Red Cross Drive Extended To Middle Of April

The Lamb county Red Cross fund raising campaign, along with similar campaigns throughout the nation, has been extended to include the first two weeks in April, when the need for additional funds in large amount became manifest following the devastating tornadoes which struck several mid-south states last week.

Relief work being carried on there now, calls for an additional need for five million dollars, which is in addition to the already set budgets and quotas.

The Lamb county drive has now accounted for approximately $6500 of a $9,690 quota, with several communities still working, and reports still coming in.

There is need to exceed the local quota, and those who have already contributed in some instances have already indicated a desire to increase their contributions, in view of the acute need following the tornado disaster.

World War 1 Veteran Is Seriously Ill

Frank Serna, pioneer resident of Littlefield, and a veteran of World War I, was admitted to Veteran's Hospital in Amarillo Wednesday, suffering from hemorrhaging caused from ulcerated stomach. public service. The group, with headquarters in Lubbock, is composed of fieldmen representing capital stock fire insurance companies.

Bright red "fix me" tags will be pinned on all fire hazards discovered. The inspections in most of the towns will be made by teams consisting of local firemen, two trained inspectors from the Fieldmen's Association and a boy scout. Tenants will receive detailed reports on hazards found, with suggestions on how to eliminate them.

Littlefield Jaycees, which this week announced a tripling of their local membership, following a concerted drive for new members, held annual election of officers at a regular meeting at Hays Coffee Shop Thursday night, and a full complement of new officers to serve for the ensuing year was elected to office.

Cecil Harp is the new president, succeeding J. D. Smith. Others elected were: Granville Smith, first vice-president; Gordon Davis, second vice-president; Rip Elms, secretary; Cloice Foust, treasurer; Pat Boone Jr., state director. New directors are Maxie Bagwell, Boyd Roberts.

The newly elected officers will be installed on the evening of April 10, at the high school cafeteria. L. D. Whitely, state president of Jaycees of Lubbock, will be the main speaker at the banquet and installation ceremony. Ike Johnson, national director, of Levelland, will be chief installing officer. Jaycee delegations from all of the surrounding area are being invited, and are expected to attend in force.

Rev. Henry Haup Accepts Call As Presbyterian Church Pastor

First Presbyterian church in Littlefield, which has been without the services of a resident pastor, since Rev. Carter McCamy resigned to accept a pastorate at Canadian about three months ago, has issued a call which has been accepted by Rev. Henry Haup, whose former home is in Iowa, but who is now completing studies at McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, and scheduled to graduate early in May.

Following graduation and a short vacation, Rev. Haup and his family, which includes his wife, two sons and a daughter, will move to Littlefield, and he is expected to start his ministry here about June 1.

Rev. Haup is scheduled to be ordained after graduation, in First Presbyterian church, at Paw Paw, Illinois, where he has been serving as pastor on a part-time basis while attending seminary. The Paw Paw church congregation, unanimously asked and insisted on the service of ordination being conducted in that church.

The Presbyterian manse on West 10th street, is being completely redecorated and a room to be added, with the work getting underway this week, as a project of the men's council of the church, which will be finished and in readiness to welcome the newly-called pastor.

Rev. Haup, with his wife and baby son, visited Littlefield about a month ago, and met with church officials and filled the pulpit on Sunday, about four weeks ago. His call to the local pastorate followed that visit.

Out 4500 Licenses Sold; 1000 Cars Yet To Be Tagged

only two and one-half days (as of noon Friday) ap proximately 2600 1952 car licenses are yet to be sold before tax offices close next Monday evening, which is deadline for purchase of new tags. Penalty goes into effect Tuesday morning.

Approximately 4500 tags had been sold in the county as of Friday noon, and the number of cars in the county is said to be between 7,000 and 7,100.

With two and one-half days remaining before deadline, which breaks down to 20 hours of open-office time, local tag sellers will have to operate at the rate of more than 100 sales per hour, between now and next Monday night, if all car owners are able to display new tags Tuesday morning. That means issuing more than two sets of car tags every minute, between now and next Monday night.

The force at the tax collector's office is working feverishly, and braced for the last minute rush which is bound to occur.

Leadership Needed . . .

One of the greatest problems facing Texas is that of water conservation, and although several water conservation movements are under way in the state, no really potent statewide movement has developed. The present programs are good and are showing some accomplishments, but if Texas is to attack this problem in time to assure the state an adequate supply of water, then more concerted action is needed. Water is important to Texas. Its importance is vividly realized every day by the people of West Texas who for several years have been suffering under extreme dry weather conditions. Gov. Allan Shivers has taken a step forward in getting a statewide movement under way by asking the assistance of organizations like the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, which asured him co-operation at its recent Fort Worth convention. The governor sees the seriousness of the problem and wants to do something about it. Like most other Texans, he doesn't know just how to proceed. There's not a more popular subject in the state than water conservation and it is a problem which must be solved at home if local control of water is to be maintained. Serious conditions have shown up in irrigated areas. Many towns are short of water. Industries need additional water. Water is all important to Texas and if proper leadership can come to the fore and a real conservation program started in the state it will be one of the greatest services ever rendered to a water-conscious area. —Star-Telegram

Transfer Of Property After Death

Too few people know what would happen to their property in case of death. Florence Low, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says confusion can be avoided by thinking through plans for settlement of the property and disposing of it by a will. The owner of any kind of real or personal property has three choices under Texas laws for transfer of property to heirs. He may let the estate be distributed to those specified by law, make a will or arrange for joint or single ownership of real or personal property. One procedure is to let property pass to heirs without making a will. This is called intestacy. Four things can happen to community property when no will is made. If a man or woman dies leaving no children, all the property goes to the spouse. If a man or woman dies leaving a spouse and children, one half goes to the spouse and the remainder to the children. The law provides that the homestead shall not be divided among the heirs during the lifetime of the surviving husband or wife so long as the survivor elects to use or occupy it as a homestead. If a widow or widower is survived by children, the property is divided equally among them. If a single person, a widow or a widower dies without children, the property is divided equally between the parents. If only one parent is alive one half goes to him and one half goes to brothers and sisters, and so on down to the next of kin. Another choice offered by law in the transfer of property to heirs is by a will. A will, to be valid in Texas, must be written and witnessed. To prevent possible delays and expenses in the settlement of estates, Mrs. Low says an attorney should be consulted before a will is made. The attorney can assist in the wording of the will so that it states plainly what disposition the testator desires for the property. A third option in disposing of property is through joint ownership. There are three methods of owning property jointly. Joint tenancy is when two or more persons own any kind of property as "joint tenants" on the deed or bill of sale transferring property. Secondly there is "tenancy by the entirety" which is possible only for a wife and husband and applies only to real property. Then there is tenancy in common where two or more persons hold any kind of property as "tenants in common." The deed or bill of sale carries all the names and makes no reference to survivorship. Each of the three joint ownership of property options carries its own method of disposing of the property which should be thoroughly understood. Each property owner has a choice of any of the three methods of disposing of property.

World War II Veterans Repay Million Dollars

World War II veterans already have repaid in full about $1.5 billion in GI loans for homes, farms and businesses since the GI loan program went into effect nearly 3 years ago, Veterans Administration announced recently.

This represents almost 9 percent of the $16.9 billion in GI loans closed to January 25, 1952, the latest date for which statistics are available.

In the number of loans repaid in full, the percentage is even greater. A total of 329,749 GI loans have been repaid in full, nearly 12 percent of the 2,837,651 GI loans closed.

Following is a breakdown of the number of loans repaid in full by type of loan:

Home loans—Of 2,602,069 home loans closed, 238,729 have been repaid in full, or 9 percent of the total.

Farm loans—Of 62,320 farms closed, 25,672 have been repaid in full or 41 percent of the total.

Business loans—Of 173,262 business loans closed, 65,348 have been repaid in full, or 38 percent of the total.

Va explained that the considerably higher repayment ratios for farm and business loans are to be expected since these types of loans include many short-term loans, such as working capital and equipment loans. Home loans, on the other hand, are written on a long-term basis, usually 20 to 25 years.

Only 8,110 of 1 percent of all loans closed have been defaulted to the point where VA has had to pay claims on the government guarantee. The number of such claims paid is 23,279 and the net amount after refunds is $23,016,933. This amount will be substantially lessened by further recoveries from liquidation procedures.

Following is a breakdown of claims paid on defaulted loans through January 25, 1952:

Home loans—12,784 claims paid, or less than 1/2 of 1 percent of all home loans closed.

Farm loans—1,638 claims paid, or about 2 1/2 percent of all farm loans closed.

Business loans—5,848 claims paid, or approximately 5 percent of all business loans closed.

In the net amount of claims paid, the percentages are much smaller. The net amount of claims paid on all loans represent 0.14 percent of the principal amount of all loans closed; home loans, 0.08 percent; farm loans, 0.57 percent, and business loans, 1.7 percent.

A total of 2,484,632 home, farm and business loans still are outstanding, or 87.6 percent of the total number closed. Of this total, 2,350,556 are home loans, or 90.3 percent of all home loans closed; 35,910 are farm loans, or 56.2 percent of all farm loans closed, and 99,066 are business loans or 57.2 percent of all business loans closed.

Eligible World War II veterans who have not yet used their GI loan entitlement may do so any time between now and July 25, 1957, VA said.

No Immediate Danger
"The old and solid tower is in no immediate danger of collapsing," said Dr. I. Noccioli, surveyor who daily checks the delicate seismographs and inclinometers inside the tower.

Some years ago, an extensive survey was made of the ground on which the Tower is built. The conclusion was that there is no danger that the Tower, whose foundations were laid in 1174, would collapse for 150 years.

The Tower leaned dangerously in 1175, when its construction had reached 33 feet from the ground. The ground gave way on its southern side for about 5 inches in depth. Architect Bonanno tried to correct the inclination until the fourth order of arches, but he did not succeed and gave up the construction.

Sixty years later the construction was resumed by Wilhelm of Innsbruck, who added another three orders of arches (floors) to the Tower. Like his predecessor he gave up.

In 1350, Tommaso Pisano completed the bell tower, straightening it a little with respect of the rest of the building. The completed building was 181.2 feet on the northern side and 177.5 feet on the southern side. Its present inclination is about one tenth of its height. Originally it was almost three feet less.

The first scientific studies on the inclination were made in 1817 by the English professors Gresy and Taylor. France's Prof. Fleury conducted further studies towards the middle of the last century.

Concrete Injections
Studies on how to consolidate the ground around the Tower were conducted in this century by Prof. Girometti and completed in 1932 by large cement and concrete injections.

A complete network of tunnels was dug. In the holes almost one of liquid cement was poured to reinforce the Tower foundations.

During the war, the U.S. 5th Army faced the Germans across the Arno River at Pisa for weeks. Several shells exploded near the Tower, although Allied soldiers carefully avoided shooting at it for even when the Germans used it for an observation post.

Teen Talk

BY VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newfeatures

Teen-agers have calmed down to the liking of their guardians, insofar as dress and jive are concerned. But the common complaint of Aunt Myrtle and Uncle Charlie is that most young people are too boisterous.

Girls are no longer the little ladies they were a generation ago, say the elders. They are accused, specifically, of being loud, boisterous and unashamed in public. At home they are said to be surly, disrespectful, careless and immodest.

The habit of screaming and shouting in moral conversation instead of being "seen and not heard," like young ladies in past generations, is what particularly irks parents. Today's young filly wants the world to know that she has a mind of her own.

But what kind of a mind? asks Uncle Charlie.

The silent, demure manner of young ladies of long ago had its advantages, he says. A girl did not speak her mind until it had developed—the entire reason for keeping her quiet was so that she wouldn't make a fool of herself, he says.

Today the world knows what a teen-ager thinks long before she matures. And Uncle Charlie has his doubts that many of them ever mature.

He has opportunity to ride with them on buses, subways and trains, and he thinks they are getting louder and louder. The din of their chatter is enough to make a deaf person tremble, he says. Their yammering, according to him, goes like this:

"He promised to call me a couple of days ago, but he didn't so who cares . . . my father forbids me to go out with him, so I go out with another boy, and meet Johnny later . . . he's a drip . . . dresses like little Lord Fauntleroy . . . and on and on."

He points out that the chief fault of the younger set is a lack of pride.

Young people, he says, do not care what others think of them . . . they are not interested in pleasing their parents, particularly . . . have lost competitive school spirit and manage to pass grades by the skin of their teeth . . . they have no respect for their teachers . . . they do not give reason to expect nor do they particularly desire special courtesies from the male sex and they refuse to be guided.

And if there are lots of unmarried girls in their thirties sitting around waiting for a wedding ring it's because no man wants to take a wife who behaves the way these girls do, says Uncle Charlie. Teen-agers can take a cue from these older sisters, he advises, and wake up to the pleasures to be reaped by being a lady.

As in every generation, modern youngsters think their parents are old-hat. But in other days when the age of enlightenment came, a girl realized that her parents had good judgment all along.

Once upon a time a mother could tell daughter not to associate with so-and-so or such-and-such a group. Her offspring would dry her eyes, rebel inwardly, and think that her mother was the most unreasonable parent in the world—but she's obey.

So while parents are on the subject of complaining about their offspring, let them ask themselves whether they enforce discipline at home. If mothers and fathers would take more time to steer young people in their formative years, the rest would be easy. The first thing to teach, of course, is respect for the parent. When that is indelibly impressed upon a youngster's mind, the parents' work will be easier.

They might also ask themselves whether their own generation was as perfect as they'd have us believe. Back in their day, to hear those who will honestly let down their hair, kids were no better than they are today—the only difference was that their wrong-doings were discussed in whispers around the house, never discussed with neighbors, friends or at P-TA meetings. In those days family conducted its own little private court, and didn't try to discipline its children according to standards set up by other parents.

And always a very effective way to make an impression on a rebellious young 'un was six-of-the-birch across the knee.

Days is produced in the San Quintin area of Lower California.

Year of the Billion
The billion dollar insurance in force mark was passed June 21, 1951. More than 36 years were required to attain the first half-billion—less than 8 years for the second half-billion.

Planning for Tomorrow's Needs
Most policies are bought over a period of years. To attain maximum value from each life insurance dollar invested requires careful planning—for tomorrow's needs. Steadily rising living costs, increased taxes, changes in the policyholder's situation—all these factors make it necessary for the policyholder to have his life insurance program reviewed frequently. Your Jefferson Standard agent stands ready to assist you in keeping your program fitted to your needs.

Opportunity for travel and flight pay awaits qualified WAF applicants for flight traffic technician (flight stewardess), according to M/Sgt. Gerald F. Cutshall, in charge of the local U.S. Army and Air Force recruiting station.

Selected applicants will be given a month's training at Kelly Air Force base, San Antonio, after their eight-weeks basic training at Lackland Air Force base, for the coveted hostess jobs, then will be assigned to bases in MATS Continental and Atlantic divisions. As a rule, Sgt. Cutshall explained, they're based in the U.S. but may make frequent overseas flights.

While on flying duty they'll receive regular flight pay in addition to their base pay.

Any basic training WAF meeting general qualifications can request training and duty as flight traffic technician, said Sgt. Cutshall. Sgt. Cutshall outlines the following requirements:

- Minimum age: 21

- Height: 5'2" to 5'8"
- Proportionate weight—normally no more than 130 pounds
- High School Diploma
- Pleasing personality
- Good posture and neat
- Good judgment. Must be intelligent and diplomatic
- Good character

Cutshall said, whereas enlistment qualifications are: Age: 18 to 24; Physical: the numerical "2" may be applied for hearing and vision, but all other qualifications carry the numerical "1." Height: 5' to 6'; Weight Standard: not less than 99 nor more than 179 pounds, depending on height and age; Training or experience in first aid or nursing is not required; Be single and without dependents.

Cpl. Fairy M. Kinsey, the WAC and WAF recruiter from the Amarillo main recruiting station, will be here in Littlefield at the local recruiting station on the first and third Monday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. of each month to interview prospective applicants that are interested in a flight stewardess career, as well as volunteers for enlistment in the WACs. Cpl. Kinsey's next visit will be Monday, April 7.

The U.S. Army and Air Force recruiting station is located at 110 W. Fifth street here in Littlefield, phone 472-M.

caused his retirement, was a general executive of the firm with headquarters in the Lubbock offices.
