SUDAN FARMER'S DEATH IS BEING INVESTIGATED

Discover Remains of T. H. White on Ranch North of Sudan

A human skull discovered on the Halsell ranch, six miles north of Sudan, Sunday, was identified as that of T. H. White, 68-year-old Sudan farmer, who disappeared from his home August 31, 1932.

Ewing Halsell, and "Red" Murrell, a ranch employe, found the skull Sunday. Sheriff Irvin Tuesday found human bones and bits of clothing about 30 paces from where the skull was found. Among the pieces of clothing was a ticket for grain made out to T. H. White, which assisted the officers in the identification.

Ed and Herschel White, sons of the missing man, are reported to have identified the skull by its shape and teeth.

White was last seen about 4 a. m. August 31, 1932.

Besides Sheriff Irvin, District Attorney Meade Griffin, County Attorney Herbert C. Martin, and Chief Deputy J. L. Walraven are investigating the death.

Lamesa Cotton Buyer Death Victim Tuesday

Joe Olive, 56 year old Lamesa cotton buyer, died beneath the wheels of Santa Fe railway boxcars at Lubbock at 4:25 Tuesday afternoon.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by Justice of the Peace J. S. Connell.

Deceased, who had been in Littlefield buying cotton, was identified by letters found in the man's clothing.

One eyewitness is reported to have said that Olive walked between slowly moving freight cars, while another said he "flopped" behind a car.

Olive's legs and torso were lying between the rails, his right arm beneath him, his head and shoulders were jammed between the brick pavement and the west rail, said a deputy constable. His hat was lying inside the rails at his right. The man was on his back.

Funeral services were conducted at the Olive residence in Lamesa Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. W. B. Wages of Lubbock, and interment took place in the Lamesa cemetery.

Deceased was survived by his wife, and one sister, Mrs. W. L. Harbison of Lubbock.

M. L. Collins, Friendship Community Resident Injured

A very serious accident occurred at the Beck Brothers Gin, south of Sudan, about one o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when M. L. Collins, aged 31, of Friendship Community, is reported to have caught his right hand and arm in a gin saw, cutting his hand off, and tearing the flesh off his arm up to his elbow.

He was received at the Simpson Sanitarium about 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, where it was found necessary to amputate the patient's arm just above the elbow.

On account of the nature of the injury, the loss of blood was great, and according to the attending physician the injured man is in a serious condition.

WILDCATS WILL MEET LEVELLAND IN CONFERENCE GAME THIS FRIDAY

Members of the Littlefield High School football team reported Monday of this week for their first workout since school closed October 13. Their next game will be played in Levelland Friday, November 10. This is an important conference game, and the boys, realizing that the odds are against them, are working hard in order to be able to hold their own against the powerful Levelland team. The Levelland team defeated Olton 6-0; Littlefield defeated Olton by the same score, but Littlefield will go into the game the underdog because of missing practice for three weeks; however, if the football fans of Littlefield will journey to Levelland next Friday to support their team, the boys promise to give them a battle. The boys need your support. Remember the date—Friday, November 10, 3 p. m.—Levelland.

President Rejects Price Fixing Plan

Price fixing and regimentation of farm production and sales as the solution of the farm price emergency was rejected Saturday by President Roosevelt, who stated he believed the plan would be unacceptable to most agriculturists, and wouldn't be workable, and that he regarded it filled with possibilities that farmers of the States the Governors represented would be injured rather than aided.

He turned down the program submitted by five Middle Western Governors in the face of their prediction that this decision would lead to rapid and widespread increase of farm unrest and disorders, then urged them to get firmly behind his own adjustment program.

The Governors—Olson of Minnesota, Herring of Iowa, Berry of South Dakota, Schmedeman of Wisconsin and Langer of North Dakota—expressed disappointment in varying degrees as they prepared to return home.

Langer, identified with the Non-partisan League during its heyday in

DIRECTORS FOR SEVERAL AREAS ARE APPOINTED

New Road Project Declared of Vital Importance to This Section

Machinery was put in motion Tuesday to obtain the designation of an east and west highway extending from Lubbock to Plainview.

This is the most important project which has been undertaken in this section.

Designation of the proposed road as a state highway, and the eventual hardsurfacing of the route would serve a large territory, which at this time is without desirable road facilities. And in addition, would provide a direct route for State and Interstate traffic.

The initial steps toward obtaining state designation, and the approval of the proposed road, was undertaken at a meeting of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce Tuesday. A. C. Chesher was appointed president of the East and West Highway association, and a number of directors were also selected.

J. A. Nichols is the director for Bula; G. P. Howell for Enochs; and Mr. Mount for Goodland.

Directors will be named at an early date for Hale Center and Spade.

Tuesday's meeting was attended by large delegations from Bula and Enochs.

Reports received at Tuesday's meeting indicated wide and enthusiastic support of the proposed highway, and it is believed that virtually no difficulty will be experienced in obtaining the right of way.

The Governor of New Mexico has promised 100 per cent co-operation in the linking up of a New Mexico highway at whatever point the proposed new Texas highway joins the border of New Mexico.

A preliminary statement of the proposed highway project was made at Tuesday's meeting by Dr. Ira E. Woods, president of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, and by Joe W. Hale, secretary-manager, follow-

HORSE RACING, POLO TO BE FEATURES OF PROGRAM HERE NOVEMBER 11-12

Norther With Rain Visits This Section

A cold norther whistled across the South Plains early Thursday morning with an accompanying rainfall in many localities, as winter arrived for the first visit of 1933.

The rains delayed cotton picking in this section but brought badly needed moisture to the Plains wheat belt, the downpour being the first in many localities since August. It brightened prospects for the winter wheat crop. The fall varied from showers along the New Mexico line, near Clovis, to 3 inches in the extreme northeastern corner of the Panhandle.

The moisture in the Littlefield territory measured 21/100ths of an inch. Littlefield connected its heaters, put on topcoats and raincoats, and unpacked extra blankets as real winter weather arrived.

The mercury declined from 56 to 39 Thursday morning from 1:30 to 9 o'clock; Thursday noon, the thermometer registered 38; Thursday midnight 35; Friday noon 39; Friday midnight 37; Saturday noon 50; and Saturday midnight 43. The coldest weather of this season in this section was experienced from eight a. m. Sunday until three in the afternoon, when the thermometer registered 30 degrees. The temperature was also recorded at 30 midnight Sunday, but by noon Monday the weather had moderated to 45 degrees. Since then the weather has been fair, but cloudy at times. The farmers are able to resume their cotton picking, which was delayed a few days due to the rain and misty cold weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Acrey Barton and children left this morning for the World Fair, Chicago, to be gone two weeks.

Residents of Littlefield and section will have the opportunity on the afternoon of November 12 to witness a sport which is new to this immediate section.

Polo teams from Lubbock and Lamesa will meet at 3 p. m. at the race track east of the feeding pens. This game will be carried out as an additional feature of the racing program November 11 and 12.

The Lubbock lineup is as follows: Capt. Harold Griffith, No. 1; Shorty Williams, No. 2; Spencer Barron, No. 3; and Bob Hester, No. 4.

The Lamesa lineup is as follows: Elmo Smith No. 1; Manager A. C. Woodward, No. 2; Sheriff Gus White, No. 3; Bryan Fulkerson, No. 4.

The teams have between 30 and 40 horses—all very fine polo stock.

Lamesa has just returned from Arlington Downs, where they made a fine showing, winning the first game against the Dallas Whites 12 to 5, and going into the semi-finals against the Dallas Blues, losing to their opponents 10 to 8.

Lubbock has some very fine polo players, as well as Government polo horses. Most of the Lubbock team played polo while serving as Army officers.

We Do Our Part

NO INDORSEMENT OF COMMUNISM

In announcing that he has opened negotiations with the Soviet government of Russia looking toward eventual "recognition" of that nation, President Roosevelt does not, as we understand it, indorse or advocate a Communistic form of government. He recognizes the fact that for sixteen years the Russian people have been developing a new form of government, that that government has survived and is apparently strong enough to continue indefinitely, and that it is the Russian people's own business as to what form their government takes.

In its early days, the Soviet experiment was accompanied by loud threats of world revolution. We understand that those threats were largely due to the belief that a Capitalistic world would not tolerate a single Communist experiment, and that in order for it to succeed it would be necessary to convert all the rest of the world. The Soviet leaders have learned differently by now; they have discovered that the rest of the world doesn't care what they do inside their own nation. Little is heard these days of the danger of the spread of Communism.

It seems to us that it is as reasonable for the United States to recognize the right of Russia to be considered a world nation as it is to regard Italy, under a dictator, or Japan, under an absolute monarch, as having equal rights with ourselves. None of them has our form of government but we would be last to try to impose our ideas upon them.

Recognition of Russia ought to open up trade channels which are now impeded, and create a much more friendly feeling among all the nations. To be sure, there are several other matters to be settled. Will the Soviet government recognize the debts owed by the old Russian government to the United States, and restore the American property which it confiscated? That and other questions need answering before recognition can be generally acceptable.

WORK

The brightest spot on the relief situation is the establishing of camps for the transient needy, the Portales Valley News declares.

By this method relief will be given for work, and those receiving the same will become better citizens.

"Every citizen of the nation who is able to work should be supplied with work that he may earn his subsistence. The man who is not willing to work should be put under guard and compelled to work or be put on bread and water."

The editorial in the Portales Valley News opens up a discussion on which millions of words have been written and spoken.

The statements of the Portales editor prompts us to give expression to the fact that the reason some men and women do not rejoice at the opportunity to work is that they have permitted themselves to drift; that is, acquire the habit of floating along caring very little about work and thinking less. It is impossible to do much in the way of training lazy men and women to work. But it is not so difficult to mould youth to a vivid realization and understanding that work is the duty of every man and woman; that work is honorable, that it is more honorable to accept any kind of honest employment than to just drift along. The chief concern of every parent should be to teach their children that work brings joy and self respect, that work is honorable, and that distaste for work is something of which any man or woman should be ashamed.

RAILROADS PROMISED CASH

With the approval of President Roosevelt, the Public Works Administration Thursday last allotted $135,000,000 for railroad purposes, including $51,000,000 for purpose of rails and fastenings by approximately 20 railroad companies and $84,000,000 for construction work by the Pennsylvania railroad.

The $51,000,000 is to be advanced to the carriers with interest at 4 percent, the loans to be repaid during the useful life of the equipment.

Side Quit Hurting, Got Stronger, Well; CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. R. L. West, of Huntsville, Ala., writes: "I was weak and run-down. I had a pain in my side, and I kept losing weight. I grew nervous over my condition—this was unusual for me, for I am very cheerful when I am well and don't easily get nervous. I knew I ought to take something. My aunt told me I ought to try Cardui, which I did. I began to feel better. I kept it up until I had taken three or four bottles. My side quit hurting and I was soon feeling strong and well." 4-H CLUB NEWS

Slogan is "All Right"

A 4-H club camp where every member had to say "All Right" to anything they were asked to do—and one of the jobs was wet picking chickens—came to an end altogether too soon for a group of Oklahoma boys and girls this summer. It was a three day affair and everybody wants to do it over next year.

It was called Camp Little Wolf and the main idea of having every camper help in its functioning was to make the vacation as inexpensive as possible. How well the plan worked is shown in the total outlay required of members, which was 50 cents apiece. Each brought their food and it was spread around during the three days to give each member a complete meal. The money was used to pay camp rental, wage of cook and for incidentals. There were 69 club members enrolled, and the camp was under the supervision of Miss Ruth Hickman, home demonstration agent of the county, which was Dewey. No one ever heard of running a club camp for little money but it just shows what a good resourceful, courageous leader can do.

The chicken picking job was turned into a novelty by the cleverness of Miss Hickman in handling the boys and girls. Everyone knows it's not a nice task, either, to pick or dress poultry. A lot of the boys and girls had never taken a hand in it at home. It had been mother's or father's job. Safe to say the club members went home with a better appreciation of at least one of the arduous chores of feeding a family. The way Miss Hickman made it fun was to line up the boys and have them secure their fowl from a crate, have them file past the chopping block and dismember the fowl's head, then dip it in hot water and remove the feathers. The girls completed the job by dressing the fowls. About 20 of the 37 girls in camp had never done such a thing.

At the start of the camp a committee was named to discipline any member who balked at doing any task asked of him, but the committee soon found it had nothing to do. Meals were served in family style, with a "chief" in charge of each table. Everyone washed his own dishes, and "set up" his place again at the table. There were games and lots of fun.

Popular Littlefield Couple Wed Here Wednesday afternoon

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Borgman and W. A. (Bill) Beisel was solemnized by G. A. Dunn, Jr., pastor of the Church of Christ, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Vinther, Wednesday afternoon, November 8, at 4 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of the bride's mother, Mrs. R. A. Borgman, and the groom's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Yeager.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Borgman of this city, and a young lady of charming personality, while the groom is the son of D. F. Beisel of four miles northwest of Littlefield.

Mrs. Beisel is a graduate of Plainview High School, and has been a resident of Littlefield since May last.

The young couple have a host of friends in this section who wish them much happiness.

LOOKING BACKWARD PARTY GIVEN BY MRS. DICK JOHNSON

Thursday at one o'clock at the home of Mrs. R. A. Johnson the Thursday luncheon club enjoyed one of the happiest and most unusual parties the club has ever sponsored.

The guests were invited to wear some of their clothes of other days and the result was so amusing that many of those present laughed until tears ran down their faces.

A few of the outstanding costumes deserve a word of description. Mrs. P. W. Walker wore a black ensemble of the hobble skirt type with black hose and a silver and black "togue". Mrs. John Arnett wore her wedding dress—a handsome dark green broadcloth with silver trimming. The suit was made with a long circular skirt and coat with a "peplum". Mrs. R. A. Hendricks was in fawn colored chiffon—the dress ending just above her knees with a tight little skirt composed of three ruffles while the waist came down to her hips in loose graceful folds.

There were a number of costumes of the long waisted, short skirt period and other. Only a few years have passed since they were the fashion. The effect now is mirth provoking in the extreme. Mrs. C. E. Cooper, whose costume won the prize as being the most amusing, was dressed in an elaborately beaded evening dress, also very short of skirt and long of waist. With this dress she wore a red hat of the poke bonnet variety and a yellow printed and fringed scarf.

After luncheon was served contract bridge was the program of the afternoon until five o'clock at which time a shower of lovely gifts was given Mrs. Johnson. This too was staged in an amusing way. The hostess, thinking each guest had brought some old article of which she was tired, to put in a grab bag, each guest drew out a package but had trouble in getting it untied so that the hostess was the first to open her package. After she had seen the lovely gift each of the club members assured her that they could not use what they had drawn and presented their gift to her. The guests then departed to lay aside their costumes in cedar chests again.

The remainder of the evening was spent playing "42". Mrs. H. F. Hudgins was awarded the high score. Mrs. A. H. McGavock consolation and Mrs. O. N. McCarty won the traveling prize.

The guest list included: Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Hudgins and Howard, Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Kisinger and family, Mr. and Mrs. O. N. McCarty and family, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Gabehart and family, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. McGavock and family.

Phillips 66 to Demonstrate Here Friday Morning

Seldom does a business take such elaborate steps to educate a sales force as actually to bring a working laboratory to its salesmen. This is just what the Phillips Petroleum Company did when it put the "Volatility Test Engine" on the road to visit Phillips marketing centers in the middle west.

An apparatus consisting of a 1933 model stock motor, completely equipped with dial registers, was developed recently by Phillips Petroleum Company research engineers to test the performance of various gasolines scientifically under conditions identical with those of actual motoring.

The test engine, which is transported by truck, is a 1933 model, six-cylinder motor taken directly from stock. Various instruments have been added to duplicate actual driving conditions and to dramatize results of the demonstration for which the unit was constructed.

The demonstration and accompanying lecture are used in Phillips sales meetings to educate personnel about the value of volatility in gasoline.

Mr. J. W. Whitley, assistant manager of Amarillo office of Phillips Petroleum Company, is bringing the volatility test engine to Littlefield on Friday, November 10th, at 10 a. m. for a demonstration before Phillips salesmen from Littlefield and Sudan. The public is cordially invited to attend this demonstration, which will take place at the John H. Arnett Motor Company.

The "Little Church Around the Corner" acquired its nickname out of good-natured contempt, but has long since become synonymous with social sympathy and religious consideration in the minds of thousands. The legal title, rarely known, is "The Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration." The "Little Church" was 85 years old last month.

British Make Payment to U. S.
It was announced Tuesday by President Roosevelt that the British war debt negotiations were ended without an agreement, but with the payment of $7,500,000 by Great Britain on its December 15th installment.
This payment will be made in American currency in lieu of the $117, 000,000 due from the British in mid-December under the existing agreement.
Pres. Roosevelt indicated the debt negotiations were concluded without prejudice "until certain factors in the world situation — commercial and monetary—become more clarified."

Sixty Percent Crop Reduction Loans Have Been Paid

A check of all returns, completed
Thursday last, by Charles W. Sherrill, indicates that sixty percent of the 1933 crop production loans made by the Southwest regional office, Dallas, have been repaid in cash.
Total collections on 1933 loans amounted to $3,094,661.06 in cash, Sherrill reported. Six counties made 100 per cent reports, showing all loans paid in full before the maturity date of Oct. 31, Sherrill announced.
About 50 counties were expected to be added to the 100 per cent list within the next few weeks, with some of the field representatives anticipating 100 per cent territories.
Reports that the crop production loan office would be moved to Houston under the new federal setup establishing the new Production Credit Corporation has not been confirmed.

ATTENDING SCHOOL AT CANYON
Lamb county has had nineteen students enrolled in the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon during the first split semester of this year. It is expected that there will be many additions to this number when the second split semester begins on November 20. Sixty-nine Texas counties and three other states are represented in the enrollment, which is larger than at this time last year.

WHISPERING ROCK

by JOHN LEBAR

FIRST INSTALLMENT

Old Charley Thane snapped off the ignition with a thick, square finger. Cautiously, the decrepit car rolled forward into the only vacant space on the street and stopped, its front tires snugly against the curb. The curb was painted a faded red; and across the sidewalk was the entrance of the post office. Leaning his big forearms on the wheel, the old man gazed indifferently at the sidewalk glaring in the morning light of the Arizona sun. Behind him clattered the street traffic, its progress occasionally interrupted by the loose-jointed ringing of the semaphore suspended above the intersection half a block away.

A pair of legs clad in khaki serge trousers wandered casually to the front of the car. Old Charley's gaze awoke. "Mornin', Chief," he said moodily, lifting his eyes to the other's face.

"Howdy, Chet," replied the policeman in a soft drawl. He glanced speculatively at the car and inquired, "How's coughin' Lena a-feelin' her cats these days?"

Old Charley sighed. Leaving the car in gear, for the emergency brake had long ago retired from active service, he eased his unwieldy body to a standing position on the pavement and vindictively slammed the door. "Not so good, Buck. Not so good. Top half of the windshield fell out on the way in."

"A body'd think," remarked the policeman, nodding toward the yellowish stem on the side of the car, "that so long as Uncle Sam's got his U. S. Mail brand on her he could afford to give the old girl a truss or somethin'." Old Charley grunted assent and stepped upon the sidewalk. "Seem's like Congress just don't have the time to get round to anything important."

The two men remained motionless on the curb. At last the officer slightly shifted his position, then asked, "Anything new over your way?"

Old Charley considered carefully. "Things are mighty dry," he admitted. "His friend of fifty years nodded. "Grass got a bad deal last winter—bad as the year I lost out." "Bad," corroborated Old Charley. "Dry spring so far, too. Come a dry summer, and us cattlemen'll do well by the buzzards." This burst of conversation had apparently exhausted the two of further talk.

"What do you hear from the boy?" asked the officer suddenly. Old Charley brightened. "Found a letter when I got in last night. Will's doin' fine, he tells me. Los Angeles real estate's as good a way to make money as any, I reckon. He'll be comin' home in a month or two for quite a spell—thinks he can maybe stay over to help me work the cattle in the fall."

"He's goin' to forget to go back some of these days." Old Charley's eyes shone, but he said cautiously, "Things might work out that way, sure enough."

The policeman looked into his friend's face. "That sign still up at the Dead Lantern?"

"Still up." The two regarded each other for perhaps a minute. "Well," said the policeman. This single word expressed admirably that the policeman had been very much pleased to see his old friend; also, that he had enjoyed the conversation and hoped to see Thane again soon. Old Charley made complete reciprocation with a nod, and left the glaring sidewalk for the somber light of the post office.

The place was crowded. Seven of the crowd had been in Arizona for more than ten years and each of these greeted the old man before he had disappeared behind the door which led through the real wall of post boxes. One person thought it necessary to shake hand with Old Charley and this man stopped him with, "Hello, Sheriff!" Whereupon an elderly couple at the money order window exchanged a significant glance, and old-timer—who never lost opportunity to lament the passing of the good old times—opined to a neighbor that, when Charley Thane was sheriff of this here county, sheriffs had a heap more to do with posesses than foreclosure sales.

When Old Charley returned to the street, carrying a large government mail sack weighted with two letters and a post card, a young couple and a five-year-old boy were standing uncertainly in the strip of shade close to his car. Discomfort and bewilderment enveloped the three as one person. The little boy was tightly moored to his mother's forefinger and the hand of the husband was very near that of his wife. Old Charley's lower lip bunched slightly with his thought of "Pshaw, now!" as he noted the face of the slender young man; he had seen many such faces new to Arizona.

"Are you Ol—Mr.—Mr.—" the young man paused and looked toward the girl at his side.

"Thane," she supplied, "are you Mr. Thane?"

Old Charley smiled, his eyes on the girl. He observed to himself that she was pretty, high toney, and mighty warm. "Yes," he said aloud, "I am Old Charley Thane."

A tension relaxed. "We were told by a police officer," said the young man hesitantly, as though expecting his words to be cut short at any moment by a cough, "that you were going to a place called San Jorge, carrying the mail. We were told that you occasionally carry passengers."

Old Charley nodded. "Yes, I can take you out that way. Where 'bout are you going? San Jorge is a pretty big valley."

The husband laughed shortly. "We are trying to get to a farm and the post office address is San Jorge."

"A ranch, dear, not a farm," said the girl, "a cow ranch—the Dead Lantern ranch."

The eyes of Old Charley narrowed incredulously. He hesitated for a moment. "Are you real certain it's the Dead Lantern you want to go to?"

The young man glanced inquiringly at his wife, then at Old Charley. "Why, yes—there is such a ranch, isn't there?"

"Yes, there's a Dead Lantern all right."

"The ranch we want to visit is called the Dead Lantern and the address was San Jorge," spoke the girl; "it was formerly owned by Mr. Harry Grey and a Mrs. Snavely. Mr. Grey died recently. Do you know of the place and can you take us there?"

"I go by the front gate, Ma'm."

"Excellent. Perhaps if we start soon we shall be in time for luncheon? We can send in for our luggage later this afternoon, I suppose."

Old Charley did not miss the tone in which this was spoken. Also, he did not miss the fact that she regarded him as a taxi driver. "If you want to go," he supplied, "I'd be glad to take you, but it's eighty-five miles to the Dead Lantern and the road's nothin' to brag on. You can get them to put up a lunch for you in that ice cream parlor over there. And if we can get your baggage on this car we'd better do it. There's no machine on the Dead Lantern and I only make one trip a week."

"Eighty-five miles?" the girl caught her breath. "Surely there must be a train—isn't there a town nearer than this?"

"No'm. There's a spur track from Mexico that runs about thirty miles from the ranch but they only use it at cattle shippin' time."

The young woman looked from her husband to Old Charley. "Do you mean that this ranch is eighty-five miles out in the wilderness and there isn't even a machine on the place?" Her voice was tremulous.

"That's about the size of it, Ma'm." "But how do they get to town?" "They don't come in so very often."

"Kenneth—" the girl appealed to her husband with questioning eyes. For a long moment the two young people faced each other.

Then with a shrug of helplessness the husband turned to Old Charley. "We didn't understand how it would be. I expect we'd better do as you suggest. We only have a small trunk and some bags—they're still at the station."

Old Charley nodded cheerfully. "Fine. If you'll give me the checks I can be getting the stuff loaded while you folks see about your lunches. I'm sorry I can't take you any nearer the ranch house that the gate, though. Do they expect you?"

"Oh, yes. We wrote Mr. Snavely some time ago that we intended to arrive to-day. It can't be so very far from the gate to the house, can it?"

"About five miles, I should judge." "Good Lord!" The young man glanced curiously at the people on the sidewalk. "Well, then, I suppose we'd better telephone Mr. Snavely and make sure that he will meet us. We've already tried to find his name in the directory."

Old Charley shook his head. "The line stops about two miles after you leave town."

"No telephone?" The young man's brows puckered. "No—telephone—" he spoke slowly; the idea was quite new to him. "But how do people—he paused and became more thoughtful. "Well, but say, Snavely knows all this. Does he know that you are the only means of transportation and that—do you have a regular day for making this trip?"

"Every Saturday."

"Well, then," he continued, pleased with his deductions, "Mr. Snavely knows that we're coming on the same day you bring the mail and I'm sure he'll meet us. We're rather important visitors, you know," he finished with a half-embarrassed smile.

By the time Old Charley had returned with a small steamer trunk lashed on the rack and three bags and a guitar case on the floor of the car, the little family was waiting.

The family rode in the back seat, crowded together in recognition of the strangeness of their surroundings. Shortly after the outskirts of the town had been passed, Old Charley heard the young man's voice raised with forced cheerfulness. "Were you ever on an unpaved road before, Ruth? I don't believe I ever was." For a long time this scrap of conversation lingered in the mind of the old man.

As the miles crawled by, Old Charley settled into a physical and spiritual comfort. Although he never thought about it he always felt so, after the town had ebbed away and the desert flowed in.

By now all trace of man-made things had vanished. Only the road was left, lying straight to the southwest like a thin wedge, its point in the range of distant mountains which looked as though they had been recently thrown along the horizon by a plow. On either side the desert lay a sky-bound ocean of gray-green and weathered brown. Far to the right jutted a single butte—craggy, unbelievable clear, was a thing of blinding light and quivering heat—a parched thing which drew moisture from the lips and made the skin like dry paper.

A fence of three strands of barbed wire joined the road from the direction of the butte and followed mile after mile. Then came a gate, and fastened to a post near-by, a wooden box with a tin can on top. Old Charley turned from the road and stopped within easy reaching distance sack he transferred the post card.

A few miles farther on Old Charley turned to the side of the road and stopped the engine. "Hungry?" he asked, facing around.

"No, I'm not hungry," replied the old man, conscious of a certain quivering under the pettishness of her voice, "but I'm afraid this is the best we can do. There ain't no trees on this road—ceptin' a mesquite or two—and a stream's plumb impossible. If we kept on in this direction the first water we'd strike would be the Gulf of California."

The girl shrank back in the seat; her eyes darted over the desolate landscape as though imploring it to produce a tree, a house, an animal—anything familiar. She said nothing.

"Well, I can stand a little food," remarked the young man cheerfully, "and Dave, here, has already started on the lunch." He spoke to his wife, as Old Charley busied himself with a package of sandwiches. "We're findin' things a deal different than we expected, aren't we, Ruth? There's something about all this I like though—" he swept his arm toward the skyline; then opening the door, stepped out and stood beside the car. He faced the distant butte, now slightly behind them. "You know, this air is positively wonderful!" He tried to take a deep breath into his ruined lungs, but choked, and it was a full minute before he could speak again. "Anyway," he grinned weakly, "this air was certainly made to breathe."

WE SHALL NOT FAIL THEM

On Armistice Day we pay homage to those men who fought and bled upon a glorious battlefield. They were men of indomitable will and unswerving purpose and we can well cherish their memory. But let us not forget the idealism for which those men fought—they fought not to win a war but to win everlasting peace.

We must not break faith with them! In remembering and commemorating their stirring deeds let us dedicate ourselves to their ideal and pray that our youth and the youth of other nations shall never again meet upon a battlefield.

North Dakota, said he was disgusted, and asserted that the decision means that the farmer is the forgotten man of the administration. He made it clear that he was out of sympathy with the administration's efforts, which Mr. Roosevelt pledged would be moved along at the highest possible speed.

Olson, the Nation's only Farmer-Labor Governor, said he respected the President, and regarded him as anxious to help the farmer, but asserted that the administration is "mistaken in believing it can solve the farm problem through voluntary action, as compulsion is necessary to get results."

Berry and Herring said they intended to support the President in his efforts, that while they were disappointed with his decision they had confidence in the ultimate success of the administration program.

The White House in a formal statement at the conclusion of a conference attended by the President, Wallace, Peek, and the Governors, said the administration believed regimentation of production and sales "would be opposed by highly individualistic farmers" of the South and East, and described the program as calling for what "amounts substantially to the licensing of every plowed field and marketing by a ticket punch system of all grain and live stock."

The Governors asked that price-fixing be limited to beef cattle, hogs, corn, wheat, milk and butterfat, that the prices be fixed at parity. The statement said parity would represent an average increase of 70 per cent for these commodities and that producers of other commodities immediately would demand the application of the plan to their products.

"Therefore," the statement said, "it would be likely to mean complete compulsory regulation of production, time and method of marketing and price on every farm in America."

"The effect of the adoption of the Governors' plan, even if successful in the Midwest, might be the very States the Governors are trying to help might be left holding the bag while other States expanded production. These questions are wholly aside from grave problems of legality under the existing law and questions as to raising the necessary funds."

Wallace and Peek were of the opinion that to make the plan operative the Government would have to be ready to purchase the commodities at the fixed price to prevent a glut of markets and that this would cost billions of dollars.

orships in New York and Cleveland were reported.

Three States, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Utah, on the basis of incomplete returns, voted repeal, thus lining up the full 36 needed to ratify.

North Carolina, by a heavy vote, was the first state to step out of line of the wet parade. Its neighboring state, South Carolina also was placed in the arid area by a close ballot.

Kentucky, the sixth state to vote on the issue, began tabulating ballots Wednesday, as required by state law. Repealists confidently predicted that the blue grass state had joined with the other 36.

Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah hold their ratifying conventions on December 5. If Kentucky voted repeal, national prohibition will end on that date, because that state's convention is on November 27, otherwise, it will be delayed until December 6, when Maine, which went wet, is to ratify.

Utah No. 36

Dry leaders conceded defeat in Utah before half of the precincts were heard from, and wets made gains in later returns. This gives that western state the distinction of being the 36th to vote ratification. The vote for state repeal was by about the same margin.

SUNNY DALE

Miss Hazel Hanks, Correspondent

The community formerly known as the Blue Weed Flat was reorganized at a business meeting held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Brandon Friday evening, November 3.

Many business matters were brought before the group. Sunny Dale was unanimously voted the name of the community building to be constructed in the near future. Also the location of the building was brought to a vote. The ground donated by J. S. Hanks and P. S. Hanks, six miles west of Littlefield, on the Amherst-Pep highway, was accepted by a two-thirds majority of the voters.

Five trustees were elected, namely, Howard (Dick) Edwards, Rube Brown, P. S. (Pud) Hanks, Bill Luman, and Lyle Brandon. Pud Hanks was appointed chairman of the committee. Mrs. Dick Edwards was chosen secretary and treasurer, and Miss Hazel Hanks, reporter.

After the business meeting a box supper was held, the funds of which are to be used toward the building of the community house.

BUSINESS IS IMPROVING

Banks deposits are on the increase, debts are being wiped out and retail sales show a gain in a number of West Texas counties, according to a survey just completed.

Bankers attribute the general trend of better conditions to:

Money the cotton farmers are receiving under the "plow-up" campaign.

Increased employment through the NRA movement.

No business booms were reported, but in practically every case the increased business operations, retail trade and gain in bank deposits have been over a period of several months, which registered a slow but consistent gain.
