terrible the times.

The man who has learned to rely on God can draw from this source of never-failing power and with resurgent strength face his future, unafraid.

with their families.

THE WADE clan got together, Dec. 25 for Christmas in the home of Mrs. E. G. Wade in Levelland. What made the occasion unusual was that Mrs. Wade was admitted to a Littlefield hospital early Christmas morning, where she remained until Dec. 31. Since all the gifts were under the tree and the turkey was baked, the family proceeded as planned. Afterward, they went by to visit with their "Mom" in the hospital. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wade, Linda and Cynthia; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wade, Judy, Larry and Kathy; Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Wade, Sharron, Randy and Greg, all of Whitharral; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wade, Butch, Sissy and Terry of Hereford; and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wade, Shane and Shannon of Lubbock.

THE ROBERT AVERYS are entertaining Miss Venia Mahood of Girlstown, for several days. The Averys went after Venia Tuesday and she attended the Whitharral boys and girls basketball games at Pep, with the Averys Tuesday night.

THE BILL STONES spent the Christmas holidays with Bill's parents in Amherst, Mr. exchanged gifts. Mrs. W. R. and Mrs. W. P. Stone. The Bill McDaniel accompanied the Stones have recently purchased the Lums Chapel Store from the A. T. Whites.

THE WHITHARRAL Future Homemakers and Future Farmers held their annual Christmas party at the Steak House in Levelland. Linda Wade, president of the Future Homemakers, welcomed the guests and introduced the speaker, R. B. MacAllister, State Representative for Lubbock, Terry and Hockley Counties. Carl Hoelscher, President of the Future Farmers gave the response. Omar Tripp, Whitharral Agriculture teacher gave the invocation and Charles Addington gave the benediction. There were 44 Future Homemakers, Future Farmers and guests present for the steak dinner.

THE DORCAS and Lydia Sunday School Classes of Whitharral Baptist Church held a joint Christmas party, Tuesday night before Christmas, at the recreation hall of the church. Mrs. J. M. Mixon gave the devotional, "The Christmas Story," while Mrs. Jo Waters portrayed Mary beside the crib. The group sang Clevenger, Joli, Mike and Mitch Christmas carols and exchanged gifts. Mrs. W. R. Rodgers and the hostesses.

Their practical work involves rything they need to know and all the close they need to go directly into as beauticians. They take beauticians. They take on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and give them the works-shampoos, sets, colors, bleaches, permanents, facials, manicures and pedicures.

For these services a small charge is made by the school to help cover the cost of supplies. There is no earning for the girls while they are learning. "We only get to keep the tips," Rita said, "and since most people don't know this, we don't get very many." Even after adding a tip to the tab, the bill is still small. Hair cuts are free. A shampoo, set and comb out is 50 cents. The students give permanent waves, tints, frostings, and bleach hair, too.

"No one has come out with green hair yet," Rita said.

"Nor purple," Cynthia added. "Our instructor watches us pretty close."

Rita and Cynthia have both had some embarrassing moments while shampooing, however.

'When you're washing someone's hair and the hose flies out of your hand, water gets all over the place," Cynthia said. Both girls admit "drowning" two or three customers at the shampoo bowl.

Their instructor, Mrs. Lavern Palmer, said getting a firm grip on the water hose is the first thing she warns students about.

"But it's hard to get used to, and there's a lot of pressure," Rita said.

The course isn't all curlers, colors and comb outs. The text book deals with bones, muscles, sanitation and nerves. There is a personal development program in addition to this.

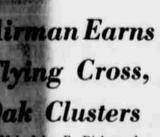

Each school sending students to vocational training is responsible for getting participants to the Levelland vocational building and back to their own classes each day.

Mrs. Palmer is a firm believer in the course and believes extensive vocational training is a thing of the future. Students get three credits per year, or six, for the two-year program.

Most of the girls taking the cosmetology course do not plan to go to college, and the ones who do want to continue their education are taking the course to earn money to continue their education.

"The course isn't limited to becoming beauty operators alone," Mrs. Palmer said. "There are lots of fields beside shop work. They can go into research for technical tinting, sell for cosmetic and coloring companies, get on the state board, or even go into vocational training," the teacher said. "I'm sold on the program."

Slow Vehicle Emblems Gleam

Bright orange and red triangles visible more than a fifth of a mile away will tell drivers they are approaching the rear of a slow-moving vehicle beginning the first day of 1970.

The Texas Safety Association advises mobile machine owners and operators that the new law states all vehicles designed to travel at speeds of 25 miles an hour or less must have approved emblems affixed on the back three to five feet above the road when on public streets and highways.

If the emblem on a towing vehicle is visible at all times, the law exempts the machine being towed.

Farm and Ranch Vice President Joe L. Smetana of TSA wants Texans to know the new law is attacking rear-end collisions by specifying a standard emblem easy to see at a safe distance both day and

War II, the nation's major scap makers unveiled synthetic detergents as their miracle answer for washday blues. Then, in rapid succession, they brought out low-suds detergents, detergents that worked in cold water, detergents with special optical brighteners, even detergents with little blue dots, all hailed in their time as the key to a whiter, brighter wash.

Now the big three of the laundry industry-Procter & Gamble Co., Colgate-Palmolive Co. and Lever Bros.-have still another solution for the home laundress' lament-enzymes. Television commercials depict laundry enzymes as hungry little creatures that eagerly gobble down stains too formidable for ordinary detergents.

Newspaper ads laud enzymes as "a new, different ingredient." Edward J. Bock, president of Monsanto Co., proclaims that laundry enzymes, which Monsanto makes, are "the most significant advance in the detergent industry in the last 20 years." But now the Wall Street Journal reports that not that nonenzyme detergents used as presoaks did "as good a job on most of the stains" as everyone shares that view. Consumer Reports, a consumer-oriented magazine, studied the presoaks last January and yawned, "Ho hum, another washday miracle." The magazine said that popenzume determents

New Soap Enzymes Debatable

In the new-product explosion that followed World the enzymes had an edge, the magazine said it was on blood and gravy stains, where "some very slight differences" were detected.

Consumer Reports was equally unimpressed with enzymes packed into detergents. "Whatever it is that enzymes do in a presoak, they do it slowly; it seems unlikely that enzymes would be very effective against stubborn stains during the short time of contact in a wash cycle," the magazine asserted. "From the ad man's standpoint, however," Consumer Reports continued, "enzymes open up a whole new world of pseudoscientific mumbo jumbo." And, concluded the magazine, "It isn't hard to guess what the future holds-an almost certain price increase." Similar criticism of the new detergents came from across the Atlantic. The British Consumer Association, another nonprofit consumer group, matched up the nonenzyme and enzyme detergents recently and concluded they worked just about as well. Chas Pfizer & Co., the drug and cosmetic maker, told the Wall Street Journal it has proof that its enzymes work. It says that clothes washed for 10 minutes in a nonenzyme detergent came up to only 56% of the maximum obtainable rating when measured on a light meter for their ability to reflect light. Addition of the company's enzyme, Pfizer boasts, increased efficiency to

In their private utterances, however, some of the soap makers are more restrained.

How To Avoid A Heart Attack ...

The world's imagination has been stirred by the recent transplantation of human hearts – the most dramatic surgical feats of the century.

But, spectacular as they are, these operations have not changed the basic situation as far as heart disease is concerned. And that situation is serious: Heart disease affects an estimated 22 million Americans and causes more than 1 million deaths each year.

Can this tragic loss be curtailed? It can, say the medical experts. They tell you how and why, in the following discussion. The questions were asked of a group of California doctors by the San Francisco Examiner. If you have further questions, you should consult your own doctor. The questions here are the kind any patient might ask his physician.

Q. What causes a heart attack?

A. A heart attack is not primarily due to an abnormality in the heart muscle itself, but rather is the result of disease in the coronary arteries which supply the heart muscle with blood. Like other arteries in the body, they are subject to deterioration, in what is called atherosclerosis or "hardening of the arteries."

This occurs when deposits of fatty material build up in the inner lining of the arterial wall, gradually narrowing the channel through which the blood flows, much as accumulated rust will clog a water pipe.

Q. What is a heart attack?

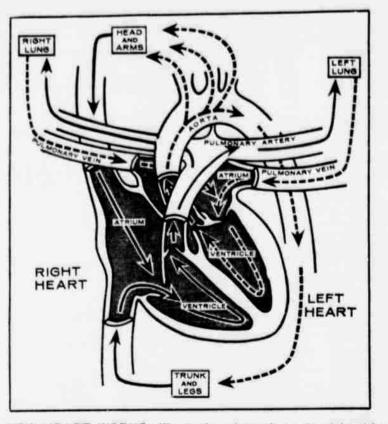

A. When the narrowed arterial channel becomes blocked by a blood clot (thrombus) the blood supply to a portion of the heart muscle is cut off. This muscle (myocardium) is strong and active, constantly contracts and relaxes, and demands an ample supply of blood and the oxygen it carries. The portion now deprived of its supply is severely damaged by the lack of oxygen. Most of the damaged muscle, known as an infarct, will die, and scar tissue will form. The edges of the damaged muscle may be supplied by surrounding arteries, and may recover.

The term "heart attack" is the layman's way of describing this process. The medical terms for heart attack are coronary thrombosis, coronary occlusion, or myocardial infarction.

Q. What causes atherosclerosis?

A. It tends to be most common in the middle years, although it can appear earlier. Heredity may be a contributing factor. An increase in the lipid (fat) or cholesterol content of the blood, cigarette smoking, and stress are suspected of links with atherosclerosis.

O. What are the symptoms of a heart

HOW HEART WORKS: Illustration shows how the right side of the heart receives blood from the body and pumps it through the pulmonary artery to the lungs, where it picks up fresh oxygen. The left side of the heart receives this oxygen-full blood from the lungs and pumps it through the aorta back to the body.

And How To Survive If One Occurs

instructions does strengthen his chances of avoiding a recurrence.

Q. Is angina the same thing as a heart attack?

A. No, although in both the heart muscle is not getting an adequate blood supply. Angina (technically called angina pectoris or coronary insufficiency) is a pain in the chest, due to a temporary lack of adequate oxygen by a portion of the heart muscle. Unlike a heart attack, the blood is not cut off completely and and treat the underlying cause. Patients are usually given digitalis, which has a seemingly magic power to increase the strength of the heart's contractions. They may be given a diuretic to stimulate kidney action and thus reduce edema. Patients are urged to slow down their pace of living, to ease the strain on a heart which is already having difficulty carrying its load. A low-salt diet is attack?

A. The most common symptom is severe pain and a sensation of pressure on the front of the chest, sometimes spreading to the arms or throat. The focal point is under the stemum (breastbone).

The pain is usually accompanied by profuse sweating and sometimes by intense shortness of breath, nausea and vomiting. Occasionally the patient may be unconscious. Almost any of these symptoms alone might indicate a different disorder, but whenever they are present in combination, a doctor should be called promptly.

Q. How is a heart attack treated?

A. The primary aim is to promote healing in the damaged tissue, which becomes a weak section in the muscle wall. As healing takes place, the injured area is replaced by scar tissue, which gradually toughens until the heart is able to resume normal activity. That's why rest is the single most important element in the treatment of a heart attack.

The doctor may give morphine to relieve pain in the early days of the attack, and oxygen may be administered.

Q. What is the outlook for the person with a heart attack?

A. For most people it's good. Heart attacks are fatal in only a minority of cases, and those who survive the first few hours or days have an increasingly favorable prognosis. The length of the healing process depends on the size of the artery involved, severity of the attack, and presence or absence of complications.

The average patient should expect to stay in the hospital several weeks. Activity is resumed gradually. The diet may be restricted, either to lose weight, restrict intake of cholesterol and or salt, or for all these purposes. Most patients can anticipate a return to full time work and normal family life, though they may be advised to be moderate in all activities.

Q. If I have had one heart attack, does that mean I will certainly have others later on?

A. Not necessarily. Second attacks do occur, but are not predictable with certainty in the individual patient. However, the cardiac patient who faithfully follows his doctors' the heart muscle is not damaged. However, a narrowed coronary artery, though ordinarily adequate, may prove incapable of supplying enough blood to the heart when the patient is physically active.

Thus the pain characteristically comes on with exercise and is relieved by standing still or sitting. It can also be brought on by excitement. Some persons with angina may have a heart attack, but many people have mild angina for years and never have an attack.

Q. Can anything be done to relieve ingina?

A. Yes, it can be relieved promptly by nitroglycerine tablets, which dilate the coronary arteries.

Patients are usually advised to take this before engaging in vigorous physical activity. Some angina sufferers must curtail their physical activity, stopping short of the type of exertion which produces pain. More frequently, they are advised to take a moderate course with respect to exercise, resting when necessary and avoiding anything excessively strenuous.

Q. What is heart failure?

A. This describes what happens when the heart's blood-pumping efficiency is reduced. It is not a total failure, but a weakness of heart function, and it usually develops because of a disease such as high blood pressure or a leaking heart valve.

Blood pressure in the veins goes up because the heart cannot pump away all the blood they carry to it. Because the circulatory system is below par, some fluid in the blood may seep out and accumulate in surrounding tissues, causing edema or swelling – a common symptom of heart failure. The fluid frequently collects in the legs and ankles, but it may also go to the lungs, causing uncomfortable and sometimes alarming shortness of breath.

Q. Can heart failure be relieved?

A. Yes - although the most important aspect of treatment is to find helpful.

Q. Can diet prevent a heart attack?

A. There is no guarantee that any specific course of action will prevent a heart attack. However many doctors, noting the association of heart attacks with a high blood cholesterol level, believe a reduction in cholesterol is a wise precaution.

This means to avoid animal fats, butter, cream, and other high cholesterol foods such as eggs, shellfish, liver, kidney, and brains. Fish and poultry contain less saturated fat than meat. The an i mal fats are replaced by polyunsaturated fats – such as liquid vegetable oils and low-saturated margarines – which lower blood cholesterol.

There is also a medicine, clofibrate, which tends to lower the blood cholesterol. In any case, it's wise to control the weight, since overweight persons are particularly prone to heart disease.

Q. Is smoking bad for the heart?

A. Yes, in the opinion of most doctors. In one significant study, the health of more than 4,000 men – all free of coronary artery disease at the outset – was followed for 6 years. The death rate for cigarette smokers was more than 3 times that of non-smokers, and the primary cause was heart disease. Smoking increases the turbulence of blood flow and thus speeds arterial damage.

Q. Does exercise prevent a heart attack?

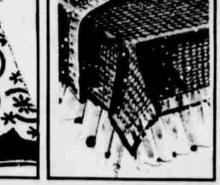

A. There is growing evidence to suggest that the ability of the heart to meet emergencies is strengthened by calling upon it regularly. When the muscles are exercised, the rate and force of heart action is increased, and, in effect, the heart is exercised as well.

Although regular exercise does not guarantee a heart attack will not occur, heart disease is particularly prevalent among men who lead sedentary lives. It is important that exercise be regular (rather than in great bursts of weekend activity) and that it be vigorous enough to make demands on the muscles and the circulatory system.
