Highway 51 Association is Well Represented by Lamb Co. Group

Highway 51 as a State and International Highway was thoroughly discussed with the State Highway Commission and Highway Engineer at an open hearing in Austin, Monday, November 15.

After discussing the general needs for the highway, each county judge or special representative from each of the 16 counties through which Highway 51 runs were called upon to give a picture of what was needed at present.

Definite approval of locations were asked for in Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Hookley, Terry, Upton, Crockett, Pecos and Terrell counties.

Judge L. R. Crockett, spokesman for Lamb County, asked for the completion of the Spring Lake to Castro County unit and the grading and drainage from Spring Lake South to Herring Gin, a point five miles north of Littlefield.

The Highway Commission was very sympathetic and complimented the counties for their fine spirit of cooperation. They stated they had already made a thorough study of the possibilities of making this an international highway.

Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, brother-in-law of C. J. Duggan of this city, as president pro tempore of the senate, became acting governor of Texas Monday, when Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodul left the state, going to New Orleans.

Woodul has been acting as chief executive since last week when Governor James V. Alfred went to Mexico on a hunting trip.

In the flower-decked office, Oneal conducted routine business, including granting an extradition, restoring hunting rights to a man who had forfeited them and signing a bill reducing the term of the Comanche county district court to seven weeks.

Soon after beginning his duties, Oneal jocularly announced he would not call a special session of the legislature. He could have done so if he had wished for the acting governor has all the powers of the regular one.

"I still add one political announcement," Oneal said. "I will not be a candidate for the governorship next year."

CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $2,500.00 GETS STARTED

Funds To Be Had Before Building of Structure Is Started

Plans are underway for the building of a new Salvation Army Hall for Littlefield.

This announcement was made Tuesday by Dr. Ira E. Woods, President of the Salvation Army Advisory Board for this city.

A campaign got underway Tuesday morning to raise $2500.00 with which to erect this building. Several locations have been considered by the group, and it has been decided to build the structure on lots 11 and 12, Block 37, which is located on 6th Street, one block east of the R. & G. Laundry, on which an option has been secured.

The proposed structure will be a frame building about 52x28, in which will be an auditorium, living quarters for the officers, and a basement for the holding of Sunday school, carrying out of relief work and for storage space.

A Salvation Army Representative from Headquarters at Dallas will arrive in Littlefield about December 1 to assist the local unit in the campaign for funds, to which business men, farmers and all others interested will be asked to contribute. It is the plan to first raise $2500 before the building is started, so that when erected, it will be free of debt.

In an interview with Dr. Woods Tuesday, he said:

"We will raise the $2500 necessary to build it, or it will not be built, as we are not going to erect a Salvation Army Hall and have a debt against it."

"The money subscribed will be deposited in a special fund subject to return to subscribers if the hall is not built."

"Capt. Trummell, Cadet Bridges, local Salvation Army Workers, and a number of other ladies are starting out today to call on as many as possible in an effort to get started on the project."

TWO PRISONERS BREAK JAIL HERE SUNDAY

Bill Ford, in Jail On Car Theft Charge Still at Large

Bill Ford, recently recaptured prisoner, again escaped the Littlefield jail Sunday evening, about 7 o'clock believed to be by the use of a key made from a comb.

George Dotson, negro, also escaped at the same time, but on going home to the Flats for his clothes, his mother is reported to have notified Constable T. L. Matthews, who went out and apprehended him.

Ford, 25, was arrested at Muleshoe in June of this year, and charged with the theft from Sudan of an automobile, and lodged in the Littlefield jail.

Later, on August 27, he opened the jail door with a key fashioned from a spoon, and about two weeks ago was captured by Clovis officers, who notified Deputy Sam Hutson who went to Clovis and brought back the prisoner.

Dotson is in jail on a hog theft charge.

Officers are on the lookout for Ford, and it is expected will return him to Littlefield soon.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT

Monty Wallace has just arrived in California, having broken the East-West cross country airplane record. Natalie Wade, mistaken by him for a newspaper reporter, writes the exclusive account of Monty's arrival, and succeeds in securing a trial job with a paper in exchange for the story. Natalie becomes attached to Monty.

Although she discovers Monty's love for her is not sincere, Natalie admits that she loves him. She is assigned by her paper to report Monty's activities for publication. Jimmy Hale, the newspaper's photographer, becomes Natalie's co-worker.

Natalie interviews Jabe Marion, a wealthy airplane builder, who decides to build a record-breaking 'round the world plane for Monty. Marion's daughter, Sunny, exquisitely beautiful, is attracted to Monty. She invites Natalie to dine with her, when they meet the aviator unexpectedly.

She did manage to get a thermos jug of water from the field office and she sent all this to be loaded into the cabin plane which Monty was now using.

They got off with no one the wiser. Sunny and Jimmy Hale paid no attention to the boys who put the sandwiches and drinks aboard. Monty did a neat bit of pretending when he badgered Natalie to ride with him.

With apparent reluctance she went aboard, sitting close beside him in the narrow forward cabin of the plane.

The rear seat space had been used for auxiliary fuel supply so that there was no great comfort for two persons in the craft but it did not matter on so short a flight.

Natalie had never been aloft before but she gave the matter little thought. Monty Wallace, she knew, was an expert pilot. That was enough for her. During the take-off she was watching as best she could to see whether Jimmy Hale suspected her purpose and at the last instant was sure he did.

Reverberations of the motor made conversation difficult even in the little cabin, and Natalie was content to be quiet. She had time now to note that they were rising slowly as Monty set his course for the peninsula across the Border.

She had a strange feeling that they two were in a small planet of their own winging through space; that they were the only inhabitants and that nothing mattered but themselves. There was a thrill in the thought. A world with Monty Wallace was world enough for her.

She settled herself beside him and he smiled across at her but said nothing.

Hour after hour they winged over the brown California countryside. It was a glorious, golden afternoon. The roar of the motor lulled the girl into deeper contentment. She gave herself up to the ecstasy of each moment and was sure that success must somehow be theirs on this sudden journey.

When she moved a little, hunting for a more comfortable position after an hour or two, he shifted so that his arm went about her and he drew her toward him. It seemed the natural thing in their flying little world and she let herself lean pleasantly against his shoulder.

It was some hours before they began their search in earnest.

"Keep an eye out on your side," Monty shouted at her. "If you see anything, signal and I'll circle. Watch for smoke in unusual places or for any sign of a wrecked plane."

She nodded but when she found that there were mountains and sandy wastes alternately below, she suddenly realized how futile was their quest, for almost any of the dark valleys might hide the two men and their small plane.

"I'm afraid it's no use," she cried once and he cut the motor to reply.

"There's a chance," he said. "I got into trouble down here once and I'm headed for the same place. There are down currents in some of these valleys that you don't expect. We may not be able to do much tonight but in the morning there's a possibility."

The girl had known that they must spend the night somewhere on the peninsula but she had given it little thought. Her reputation might suffer but it was a matter of life and death for the two pilots and she could not think of herself in their extremity.

It was true, of course, that there had been no need for her to make the trip but it was a chance to help the lost pilots and do a good job for the paper as well. She offered a little prayer for their success and scanned the distant earth more eagerly than before.

But there was still no sign of the men and the impression grew on her that only sheer luck could bring them to the rescue in time to be of any service.

Once they passed another plane and veered toward it till they discovered that it was another searcher. For an hour or more, however, they had been beyond the territory of the rest of the hunt, and Monty still flew with that serene confidence that gave her hope.

When the shadows below grew so long as to be grotesque and they knew that the quick night would presently close them in, Wallace headed the plane for the open country and just as the sun sank over the horizon he set it down in a careful landing as near as he could to a patch of low woods that indicated the presence of water.

They had not for some time seen one of the small coast villages or any other human habitation.

When they had climbed out and stretched cramped limbs, Monty's first thought was for the safety of his own plane and from a tool compartment he took iron stakes and rope with which he fastened it securely.

"Let the wind blow now," he said when he had finished. "The ship will be here in the morning and that's the main thing."

Natalie set out what food they needed and they ate sparingly.

"It's going to be a little cold tonight," Monty said. "I think we'd better have a little fire to warm us up before we turn in."

He gathered some sticks from the nearby underbrush and built a generous fire in the shelter of a dune at some distance from the plane.

"You may have to sleep in the plane to keep warm," he told her, "but it will be better here if we can keep you comfortable."

He scooped out a little hollow and heaped a sandy pillow for her head in the most sheltered spot and kept the fire going till Natalie drowsed in the grateful warmth.

"I wish we'd thought to bring some blankets," he said presently. "We may need them before morning. The nights get pretty cool sometimes."

The girl slept then while he sat beside her to reassure her. When she waked, the fire had burned low and she moved to draw her light coat more closely about her. Then she reached out her hand to touch him and found that he had gone.

For an instant she knew terror. She swept the circle of the fire's dim light with her eyes for sight of him but he was nowhere to be found.

Natalie sat up shivering. She glanced toward where the plane had been and caught the outline of its dark wings against the sky. She tried to assure herself that everything was all right. But she knew that without Monty she faced death.

It was a strange fact but somehow it wasn't new. Somewhere in her consciousness that feeling had existed before. She wondered about that and then she knew why it seemed so. Subconsciously her whole life was anchored to this man. Her love made him necessary to her everywhere as he was to her here on the bald desert.

She must hold him somehow. She must find him here in the dark and grapple him to herself with every bond she could discover.

But just then a sudden crash in the darkness sent her screaming to her feet. Something alive was there in the shadow of the line of brush, something that moved through the dark. And then she knew what it was. Monty's voice hailed her in answer to her cry.

"Here I am," he called. "I was out getting some more wood for the fire. Are you all right?"

Instantly her terror died. The world righted itself. Yes, she told him, everything was all right.

She had been alarmed to find him gone and then that crashing had startled a scream out of her.

"It was a small dead tree," he laughed. "I swung my weight on it to bring it down and it came with a crack. There'll be all the wood we need."

He appeared now dragging the tree with him. When he drew near he saw her teeth were chattering and without a word he took her into his arms.

"Be quiet now," he told her. "You're mostly scared. I'm sorry. I didn't think you'd wake while I was gone. You seemed to be sleeping soundly."

When he had reassured her, he tossed wood on the fire till it blazed high. Then he made her sit beside him and held her close once more till she was warm.

"You won't go away again," she said presently. "Stay where I can touch you."

He told her he would.

"I'm afraid you've not been getting any sleep," she later. "You lie down place you made for against you for warmth of the fire."

TROOP INSPECTION ROUNDUPS BEING HELD TO RAISE GROUP STANDARDS

Boy Scouts and Leaders are better informed now than they were a month ago as to what they can do to raise the standards of their troops. The last two weeks have been set aside for Troop Inspection Round-ups and most every Troop in the Council has been visited by the District and Neighborhood Commissioners.

As a result of the inspection report a number of new Scouts were enrolled and plans made with the committee for purchasing Camping equipment, record books, reading material, and other things necessary for the successful operation of a Boy Scout Troop.

Another inspection will be made in February or March. Each Troop will receive a certificate at the Council-wide Court of Honor on December 3 in recognition of their rating determined by the inspection.

It was acidized at this depth in an effort to boost the gas in the upper pay horizons, but instead, it increased the oil from 3-4 barrels an hour to five barrels an hour swabbing, according to reports, and drilling is being continued with the expectation of further acid treatments at a slightly lower depth.

the coals. But he waked quickly and took the task from her hands. "This is no good," she said. You'll be sleepy when you're flying tomorrow. We'll let the fire go and huddle together. Then we can both get some sleep."

And when she had gone into his arms she slept again and knew that he held her tightly while he slept.

In the morning she waked warm and happy. The rising sun had crept over the desert rim. A soft, warm breeze heralded the day. She knew that his cheek touched her hair and for long minutes she lay still so as not to disturb his rhythmic breathing.

The sun waked him in a little while and he found her smiling down at him. "You were very sweet to me," she said. "It makes up for some of the things I've held against you."

She bent to kiss his rough cheek. "There's a time and a place for everything," he laughed as he sat up. "This is the time and place for hunting lost pilots. We'd better be getting aloft."

He lifted her up and kissed her. "I love you to death when you are like this," she told him. And he kissed her again.

While Natalie delved again into the box of provisions and brought out enough for a meager breakfast, Mont Wallace was busy loosing the ropes that held the plane.

They were presently aloft again and this time she went into the crook of his arm as naturally as though the place belonged to her.

"We're right about where they are likely to be," he told the girl and bade her keep close watch of the rough country below.

At noon they were still hunting from one canyon to another and they munched sandwiches as they flew. It was while they still ate that the girl started suddenly up and peered through the window at her side.

"There's something down there!" she cried, over the motor's roar. Monty nodded and swung the plane in a steep bank about the spot so that they could both look down.

"It's a plane," he bellowed, and circled cautiously downward.

They could see presently that the wreck of a biplane lay in a small canyon. There was no sign of life about it. As they came about on one of the arcs of the circle their own ship whipped suddenly over and Natalie saw that Mont made a quick movement to right it.

He zoomed the frail monoplane then, and told Natalie of the treacherous air currents that would make landing difficult.

"Wait," she cried. "Don't land yet. If they were alive and around the wreck they would be up and waving at us now, wouldn't they? Either they're dead or they've started out somewhere. Let's hunt around to see if we can find some sign of life."

He nodded at the suggestion and began widening the circles in which they flew. Now and then he swooped low over some moving object but found usually that it was a shadow or some movement of tree or bush.

They were about to give up after half an hour of this when suddenly below them two pigmy figures rushed into a clearing and danced madly, waving their arms at first and then ripping off their coats and helmets.

News From CCC Camp

Lt. Charles C. Cook, the Commanding Officer, and Mrs. Cook, spent a week end recently in Sherman, Texas, the Lt's home.

Second Lt. T. L. Mulbright, P. A. Res. has been assigned to duty at this Camp and reported for duty November 4, 1937. Lt. Fulbright is from Texarkana, Texas. He recently completed a years duty at Fort Sam Houston, under the Thomason Act, which gives 1,000 Reserve Officers a years duty in the Regular Army.

Chaplain Kellam, has been transferred to District headquarters at Fort Worth. He paid us a farewell visit last week, and instructed the new Chaplain, Lt. Cronin, in the mysteries of the movie machine. Lt. Cronin has just come to duty.

Friday evening has been set aside for Stunt Night at the Camp and we are looking forward to some interesting evenings.

Classes are held the other evenings of the week. Most of the enrollees are enrolled in a class of some kind.

The following men recently completed the First Aid course under the direction of the Camp Surgeon: Gerald Lakey, Robert Bridges, Dale Lacey, Elmer Rice, Maurice Robert, Adrain Love, Clifford Vermilion, and Paul Hyde. These men all showed a great deal of interest in the course, and are all qualified.

A new class in First Aid meets twice a week, as the course has been lengthened to a twenty hour course instead of the previous fifteen hours. The new class is showing an active interest in the work. This is work that must be completed in a satisfactory manner as lives may depend on the skill of these men in rendering the proper First Aid.

Thanksgiving is approaching and Uncle Sam intends to see that it is observed in the traditional manner with plenty of the National Bird, whose life is dedicated to this day. Those who wish to go home for the day are allowed to do so. Those remaining in Camp will be well cared for.

Another Local Man Misses His Leader

The Leader management is complimented in learning that J. T. Bellomy, one of our highly esteemed citizens and business men, misses the Leader when he is absent from the City.

Mr. Bellomy has been at Brownville, Texas, for the past two or three weeks on business and pleasure—incidentally doing some fishing too—it wouldn't be J. T. if he wouldn't take advantage of that—and he writes to forward his paper to that address as follows:

"Dear Morley— In our excitement in getting to go some where we overlooked the fact that we would have to notify you to send us the Leader to the above address, thinking that the Leader would naturally follow us. But having missed two copies already our minds are made up. So please send it until further notified. Some down—the fishing is good and the water is fine. Regards to Mrs. Drake."

UNION THANKSGIVING SERVICE TO BE CONDUCTED IN FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH AUDITORIUM

The congregations of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches will worship together in a song and praise service Sunday evening in the First Baptist Church auditorium. The choirs of the three churches will unite in bringing an appropriate service in songs after which the Rev. Donald Harris, pastor of the Presbyterian Church will bring the message. The public in general is invited to this service.

God has been good to give us an abundant crop and we should be thankful. But as we see conditions in our city at present it looks like we are throwing God overboard for gold. Too many business houses are staying open on Sunday which is an open violation of God's law and will result in disaster. Liquor is being sold as freely as in the days of the open saloon. Young people's lives are being cursed because of the prevailing customs. Home and health have surrendered their rightful place in order to care for the big crop. The school and churches are suffering at the time being but it is hoped that the bumper crop will ultimately result in improving these institutions.

The pastor will preach Sunday morning using as his theme, "Have You Been Converted?" The message will be in keeping with the season of the year.

Attendance was off in all services last Sunday and we realize that people are working hard, but we must not forget God. It is God that giveth us power to make wealth and not we ourselves. Every good and perfect gift cometh down from the Father above.

The next Worker's Conference will meet with the Sudan Baptist Church Nov. 30th which is our regular meeting date. The fourth Sunday afternoon the Monthly B. T. U. Conference ference will be held with the First Baptist Church, Amherst.

The pastors of the association plan to start a Bible class Monday and will gather at the First Baptist Church Littlefield and study the book of Romans together from nine to eleven each Monday morning.

LAST RITES FOR LITTLE "KAY" ATKINSON TUES.

Little Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson Found Dead in Bed

Mr. and Mrs. Straus Atkinson were grief stricken Tuesday morning when they arose to find that their little daughter, Diane Kay, aged about 3 months, had passed away during the night.

Little "Kay" had been in good health until Monday, when she had slight indigestion or "gas on her stomach," and was taken to a local physician who prescribed for her, after which she seemed to be her usual self, smiling and cooing to those around her. About six o'clock Tuesday morning when Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson arose they found the baby had died in bed, while they slept. It is believed that she passed away sometime after midnight, as a result of acute indigestion.

The child was born August 29, last, and had always had good health and spirits.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the First Baptist Church, with Rev. Willis J. Ray, pastor, officiating.

Interment, in charge of Hammons Funeral Home, took place in the Littlefield Cemetery.

Pallbearers were: Gerald Jones, Edwin Coffman, Buford Humphries and Charles Heathman.

Flower bearers were members of the Intermediate class of the First Baptist Church.

Less Monthly Discomfort
Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUL, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated. Cardul, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

FIRE DESTROYS LONE STAR GIN; BURNS TUESDAY

Local Fire Boys and Lubbock Department Answer Call

The Local Fire Department answered a call to Anton Tuesday morning about 9:30, when fire broke out in the Lone Star Gin. The fire was so far advanced, however, when the brigade got there that they were unable to save the building, and the gin was burned to the ground.

The Lubbock Fire Department also answered the call, but the blaze had made such headway that they arrived too late to be of assistance.

The gin was in operation at the time the fire broke out.

M. G. Vinther and Joe Wells made a business trip to Lubbock Sunday.

The three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jones, who has been very ill and confined in the Lubbock Sanitarium since Tuesday of last week was brought home Sunday.

The child's illness is believed caused from a fall downtown on the sidewalk in March last, and a consequent skull fracture, following which he went into convulsions, and since which time he has been subject to this ailment.

He was given a blood transfusion last week at the Lubbock hospital, where the physician in charge gave very little hopes for his recovery. His head was X-rayed, and it is the plan to take him to this hospital at intervals for violet ray treatments. He had one of such treatments Tuesday.

Oldsmobile Presents Automatic Safety Transmission on 6, 8

With the presentation of its new models for 1938, Oldsmobile announces that the Automatic Safety Transmission—offered for the first time a few months ago as optional equipment on the Oldsmobile Eight only—is now optional at extra cost on both the Six and Eight.

This announcement means that both Oldsmobile Six and Eight purchasers will be able to acquire the first really successful automatic gear changer—the greatest single driving aid ever offered the motoring public.

Oldsmobile's Automatic Safety Transmission, which not only produces new results in car performance, but also establishes high standards of safety and economy, is unlike any device ever before offered the public. It is a new kind of transmission which does away with the ordinary routine of gear shifting and yet gives the driver complete command of gear selection, car control and all-round performance.

The conventional gear shift lever is completely eliminated, leaving ample room for three adults in the front seat. Instead, a short, convenient hand lever control is located just under the wheel on the steering column. This lever permits the driver to select reverse or neutral or either one of two forward speed ranges.

The first forward speed range controls two low speeds, corresponding to but more powerful than the first and second gears in conventional transmissions. The second forward position of the lever controls three forward speeds, first, third and fourth. Thus the driver has at his command four forward speeds, the fourth being a direct "super drive" which reduces engine speed by 20 per cent with corresponding improvements in operating smoothness, fuel and oil economy and motor life.

However commendable such proposals may be in themselves, we must urge you to discourage them, or to request their postponement until after November 20.

Their effects would be to detract attention from the census and to confuse the public mind. The main objective in this national enterprise is to secure a complete, honest and accurate registration, and any competing interest of the same general character would detract from this objective. It would also be to the ultimate disadvantage of your community itself."

tossed a long pass to Eter who ran several yards for a 36 yard gain.

THE RED CROSS ROLL-CALL

In the past year the nation has been fortunate in having had no major disaster to call for the service of the Red Cross. For that everybody should be thankful.

But because we have not had an emergency to face is no excuse for failing to renew our annual membership in this greatest of all relief agencies. Year in and year out the Red Cross ministers to the distressed, in countless ways which call for continuous expenditure of money. The only money the Red Cross has is contributed by the people, in response to the annual Roll-Call or to special emergency appeals.

The usefulness of the Red Cross lies not alone in the services which it renders, but also in the promptness with which they are rendered. Preparedness is its guiding rule. It must keep its emergency equipment and supplies constantly stocked and ready for use, its skeleton field force ready for instant mobilization. When the call for aid comes, it comes suddenly and without warning. The Red Cross must be ready to meet it with a full treasury.

The Roll-Call is now on. Every home in America should have the emblem in the window.

President Makes Effort To Push Gain in Business

The obtaining of a balanced budget appears to depend upon how well President Roosevelt can push business recovery and at the same time keep a close rein on congress.

The treasury forecasts the president should end this fiscal year next June 30 with a 12-months deficit of $695,000,000. But in the following fiscal years the administration hopes the money spent will equal or be less than the amount taken in as taxes, Secretary Morgenthau said in his New York speech Wednesday. He suggested cuts in relief, highways, public works and agriculture—all forms of expenditure for which congress has a tender feeling, especially in a pre-election year session.

This fiscal program will not be worked out finally until the regular session of congress beginning in January, but the session beginning Monday will hear plenty of talk about it.

To bring about an upturn in business the administration's approach is vastly different from the methods of its early years when federal funds were pouring into private industry, directly and indirectly, at the rate of millions a day.

Recently the administration has said to business in effect that it must be its own savior. The government, it said, is willing to help to the extent that it will:

Revise certain business taxes, notably those on capital gains and undivided profits.

Seek to stimulate home building and heavy construction—but not with government funds.

Try to strengthen railways by favoring moderate rate increases.

Tend to reduce government activity in the public utilities field provided the industry will, in effect, reduce rates.

Mr. Roosevelt said this week the building program, which would be achieved through cooperation of capital, labor and government, is still in the study stage. So is the

Lynn County Leads Counties On South Plains In Cotton

According to the bureau of census, Lynn county led the South Plains of Texas in cotton production as of Nov. 1, and indicated that 324,698 bales had been ginned in 19 counties in this area. This represented a 77 percent increase over the 184,110 bale ginnings up to the same time last year.

Dawson ranked second and Lubbock third, the three counties showing nearly one third of the total production.

Fourteen counties showed gains over last year; Briscoe, Castro, Crosby, Dawson, Dickens, Floyd, Gaines, Garza, Hale, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley, Scurry.

Based on the ginnings at the mid-November report, which was gathered as of Monday, it is probable according to cotton men that the grand total for the territory may approximate 800,000 bales this year. Continued reports of more cotton than anticipated come in as gins over the territory are swamped with white gold.

Ginnings up to Nov. 1 were believed to have approximated about 40 per cent of the crop, possibly less. That would indicate a crop of between 750,000 to 800,000 bales.

Comparative ginnings for the Nov. 1, and for the same date for the 1935 crop were:

Funds Needed To Make Improvements At Local Cemetery

As considerable work is needed in the upkeep of the Littlefield Cemetery, including piping with which to irrigate, replastering of cement water tank, and other work, the association asks that all those owing for lots in the Cemetery make a special effort to pay something on account at this time, as the money is urgently needed for repair work.

Arrangements Made To Repay 71 Percent Of Amount Loaned

In New Mexico and parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado served by Region Twelve of the Farm Security Administration, 151 farmers made settlements of their debts in the past six weeks, according to L. H. Hauter, regional director of this federal agency.

A report shows that arrangements have been made to repay 71 per cent or more than two-thirds of the amount owed. Debt reduction amounted to $194,354 or 29 per cent of the original indebtedness.

"The Farm Security Administration cannot be considered a refinancing agency or a credit agency," Hauter said, "because the purpose of the program is farm and family rehabilitation, involving such things as correct farming practices, technical supervision, account keeping, home and farm budgets and farm debt adjustment."

In developing sound farm plans for borrowers it is often found that their debt structure is too high to ever permit repayment, it was pointed out. That is where the work of local farm debt adjustment committees come in. Creditors, farmer debtors and a committee of public spirited citizens work together to bring about a settlement suitable to all.

Hauter called attention to the fact that this farm debt adjustment service is available to them though they are not through this federal agency. Debtors gladly consider and all services are cost," he added.

afirly steady advance for more than four years," he said.

"The present decline has not reached serious proportions. But it has the effect of decreasing the national income—and that is a matter of definite concern."

Discussions with business men, large and small, and leaders of agriculture and labor, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, had made clear to him that "we have wisdom enough in the country today not only to check the present recession but to lay the ground work for a permanent recovery."

"If the people are as willing as the government to use the economic knowledge gained in recent years," he said, "this recession need go on further."

"With the exercise of ordinary prudence, there is no reason why we should suffer any prolonged recession, let alone any general economic paralysis."

"Despite some maladjustments, which can be corrected, underlying conditions are not unfavorable."

He said the fundamental situation was not to be compared with 1929 and said the obvious immediate task was increase use of private capital to create employment.

"A little later," the president said, "I will address you further in regard to proposals to encourage private capital to enter the field of new housing on a large scale . . ."

On the four points of his immediate program he listed:

1. "An all weather surplus crop control plan aimed at "abundance without waste" and backed by new taxes should the cost exceed the regular budget.

In that connection, he said: "I hope and believe that the supreme court will not again deny to farmers the protection which it now accords to others."

2. "Flexible" machinery to provide minimum wages, maximum hours and banishment of child labor.

3. Reorganization of government in the interest of "efficiency," but with a warning against trying to make "major savings" in this way.

4. Regional planning boards to "avoid waste and to give the nation its money's worth" from government expenditures.

"What these four subjects promise in continued and increased purchasing power—what they promise in greater efficiency in the use of government funds," Mr. Roosevelt said, "are intelligent foundations for the other plans for the encouragement of industrial expansion with

FOUR POINT PROGRAM SUBMITTED TO CONGRESS BY PRES. ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt submitted a four point legislative program to congress Monday suggesting removal of tax injustices "to encourage productive enterprise."

In his opening message at the special session the President asked "early action on legislation on farm crop control, labor, wages and hours, reorganization of the executive branch and planning of natural resources."

The president also made the following remarks on taxes:

"Unjust provisions should be removed provided such removal does not create new injustices . . . Nor can we at this time accept a revision of our tax laws which involves a reduction in the aggregate revenues or an increase in the aggregate tax burdens of those least able to bear them."

"We should give special consideration to lightening inequitable burdens on the enterprise of the small business men of the nation . . . In this way we may also find assistance in our search for a more effective method of checking the growing concentration in economic control and the resultant monopolistic practices which persist today in spite of anti-trust statutes. A further search for additional methods to meet this threat to free competitive enterprise is called for at this time."

Again he reiterated that he expected the next budget "can be brought within a definite balance" and directed special attention to business conditions.
