YORK—The nation's top rowing teams will be splashing their way to Lake Onondaga for the annual "Blue Ribbon Regatta" this year.

Throughout most of its history as the Marietta Regatta, the event has been a three-mile course, usually and freshmen races held at Onondaga.

At Lake Onondaga, a few miles from Syracuse, there will be no current and there will be no wind to any of the 70 teams. Therefore, crew position will not be a factor in deciding the winners this year as in the past.

California, two of the best crews in the country, have made favorites to win the 25th Anniversary Regatta. The teams were undefeated and had stiff competition on the lake.

Holmes have swept the best of the Eastern Sprint regattas and have beaten the defending champion of the regatta.

Holmes' recent four-year sweep over the Washington

Huskies over a three-mile distance stamps the Californians as a top contender.

Other varsity crews scheduled to fight it out at Onondaga are Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia, Syracuse, Washington, Stanford, Wisconsin, M.I.T. and Princeton.

More than 50,000 fans are expected to attend the classic. A special "ship-to-shore" communications system will keep the spectators informed of the progress of the crews, as they proceed over the three-mile course.

In addition to the grandstand fans at the finish line and onlookers along the shore, more than 250 boats of all descriptions will be anchored to a "log boom" for the last mile of the strip.

The first event on the day's program will be the two-mile race for freshmen crews. This will be followed by the three-mile test for varsity.

The varsity event concludes the day's athletic festivities.

This being an Olympic year, the crews will be using the Regatta as a tune-up for the Olympic trials to be held July 3-4-5 on Lake Quinsigamond near Worcester, Mass.

About a dozen eight-oared shells are expected to compete for the right to represent the U.S. at Helsinki.

Holmes Was A Fall Guy

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK — The Boston Braves' officials using poor judgment and poor timing when they fired Tommy Holmes as manager.

Thirty-five games are not enough in which to judge a team, although at times the Braves gave a horrible example of major league ball both at the plate and in the field.

The Braves' brass forgot that Holmes did a fine job in piloting the team into fourth place last season after taking over for Billy Southworth last June. They forgot how he helped Willard Marshall and Sam Jethroe and how he most certainly could have helped younger players as he did in leading a fine Hartford team as a freshman manager last spring.

"It was with regret that Owner Lou Perini and I decided to drop Holmes as manager," General Manager John Quinn said here after the Braves had dropped three straight to Brooklyn and departed for Cincinnati.

"We have a lot of respect for Tommy's ability," Quinn continued, "but we feel that he has not had enough experience."

If lack of experience is the reason for the popular 34-year-old Holmes being replaced by the 53-

CHARLIE GRIMM
A Switch of Brave Chieftains in Mid-Stream

year-old Charlie Grimm then Perini and Quinn had better study the roster that represented the Braves this spring. Holmes has been made the patsy for front office shortcomings.

At one time or another since the season opened on April 15 Holmes had a veritable kindergarten. He had 14 rookies on the squad. Naturally, they were not there by his choosing but rather because the Braves' brass decided changes had to be made to bring fans to Braves Field.

The rookies, and even the veterans, failed to get going and when adverse weather hit Boston, Perini and Quinn didn't know which way to turn. Of 20 scheduled home games they played 10 dates and drew less than 42,000 fans.

When the change in managers was announced only one Brave was hitting above .276. That was Walker Cooper with .309, but Big Cooper can't play every day.

The Braves still could finish in the first division if they keep pitchers Warren Spahn, Vern Bickford, Max Surkont and Jim Wilson. This is a fine nucleus for a hurling staff although neither Spahn nor Bickford this spring has shown his best form.

When Holmes was asked to step down, the Phillies and Cardinals, two other teams counted on to fight the Braves for third place behind the much stronger Giants and Dodgers, were not much better off. The Cubs and Reds were in the first division. Experts believe they were there on a lend-lease basis or until the stronger teams find themselves.

A glance at the hitting records of these two clubs will give the answer. Hank Sauer was leading the league. Frank Baumholtz ranked right behind Stan Musial and Toby Atwell was above .300 for the Cubs. The Reds had Joe Adcock, Ted Kluszewski and Bobby Adams above .300. The Braves had fellows like Sid Gordon, Earl Torgeson, Marshall and Jethroe but of this quartet only Gordon, at .271, was hitting above .223.

You can't win with a team average of .230, which is what the Braves had under Holmes this spring.

"Maybe the Braves tried too hard to win for me," Holmes said in Cincinnati while brushing away honest tears. "They are a wonderful bunch of fellows and I know they will try just as hard for Charlie."

That's Tommy Holmes, sincere to the end.

It certainly wasn't his fault the Braves' rookies weren't ready for the big jump, that the veterans failed to hit and that the team fielded poorly. He lost out due to the failure of others. But he's not the alibi type. He's too big for that.

The answer in Boston appears to be slow veterans and inexperienced rookies. Tommy Holmes shouldn't feel too badly because managers have been known to lose their jobs for less. We admire Holmes for many things, one of which is the fact that even now he has failed to waver on the young players the Braves brought up.

Holmes may be back as a big league manager some day but until that time comes he has some illustrious company—Marty Marion, Bill Dickey, Billy Herman and even Mel Ott—fellows who failed to win when they made the big jump from player to major league manager.

Seed Testing and Certification

A Tested Seed Label on a bag of seed unlike Certified and Registered Seed Tags—does not guarantee that the seed is of high quality. But the label giving an analysis of the seed, does tell the buyer what he is getting for his money.

We have made great strides in recent years in the testing, cleaning, handling and marketing of field seeds, and our field seed crops make available to the farmer the highest quality of seed possible to produce, at moderate price.

Seed crops also assure the producer-farmer a high return on his production, for today more of the consumer's dollar goes to the seed producer than to the producer of almost any other agricultural product. The grain farmer gets 2.8c, or less than 20% out of a 16c loaf of bread. The dairyman gets roughly 50c of the retail price of a quart of milk. But the producer of alfalfa seed, for example, gets 67% of the price paid by the consumer. And the producing farmer gets as high as 70c out of the retail alfalfa seed dollar.

Here are some "tips" from the seed testers in the state laboratories:

Pay particular attention to the germination percentage given on the Tested Seed Label. The seed may be of high or low quality, and you will save disappointment later—perhaps even loss of crops—by turning down seed labeled below standard for germination.

Don't buy seed which contains Dodder, the parasitic plant most common in clover, alfalfa and flax. Dodder may kill the host plant, and the Eastern states, comprising about 70% of the market for Texas growers of alfalfa and clover seed, will not accept seed containing Dodder. If seed contains Dodder, the Tested Seed Label will say so.

Treat seed with commercial dust according to the directions on the container. Many samples submitted to the state laboratories show detrimental reactions from over-treatment, which causes rotting and abnormal conditions in germination such as watery condition and club roots. If over-treated seeds are planted, rotting is likely to continue in the field.

Submit clean samples to the laboratory. Samples of clover seed especially have been very dirty, containing chaff, stems, dirt, Johnson grass and other feed seeds. The laboratory is obliged to set a dirty sample aside and request that the seed be re-cleaned and another sample submitted.

Watch out for some fly-by-night seed "bootleggers" in the state who are selling unlabeled seed.

Dad Rates Better Since Father's Day Began

Father's Day is just around the corner. So dust off that easy chair. Stand by to hoist anchor and go sailing. Cater to his every whim, and no back talk for at least 24 hours—come Sunday, June 15.

This royal treatment, from Dad's most loyal subjects, is even prescribed on the 1952 Father's Day greeting cards. One of which offers this bit of advice—

Enjoy yourself, just
Do it as you please
The whole day long.
'Cause don't forget
You're a KING today
And kings can do no wrong!

Good ol' Dad, however, has received some pretty hard knocks in days gone by. Back in the Stone Age, for example, fathers were frequently challenged to mortal combat by their grown-up sons. After the brawl was over, Junior became captain of the cave, if victorious, and ruled the family until he also was overthrown.

In ancient Greece an annual festival honored Zeus, father of the gods. Zeus was also the patron of human fathers. But though his sacred statues were crowned with new laurel wreaths each year, the traditional gift to Dad was simply a cluster of ripe grapes.

Dad's authority reached rock bottom in India. There, if he fell in debt, Mom could sell him into slavery to pay off the creditors. And in the African Sudan, even today, a wife may return to her parents after bearing five children, leaving you-know-who to look after the kiddies.

Here in America, Father's Day provides the perfect answer to such goings-on. It's our way of paying tribute to fathers everywhere. And it has been since Father's Day was first celebrated back in 1910.

Undulant Fever Season

This is the season when an increase of undulant fever may be expected, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

An undulant fever patient suffers from chilly sensations, or severe shaking chills, sweats, and high fever. The patient loses weight and becomes weak. If the illness is of mild type, the patient may find it hard to remain in bed, but if he tries to keep on with his work he finds he has not sufficient energy.

Symptoms often continue for a number of weeks before recovery occurs. Fortunately undulant fever has a low death rate. Body temperature may reach a higher mark each day than the day before for some time, and then gradually return to normal over a period of several days. Fever may be absent for some days and come back again in the same way as before, registering higher each day and then gradually going lower. The patient's temperature chart will resemble smooth waves or undulations. The appearance of the temperature curve in typical cases has given this disease the name undulant fever.

Undulant fever is one of the infectious diseases known to be transmitted from animals to human beings. In hogs and cows, the germ produces a great economic loss because it causes contagious abortion. When this same germ invades the human body, the resulting disease is undulant fever. Prevention is dependent upon (1) eradication of the disease in farm animals, (2) careful pasteurization of dairy products, and (3) avoidance, in so far as possible, of direct contact with infested animals.

BUSLOAD OF PECOS RODEO BOOSTERS WILL VISIT LITTLEFIELD FRIDAY

A busload of boosters from Pecos are due here Friday on the first leg of their three West Texas tours mapped over 1,560 miles as a neighborly means of telling folks in this region about the annual West of the Pecos rodeo, July 2-5-6.

Headed by Tour Director Glenn Stafford and escorted by Pecos Police Chief Sam Walding and Reeves County Sheriff Charlie Fitzgerald, Jr., the boosters will visit in this city from 9 a.m. to 9:20 a.m.

While here they will introduce themselves to as many local residents as possible, extending invitations to all West Texans to attend any or all of the four night performances. They more than likely will present a street program, featuring Western songs by pretty Pecos cowgirls.

The group will spend Thursday night in Lubbock after having stopped that day in Andrews, Seminole, Lamesa, Tahoka, Post and Slaton. On Friday, June 13, they will visit Littlefield, Levelland, Brownfield, Seagraves, Hobbs, N.M.

and Carlsbad, N.M. Similar tours are slated June 19-20 to the San Angelo area and June 26-27 to the El Paso region.

Producing the show this year will be the Beutler Brothers of Elk City, Okla., nationally-known for their wild and rugged rodeo stock.

Sidelight attraction at the rodeo will be appearance of the Hendricks family, top U.S. stunt riders and specialty act performers. The act includes two brothers, Byron and Lee, and Lee's wife, Ann.

Manager of the rodeo is Jess Burner, vice-president of the sponsoring Pecos Rodeo and Fair association.

The load of grain was brought in by Erceel Keeler of Hale Center, who several years ago, brought in the first load. Thursday's load measured 118 bushels with 40 pounds to spare. The grain was number one wheat, testing 60.2 pounds to the bushel, and having a moisture content of 11.97 percent. Spites In Philippines Smolder

FRANK L. WHITE
 P. Laurel, probcontroversial politithe Philippines, is be-friends to campaign again in 1953.

Laurel said Queson had asked him to stay "and do what you can for the Filipino people." During the occupation, the invaders set up a puppet government and placed Laurel at its head.

In the meantime Queson died in the United States.

Trip to Japan

After MacArthur's forces returned to the Philippines Laurel went to Japan. He was charged with treason after Japan's surrender and brought back to Manila. However, in February, 1948, congressional approval of amnesty for more than 1,000 Filipinos freed him of the charges. A month later he announced his candidacy for president.

Laurel's friends insist that his charge of being counted out in the 1949 presidential race is justified by the recount of votes in the contest of ex-justice Claro M. Recto in the senate race of that year.

The electoral tribune reported a recount showed Recto, also running on the Nacionalista ticket, received 250,000 more votes than were credited to him.

Vote Dispute

Laurel's friends say he received as many votes as did Recto and that the 500,000-vote margin given Quirino over Laurel and an independent candidate, Jose Avelino, would be wiped out by a recount.

However, Philippine law makes no provision for a contest of the official vote for president and vice president.

Laurel is represented as believing that the collaboration issue, which Quirino raised against him in 1949, has died out completely. He and his adherents point out that Quir-

CHRYSLER AWARDED SCROLL

Queen of the Tournament of Roses, Miss Nancy True Thorne, presents a scroll to Joseph A. The presentation was made in New York in connection with the annual ceremonies held by All America Rose Selection naming the finest roses of the year. The Chrysler Imperial Rose, which is considered the ideal red exhibition rose was developed by Dr. Walter E. Lammerts of California.

How Father Has Changed

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
 Ap Newfeatures Writer

With Father's Day in the offering, it seems a likely time to find out what kind of gifts an average young father was interested in receiving from his adoring offspring.

The first gentleman we addressed expressed a strong desire for 194½ feet of drainage tiles and the price of a laborer for one day to help dig trenches in which to put said tiles.

Another fellow yearned for two yards of bluestone, another, for a hand saw; another wanted a metal lawn rake and still another wanted a new pair of blue dungarees. The last man interviewed got a dreamy look in his eye and spoke about a post-hole digger.

This, it must be admitted, was not a scientific sampling which reached into all segments of the population. It was, on the contrary, taken among fathers in the under 45 group living in their own houses in the suburbs. A couple of urban fathers contacted expressed interest in photographic development material and golfballs.

All of the answers, however, served to emphasize the change which has occurred in the father business since the days when Father was routinely called "Papa," sported a formidable pair of sideburns, got about in a horse and buggy and generally was regarded as the lord of the castle.

I'm an ardent reader of the memoir and it is my impression that almost every upper-middle class father of the Victorian period was a man of vast dignity, of age beyond his years and the disciplinarian of his family. Papa presided over his dinner table. Papa was regarded with awe and some degree of fear by his offspring. Papa was the person who made the decisions in the family, whether it was the vacation to be spent in the mountains or at the shore, or whether little Willie was lying about the disposition of his Sunday School money.

Today, Papa is Dad or Pop, and most of the time deliberately deports himself as a sort of genial older brother of his kids. That is, when Pop isn't playing the role of family handyman. Far from acting as a court of last resort in the solution of family problems, Pop is very apt to leave major decisions to Mom, who is in closer touch with the situation and who, besides, has read all those books on bringing up children.

I remember hearing stories of a not-too-remote male ancestor who ruled his large family with the traditional Victorian rod and whose wife habitually addressed him formally as "Mr.," rather than by his first name. The thing that impressed me most was the fact that he usually was served a different menu from the rest of the family. For breakfast, for instance, his pleasure was small game birds or perhaps a little steak. The rest of the family contented themselves with porridge, eggs and other traditional fare. If the gentleman were alive today, he'd be content with the routine breakfast of the nation, but chances are he'd rush off like so many of his modern brothers to catch his train sustained by a gulp of orange juice and a sip of coffee.

Times, indeed, have changed. Whether the decline of omnipotent Papa, a sort of benign ogre in a hard hat, into Dad, the grasscutter, screen-putter-on, leaky-faucet fixer, third-baseman and quarterback on the neighborhood team, is progress can only be determined by posterity.

Chances are, however, the memoir writers of the future are going to have a rough time piecing together anything like the things which have been published in recent years. Dad will emerge, if at all, as the slightly humorous figure who fell off the ladder when he was trying to get leaves out of the gutter, whose towering rages were directed at the failure of the power-mower to start.

As far as adolescent discipline is concerned, these future stories won't even have any scenes where a young wrong-doer is summoned into the study for a dressing down, or into the wood-shed for sterner action. Most houses aren't big enough for sanctuary used by Papa alone, and obviously a garage isn't the proper surrounding for a walloping. Besides wallopings are slow in coming back.

EVER buy a telephone? Ever receive a bill for telephone repair or maintenance, or the many feet of wiring that connect your telephone within the house? The answer, of course, is no. These are items of cost you never have to contend with.

Now, ask yourself the same questions about any of your other home appliances—refrigerator, kitchen range, radio, water heater. Original cost and month-to-month maintenance of such items amounts to a sizable investment.

But, you don't have to buy the telephone or its wiring—that's part of your telephone company's investment. And, monthly telephone bills take care of all operating expenses, as well as a return to investors. No matter how often you use local telephone service, you pay the same for it each month.

Considering all this, don't you agree that telephone service is the biggest value in your budget?
