Spade Church Entertains With Christmas Meal

SPADE — Members of the Spade Methodist Church met in the annex of the church last Monday night at 7 for their annual Christmas supper.

C. C. Byars offered the blessing for the meal and the ladies of the church served the supper after which the program for the evening was presented.

The first of the program was "Welcome Friends," a reading which was given by Judy Loman and Treva Matthews then read the Christmas story from the scriptures.

The lights were dimmed and sixteen candles were lighted and placed by the manger scene as the church choir sang the Christmas hymn "Silent Night" accompanied at the piano by Carolyn Ramage.

As lights remained dimmed the beginner and primary Sunday school classes of the church act out the nativity scene as a large star shone over the group. Those taking part in the nativity scene were Marsha Payne as Mary, Kenny Ramage as Joseph, Kress Payne, Tommy Ramage, and Marvin Matthews were the wise men, Judy Loman and Terry Wallace were the angels, and Chris Wallace, and W. B. Maple were the kings.

Paschall Caldwell, presented a blanket as a gift from the church to Rev. and Mrs. Albert Cooper, the church's pastor and his wife. A thirty minute film entitled, "The Christmas Family Circle," was shown to the entire group, and Rev. Cooper then dismissed the group with prayer.

TSTA Takes No Stand With Tax Proposals

Contrary to published reports, the Texas State Teachers Association has not taken any position for or against the tax proposals made by the governor's State Finance Advisory Commission.

That was the statement today by TSTA pres. D. Richard Bowles of Austin. One widely circulated report erroneously stated that TSTA was fighting the commission's tax plan.

"My statement on Wednesday did not mention taxes," Bowles said. "It dealt solely with the commission's recommendations concerning public education."

"The Texas State Teachers Association has never opposed or supported any specific tax, and that position remains the same up to this moment," Bowles pointed out. "Any inference to the contrary is entirely erroneous."

Home Demonstration Agent Suggests These Yule 'Goodies'

Lady Clare Phillips, county home demonstration agent, Wednesday offered two suggestions for Christmas "goodies." One is a fruit loaf and the other date balls, and both recipes are being tried this week by 4-H club girls.

For the fruit loaf you will need: 1 cup sweetened condensed milk, 1 cup chopped nuts, one cup candied cherries, 1 cup candied pineapple, 1 1/2 cups chopped dates and 3 cups of coconut.

Soak dates in milk while preparing other ingredients. Add all fruits and nuts and mix well. Line with waxed paper a well-greased nine inch square pan and pack mixture in a firm loaf. Bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees until done. Serve with whipped cream. Can be served hot, warm or cold.

For date balls, which may be made in an electric skillet if preferred, ingredients are:

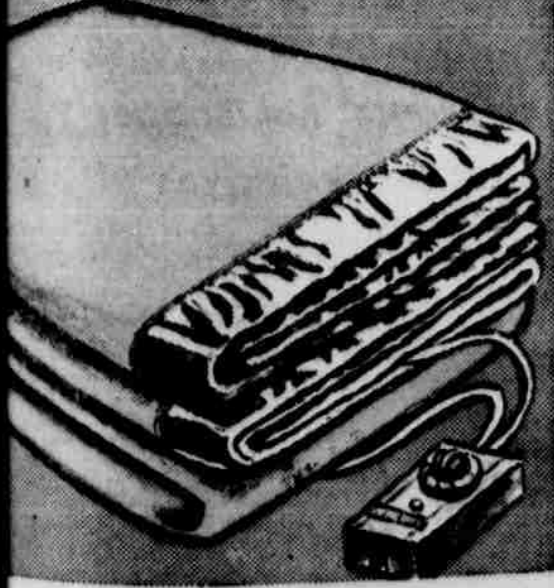

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 cup brown sugar, 3 cups of rice crispies, 1 box (7 1/2 ounces) dates, chopped fine, 1 teaspoon vanilla and one can flake coconut.

Melt the butter in skillet on low heat and add dates and brown sugar. Cook on low heat until dates are slightly browned and mixture is thickened. Add vanilla and crispies and mix well. Form into small balls about the size of black walnut. Roll in coconut.

Orchard Adds To Year's Income For Rocky Hill Farm Family

By LADY CLARE PHILLIPS Home Demonstration Agent

Mr. and Mrs. Reno Rochelle of the Rocky Hill Community do not plan on crops alone for a complete living. They have a nice orchard of some 194 different trees including peach, plum, pears and apricots. This may not be unusual, but what is unusual is that every tree, with the exception of the pear trees, was grown from the seeds which they planted.

damaged much of the crop. However, from the fruits gathered Mrs. Rochelle put up 19 containers of jams and jellies and gave much of the plums away.

Freeze and hail damaged the fruit last year also, but some of the trees bore fruit. About 10 bushels of nice peaches were harvested this year in spite of hail and freeze.

The second year the orchard was established, commercial fertilizer was applied to the trees, but the remainder of years barnyard fertilizer has been used. The trees have been sprayed for insects and treated for bores. The orchard was watered twice this year and Rochelle plans to water thoroughly in January to give the trees ever advantage over freezes.

Mr. and Mrs. Rochelle have a flock of geese which keeps down grass, grasshoppers and weeds out of the farm land and they have found that it takes 15 of these geese to keep the orchard clean. Not only do they keep the grass and weeds out but during the laying season Mrs. Rochelle does not have to buy eggs, she has enough to furnish her household and sell some also.

Mrs. Phillips Offers Aids For Planting

By LADY CLARE PHILLIPS Home Demonstration Agent

When is the best time to move shrubs? When is the safe time to plant trees and shrubs? In answer to these questions, usually wintertime is the safest time because the plants are dormant. Most plants are dormant immediately after the first two freezes. Plants that drop their leaves are dormant after leaf fall. It is safe to move the plant then until spring growth starts. However, when the ground freezes, do not attempt moving until the ground has thawed.

Here are some pointers that may help: Have plant out of the soil for as short a period as possible. Make the hole large enough so the roots will not be crowded. After the tree or shrub has been planted in the hole, firm the top soil about the roots or ball. Leave no air spaces. Pour water into the partially-filled hole to avoid this. Apply heavy mulch around the plant to prevent damage from freezing, and keep soil moist during the winter.

Another pointer is this. Do not plant a shrub any deeper than it grew in the nursery.

E. J. HOLUB Texas Tech

E. J. Holub Day Highlights Tilt With Vanderbilt

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech's basketball team will be hosts to Southeastern Conference teams for their next basketball games in the Coliseum.

Louisiana State invades the Coliseum at 8 p. m. Friday and Vanderbilt University comes here Monday night. An added attraction at the Vanderbilt contest will be an observance of "E. J. Holub Day," at halftime. The Red Raiders' All-American football center will be awarded several certificates.

Texas Tech holds three decisions over the LSU Tigers but has lost a pair to the Commodores. Texas Tech's freshmen will play the Ince Oilers in the 6 p. m. preliminary game Friday and the KCLV Rangers of Clovis before the Vanderbilt tussle.

So far the freshmen are undefeated, having beaten the C&I Life team and the West Texas state freshmen.

J. P. Ray Wins Water Citation

AUSTIN — An official State Health Department citation was awarded this week to J. P. Ray, Littlefield, city water plant operator, for proficiency in water department operation. The impressively designed certificates of competency, signed by the state commissioner of health and authorities of the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association credit recipients with having demonstrated "skill and knowledge" of water treatment, plant management and an understanding of the public health importance of the work.

Under the State Health Department's operator certification program, operators are carefully examined on their technical ability and on their knowledge of their work's influence on community health. Each must pass a stiff written test to qualify for certification.

The Texas general sanitation law requires that at least one plant operator per shift be certified by the state health agency, but other plant personnel and persons in related fields frequently seek certification on their own time and at their own expense to advance themselves professionally and to increase their efficiency as vital public servants.

"The recipients of these certificates are a credit to their profession and to their communities," sponsors of the certification program said. Points toward certification are earned through actual work experience and by attendance at annual district and state short schools sponsored and conducted by the Texas State Department of Health, the engineering extension service of Texas A and M college, and the Texas Water and Sewage Works Association.

It's the Law in TEXAS

OUR "BILL OF RIGHTS" December 15 is observed each year as "Bill of Rights Day" throughout the United States. What does this important "document" mean to us? The American "bill of Rights" consisting of the first ten amendments to our federal constitution, all adopted at one time in 1791, specifies in some detail a number of basic civil rights of the individual citizen. Unaltered by subsequent amendments and jealously guarded by our courts, these privileges must still be respected by our governing bodies today.

Among the most familiar of our constitutional guarantees are those relating to freedom of religion, speech and of the press. The same article protects the rights of peaceable assembly and the privilege of petitioning the government for redress of grievances.

Another amendment secures our persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, and specifies that no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, and unless supported by oath or affirmation.

The due process of law amendment encompasses not one but several guarantees. Every American is secured against being placed twice in legal jeopardy for the same offense; against being compelled to be a witness against himself in a criminal case; and against having his private property taken for public use without just compensation.

He is also secured against being held for trial for a capital (death penalty) or other infamous crime, unless upon a presentment or indictment of a grand jury. And, of course, no person may be deprived of life, liberty or property without orderly court procedures, or due process of law.

Then, to make quite clear to our governing bodies the underlying intent of the preceding provisions, the Ninth Amendment states: "The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."

The Tenth Amendment further emphasizes this basic theory by providing: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

Thus, that fundamental philosophy expressed in the Declaration of Independence, that men are endowed with certain unalienable rights, and that "to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed," has been carried forward into the highest law of our land.

(This newfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should every apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

APPRECIATION AWARDS—Explorer Post 41 presented an appreciation certificate to the local chapter of the WOW Tuesday night in appreciation for the American flag presented to the post. Here, Ed McCannies receives the award representing the Woodmen from Larry Woods, president of the Explorers.

TSTA 'Disappointed' Over School Recommendations

Officials of the Texas State Teachers Association expressed deep disappointment and concern today regarding recommendations by the State Finance Advisory Commission for improvement of education.

TSTA Pres. D. Richard Bowles of Austin said the governor's commission recommended only one-half of the base increase in teacher salaries proposed by TSTA for presentation to the 57th legislature.

"The total State expenditure for improvement of education recommended by the commission is $57.5 million for the biennium compared with $160 required to finance the full TSTA - Hale - Aikin Program," Bowles noted.

"This would mean only $28.7 million per year which is only one-third of the amount requested and is little more than $10 per student," Bowles pointed out. "This will not provide material improvements in the public school system of Texas."

"If our schools were in comparable position with other states of the nation, these recommendations would, for the most part, be excellent," Bowles continued. "But they now fall far short of removing the lag which has built up in our program during the last five years."

Bowles expressed appreciation for the commission's efforts and for the time they have devoted to the study. Nevertheless, he explained the $3,600 minimum teacher pay proposed by the commission is $400 short of the $4,000 minimum and approved by TSTA, the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, and other organizations interested in education.

The $4,000 minimum was presented to the legislature in 1959 and is fully supported by recommendations which the 254 county Hale - Aikin committees made more than two years ago.

"If the full $4,000 is approved by the legislature, it will do no more than place Texas at the average paid teachers in other states," Bowles emphasized. "Since Texas is now more than $700 below this average, a $400 increase represents a half-step at a time when a full step is essential."

Bowles pointed out that the commission did recommend approximately the same maximum teacher salaries that have been included in the TSTA - supported program, although it would require longer to reach the maximums.

He also pointed out that the allotment for transportation, although on a slightly different formula, would involve approximately the same increase in total funds for the school bus operation.

However, Bowles said the commission actually recommended a decrease in the allocation of funds for maintenance and operation of schools in districts with fewer than 75 teachers and the increase for larger districts would be extremely negligible.

"The cost of maintaining and operating a school program has are practically insoluble and therefore poorly absorbed. It isn't the snow but the gas propellant which makes snow sprays dangerous. The snow is made seriously ill after eating the salts, but in their metallic form they are made of harmless plastic and fatty acids, but pressurizing gases can be toxic if inhaled in sufficient quantity. Fortunately the snow evaporates after the snow is sprayed, so there is no residual effect. Those smoke pellets for toy trains, while not recommended for a steady diet, are probably not dangerous either, since it is unlikely a youngster could eat enough to poison him. Nor is there cause for great concern when a lad eats the citric acid and soda fuel from the toy missile launcher he gets from Santa. It is relatively harmless. Other Christmas items billed as "hazardous" by the clearinghouse are the so-called "dancing mothballs" and the cleaning fluid for troy train tracks.

To deal with this dangerous holiday environment, 18 poison control centers today operate in Texas. One is within an economical telephone call of your home. All are equipped to provide family physicians with fast and accurate information on potentially poisonous substances, antidotes and treatment procedures. If an emergency arises in your home, call your doctor first. (A weekly feature of the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

Advice Offered To Deer Hunters

A question often asked by deer hunters on their first hunt is "Should I get out and move around, or should I find a good stand and wait the deer out?" Old timers know the answer. It depends on the situation and conditions. Usually it's best to get on a promising stand and remain there.

By a good stand I mean one in a range of a well-beaten trail or near a scrape or rut. The hunter must be able to see well enough to spot an approaching animal. At the same time he should be concealed so that the animal will not spot him first.

Camp operators, land own-managers report that the one big reason why hunters miss their chances for bagging deer is that they move around too much. Hunters just don't stay put.

A well-seasoned white-tail-deer hunter will admit that he must have lots of patience. The hunter who can stay glued to a spot just off a heavily traveled deer trail or a fresh scrape usually will get his deer.

If you stop and think about it this makes sense.

First-if you know whitetails, you know that they beat out trails from one area to another. When moving about, they usually follow one of these trails.

At night, they bed down where they can keep warm. In the early morning hours they arise and move about, feeding here and there.

The trails zig-zagging thru a range are their highways, their farm-to-market roads. Nearly always if a hunter finds one of these turnpikes he should pick out a spot either in a tree or behind cover where the wind will blow his scent away from the trail. Then sit silently and motionless.

Deer are quick to notice anything unnatural especially if it moves. So if you must move, move slowly. I have missed lots simply because I moved just as a nice buck stepped into sight.

Deer have a reputation for appearing out of nowhere. This means that few noises are made by traveling whitetails.

I have talked with a number of hunters who were so surprised by the sudden appearance of a beautiful buck that they froze in their tracks. They couldn't even lift the rifle to fire it until it was too late.

It might ease the conscience of these hunters to know that very few big game hunters can remain completely relaxed when leveling their sights on a trophy animal. But they don't get bullseye is just behind the shoulders. When the hairs are lined up light, short-barreled rifle without iron sights and a light rifle you could jerk swiftly into position and send some lead after the fleeing animal.

When you square off the cross hairs of a scope on a deer, try to visualize a target with a bullseye in the center. In most cases the bullseye is just behind the shoulders. When the hairs are lined up on that spot, squeeze the trigger and it's all over. Or at least it should be.

A scope is not a must. In fact in the heavy brush country of South Texas the scope can cause many misses. In such country, a light, short-barreled rifle without a scope is the best bet.

In heavy brush, and especially during the rutting season, bucks are dashing about carelessly. It's not unusual for one to come crashing out of the thorn patches right on top of you.

In this case, it would be hard to find him through a scope. With iron sights and a light rifle you could jerk swiftly into position and send some lead after the fleeing animal.

In some areas of the state where there are open meadows and brakes, it's better to have some kind of scope.

According to most reports, quite a number of shotguns are being used this year for whitetails.

Personally, I don't think much of scatter guns when it comes to hunting deer. In the first place, lots of deer are wounded each year because hunters try to drop them with shotguns at very long ranges. Many deer taken this way will have buckshot in them from some year before that. Lots of these deer will be crippled.

The primary reason I do not use a shotgun is because cases so much good use. One load of buckshot per a deer full of holes is an area of wasted space. I've taken pictures of deer who refused to come guns included in the cause they were shot one.

No matter what shooting, the hunter who stays put once you have patience is most. The white tail maintain your patience probably get your deer.

Home Accidents Can Put Deer On Holiday

Parents setting out for Christmas should see that they don't have their faces in an area of a happy occasion by accident.

J. O. Musick, Game warden of the Texas Game Commission, cautioned that account for 6 per cent of the season requires that a hunt be made to avoid frequent occurrence.

"Don't obscure your carrying too many people in high places should you find it necessary to away in hard-to-reach sure to use a strap if it comes time to get down."

You don't expect a child to stand toe to toe with a man. You lift a child . . . and hold him above you.

You don't expect a child to understand fully what is right and wrong.

You don't expect a child to comprehend every spiritual ideal.

You don't expect a child to sense instinctively the constant concern of God in his life.

You lift a child . . . you give him the opportunity in his Church and in his Christian home to gain moral and religious insights.

And you hold him above you . . . dedicating your own time and strength to your Church so that you and your child can find together the spiritual foundation on which men should build their lives.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Shoppers' Guide Gives Don'ts For Pedestrians

Automobile companies have for years issued safety tips to drivers in an effort to reduce the nation's accident toll.

Noting that the combination of hurrying shoppers, poor visibility, and slippery streets make December the most dangerous month of the year for pedestrians, these suggestions this year are for pedestrians.

They are offered by George J. Cutler, director of service for Plymouth.

1. Don't carry so many parcels that your visibility is hampered. Make two trips, if necessary.

2. Cross only at intersections and wait for the green light. Don't try to run across when the amber light is on.

3. Try to shop during daylight hours. The most dangerous time for pedestrians is between sunrise and sunset.

4. Hurry through your shopping, if you must, but don't hurry.

Notice that the sleek lines of the body are closer than ever to track width. We've trimmed side overhang. Every inch and ounce of this '61 Pontiac travels with steadier footing.

The change is also noticeable inside. We've increased seat height and allowed more headroom, legroom and footroom.

Clearance between steering wheel and seat is 12 per cent more than before. Doors are wider, swing open farther.

More balanced in motion. More comfortable inside. That's the Wide-Track way to travel. And there's only one place to try it... In a '61 Pontiac! Take a deciding drive soon.

THE ONLY WIDE-TRACK CAR Pontiac has the widest track of any car. Body width trimmed to reduce side overhang. More weight balanced between the wheels for more-tuned driving stability.
