Negro, 39, Jailed In Shooting

A 39-year-old Sudan Negro was in jail here early this week after being charged in a Sunday morning shooting that developed over a $100 gambling dispute.

Charged with assault with intent to murder was O. B. McClendon. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace O. M. Edwards and bond was set at $5,000.

Wounded in the incident was Fado Clay, 55-year-old Sudan Negro. He received a stomach wound and was hospitalized at Amherst Hospital, where he was in fair condition Tuesday.

Officers said McClendon and Clay were involved in a card game at Hawk's Cafe in the Flats section of Sudan and an argument arose when Clay said McClendon owed him $2. McClendon, according to a statement he gave officers, thought the debt was $1.

McClendon left later, according to his statement, and went home. He got a .380 automatic revolver while there and later went back to the area near the cafe, officers said.

There McClendon and Clay saw each other again and the shooting followed.

Officers said they believed three shots were fired from the McClendon gun, with one slug hitting Clay in the stomach.

Band Wins Top Contest Honor

Littlefield High School's Wildcat Band, under the direction of Beryl Harris, pasted another fine performance in its scrapbook Saturday, winning sweepstakes honors for the second year in a row.

The band became the only one in Class AAA in this region to win the top honor at Region 1 band contests held at Plainview.

At the end of the contests, the LHS unit was chosen as the outstanding band in Class AAA by a vote of the band directors.

For Director Harris, it was the second sweepstakes honor in a row and the third in the past four years.

The band did it by capturing first divisions in both concert and sight-reading. It had won first division in marching earlier in the year. First divisions are required in all three phases for sweepstakes honors.

The Littlefield Junior High Band, also directed by Harris, was second division in concert and first division in sight-reading.

The $600,000 represented the cost of right-of-way for land and improvements. Some special damages were included, but others, including some damage for re-location of utilities, were not.

Because Robbins' figures were tentative, commissioners were hesitant to put a price tag on the project at this time. Definite costs will have to wait on the final report.

"It looks pretty certain right now," said County Judge P. H. Boone Jr., "that the county's cost will run at least $300,000."

He added that there were some items still to be considered, and these might run the cost on up to $550,000.

"We'll be a lot more certain after we get the final report," he added.

County's Share On U. S. 84 To Be $300,000-$350,000

Costs Would Be Split Among 3 Road Districts

Lamb County's share in right-of-way costs for widening of U.S. Highway 84 across the county will run between $300,000 and $350,000, a preliminary report from Appraiser Homer Robbins indicated Monday.

That represents half the cost of right-of-way on the road throughout its distance across the county. The state, under State Highway Commission policy, pays the other half.

Robbins did not break his figures down into road districts for commissioners, but he said he would in a final written report that he will complete and mail to the county by next Monday.

The $300,000 to $350,000 estimate is the total of what Lamb County voters in three road districts—Littlefield, Sudan and Amherst—would have to approve in separate bond elections, with the total amount to be split up according to each road district's share.

Figures presented by Robbins Monday were tentative, and the county must await the return of the appraiser's final report before any further action may be taken.

The final report, Robbins said, will show each road district's share of the right-of-way costs. That would pave the way for petitions requesting separate bond elections in each district to be circulated.

Full right-of-way costs on the project will run at least $600,000, with Lamb County's share on a half of that, according to Robbins' figures.

U.S. System Discussed At School

America's free enterprise system is the best in the world, but Americans must work at it if they want to keep it so, Littlefield High School students were told Tuesday morning.

Dr. John C. Stevens, assistant president of Abilene Christian College, compared the U. S. system with others over the world.

He was here as part of a Chamber of Commerce program which is designed to familiarize students with basic economics and the American way of life. The C-C is sponsoring an essay contest for students in cooperation with the school.

Dr. Stevens made these main points:

1. A government cannot furnish anything without taking something away. He emphasized that federal aid and such things do not come free. Don't ask the government for something, he said, if you can get along without it, because you will have to pay for it anyway.
2. All people in the U. S. should be taxed on an equal basis, with the rich and the poor paying an equal percentage.
3. The government should steer clear of deficit financing, except in time of war.
4. Voters should take an interest in their government, and if they don't like the way things are going, they should do their part to make it better.

Dr. Stevens' talk gave the students a start on preparing their essays in a contest entitled "The Advantages of the Free Enterprise System in our American Way of Life."

Students may write their essays to any length. Deadline for entries is Monday. Prizes are $25 for first place, $15 for second and $10 for third.

California Family Tries Trailer, Decides It's Great Vacation Fun

By BOB THOMAS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — What's it like to take a vacation in a trailer?

When you're on the highway, you have the strange feeling that something is following your car closely. (Something is.) You're surprised when you can't make a quick getaway from a signal, and climbing hills is a bit of a strain. But on flat roads you scarcely remember what you're hauling.

Living in the trailer makes you claustrophobic at first. But then you become delighted at how cozy and convenient everything is.

These were conclusions of one family after a week's experiment in mobile living. It all started when another Associated Press staffer, Jack Quigg, suggested we join his family on a trailer vacation. The suggestion sounded like a lark, so we tried it.

HOLLYWOOD REPORTER'S HOLIDAY: Bob Thomas, who covers the Hollywood beat for The Associated Press, thought a vacation in a rented trailer sounded like a lark so he tried it. The family verdict: Great fun. With Bob and his wife Patricia at the trailer door in Borrego Springs, Calif., are their children Nancy and Janet (sitting).

State Laws Important

First, preparation. I pored over the California Vehicle Code to learn the laws about trailers. You can't drive faster than 45 m.p.h. You've got to have rear lights on the trailer and wide-arm side sleep four comfortably, have gas mirrors on your car.

At home, the parents and two daughters loaded the home-on-wheels with a hundred pounds of food, clothes, bedding, books, games, records, etc. Storage space everywhere. At last we were ready for the big adventure and set out on the Hollywood Freeway.

It's unerving at first to cling to the right-hand lane with the old folks and trucks while the other cars go whizzing past. But you get used to it. You also learn to baby your load along, accelerating deliberately and anticipating the stops.

First stop was a trailer park near Palm Springs. We got parked—backing up isn't easy, as you may have suspected—and hooked up to water, electricity and sewer. Then we began the trailer life. First impressions:

1. Living is amazingly simple, like camping out but with the comforts of civilization. Cheap, too. Park rents averaged $2 a night. Compare this to motel or hotel lodging, plus eating out.

2. Trailer folks are warm and friendly. But they don't intrude; there seems to be a mutual respect of privacy.

After two days in the sun, we pulled the plugs and headed south through the date palms and orange groves to Borrego Springs, a lovely, unspoiled section of desert amid rolling mountains. This was our first experience with no parking space: trailer facilities at the state park were full. So we found a privately operated park.

Carl and Olga Vogt, parents of five children, both work at other jobs to finance a swimming pool and other facilities for their trailer enterprise. We learned a trailer park is no small investment. The Vogts figure a $1,500 bill for each installation.

Big Investment

New parks for 100 trailers are costing an initial $250,000. There are 14,000 in the country today. Despite the big cost, 1,000 new ones are being added yearly.

Another two days passed swiftly, and then we left the desert for the mountains of San Diego County. After a side trip to Mt. Palomar observatory, we continued to the Pacific for our last stop before heading up the Coast Highway to home.

Our trailer experiment was a success, a refreshing escape to the simple life. If you try it, I'd make these suggestions:

1. Don't try to cover too much ground. Pulling a trailer is more tiring than ordinary touring.
2. Make sure you'll have a place to park. Facilities are often crowded, and many parks won't take travelers, especially those with children.
3. Go with another family. It's more fun that way.

Texans In Washington

Ikard, Alger Agree Tax Reforms Needed, But Unlikely This Year

By TEX EASLEY
WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP) — Texas' two men on the House Ways and Means Committee, Democrat Frank Ikard of Wichita Falls and Republican Bruce Alger of Dallas, agree general tax reforms are needed but unlikely this year.

"Even before hearings can be held, our committee staff must do months of research," Ikard noted.

"If we can get hearings started this year we may be able to get a bill through next session."

Alger has joined Rep. Sydney (D-Fia) and Rep. Howard Baker (R-Tenn), fellow committeemen, in sponsoring a bill which has won strong support from the National Assn. of Manufacturers and other big business people.

Based on the theory that tax rates already may be at such a point that henceforth they will yield diminishing returns, their plan calls for a series of reductions in the income tax and corporate tax structures.

Top personal income tax rates would decline over the next few years from the present 91 percent to 47. Lowest rates would drop from the present 20 percent to 15. The corporate rate would go down one percent a year until it reached a 47 percent maximum.

This schedule, they contend, actually would produce more revenue in the long run because there would be more capital available for investment and more incentive to invest it.

Alger confides that the pending bill is a moderation of his earlier support of a constitutional amendment proposal—now pending before the states, which would put a 25 per cent top rate on income taxes.

Ikard says he believes reforms are needed, but that the Herlong bill is predicted on an assumption, that there will be no business declines.

Delay in consideration of tax legislation, Alger said, is caused by committee studies on social security, tariff and other measures which also come up before that group.

Meanwhile, Ikard has teamed up with Rep. Jim Wright of Fort Worth, Democrat, in support of a plan for gradual retirement of the national debt.

Under that proposal, originally advocated by Wright, there would be an orderly, systematic set-aside of tax revenues each year to be applied toward the debt.

Rep. Clark Fisher (D) of San Angelo, although not a member of the tax-levying committee, also introduced a bill like that offered by Herlong and others.

"I don't know that this bill is the answer to the problem," he observed, "but it seems to be a sound approach and provides something with which to start a study. The tax structure now is out of balance."

Engineer, 82, Remembers Adventure On Texas Coast

ARANSAS PASS, Tex., May 7 (AP)—Bob Mercer is 82, but he remembers adventure when at 30, he started to work for the U.S. Engineers.

During the 26 years he worked for them he saw the Intracoastal Canal get its start through areas where ghost towns of early Texas left their mark.

"That was back in 1904," Mercer says, "and the engineers surveyed the route of the waterway through coastal swamps and bays."

Frequently, the surveying parties found traces of long forgotten settlements, some of them beneath the waves of the Gulf.

"On San Luis Island," Mercer says, "there was an old town on the edge of the water, and a lot of graves with headstones that would show at low tide."

This town was founded in 1839, and in those days, say historians, a regular stage coach and ferry operated between the then tiny town of Galveston and booming San Luis. However, by 1844, tides and storms had filled the harbor, and a discouraged populace deserted the settlement.

"Down the way a little piece," Mercer said, "between the markers that now show miles 415 and 420 on the canal, there was a foundation where someone had built a house, and the remains of an old wharf, but I never did learn anything about who lived at that place."

"Just east of Port Conner, between it and Decros Point, present day charts show submerged ruins. There used to be a quarantine station at this point when Pass Cavallo was used by boats carrying freight to early Texas."

"On the upper end of Matagorda Island is where Saluria stood. There once was a pretty good sized town there before the Civil War, with a fort and a lighthouse. A stage line ran down the island across Cedar Bayou to St. Joseph Island."

"There was a town on St. Joseph's then, about opposite where the old Aransas Pass lighthouse still stands. My folks lived there for a while before the Civil War, and then after the war they moved over to Mustang. One time when I was with the engineers, a long time ago I think it was, I was on St. Jo where the old town had been, and wind and water had cleared off the foundations of some of them, so you could tell where they had been built."

Mercer's family followed piloting in the days before the Aransas Pass was jettied, and the little settlement was called Mustang Island, the same as the postoffice. Later this was changed to Ropesville; then, to celebrate the local fishing, it was changed to Tarpon. The name Port Aransas was given to the settlement in 1911.

Mercer remembers a couple of settlements on Padre Island.

An old packing plant stood opposite Corpus Christi and an old quarantine station was close to long-closed Corpus Christi Pass. About two thirds of the way down the island is the spot where Padre Ball's ranch was built in the days of the Spanish occupation, and where the Singer family built their home in later years.

On the south side of Brazos, Santiago Pass, on Brazos Island, Mercer says there were remains of another settlement.

Mrs. Kyle Has Charge Of WSCS Mitchell Trains In Detroit School Program At Bula

BULA — WSCS of the Bula Methodist Church met Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 in the church auditorium for their weekly meeting with fifteen ladies present.

The house came to order and the scripture, taken from Isaiah, chapter six, was read responsively by the group, followed by the singing of hymns.

This lesson was the first study taken from the study book, "Isiah Speaks".

Mrs. Kyle, who was in charge of the lesson, read a poem and explained a picture of Isiah. Mrs. Blackburn followed with a prayer. Those who took part in the lesson included Mrs. Johnson first part entitled "How Isiah's Words Are Used in The New Testament and in Our Hymns"; Mrs. Simmons, second part entitled "Difference in Our Book on Isiah"; Mrs. Cox, third, "The Dates and Authority of What The Book Contains"; Mrs. Bahlman, fourth, "Whom Shall I Send?"; and Mrs. Clawson, fifth and last, "Here Am I, Send Me".

The lesson was concluded by Mrs. Kile asking questions on the first two chapters studied and comparing parts of the book. The group sang the hymn "Come Thou Almighty King".

The worship center used consisted of a poster with a burning flame the inscription "The Creatfood tax, furniture tax and excise tax. Even my brain is taxed. I am required to get a business license, car license, truck license, not to mention a marriage license and dog license.

"I am also required to contribute to every society and organization which the genius of man is capable of bringing to life; to women's relief, the unemployment relief and the gold digger's relief."

"For my own safety I am required to carry life insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, burglar insurance, accident insurance, business insurance, earthquake insurance, tornado insurance, unemployment insurance, old-age insurance and fire insurance."

"My business is so governed that it is no easy matter for me to find out who owns it. I am inspected, expected, suspected, disrespected, rejected, dejected, examined, summoned, fined, commanded and compelled until I provide an inexhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race. Simply because I refuse to donate to something or other I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down and robbed until I am almost ruined."

"I can tell you honestly that except for the miracle that happened, I could not enclose this check. The wolf that was at my door just came in and had pups in the kitchen. I sold them and here is the money."

Fellows watch out for those irrigation pump drive shafts! We notice this morning that a farm laborer at Dimmitt got his heavy coat caught in one while checking the motor and of course he was literally batted to death.

We know of a woman who lives north of Plainview who had beautiful long black hair and while bending over under a drive shaft to drink from the pipe, her hair was caught in the shaft and she was completely scalped.

Another man near Kress had a pipe wrench tightening the universal joint on his well's drive shaft and failed to remove it before starting the motor. The wrench was whirled around and struck him in the head.

Farming is dangerous, as revealed in last year's statistics that more than 12,000 farm workers were killed. We can't be too careful!

Our state legislators didn't figure out how to take care of the 150 million dollar deficit... but they did take care of their own salaries with a substantial raise. Old Ernest Joiner of Ralls says they'll surely be able to figure it out next year, what with the greater intelligence and ability they'll surely have after voting themselves a better salary.

They have a new idea about the grain surplus. Make alcohol with it and mix it with gas and get 45 cents a gallon for it.

That wouldn't last long though. They'd be selling so much of it in Texas and there are so many gas wars in Texas that the price would go down so low that the government would have to start subsidizing the gas companies in order to keep the grain surpluses moving.

Friday is Littlefield's straw hat and short sleeve shirt day and you'll see some of the many styles available in the advertisements in today's Leader. Ware's and Fenton's both feature straw hats and sports shirts.

Mother's Day is Sunday and Penney's features lingerie for this event. Anthony's Samsonite luggage, and Street's Flowers suggests flowers for Mother's Day. Hall Motor Company is ready to air condition automobiles for the hot summer driving.

Looks like the first step in the four lane highway 84 is about to take place with the appraisal figure coming up. We realize that there are many more things that must take place before we get the new highway and we look forward to its completion as soon as possible.

White Cottage Memento Of Great Texas Disaster

VICTORIA, Tex., (AP) A small old-fashioned white cottage here is one of the few existing mementoes of one of Texas' greatest disasters.

The house at 603 North Goodwin Avenue was built with lumber salvaged from the hurricane which virtually destroyed Indianola, Tex. on Aug. 20, 1886.

Indianola, which formerly called herself the Queen City of the Gulf, has been a ghost town since the 186 storm.

Basil Norris Reed of Long Beach, Calif., is one of few persons who can give a first-hand account of the hurricane. He was a boy of six, son of Capt. Isaac Reed of the U.S. Weather Station, when the storm hit.

Capt. Reed set the storm signals as the wind rose on Aug. 19. By 4 a.m. the next day, the wind had hit 70 miles an hour.

Water was waist deep in the streets. Roofs shredded loose and blew away with the storm. The wind rose to 100 miles an hour. Buildings and piers were smashed, ships blown inland.

When the signal office began to shake, one of Reed's four men turned to him and said:

"Come on, Ike, we'd better get out while we can."

"In a minute," Capt. Reed said. "I want to screw this wind gauge down so we'll know how hard it did blow after it's all over."

The others got out, but as Reed hit the street the building collapsed and killed him.

Basil and his stepmother survived and made it to Victoria where they were joined by Basil's big brother, the late S. G. Reed of Houston. They salvaged the lumber from Reed's wrecked home in Indianola and built the little white cottage on Goodwin street in Victoria. It still is used as a dwell-ney Hank Gowdy. The appraiser presented a map which outlined the proposed route of the road, and which revealed for the first time that there are tentative plans for a bypass around the south side of Sudan.

The road will follow its present course from the Hockley County line to Bainer, where it dips slightly south of a gin. It then will return to its present course until just before it reaches Littlefield. The Littlefield bypass starts at a point east of Mac's Steak House, follows a course along the city's southern edge, then returns to the present highway at a point west of Littlefield Cemetery.

From there the road will follow the present course until it comes to the outskirts of Sudan, where it will leave the present highway and bypass Sudan to the south. McGee said the present highway through Sudan lacks the necessary width.

The bypass comes back into the present course just west of Sudan and follows that course the rest of the way to the Bailey County line. Commissioners were told that the Sudan bypass is still in the planning stage and that no definite route has been decided. Robbins appraised the area according to a tentative line drawn for him by the highway department.

The appraiser's map shows a distance of 9.2 miles from the Hockley County line to the point where the Littlefield bypass will start. The bypass is 5.75 miles long. From Littlefield west, the route is 2.3 miles, with the Sudan bypass estimated at 1.8 miles.

More detailed figures on all phases of the project are expected to be available next week, when the final report is made.

Hospital's Blind Receptionist 'Sees' With Sense Of Hearing

By DAN DONOHUE

BALTIMORE (AP) — A doctor from Texas, who had left Baltimore 20 years before, dropped in unexpectedly one day at the hospital where he used to be a resident surgeon.

He walked up to the information desk. A small woman with neatly combed gray hair was behind the counter.

As soon as he spoke, she recognized him. The doctor, returning from a medical meeting, was delighted, and they chatted for some time.

Not a bad stunt for a normal person. The woman in this incident is totally blind.

No one at Church Home and Hospital was particularly surprised. It was just one of many such performances by Miss Audrey Birch, the woman who sees with her ears.

Her memory is phenomenal. She knows the majority of the staff by voice and, on any given day, knows the names and room numbers for most of the hospital's 170 or so patients.

All day long, Monday through Friday, she handles with ease a flow of visitors and telephone queries that would fluster many other women of 59.

"Good morning, I'd like to see Bill J.," said a man at the counter.

"Yes, he's on the fourth floor," replied Miss Birch. "His visiting hours won't start before 11. The elevator is over to the right there through the green door." (Some- one once mentioned it was green and her blotting-paper memory soaked it up.)

Miss Birch, who was born blind, has become quite an institution at Church Home and hardly an employe passes through the lobby without stopping to say hello to the smiling woman in a black skirt and frilly white blouse.

Hospital Director William F. Morrison said, "She has a knack for remembering every patient's name in the house. Just to make at the General Motors Training Center in Oklahoma City, Okla. Meyer is one of thousands of Oldsmobile dealer service employes who have taken instruction under instructors trained at the Oldsmobile factory.

NO VISIBLE HANDICAP: Miss Audrey Birch, who was born blind from birth, gives directions to a visitor. In hospital she serves as information clerk.

sure, she maintains a braille directory of her own composition." Miss Birch came to Church Home 35 years ago. In December of 1923, as a telephone operator, she had been trained at the Maryland School for the Blind and worked a similar job for three years at another hospital.

A big, modern operation went in in 1951 and Miss Birch switched to the information job.

She likes to listen to grand opera on the radio on Saturday afternoons and also enjoys baseball. She likes bathing, too. She has a home in Eerlin, Md., near the resort city of Ocean City — and frequently goes to the ocean in the summer.

Miss Birch lives at the hospital and knows it intimately. She has no dog. When she goes out, "I usually use cabs or go with someone. I don't travel alone on the streets."

One of the most recent monials comes from Matthews II, director of development program at the hospital. "I was here half a year. I knew she was blind."

SEAFARING WATER BOY: Ben Larsen, who supplies drinking water to ships, tanks up the Patricia before making a delivery.

Thirsty Ships Give Salior A Livelihood

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ben Larsen runs a delivery service supplying ocean-going ships with water-drinking water.

He's one of the few men anywhere engaged in this type of business.

Larsen owns a squat, 42-foot waterboat, the Priscilla. Sometimes the vessel is busy on the Delaware River for 35 hours continuously. Sometimes it may lie idle for two or three weeks.

Larsen's service supplements regular Philadelphia port facilities for supplying drinking water to ships. When a ship docks at a pier where there are no such facilities or when the water pressure is too low to do the job, Larsen gets a call. Moments later he heads the Priscilla across river to a pier at Camden, N.J., where it takes on a capacity 40-ton water load from an artesian well line.

Some ships take as much as 150 tons through the waterboat's high pressure hoses, meaning four round-trips for the Priscilla. One complete operation takes up to four hours. Thus, supplying a big ship may keep the Priscilla busy for 16 hours.

Larsen charges $2 a ton for his water (a ton is about 250 gallons) and says it's a reasonable price. If a big ship were to take the cross-river trip for loading its own supply at Camden, he notes it might mean a bill of about $600 for pilot and tug costs.

Larsen, a 38-year-old native of Spencer, Iowa, keeps busy during slack time by working as editor of the Philadelphia Maritime Directory.

She started teaching school when she was 17 years old to help support six brothers and sisters. Her father died when she was senior in college.

Government programs have not increased food costs. The government does not support the price of meat, poultry products, vegetables and fruits — food items which have advanced most in price in recent years.

While food prices generally have averaged about 10 per cent higher than in 1949, farmers are selling their produce for 20 per cent less than they did 10 years ago. Meanwhile, their production costs have gone up by almost 20 per cent.

Almost no one contends that the present farm program is a good one, or that it isn't costing too much. But whatever blame there is belongs to Congress and the Administration for failure to adopt a better program, not to farmers.

Where the Money Goes
About $3 billion of the $7 billion budget will be earmarked for price support loans on commodities which the government will eventually sell for about $2.5 billion, or give away under various foreign aid programs.

Another $1 billion will be paid to private firms for storage of surpluses. Approximately $1.5 billion will be used to finance sales abroad at cut-rate prices. This is more foreign aid than farm aid. One big chunk of the budget is half a billion dollars for school milk and lunch programs, food distribution to the needy, food label protection, pest and disease control, and improvement of food quality.

Part of the agricultural budget is to finance loans to the Rural Electrification and Farmers Home administrations. These are gilt-edged.

THIS WEEK In Washington

With CLINTON DAVIDSON
BILLIONS FOR FARMERS?

When Congress takes up the 1960 fiscal year budget for the U. S. Department of Agriculture in a few days it will be the signal for another "public indignation" outburst against "subsidizing farmers."

The House Appropriations Committee has worked out a budget that calls for the appropriation of almost $7 billion for financing the Department in the fiscal year starting next July 1. The entire amount will be labeled "farm aid." The city press and congressmen from urban districts will, as they have in the past, complain that farmers are "being fattened financially out of the Federal Treasury" at the expense of taxpayers. They'll say again, that government farm programs are responsible for "high food prices."

Farmers will take another public flogging in the press and over the radio. A prominent New York paper already has begun the whipping by charging that "consumers must pay high prices for food while paying high taxes to keep prices high."

What Are the Facts?
The facts are that only a small portion of that $7 billion will ever reach the pockets of farmers, and food prices have increased less than almost any other item of living costs in the past 10 years.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights
by Vern Sanford
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association
AUSTIN, Tex. - "They said it couldn't be done. And, sure enough, it couldn't."

This is the attitude of many tired lawmakers toward the session-long struggle to raise $200,000,000 in new tax money.

As the regular session drew near to a close, House members, in effect, admitted they couldn't agree on a program that would do the job. House sent to the Senate the scraps of selective sales tax measure (HB 727) and a bill to increase the corporation franchise tax for one year only.

There was off-the-cuff talk among House members of someone's proposing at a later date to solve the problem by cutting the appropriation bill across the board to 4 percent less than the 1958-59 budget. This would bring such violent reaction, it was thought, that both lawmakers and their constituents would be more receptive to new tax proposals.

Senate State Affairs Committee has indicated it has no intention of trying to shove through a tax program just to beat the May 12 deadline of the regular session. Full hearings have been promised for all viewpoints.

FIRE-POLICE BILL PASSES - House voted 83-to-56 for a bill that would shorten hours of city firemen and policemen.

Senate already has given the bill final passage. After one more favorable vote in the House, it will be ready to go to the Governor.

Opponents tried, unsuccessfully, to get the bill amended to give local citizens a chance to vote on whether the bill would affect their cities. Supporters protested this would "kill the bill."

TRUCK BILL SIGNED - Gov. Price Daniel signed the bill raising the truck load limit from 58,400 to 72,000 pounds.

But he made no bones about his misgivings. He recommended that the State Highway Department and county commissioners courts take steps to keep the heavier loads off farm roads and others that might be damaged.

Before deciding to sign the bill, the governor took an unusual step, by calling a public hearing. State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer testified there were some 5,000 miles of road that couldn't take 72,000 - pound loads. Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Department of Public Safety, said more license and weight inspectors would be needed. Higher registration fees were expected to provide revenue for this.

Roosevelt Dam in Arizona is 30 miles long and 2 miles wide. There is a 16-foot driveway across the top.

Castro Didn't Fly Into Washington To See Barber

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm tells what he knows about Fidel Castro this week. He's probably as accurate as he ever is, which is something we never know.

I mean, putting down a dictator so long as it's not just swapping one dictator for another, is a highly commendable piece of work but in these days, when you win a revolution or win a war, your troubles are just beginning. Sort of like getting married.

I mean, sitting out in the Cuban jungles plotting how to overthrow a dictator is a definite piece of work, and when you finally get him overthrown and he flies off to another country with a few million dollars, and you get through riding in triumph down main street and sit down behind a desk and size up the job ahead, the situation loses a lot of its glamour.

Heading the dictator off at the pass is one thing, but finding the tax money to build the roads the people can drive around on joying the freedom you've just given them is another thing. Getting the deed to a piece of land is not the same as paying off the mortgage on it.

Fidel Castro than he does about me, but I have been reading about his success in winning a revolution in Cuba and have found that things are working out about like I expected.

Consequently, after Castro had been in office a few months, it didn't surprise me any to see him heading for the United States, and I don't think he was coming over here to see a barber. I don't think he came right out and asked for a loan, but when any government official in the world has a big job on his hands requiring a lot of money and he flies to Washington, you can feel reasonably sure he's not just sight-seeing. Castro, you can be sure, was never kicked in the head by a horse.

What he was doing was proving he wasn't a Communist, as this is the main step these days in getting an international loan. Understand, I have no complaint about the U.S. not lending money to anybody it suspects is a Communist, but all the bankers I know go a few steps further. They're so out of touch with the international situation they not only demand that you not be a Communist, they also check around to see if you're a safe risk. This is what keeps banks sound, but it sure ain't international.

Yours faithfully
J. A.

Littlefield Churches May Take Part In 'Crusade'

Churches of Littlefield have been invited to participate in the largest interdenominational event in South Plains history, the Crusade for Christ scheduled in Lubbock May 10-17.

The giant crusade, to be held in Municipal Coliseum nightly at 7:30, will feature widely known Howard Butt, businessman-preacher, and a team of outstanding Christian lecturers, musicians and qualified laymen.

More than 287 churches throughout the area have been invited by letter, or personal contact, to help make the crusade successful by encouraging attendance from the congregations, to observe prayer hours in behalf of the crusade and to otherwise spread "the word about the weeklong religious event."

Several thousand persons already serving on 10 major committees are hard at work, explained the Rev. Dudley Strain, general chairman of the Crusade for Christ.

More than 80 Lubbock churches originated the event and last week began a concentrated advance campaign for attendance. A crusade of f-ice has been opened at 1403 College Ave. in Lubbock where volunteers can secure posters, brochures, spiritual guides and other advertising materials.

Howard Butt, who has successfully preached to capacity crowds in several sections of the nation, is vice president of a large super-market chain. He spends more than one-third of his time in crusades and related Christian work.

The other members of the Crusade for Christ team are W. Karl Steele, Director of the Art Department of Wheaton College, Ill.; Fague Springman, Associate Professor of Voice, University of Maryland; Don De Vos, evangelistic music director, of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Gary Demarest, associate executive secretary of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Kansas City, Mo.; and Way E. Oates, Professor of Psychology of Religion, Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville, Oates is also visiting pastoral counseling professor of Union Theological Seminary, New York.

As the man faintly the veteran doctor quickly looked at the chart and explained to the student: "That's a biopsy, not autopsy." The veteran physician told the story.

Dancing Cowboys Deal Randall County Trouble

CANYON (AP) - Randall County officials doubtlessly face current problems but they are no longer bothered with one-early day worry - cowboys dancing on the courthouse roof.

The county this year celebrates the 50th anniversary of the completion of its present courthouse but the trouble over the dancing cowboys dates back to the 1890's.

The first courthouse, a frame structure erected in 1890, had a flat roof.

C. Boone McClure, director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon, says that many old timers have told him that on Saturday nights cowboys would come to town and that dances were held on the courthouse roof.

The wear and tear didn't show in the minutes of the commissioners' court until May 9, 1893. Two of the commissioners, appointed to study the problem of the roof, reported that a new one had been installed at a cost of $140.

But on May 16, 1895, the commissioners court took drastic action.

It ordered the sheriff, J. M. Cooper, to "prohibit dancing in the courthouse in the future. It is further ordered by the court that the sheriff shall prohibit any person or persons from taking up or moving benches which are fastened to the floor of the courthouse.

The rooftop dances and the rip-effort. The court just authorized the county clerk to provide two barrels for the courthouse with a bucket for each barrel.

To keep horses off the courthouse square, the court in 1891 paid out $112.50 for fencing.

Two months later an election was ordered to determine whether "benches should be allowed to run at large." Result of the election was never noted in the minutes of the court. But since a recent check showed no logs running loose in the vicinity of the courthouse, local historians assume the measure was approved.
