TOO LATE TO HELP NOW; MAY BRING MORE PICKERS

New Law To Be Put Into Operation Soon

A new immigration law bill passed by Congress, was signed by President Truman Thursday, on which many Texas farm owners are pinning hopes for an increased supply of Mexican laborers to enter this country, to assist in harvesting cotton crops, but the passing of the act and its signing can have no effect on the present and immediate shortage of cotton field hands needed to chop cotton.

It may get into operation in time to bring an increased supply of pickers into West Texas, when cotton matures this fall.

Specifically the new bill prohibits "wetbacks" or those who enter the country illegally from Mexico by crossing the Rio Grande, but this provision is not new, but has often been winked at by officials on both sides of the river. More specifically, it replaces the 1949 agreement which was cancelled by the Mexican government which provided for the signing of contracts with specific pay provisions by farmers in this country, with Mexican laborers, who were then privileged to legally enter this country. The Mexican government said that these contracts were often broken by farmers in this country who signed them, and the law now passed provides that the U.S. government shall supervise, and then guarantee the terms of the contracts.

As a result of the passage and signing of the new law, U. S. and Mexican officials are expected to meet next week to draft the plans which will put the new law into operation. President Truman has also promised a statement clarifying the law, and his reasons for signing same.

The new law, it is expected, will not only provide more laborers for Texas and the cotton area, but will provide workers to the Colorado-Nebraska-California beet growers and to farming areas throughout the nation.

You and Your Congress

When Congress translated the Marshall Plan into legislation in 1948, the result was not named the Economic Cooperation Act by chance.

Congress intended that in return for the financial assistance rendered by the United States, the countries of Europe should cooperate with each other and the United States in efforts to regain economic stability in the postwar period.

Thus far, Congress has authorized $11,000,000,000 for the European Recovery Program. That program has been administered for this country by the Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA). The ECA has worked in Europe with the Organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC).

Consistently, from the viewpoint of the United States, the emphasis has been on cooperation. Through assistance from Marshall Plan funds, Europe since 1948—it was scraping bottom, economically, in 1947—has attained a large and, in some instances, an amazing degree of economic recovery. Generally speaking, Europe was back, or nearly so, to pre-war levels by last Summer.

That recovery, however, was attained more on the basis of cooperation by the individual countries with the United States than with each other—and more than by cooperation of European countries as a group with the United States.

The notable exception to this was establishment of the European Payments Union (EPU). But the EPU, set up as a temporary device to stimulate trade between European countries by cooperative handling of individual country trade deficits, was not launched officially until last July 1.

That date also found the North Koreans marching south past the now-famous 38th Parallel. And this provided the signal for a swift shift in emphasis from economic recovery to military preparedness where U.S. aid to Europe was concerned.

President Truman, therefore, has emphasized military assistance in his recommendation for an additional $8,500,000,000 of foreign aid for the fiscal year that began this month.

Of that amount, $8,250,000,000 would be for military aid—with $5,293,000,000 of it going to Europe and the rest to other parts of the free world.

This military aid would be administered through the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), which is composed of 12 European countries and has General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower as commander of its combined armed forces.

As Congress begins consideration of the $8,500,000,000 recommendation, there is nothing—on the record, at least—to suggest that Congress is any less desirous today of seeing increased cooperation in Europe.

Thus, a speech which General Eisenhower made the other evening in London at a dinner in his honor appears likely to carry great weight with Congress in its consideration of additional aid for Europe.

The General clearly was not satisfied with the amount of cooperation obtainable under the present set-up for administering the "Mutual Security Program" in Europe. He spoke of the "hazardous NATO machinery" and decried a Europe "hobbled by a web of customs barriers interlaced with bilateral agreements, multilateral cartels, local shortages and economic monstrosities."

Speaking on the eve of Independence Day in his own country, General Eisenhower strongly urged a federation of Europe—on the pattern of the United States of America.

And he struck a companion note that seems likely to appeal to Congress as it considers foreign aid while watching U.S. spending rise:

"It (European federation) would mean early independence of aid from America and other Atlantic countries. The coffers, mines and factories of that continent are not inexhaustible. Dependence upon them must be minimized by the maximum cooperation effort.

New Drug Similar To Arrow Poison Is Surgical Aid

A new muscle-relaxing drug that is closely related to a South American arrow poison has been made available to doctors by Dederle Laboratories.

A spokesman said that use of Flaxedil, this new synthetic drug, in the operating room will mean less anesthetic for the patient, less nausea and more rapid recovery.

The new drug is similar to curare, the drug first used by South American native hunters as an arrow poison to paralyze their game. Curare was first discovered by explorers soon after the arrival of Columbus to the New World. It was observed that natives dipped the heads of spears and arrows into the drug while hunting. Later it was learned that curare acted against nerve endings to bring about temporary paralysis of body muscles.

The native drug was too impure to be used except in the laboratory. But eventually it was purified and used as an adjunct to anesthetic, because of its muscle-relaxing quality. However, there were a number of disadvantages in using curare, so scientists developed several substitutes.

Flaxedil, which was developed in France, is the first substitute to process all of curare's useful qualities and certain additional advantages. It does not produce fluctuation in blood pressure and may be administered without fear to asthmatic patients. Its effects are easily controlled and its dosage has been accurately standardized.

This new curare-like drug is known to scientists by the yaw-breaking name tri (diethylamino-ethoxy) benzene triethyliodide.

When a guest is having "trouble" with her gallbladder she is usually on a pretty general diet, but fried foods and the foods that produce gassy bloating have been found to be best excluded from her diet. It would be best not to serve her rich desserts and pastries or salad dressing, oil, nuts, pickles, popcorn or gravy; roast beef is fine but when the trouble is in the gallbladder the gravy is cut out of the diet.

Those vegetables that cause the production of gas in the intestines are dried beans, dried peas, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, kohlrabi, onions, green pepper, radishes, rutabagas, sauerkraut and turnips.

It is always possible, of course, that there are other foods which a person in the best of health cannot eat and would therefore have to be eliminated also from the diet of that person when he has some ailment. Often such an inability to eat certain foods with comfort stems from an allergy and since allergic people are often dinner guests, too, it may help to know beforehand the types of foods which are considered common irritants.

In the broadest sense such a diet omits eggs, chocolate, nuts, pepper, and those fresh fruits and vegetables which are in season only part of the year. More specifically, the foods excluded in the dietary program for allergy run something like this:

All drinks that have caffeine in them, including coffee, tea, and colas; all breads made with eggs or nuts; all desserts containing chocolate, cocoa, eggs or nuts; salad dressings with eggs or pepper; such fruits as fresh berries or melons, in season only part of the year; fresh pork, fish and sea food; all cheese except cottage cheese; noodles; candy containing chocolate, eggs or nuts; fresh tomatoes, fresh corn and other fresh vegetables which are in season only part of the year; and any odd, unusual, exotic food or flavoring.

Roast beef and gravy with mashed potatoes and vanilla ice cream—even a sensitive person with lots of allergies isn't likely to find anything there, plus such other items as are not excluded from his diet, to create such symptoms as hives, eczema or sneezes and "snizzles" to mar his pleasure in eating at your house.

Opposition to Taxes, Undue Spending

The diffidence of Congress toward the administration proposal to increase taxes $10 billion is understandable.

Higher taxes, while not so punitive as uncurbed inflation, are unpopular. Too many people, as a result of deficit spending for years, want something from government without paying for it. In this defense emergency of colossal proportions we must rid ourselves of that delusion. Financing of means for national security on a necessary pay-as-you-go basis will hurt, and we should be candid about it.

In fact, Senator Hoey was correct in stating that taxes already are being sorely felt by many. The North Carolina senator also was on sound ground in urging rigid retrenchment in nonessential federal spending as a primary obligation. There is a danger that continued tax increase will permit public spending as usual.

Taxes are anti-inflationary to the extent that they avert deficits and permit reductions of the federal debt. The same amount of money is spent by government as otherwise would have been spent on consumer goods had the people not been taxed more. But the diversion of this money from the consumer market is made urgent by the prospect that consumer buying power is expected to be $20 billion greater than the supply of consumer goods when defense production gets rolling. This imbalance is the heart of the administration argument for higher taxes and other inflation controls. The weakness of the administration position is its failure to practice the economy that it preaches to consumers.

Present plans contemplate a boost in the rate of military spending in the next 12 months from the present rate of $35 billion to $65 billion. That increase in prospect should awaken all to the necessity for both higher taxes and public economy.

Yet two fallacies are being espoused in the debate on extension of economic controls. One of them is that the halt in the feverish price rise since the outbreak of the Korean war means that prices are leveling off permanently. The other delusion is that a truce in Korea should permit curtailment in the defense program. A ceasefire agreement in Korea will mean only what it says—an armistice in combat. Communist aims of aggression and expansion will continue as usual.

A nonpartisan appraisal of our economic insecurity was made in a recent report by the National Industrial Conference Board as follows: "Our inflation problem at this time is far more acute than in any previous emergency. This is because our price level was assured were added."

A straw in the wind has been the fact that 134 standby munitions plants are back in production. That signifies more consumer incomes but no consumer goods from those plants. Thus rearmament means more buying power to augment greater consumer demand for less goods. Higher taxes, supplemented by stern federal economy and other restraints, clearly will be necessary to close the inflationary gap.

Yet there is the same hidden pitfall in excessive taxation as in impractical, unwise controls. It is interference with production that is essential to stabilization. Roswell Magill, chairman of a private committee on tax policy, warned the Senate finance committee Monday that excessive taxation on business would dry up the production incentive and thereby promote inflation. The contention is a further argument in favor of retrenchment in non-essential public spending. Mr. Magill's generalization becomes more cogent if it is realized that his proposition applies to the individual worker as well as to business. Star Telegram

Health Talks

Prepared by the State Medical Association of Texas

It's usually only the first day of a visit from a houseguest with some sort of physical illness that prompts any question as to what to feed the visitor because in the course of a longer visit the guest will certainly outline the types of foods he is permitted to eat.

About the best basic diet when in doubt for the big meal of the day, whether it be at noon or at night, is to make roast beef and gravy, mashed potatoes and vanilla ice cream the core of the meal. Though there may be some who cannot eat those foods, of course, they would probably tell you so ahead of time.

For guests who may be anemic, suffering from the vomiting of pregnancy, ailing with gallbladder trouble, or known to have a number of allergies, that basic menu is generally considered good; the things that go with it will vary with the ailment, of course.

Anemia, the kind due to an iron deficiency, usually requires some type of extra feeding of concentrated substances to help overcome the deficiency. In addition to that, the food intake is aimed at a diet high in iron; the diet for iron deficiency anemia is not aimed at cutting foods out of the diet but is aimed at including those special foods which will help overcome the anemia.

Liver and liver sausage, oysters, peanut butter, molasses, nuts, dried fruits, brown sugar, malted milks, dried beans and peas and such greens as beet greens, chard, dandelion greens, kale, spinach and turnip greens are the high-iron foods which are encouraged when you are feeding a person with that type anemia.

The house guest who may be bothered with persistent nausea and vomiting during pregnancy will surely have received her own eating instructions from her doctor but to help her during the visit the general idea is based on frequent small meals, served without anything to drink. Liquids are usually taken an hour before or an hour after meals. And soda pops or carbonated beverages are sometimes better in this case than plain water.

Though the female guest who is troubled by this vomiting of pregnancy may eat most anything, it is usually best to outline a program which includes a snack between breakfast and lunch, say something like a bowl of cereal; then a sandwich in the middle of the afternoon; and toast and jelly, cereal or an egg later in the evening; it adds up to three meals and three snacks a day.

This one says You've Arrived

HERE pictured is an automobile that may well be the fulfillment of any man's dream of a fine motorcar. For you've a right to expect, when you pay a fine-car price, that your money will buy more distinction, more comfort, more performance than are to be found in vehicles of lesser worth. So mark well the things that a ROADMASTER offers. No other car on the American scene has a prouder bearing. No other automobile has more spacious dimensions, more luxurious comfort, or finer appointments. No other car has a ride more serenely smooth on curve or straightaway, highway or byway. And no other car, at ROADMASTER's price or above, has Dynaflo, and the supreme command of every traffic condition which it provides. So you, at the wheel of Buick's biggest and best, have a right to feel distinguished. But there's a joy of possession which goes deeper than visible things.

There's the feel of a power plant as brilliantly eager as this great car's valve-in-head Fireball Engine — and the satisfying companionship of a brawny traveler instantly responsive to your every wish.

And there's one thing more, which only ROADMASTER can give you in such generous measure. That is the pride of a wise investment, based on the fact that this car stands alone in price per pound, among fine cars similarly equipped.

So why not take that very important first step — and come in and see us soon?

Glamour Does Nosedive When Noses Shine

It really isn't fair in this hot humid season, but the male element expects the fair sex to look cool and charming despite soaring mercury and scorching sun! And somehow, there's nothing that dims glamour faster than a shiny nose and chin. Don't despair, though, for Helena Rubinstein has a surefire remedy for just such calamities!

Its unique preparation called Liquidine that literally whisks shine away for hours! You merely apply this magic amber-colored liquid with a bit of cotton before applying make-up. Chin, nose and forehead areas are where shine is likely to exist, for it is here the oil ducts are located. Liquidine gives a cooling, tingly sensation.

If you have an unusually oily skin, you may wish to carry Liquidine with you to use during hot summer evenings. A few minutes refreshing your make-up in the powder room, a soothing application of Liquidine—and your worries are gone!

If it's romantic Fifth Avenue in New York City you're visiting, or just Main Street, U. S. A., you can be sure your 'glamour-quotient' will be up to 100 percent if you look cool, assured and charming. Here's a jingle to remember—"Ladies with noses that perpetually shine are hardly if ever invited to dine!"

Now make that isn't entirely true—but why take the risk when Liquidine is only $1.75 plus tax for a generous 2-ounce bottle?

Distaff Rule Called Cruel

RANGOON (CP)—A woman has established an iron-clad rule in Communist-occupied territory adjoining the border of the Pegu and Hanthawaddy districts immediately north of Rangoon.

Buxom Ma Saw Mya, reputed lieutenant of Red Flag chief Thakka Soa, is described by refugees fleeing the area as more cruel than any male Communist they know. The refugees, now in Rangoon, said the woman maintains a jungle lovenest. Petty leaders war among themselves for her favors. According to the refugees her current "husbands" are two leaders she wooed from the rival White Flag party.

Ma Saw Mya is the self-appointed president of the people's court set up in the area to try recalcitrant villagers, the refugees stated. They said the penalty for all offenses, including tax evasion, was execution.

Experience Teaches Valuable Lessons

Mrs. Lula Nelson, 1702 E. 63rd St., Los Angeles, Calif., is the very young mother of seven children. The youngest child is two years old and the oldest is 11. The two youngest children are pictured here with Mrs. Nelson, Murlean, the two-year-old, and Richard, who is three years of age. Now, there is probably very little about raising children that Mrs. Nelson doesn't know. Experience has taught her how to safeguard the well-being of her youngsters. And her experience with today's great family formula, HADACOL, has also taught her something valuable, for Mrs. Nelson had been having annoying aches and pains, didn't rest well and felt run-down. She heard how HADACOL was helping other folks who were suffering from a deficiency of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin and began taking it. HADACOL helped her so much that now all the Nelson children are taking their HADACOL regularly, too.

Richard, Murlean, and Mrs. Nelson

Here is what Mrs. Nelson says about HADACOL: "I was run-down, couldn't sleep at night, had aches and pains and with seven children to care for I couldn't get my work done. After three bottles of HADACOL I felt so much better I could do more work than ever before. I've been taking HADACOL ever since and feel so good. I now give it to my children and it has helped them, too."

Give HADACOL a Chance to help you. If your system lacks these essential elements, you, too, will be amazed at the wonderful results HADACOL can bring you, as it has to thousands of other fine folks who suffered a deficiency of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Niacin and Iron, which HADACOL contains. HADACOL helps build up the hemoglobin content of your blood (where Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body.

HADACOL is that wonderful new preparation—promising blessed relief for your indigestion, stomach disturbances (gas, heartburn, sour "risings" after meals), as well as that general run-down condition, and annoying aches and pains, if due to a lack of Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin in your system.

HADACOL is so amazingly successful because if your system lacks Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin it acts directly to relieve this deficiency—the real cause of your trouble. That's the kind of product you want—the kind you should buy—the kind you should start taking immediately.

Only One Genuine HADACOL. Don't go through life suffering the miseries caused by such deficiencies when relief may be as close at hand as the nearest drugstore for sufferers from these deficiencies. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Large family economy size, $3.50. Refuse substitutes. There's only one true and genuine HADACOL.

Agricultural Commissioner Makes Changes In Pink Bollworm Regulations

During the past week the Texas Commissioner of Agriculture made two changes in the Pink Bollworm regulations for Texas. One of the changes widely expands the designated heavily infested Pink Bollworm Area of the State. The other change greatly eases the movement of cotton seed originating in the heavily infested area.

Formerly, only the counties of Willacy, Cameron, Hidalgo, and part of Starr in the Lower Rio Grande Valley were declared to be heavily infested with Pink Bollworm. Under the new regulation the heavily infested countries are thirty-nine in number, running from the Coastal Bend Area westward along the border to El Paso.

The other change which allows cotton seed to move more freely and still be under appropriate safeguards, provides that such seed may move freely among counties in the heavily infested area with only one gin sterilization treatment instead of having two such treatments. Also, if they are not going out of the heavily infested area to be used for planting seed, and are going to a sterilization treatment, only one such treatment is required before they leave the heavily infested area.

The Commissioner accredits the cotton industry and the federal agencies as being very helpful in assisting with the above revisions which may be obtained from the local sins and the inspectors.

4-H's Keep Tractor Wheels Turning To Increase Food Production

Facing a shortage of farm labor, curtailed supply and need for greater production of food and fiber, 4-H members in Texas and 46 other states are stressing efficient operation of farm tractors, according to G. L. Noble, director of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work.

In Arkansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas, 10,000 members are receiving training in the 1951 4-H Tractor Maintenance program, in which they learn to service their tractors and operate them safely, Noble said. The program is being conducted in these states by the Cooperative Extension Service for the seventh consecutive year.

Medals, trips and scholarships are provided in the four states by the Stanolind Oil and Gas Company which also allocates funds for expenses of volunteer 4-H Club leaders who attend training clinics.

Seed Sowing in Summer Calls for Special Skill

In Hot Weather Make Seed Drill Deeper, Soak Soil Below It, and Cover Seeds With Special Porous Soil Mixture.

Summer sowing of vegetable and flower seed requires a special technique which anyone can master in a few minutes; yet it is amazing how many amateur gardeners never do it.

They are used to stirring the soil in the spring, dropping the seed in a drill, or hill, and covering it, with such a high percentage of success when they start early enough, that they never realize how careless they may become.

The same methods, if used when temperatures reach 90 degrees, and rains are far apart, are likely to fail. Yet summer sowing is necessary in order to keep a vegetable plot bearing all season long, and also to develop fully the opportunities for beauty in the flower border.

The chief requirements for successful planting of seed in hot, dry weather are moisture, and a porous soil covering for the seed. At 90 degrees, surface soil is sure to be dried out to a depth of two inches or so. When seed is sown, without providing for moisture artificially, it simply lies dormant in the powder dry soil, until a rain comes, and then the seedling is usually baked to death before it rains again.

If there is clay in the garden soil, the summer sun will bake it to a hard crust between showers, and the seed sprouts may not be able to penetrate it, so they are buried alive in infancy. All this can easily be verified by any gardener who sows seeds in hot weather without taking due precaution, and observes carefully what happens to his seed.

There is no mystery about it, and the way to success is a common sense one. To begin with you soak the soil in which seed are to be sown several inches deep. The soil is stirred deeper than in the spring, and if the seed is to be sown in rows the drill is made deeper, two inches at least. The seed is sown on the moist soil, and covered with a special soil mixture in which there is no clay. Peat moss mixed with sharp sand is excellent for this purpose. Peat moss can be used alone, or fine top soil can be mixed with equal parts of sand and peat moss.

This special soil mixture will not bake, and will hold moisture much longer than the soil. The garden hose must be used daily, to sprinkle the surface, wetting the soil three inches deep. If watering is not easy, the moisture will be held longer by covering the seed row or bed with a mulch of dry lawn clippings, or any other practical mulching material, including newspapers, boards, straw, dried leaves, etc. But if the row is shaded from the sun, the mulch must be removed as soon as the seeds sprout, as they will need the light.

Frequent sprinkling must be continued until the seedlings have grown roots three or four inches long, so they penetrate to the sub-soil moisture and can take care of themselves from then on.

Swim suits of cotton lace have made quite a splash in the fashion world this season. America Depends on Family Car

DETROIT—On an average day, at least one out of every three adults in the United States uses a passenger automobile for some essential purpose such as riding to work, conducting business or going shopping.

This and some 20,000 other facts about how the American family car is used were revealed in a nation-wide survey recently conducted by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation.

It was learned that 69 million people over the age of 14 ride in automobiles on an average day. This represents more than half of the U. S. adult population. Nearly half of these individuals use a car in connection with earning a living during a typical day, while almost one-fourth of them go shopping by automobile.

About 40 per cent of all rides taken in motor cars, and nearly one-half of the total passenger miles traveled, are for livelihood purposes, the survey showed. Shopping accounts for another 17 per cent of the rides and 11 per cent of the passenger mileage. These indications of America's growing dependence upon the family car for essential transportation are borne out by automobile and population statistics of the past 10 years. While our population has grown 15 per cent since 1940, car ownership has increased about 50 per cent. Passenger car registrations for 1950 totaled 40,167,000 compared with 27,372,397 in 1940.

This growth in the automobile population has taken place despite the fact that motor vehicle production between 1940 and 1950 was less than in either of the two preceding decades. Consequently there are more older cars on the road today. The average passenger car is about eight years old, compared with the prewar average of 5 1/2 years. Likewise, there is a lack of middle age cars as a result of the wartime halt in automobile production.

In addition to the need for motor cars as essential transport tools, the nation relies on them as a major source of business activity, employment, and tax revenues. The automotive industry directly creates business for at least half a million separate enterprises, or one out of every six firms in the country. One out of every seven jobs, for a total of more than nine million, are automotive.

The average automobile buyer pays about $95 in Federal excise tax on his new car. Last year, total automotive excise payments contributed nearly two-billion dollars to Federal tax coffers. In addition, highway users paid some $2.5 billion in special state motor vehicle taxes and fees for an average of nearly $55 per vehicle.
