C. of C. Will Stage First Of Series of Farm Dinners July 10

New Service For Improvement Of Lamb County Dairy Herds

The Dairy Husbandry Department of Texas A&M College has just announced plans for the inauguration of a program which would enable Texas dairymen to obtain young bulls of Holstein and Jersey breeds under lease arrangement from the college. The bulls will not be available for lease until they reach the age of 10-12 months. The lease expires three years from the date on which the bull was picked up by the dairyman. The young bulls made available for lease will be picked from the calves of dams classifying good plus or better and who have two or more records of over 400 pounds butter fat on two milkings a day for a 305 day lactation period. This figure represents actual production. (Continued on back Page)

The first in an annual series of "farm dinners" sponsored by the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce will be launched in the cool of the evening at 8 p.m., July 10. This dinner which will mark the beginning of the third successful season of such affairs will be given at the farm of Fred Lichte in the Oklahoma Avenue Community. Bob Crowell, secretary of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, said that he expected about one hundred business men and farmers to attend, adding that the Chamber of Commerce has plans for "several" more "farm dinners" up its progressive sleeve.

Preparation of the dinner which is an outdoor event is under the capable management of the Oklahoma Avenue Home Demonstration Club of which Mrs. J. M. Griffin is president. Farms dinners are designed to promote a better understanding between the rural and urban citizens of Lamb county and, in this light, are strictly on the "informal" side. Although a master of ceremonies is appointed for each dinner, the program is extemporaneous. The introduction of newcomers to the business and farm communities is a main feature of the evening.

Lamb County Gets One to Four Inches Of Needed Rain

And Lamb county walked in the mud! The heavy thunderclouds which hung around over the Plains area last week finally got down to business late Friday and Friday night, June 27. And when they did, they dumped as much as two and one-half inches of rain on parts of Lamb county to the delight of the farmers. The rains emptied the heaviest downpour on the Sudan-Muleshoe-Olton-Amherst areas. The rains were of great benefit to cotton in that area. Crop Prospects Good During and immediately after the rain, water covered the road in several places between Earth and Olton and in one place between Amherst and Sudan. But all roads were passable three hours after the storm. Amherst's unpaved streets were still soft and muddy enough on Saturday morning to make the motorist think twice before plunging around a corner. But resident farmers, delighted with prospects of a good crop since the rain, were only too glad to take their chances in getting stuck—or could still smile as they swung around an ex-

Her husband and two sons were victims of the severe influenza epidemic which occurred during the winter of 1917. From the early 20s to 1942, Mrs. Parsons made her home in Los Animos county, Colorado, with a daughter. For the past ten years she had been residing in Littlefield. were seated, Albert Miller, manager of J. C. Penney Co. and prominent civic leader, made a short speech of welcome in which he expressed his hopes that the group had had a successful day seeing the county. Around the long banquet table set up in the middle of the room, the visitors from Turkey were seated alternately with Lamb county residents so that the two groups could become better acquainted. As is so often the case in gatherings of this kind, the Americans asked so many questions about Turkey that the foreign visitors had little or no time to make inquiries of their own. Many noteworthy local men who made the tour with the group were present at the banquet. Charlie Harmon, prominent farmer from Amherst; Ray Joe Riley from Springlake, youngest expert on certified seed production in the state; J. D. Jordan of Texas Employment Commission; and many others. Also present was Dr. Eugene Benne from Amherst who has a very personal interest in all Near East affairs, having left Hungary just before the arrival of the Russians. Andy Adams former Lamb county agent from Texas A&M was in charge of the whole three months tour in Texas made by the delegation. He has grouped them according to their special interests in agriculture and assigned them to areas of the state in which they can see particular methods or practices under optimum conditions. On the day of the tour Mr. Adams was not only celebrating a birthday but also the twenty-fifth anniversary of his arrival in Lamb county. David Eaton, county agent, stated that this group of foreign agriculturists would help more than any other "recovery plan" on record to restore anyone's faith in humanity. The Turkish "farmers" are here for one purpose, he said: to learn American farming methods. Mr. Eaton further characterized them as a sincere and congenial group. There is no question in the minds of anyone who made the tour as to the alertness of the Turkish officials. Not only do they ask questions quickly, but they even challenge the local farmers in their statements, proving that they have come forearmed with an amazing knowledge of our own problems and conditions. After dinner, J. B. McShan of KVOW interviewed Kucukdilek Ahmet, teacher at an agricultural school in Istanbul and Bozogli Abdi, chief of the bureau of agricultural machinery distribution at Ankara, the capital of Turkey. In the broadcast which was direct from the banquet table interest centered around a discussion of such questions as the kind of crops raised in Turkey and the acreage of average Turkish farms.

Following the radio interview, the group saw two films made on the farm of W. H. Cunningham which lies five miles southwest of Littlefield. The subject of the films was production and certification of cotton seed and grain sorghum. The ten-man delegation visiting in Littlefield is part of a larger group of fifty agriculturists who are touring all parts of the United States where farming is a major occupation. This particular group who will soon have completed a three month sojourn in Texas will continue their study of American farming practices with a similar three months in California. The Turkish experts are study our agricultural system under several broad, general topics: farm homes, allied farm industries, general farming methods, and community organization. Winding up their Texas tour, the delegation visited on Saturday, June 28 in Lubbock county, and Tuesday and Wednesday, July 1 and 2 at a nearby experimental station.

Cheapest Feeds are Home Grown

Home grown feeds, especially pastures and other forages, are the cheapest and best feeds for dairy cattle. Such feeds, says R. E. Burleson, dairy husbandman for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, can provide the essential nutrients needed by dairy cows to produce liberal amounts of milk.

The specialist urges dairymen to plan for ample acreages of long season grazing crops, abundant supplies of high quality forage and enough grain to supplement the roughages and balance the dairy ration.

Here are some suggestions from Burleson that should help dairymen reach the objective of growing at home the forages and grains needed to take care of the dairy herd. He says determine the capabilities of the land on the farm and a soil analysis will help do this. Then follow good land-use practices and grow crops that are suited to the soil and climatic conditions prevailing in the area.

Following a suitable crop rotation plan will provide the pastures, forage crops for harvesting and the grain needed for the herd, says Burleson. At the same time, the fertility and physical condition of the soil will be improved and this in turn will mean higher yields. All planting seed should be of the best adapted varieties for the area.

A good forage program must provide for plenty of hay and silage as well as pasture. High quality legumes or grass-legume mixtures grown on the farm will meet these requirements, says Burleson but he suggests growing corn or sorghum for silage.

If the pastures are not producing satisfactorily, he suggests renovating and re-seeding permanent pastures to increase yields. The liberal use of fertilizers, and where feasible, irrigation are also aids to stepping up the production of pastures.

Burleson says it may not be possible to get such a program underway in one year but that all dairymen should remember the conditions created by last year's drought and resolve never to let them happen again. Having plenty of silage and hay on hand, at all times, is mighty good insurance against the occurrence of such conditions.

Building Pastures ...

Every acre of cultivated land in Texas ought to be in grasses and legumes three to five of each ten to twenty years; to hold the soil, to keep active organic matter available to produce profitable crops or otherwise to make it pay. That is a thought for the future and is only one of many listed in a new bulletin just released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service—B-197, BUILDING PASTURES.

The author, A. W. Crain, formerly associate pasture specialist for the Extension Service, outlines the steps that should be followed in building pastures. Principles discussed in the bulletin apply to the building job on old cultivated land which is now in broomsedge, needle grass or other low quality forage; former low-producing bermuda, carpet or other pasture grassland that is presently infested with needle grass or broomsedge; land presently in cultivation; timberland or woodland pasture cleared of timber by machinery or poorly drained, brush or "rangeland"—land referred to in this category is "native" land in the Gulf Coast Prairie area.

Copies of the bulletin are available at county Extension offices—county agents. Just ask for the new bulletin on building pastures. At the same time why not start making plans for improving the pastures you already have on the farm. Your county agent can furnish valuable information that can make your job easier for chances are good he can show you demonstrations where the building job is now well underway.

Health Talks

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

The package that mankind comes wrapped in at birth has a heap of stretching and growing to do to cover the same person at 40 years of age that it wrapped up as an infant. If after 40 is a period of continuous spread, the so-called middle-age spread, that packaging has an even bigger job to do.

That package is known as skin and different periods of life are noted for the different aspects of the skin. That soft, velvet texture and peaches-and-cream look of infancy means little to the infant but is the cherished aim of his older female relatives. The hickies and bumps that are the heartbreak of adolescence, the glow that marks the skin during pregnancy, the folds and wrinkles that foretell aging are all part of life's cycle.

A baby's skin is very delicate, and for the first few days after birth should be cleansed only with oil, olive or mineral oil. Some babies are born with birthmarks, either blood-vessel birthmarks or moles. Other babies develop rashes, either from outside contact with substances that are too harsh for the skin or from internal contact with substances that set up a skin reaction.

During childhood the skin is usually pretty well ignored except for stubbed toes, bruised knees and such. And except for the "rash" childhood diseases such as measles, chicken pox and scarlet fever. These rarely leave any mark upon the skin, except for an occasional pockmark for an infected chicken pox.

It is during adolescence that the skin looms so large. Actually, the skin is only one part of the body that is undergoing constant change and activity but since the skin is a vital part of appearance at life's most self-conscious age, all of adolescence seems to be tied in with the skin.

Not only for health purposes, but also for mental well-being, an adolescent with a skin problem should be under the care of a physician, care which includes a program of extreme cleanliness and a diet which excludes certain foods that might aggravate that particular youngster's condition.

There are many changes in the skin during pregnancy, some good and some bad. The skin often darkens during pregnancy, usually more noticeable in brunettes, and may not return to its former lightness after the infant is born. This is sometimes noticeable as a "glow," often enhancing the expectant mother's appearance.

Most pregnant women develop stripes, lines on the abdomen, hips, and breasts during the period of "expansion," and while the streaks fade after the skin returns to normal tension, they do not entirely fade away.

From middle to old age the process of drying up is usually quite obvious in the skin. Hot baths and strong soaps rob the skin of its remaining moisture and should be

Installation Starts on Olton Water Project

Installation has begun on Olton's new water lines.

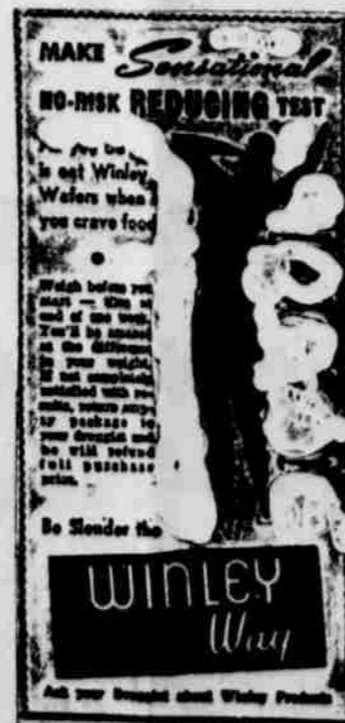

The city's 9500 feet of 6-inch transite pipe to be used as water main arrived last week and installation began Thursday.

Mayor Lefty Hollingsworth said installation will require about three weeks.

Meanwhile, the regular pump has been set at the new city water well.

replaced by tepid baths and mild soaps, often supplemented by oils.

Wrinkling, itching and thickening of the skin are often a part of the picture of old age. The itching is by far the most uncomfortable. At any age, itching may be the easiest skin affliction to cure or it may be the most persistent, most difficult of all diseases to pin down to one cause or to treat effectively.

RODEN - SMITH DRUG Littlefield, Texas

The mayor said the well would be pumped a week before it is hooked to the main. This is to clear it up, he explained.

Mr. Hollingsworth said the FFA boys could plant a crop on the 15 acres of city land south of the new well.

Fabrics Steal Show in Fall Styles

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor

Fabric contrast plays the starring role in the fall fashion drama.

American manufacturers have scored a smash hit this year in turning out a dazzling array of woolsens in new textures, new weights, new colors, providing designers with inspiration for winter costumes of gilded distinction.

Suits for fall, previewed in New York, make much of combining textured and smooth-surface woolsens dyed to an exact color match, for a new tailored look.

Poodle fabrics in feather-light weights are used with smooth, silky flannel for a number of high-style suits and costumes. The silky-napped zybelline also plays an important part in many of the new coat and suit fashions. Textures range from deep-napped to knotted, looped or curled surfaces, many of which look like fur. Colors often are muted by combining with black in the weave of the fabric.

Spongy, chiffon-weight tweeds also are in high favor for fall. At ten paces the fabrics look like heavy, sturdy, traditional tweeds, but on close inspection turn out to be almost sheer. This makes it possible for designers to use them in the soft, rounded silhouettes that point up femininity.

Dress-weight woolsens include a number of shantung-weave worsteds, chiffon-weight zybelline and chiffon flannel, the latter being most popular in yarn-dyed muted colors.

This is a year when fabrics tell the story of fashion, and women can choose fall wardrobes on an investment basis.

longer jacket and feminine curves, in tightly-curl surface fabric with sheared beaver trim; center, the same fur-like fabric is used for a brief fitted jacket in red ember, with a pleated skirt of smooth gabardine that match; right, texture again stars in a suit jacket of brushed poodle fabric dyed to the same rich red as skirt.

Plains Cotton Crop now at 3,305,000 Acres

3,305,000 acres of South Plains cotton is now in the 20-county area, as compared to 2,900,000 acres remaining at last year. The increase in acreage has in-creased 13 per cent over the Clapp said, with a 27 per cent increase in irrigated land and a 19 per cent increase in dry land as compared to July 1 acreage in 1951. This year's crop is practically the same, but losses this year are considerably less than the 665,000 acres of cotton abandoned in June last year. Hail, which took a heavy toll on the area cotton in 1951, has done little damage to this year's crop. Only one report of about 500 acres damaged from hail near Plainview had been reported, Clapp said.

Good Stands Reported
Stands of cotton on 80 per cent of the irrigated farmland in the area are good, and the remaining 20 per cent is in fair shape. He also said that 75 per cent of the stands on dry land were good, while 25 per cent of the dry land cotton was up to a fair stand.

About 65 per cent of the irrigated cotton is two weeks earlier than usual, with the remaining 35 per cent about at the normal stage for this time of year. On dry land cotton, 5 per cent was about a week early, Clapp said, with 55 per cent about at the normal stage and 40 per cent running about one to two weeks later than normal.

Serve Ranchers And Feeder - Buyers

Building a marketing service to meet the needs of livestock producers in the range country, the Texas Livestock Marketing Association, with offices at Fort Worth and San Antonio, handled 433,249 head of livestock, valued at $46,762,476.61 in 1951, according to Jim W. Mitchell, who is executive vice-president of the association. Of this volume, there were 272,972 cattle and calves, 152,712 sheep, and 8,486 hogs.

Serving thousands of customers located principally in Texas and New Mexico, says Mitchell, with a few in Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Louisiana, the trade territory served by the association is equivalent to the combined area of the six major corn belt states, and the many and varied problems confronting livestock producers in an area this size offer a real challenge.

As the major feed crop produced in the Southwest is grass, and as a large percentage of the cattle and sheep grown in this area are in stocker and feeder flesh when sold, one of the most important functions of the Texas Livestock Marketing Association is to be able to serve both ranches and feeder-buyers—providing outlets throughout the nation for ranchers and assuring feeder-buyers of a reliable source of feeder cattle and sheep.

The association was organized in 1930 by a group of leading Texas ranchers headed by the late H. L. Kokernot, Sr. Most of these men were members of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' Association. At the time of organization, livestock producers were having major financial as well as marketing difficulties. At a called meeting, 178 Texans put $1 each in a large sombrero as it was passed. This was the initial financing of

But Clapp pointed out that a good, general rain was needed over the entire area. "A good rain would change the dry land cotton outlook overnight," he said.

"At the present time," he said, "the condition of dry land cotton is critical, with, unless we get rain, about 250,000 to 350,000 acres in danger of dying within the next two weeks. About 150,000 acres have been lost because of drought at the present time," he estimated. President cotton acreage in individual South Plains counties is:

Observes Ladies Night at Amherst Lions Club

Thursday night was ladies night at the meeting of the Amherst Lions club on the lawn of the C. E. Henderson home.

Barbecued beef, salad, baked beans, deviled eggs and homemade pies were served to more than sixty people.

Horace Holt, whose term of office as president will soon be concluded, presided and welcomed the ladies and other guests.

Dr. T. M. Stemmmons, boy scout leader told of the good record made by the local troop at Camp Post recently. They were "troop of the day" the last day at camp, which was a signal honor.

V. M. Peterman who was with the scouts part of the time at camp, told of the need of a troop banner. The Lions voted to purchase a banner, since they sponsor the local scout troop.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John W. McQueen of Olton, Mrs. Honora McAutechon of Hutto and W. C. Adams' mother, who is their guest.

Ladies of the Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service served the meal at two long tables.

The Texas Livestock Marketing Association—one of the strongest marketing organizations in the U.S. today.

From its small beginning as a livestock cooperative marketing agency, it has steadily progressed until today it has a membership of nearly 6,000 livestock raisers in addition to many customers who are not members. These members, at the annual meeting each year, vote on new directors and other business matters of the association. Each member has one vote, whether the association handles one or a thousand head of livestock for him.

Fire Destroys Jacques Home

The Gerald Jacques home located near the Earth skating rink was gutted by fire at 3:15 Wednesday morning of last week, burning all the family belongings.

According to fire department officials the blaze started near a bed in the home but the origin was unknown.

The sleeping family was awakened by the fire and luckily escaped unhurt.

The Earth fire department was somewhat handicapped in battling the blaze as no water was available except the amount stored in the fire truck tank. Only two fire plugs are located south of Earth's main street, those being near Earth Motor company and the ice house, furthermore the fire hose, in action, extends less than 600 feet.

One new fire plug is now being installed near the J. D. Newton home.

Ferguson Said To Be World's Largest Producer Of Single Model Tractor

Ferguson tractors have come off the assembly lines at a rate of better than one a minute, eight hours a day, every working day since the first of the year, according to an announcement from Harry Ferguson, Inc., Detroit, Mich.

Riley & Burt Implement Company, 1009 East Delano Ave., Littlefield, are local dealers for the Ferguson tractors. They invite farmers not familiar with Ferguson tractors to come in for a free demonstration, stating that if you want to "see real power lick those tough jobs on your farm, call on us today

According to a statement by Horace D'Angelo, executive vice-president and general manager, Harry Ferguson, Inc., the Detroit company and its British affiliate, Harry Ferguson, Ltd., in Coventry, England, together are producing well over 500 tractors each day.

"This output," D'Angelo stated, "is believed to make Ferguson the world's largest producer of a single model tractor—essentially the same model everywhere with certain modifications to better adapt it to local fuel supply or operating conditions. Ferguson's world leadership is all the more noteworthy since it has been attained in less than four years since the first Ferguson tractor rolled off the line in our Detroit plant, and since the English company began production only two years earlier.

"In addition to its tractor production, the Ferguson organization has been producing approximately 1000 farm implements per day.

IS THIS A BIRD?—Real lesson of San Angelo, above, is laid down the highways in the south here in the country that goes on. It disappeared near a stream of bushes, but a thorough search revealed what the bird species had taken to the woods and it had returned now to the country, with a better chance of finding its mate.

Harvest Gets underway in Hart and Springlake Areas

Harvest got underway in the Hart and Springlake communities. Refrigerator cars of potatoes are being shipped a day from Denver from the Hart area. The potatoes are being processed and packed at the Hart potato shed. The potatoes are being processed and packed at the Hart potato shed. The potatoes are being processed and packed at the Hart potato shed.

About 30 workers are employed at the Hart potato shed where the potatoes are being washed, graded, sacked and loaded onto refrigerator cars for shipment to market. Potato harvest is expected to continue to mid-July. A government inspector inspects the entire operation at the potato shed. He checks grading, washing and shipping conditions and certifies the graded potatoes. The government inspector at Hart is R. M. Kennedy of Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. Williams has been raising potatoes for the past six years. This year he has 40 acres of potatoes on the Roy McFadden farm 5 miles southeast of Olton. Rex McFadden has 11 acres on the same farm. Mr. Williams says irrigation facilities, the growing season and soil conditions of this area are particularly well adapted to growing of potatoes. He also pointed out that potatoes are a quick money crop. They are planted in March. There are only about 10 days during the growing season that the crop is in danger from hail, he declared.
