Feed Grain Sign-Up Starts Monday

Proposed Bill Will Up Parity

Preliminary sign up will begin Monday for the proposed feed grain bill, according to Lamar Aten, county ASC director.

"The most important part of this program is to get more money into the farmers pocket", Aten said. "Farmers who participate in the program will be eligible for a price support of about 20 cents per hundred above the 1959-60 support price."

"It will be necessary to sign up every farm that raised feed grains during the 1959-60 year, between Monday, March 6 and March 21," Aten continued, "but this will not obligate the farmer in any way as far as entering the program. This first phase is just a preliminary sign up so an estimate can be reached on the correct grain acreage."

He stated, "This has not become a law yet, but we expect it to be passed sometime this week. We have about 2500 farmers that will have to sign up so we have worked out a schedule for each area beginning Monday."

The schedule is: letter groups A and B (Springlake, Earth and Otton) are asked to sign up Monday and Tuesday, Mar. 6 and 7; letter groups C and D (Hart Camp and Amherst) on Wednesday and Thursday, Mar. 8 and 9; group E (Sudan) on Friday, Mar. 10; group F (southwest part of Lamb County) on Monday, Mar. 13; Groups G and H (Littlefield and Spade) on Tuesday and Wednesday, Mar. 14 and 15.

The feed grain bill was passed by a 25 to 5 majority Monday by the House Agriculture Committee and sent to be voted on by the Representatives. In the event the bill does not become law, the sign ups will end and all those who have previously signed up cancelled.

The bill authorizes the secretary of agriculture to set for 1961 the price support for corn at not less than 65 per cent of parity. Price support in 1961 is limited to a volume if corn and sorghum equal to the average 1959-60 production of these grains.

It directs him to establish a special conservation and land retirement program for 1961 for corn and grain sorghum farmers. Under this program he would make "fair and reasonable" payments to producers (but not more than 50 per cent of the normal yield for cash payments and not more than 60 per cent of the normal yield for payments-in-kind), require a 20 per cent diversion of corn and grain sorghum acreage for payments in cash and authorize a 20 per cent further diversion for payments-in-kind, and allow small corn-sorghum farmers (those planting 20 acres or less in 1959-60) to place their entire acreage in the program.

The bill further requires that producers of corn, grain sorghum, soybeans, and any other feed grain or oilseed crop designated by the Secretary must participate in the land retirement program for corn and grain sorghum in order to be eligible for price supports.

It also allows the CCC to release for sale in the domestic market surplus corn and grain sorghum at any level not less than 17 per cent below the established support price for corn and grain sorghum in 1961.

"Our program here is set up in three phases beginning with the preliminary sign up," Aten said, "with the second phase the setting of a productivity index and third the sign up on a voluntary basis for those who wish to participate."

At present the feed grain bill includes grain sorghum, corn, phase one of this program is being started in every county in the Four sub-committees of the Chamber of Commerce Governmental Affairs Committee met Monday and Tuesday to discuss state tax proposals.

The groups decided against most of the tax proposals as being only stop-gap measures, selective in nature and will not raise the tax money required.

Tax measures opposed by the committees are: Abandoned property bill, whereby the state will take any property or non-active bank accounts after a specified period of time.

A gross receipts tax on public utilities.

The two per cent tax on the cost of merchandise to retail outlets.

The bill to raise the franchise tax. The committee felt this would hinder any new industrial development.

At the present there are several industries planning to move into Texas, but are waiting the outcome of the franchise tax bill.

Right-Of-Way Struggles Over Highway 84

Trials Continue

Condemnation suits for the right-of-way for widening U. S. highway 84 from the Hockley county line to Littlefield, continued this week with suits against Thomas C. James and G. P. Maynard being heard by the special Commissioners jury.

James was given $4,937.50 for four and eight-tenths acres of land needed by the county. The settlement also included payment for a low-tile house that stands on the right-of-way line.

Maynard was awarded $375 for nine-tenths of an acre of land. In an earlier case heard last week, Percy and Bill Carter were awarded $10,000 for 2.61 acres of land near Balmor.

Decisions in all the cases heard thus by the special juries are appealable by either side.

Payments in the cases do not only contain compensation for the land, according to County Judge Pat Boone, Jr., but also for any damage that might be done to the remaining acreage.

Elms said that the linters were covered by insurance but the building was not.

Investigation failed to reveal the actual source of the fire, but Elms reasoned that the blaze began as a result of faulty wiring or some other electrical mishap.

Sunnydale HD Club Sees Slides Of International Peace Garden

Sunnydale Home Demonstration Club met Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. B. D. Birkelbach, Mrs. Fred Grisham, presiding.

Mrs. Lady Clare Phillips gave a demonstration on removal of creases from materials, and demonstrated permanent pleating. Both demonstrations showed the use of white vinegar on materials. The Peace Garden is a living memorial to the peaceful relations that have existed between the United States and the Dominion of Canada for 140 years, without warship, fort, soldier, or gun. There are many interesting features, but the Cairn is the first feature erected, made of native field stone and it bears the following inscription: "To God in His Glory We Two Nations Dedicate This Garden and Pledge Ourselves That as Long as Men Shall Live We Will Not Take Up Arms Against One Another."

Mrs. Phillips stressed that this is especially significant at a time when "peace" is the cry throughout the land, but no such peace as this exists anywhere else in the world.

The devotionals were given by Mrs. B. D. Birkelbach and Mrs. Louise Bryce had charge of recreation.

LIPSTICK LOGIC

Some Belgian decorator has come up with a now-I've heard-everything theory about what we hand on our walls, as a key to character.

Bare walls, she says, are a sign of emptiness and frustration, pinups and calendars, of permanent adolescence, pictures of oneself, or abstract paintings, an inferiority complex, family photographs, a warm nature, but low mentality.

We took a tour through the house after reading this nonsense just to see what's the matter here. There's a mirror in almost every room; "a radiant and sparkling nature, but look out for vanity." (We haven't sparkled in years, and never look at our own image in any but two utility mirrors, the others reflect colors in the rooms).

Prints of two ancient maps, framed in soft wood, a gift, five Van Gogh prints, because we like him and can't afford originals; Picasso and Holbein reproductions (some of them we've had for years). "Reproductions: the owner knows that art exists and is just beginning to appreciate it."

A pair of antique French miniatures framed in ivory, sent by a loved one who stretched her budget to buy them: "Original paintings by masters: the first sign of a showoff spendthrift who is undoubtedly taking it off of his taxes." A primitive in tempera by a young Indian, whose adobe hut we hunted out to buy it, and a watercolor of a cowboy, done by an artist friend: "Do-it-yourself paintings: the sign that the tenant knows that art exists but still doesn't know what it is."

Maybe her pattern fits in Brussels. But here in America, don't most of us put things on the wall because we like 'em? Take them down when we're tired of 'em, or change the colors in a room?

4-H Week Designated By Daniel

March 4-11 has been designated as 4-H Club Week in Texas. The same week will also be observed across the nation as National 4-H Club Week.

In his proclamation Governor Price Daniel said, "Building tomorrow's leaders today is a high purpose in 4-H Club work. The expanding role of 4-H emphasizes character development and good citizenship as 4-H members learn the latest practices in agriculture and home economics."

"Since the 4-H program was inaugurated by the United States government in 1914, the 4-H movement has spread across our nation and to 52 foreign countries. 4-H Club members learn by conducting result demonstrations and participating in 4-H activities. By putting into action what they learn, club members improve their homes and communities."

"Voluntary adult leaders working with club members provide a key to the success of 4-H. Parents and friends of 4-H give support and encouragement to club members. The Agricultural Extension Service of the A and M College of Texas, through county extension agents, direct the 4-H Club program."

"Any boy or girl from ages 9 to 21 can take part in 4-H Club work. The opportunities offered to 4-H Club members to grow in citizenship, leadership and practical skills are especially valuable to them, the State of Texas and the nation. 4-H Clubs are a proving ground for the training of future leaders."

In his message to the approximately 100,000 4-H members in Texas Governor Daniel said, "Please accept my best wishes for 1961 and the years ahead. May you continue to work to improve yourselves, your homes and communities and thus help build our State and Nation. The future holds bright promise for our land, and as 4-H members, you have an important role in it."

The American Foundation for the Blind recorded 155 "Talking Books" during the past year and pressed 425,000 records at cost for free distribution by the Library of Congress.

It's the Law in TEXAS

CONFIDENCES PROTECTED

Under the law what you as a client tell your lawyer in confidence he may tell no one else without your consent.

Why have such a privilege? Chiefly, to do justice, it encourages clients to tell their lawyers what they have to know to help and to advise them fully; things about their family, business, and private affairs, their hopes, fears and ambitions.

No lawyer may speak of certain things, even after a client dies. For a client may well have to give his lawyer details which, if revealed, might harm those he most wanted to protect.

Yet, in some very rare cases, to help carry out the client's desires after death, a lawyer may have to reveal a confidence, under certain safeguards, to uphold his client's purposes.

What are confidential communications? Anything a client tells his lawyer when he seeks advice about his personal, business, or legal affairs—talks and letters, photographs, charts, and other documents and records.

Confidential communications protect you as the client, not your lawyer. If you break the confidence, a lawyer may also have to talk. For the communication is no longer confidential. You may break a confidence by testifying about it, or by having unauthorized persons hear or see what was communicated.

No lawyer may keep quiet about a crime or fraud a client has told him he plans to commit. But afterwards, a accused person may talk freely to his lawyer. Even if guilty, he has a right to have his side of the story presented to the court as it may affect his punishment. A person in trouble needs to talk to someone without fear that what he says will become public.

In some states certain other professional people, such as physicians and clergymen, may receive privileged communications. However, Texas law makes no provision for privileged communications with physicians and clergymen.

This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.

About Your Health

A "periodic check-up" is simply a careful medical study of a presumably healthy person, performed regularly by the family physician to detect disease or body malfunction in an early stage. Early treatment reduces suffering and prevents some diseases from being chronic, and perhaps incurable.

Besides detecting disease before it becomes too deep-rooted, the check-up serves as a basis for patient and his family. The physician can discuss such problems as diet, exercise, rest, work and play habits, and other activities which affect health.

How often and what type examination should be given varies with the patient's age, sex, occupation, heredity, past health, place of residence and economic status. Says the American Academy of Pediatrics:

"The normally healthy infant should be checked about every six weeks during the first year, every three months during the second year, and once a year from the sixth to twelfth year."

Most medical authorities believe that from about 12 to age 40 or 45, annual health check-ups are adequate. After 45 some doctors advise examinations every nine months. These time schedules, keep in mind, are suggested for normal people without previous serious or chronic illness.

No single examination can be applied to all persons, but all check-ups include a medical history, the actual physical examination, and may include certain laboratory and x-ray procedures as determined to be necessary.

The medical history gives the physician clues as to what he should be especially alert for when he begins the examination. It will include such things as social and occupational habits, past illnesses, present symptoms. Armed with the advance knowledge the physician can frequently detect the possibility of disease long before abnormal physical signs become apparent to the patient. (A weekly feature from the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

the state government and have the fairest tax possible to meet the fiscal needs.

"The now proposed tax measures are aimed at businesses which are now almost taxed to death. The money raised from these tax measures will meet just the immediate needs and when the legislature meets next year, they will face the same shortages in funds available," said Gene Garrison, Chamber manager.

He pointed out "Every time we place more responsibility on the government we must pay for the administration of the new job placed on it. It is the aim of our committee to place the responsibility on the government closest to home that can handle the job."

THE STRING-A-LONGS

The low-price compact that looks and drives like twice the price!

Valiant's
the compact that rarely complains

(just like the Valiant owners you know!)

What makes Valiant, and the people who own it, so easy going?

For one thing, nagging annoyances that beset many other car bodies have been engineered out of Valiant's one-piece welded Unibody. And out where the road bumps are, Valiant's Torsion-Aire suspension stays smooth as milk 'n' honey.

Remember, too, Valiant's low prices begin $100 lower than last year. And because Valiant's built the way it is, it's bound to rate high at resale time.

For looks and liveliness, for long life and low cost, the top compact this year is Valiant. Come see the man who sells them!

Modernization Methods Produce Bigger Crops

When farmers moved to greener fields, they settled in permanent locations. . . experimental farming brought advanced methods to enable farmers to produce more on less land. . . One thing they learned was that Mother Nature had been handling the job so well. . . farmers observed her methods and copied them. . . He didn't understand that soil can be overworked, and nutrients were steadily absorbed— and not replaced. . .

horous, dried blood, animal fur, horns and feathers were pressed into service as fertilizers. American colonists learned how to grow corn by an age-old Indian method. At the heart of each mound of seeded earth . . . a dead fish was buried! Scientists can tell you today it was a simple treatment—returning organic matter to well-farmed soil—but hungry settlers only knew this mysterious fish-planting meant better eating.

A no-effort technique was to relax and let the earth revitalize itself for a few seasons.

For the first time, farmers looked at a quiet field and realized it was alive with nature's farmers. Prairie dogs, woodchucks, chipmunks and mice ground and mixed soil while making burrows. Organic matter carried underground for food or nesting eventually became part of the soil. Worms by the thousands made air and water passages through the field. . . brought healthy subsoil to the surface. . . passed enormous quantities of organic material through their digestive systems, making plant nutrients available to crops. Ants and other insects worked frantically at the same job.

Where animals roamed, plants grew luxuriantly. Farmers learned to use waste materials from live animals to fertilize their ground. While the organic matter was altered chemically by the animals, it required still further adjustment in soil in stupendous numbers, perfected the manure for new plant food.

Early Americans cut and burned fine timber for the ashes, which contain a fertilizer ingredient. Some of the "pot-ash" was exported to Europe. Wood, straw and other organic materials are still burned for the mineral materials that remain in their ashes. Fire was sometimes used unwisely in early agriculture.

It was used to clear a field of residues from previous crops. Within a few years, vitality of the soil was depleted. The stubble of small grains and stalks of corn and cotton would have meant life to the land. . . root passages channeling rainwater and oxygen into the ground. . . decaying green matter spreading organic wealth in its wake. In some places, this wasteful method is still practiced.

Throughout the world today, slaughterhouse wastes—rich in nitrogen—are used for fertilizer. Probably their value was discovered when the materials were spread on the soil in order to get rid of them. Beneficial effects were noted. . . farmers learned to respect animal products and they became an article of trade.

Peruvian guano was used in the U.S. as early as 1824. . . the oldest commercial fertilizer recorded here. Guano is a sort of grab-bag of birds, bats, and seals, accumulated in arid regions and in caves.

Tankage, fish meal and sewage sludge are valuable for animal manure in fertilizer. Vegetable castor and linseed meals, and cocoa cake and tobacco stems. Cigarette manufacturers often package bits of tobacco. . . and sell it for fertilizer mixtures.

Tiny amounts of zinc, copper, manganese, boron, cobalt, iron and iodine—grouped under the heading of "trace elements"—have recently been recognized as essential to plant health. These elth soil. If they are not, they have to be added. Their absence might cause leaf disease, stunted or rotted plants.

Believe it or not, there's one type of fertilizer that almost goes up in smoke! Flue dust and fumes created in the manufacture of cement contain large quantities of potash. . . in gaseous form this is easily recovered and processed for sale.

Sugar in low grade molasses is converted into alcohol, leaving potash remains which are burned going into the fertilizer industry as vegetable potash.

Farmers, florists and market gardeners today know the three principal plant nutrients are nitrogen, phosphorous, and potassium (potash). Chemical analysis of fertilizer ingredients is required by most states. . . and the quality control keeps manufacturers up to top standards.

Alumite Complex from unique volcanic deposits in the western part of our country has been blended with standard fertilizers for improved results.

This mineral complex is a natural deposit of the geological past. Replacement alumite is known to have been eaten by wild animals, and the sturdy plants growing near the deposits are sought by these animals.

Alumite Complex contains supplemental secondary and trace elements. These replace trace elements depleted in the soil by continuous farming. This natural mineral complex enhances the yield and quality of vegetables, fruits and other crops.

"Mixing plants" use finely ground alumite—the natural mineral mined from the earth—with pelleted forms of nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium. This fertilizer additive is called Calumite Corporation, a subsidiary of Hydrocarbon Chemicals Inc., of Newark, N. J.

Since 1955 over 50,000 acres of row and root crops, grains, grasses, pastures, vineyards, citrus groves, flowers and shrub have been fertilized with mixture containing Calumite. In records verified by hundreds of grower testimonials, the harvest has been bigger, better and more profitable!

The elements contained in Alumite Complex are readily and continuously available to the root system so the plant feeds throughout its complete growing cycle. The additive retards loss of nutrients in the soil. . . making nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium effective longer.

Man has come a long way in his eternal battle with nature for the food he needs. With the help of modern science, every tomorrow promises a richer harvest.

as of Spur and Sandra Jean Lemmons of Three Way.

The annual selection of the princess will be on March 18, the first day of receiving entries from throughout the South Plains.

The princess contest will be among the first events of the show. Livestock entries will be sifted March 19 and judging of animals will begin March 20 and continue through the 22nd.

A total of $1818 in cash premiums will be awarded at the show, including $753 in the Fat Steer Division, $623 in the Fat Barrow Division, $237 in the Fat Lamb Division, and $165 in the special awards portion of the exhibition.

Deadline for livestock entries will be midnight March 7. All regularly enrolled 4-H, FFA and FFA club members who are 9 years of age and under 21 are eligible to enter livestock.

Improving Lands Increases Weeds

Census figures reveal that Texas farmers are consistently producing higher per acre crop yields.

The use of fertilizers and irrigation has contributed greatly to this yield increase, and many farmers now use a soil test to determine the kind and amount of fertilizer to apply. These and other practices serve to improve growing conditions, thus resulting in higher production.

There is one problem that increases with this increased yield, however, says Lee Coffey, extension agronomist. Noxious weeds take advantage of the improved growing conditions just as do the desired plants.

One way to ease the weed problem, says Coffey, is to read the seed tag before buying. The Texas Seed Act requires that all seedsold

Glenn Reeves, school superintendent, called us late Saturday to tell us that school attendance was better than average during the Saturday session. He expressed his appreciation to parents and students alike for cooperating 100 per cent with the school. Saturday school became a necessity caused by the 16 inch snow a week ago Monday and no school on Tuesday. Although attendance was good Saturday, he didn't say anything about having school every Saturday, and I for one am glad.

It looks like the Russians are trying to take credit for just about everything. They claimed this week that Jazz is really a Russian creation, being first played in the town of Odessa. We have known for a long time they created the "Bop", that's what they do if you aren't a good Commie, the "Stroll", that's what the people do behind barbed wire in the various prison camps, and the "Shuffle", that's what the Commies do to groups who do not agree with Russian dictates.

I'll be glad to let them take credit for the Bop, Stroll and Shuffle, but not Jazz. Everyone knows that Jazz is an American original and will remain as such until there are no more Louis Armstrong's, Dizzy Gillespie's and other greats like them and until there is no more Bourbon Street in New Orleans.

If we aren't careful, the next thing the Russians will claim will be the English Language, but at this time they claim they don't understand our language.

But you know, after thinking this thing over, Mr. K is bound to be a Jazzer. I guess his stage name would be "Drummer Boy" or maybe even "The Barefoot Boy With Shoes" but we could go back in history on these Russians, take "Smoothie" Stalin for example, he played both ends against the middle and came up the concert master, take "Lungs" Zorin, the current Russian delegate to the UN he can croon, moan and sing beautiful songs of Communism, but his best performance is at the top of his voice, screaming for attention.

Personally, I am not a western music fan, but there is one TV program that I watch very faithfully, "Today on the Farm". This show features Eddie Arnold, who in my book is about the best of the western singers, and usually a guest of about the same calibre that so far has been more accurate than most. So if you don't have anything better to do at 7 a.m. Saturday morning you might just tune the ole' TV to the show and see how you like it.

The United States is going to invade Cuba just any time now or at least that is what Castro keeps telling his people. From this viewer's angle, Castro is losing out in his battle with the people and is trying to create a common enemy so that all will remain loyal. If as he says, the Imperialistic U.S. plans an invasion in the near future. One time he even went so far as to give the date of the invasion, but it didn't happen. I for one would like to see him exiled to Russia where he can be close to his (friends?) Chances are they would send him to Siberia as an undesirable.

This came across my desk this week, "God in Politics by Muri McCastland."

"Perhaps by accident, our founding fathers brought forth on this continent a government guaranteed by a Constitution and dedicated to God.

"It may not happen again on his earth.

"There are two economies involved in the history of man's efforts to live as a social being—Capitalism and Socialism.

"I believe in the laws of God as they operate in the life of man and in nature.

"I believe the laws of God can operate in an economy.

"I believe the laws of God can operate best in a Capitalist economy.

"I believe God is as much a part of me as my breath.

"I do not believe the Church has a monopoly on God, not even the National Council of Churches.

"I suggest my good preacher friends and my Church would do well to re-evaluate their position in politics and move over to the side of Capitalism.

"I think Paul was a Capitalist when he wrote in 2 Thessalonians 3:10, 'If any one will not work, let him not eat.'

"May we ask God to show us the way."

Soil Temperatures Hurt Proper Uniform Stands

In this age of mechanized cotton production, a uniform stand with desirable plant spacing is a must. Since such a stand requires precise planting operations, both equipment improvements and planting practices are important. It is also important to take full advantage of the growing season by obtaining a satisfactory stand the first planting.

Weather Not Always Culprit In Cotton Loss

In many instances, cold, wet weather gets the blame for loss of young cotton stands when seedling disease is the real cause. The value of seed treatment to prevent seed rot has been known for many years. However, seed treatment does not prevent all seedling disease. This disease, more commonly known as "sore-shin" or "damping-off" each year takes its toll of cotton seedlings and thus reduces stands and yields later in the year. It is caused by fungi which live in the soil and attack young seedlings from the time of germination until plants are several weeks old. Nut-root and lack of normal tap root development, result of seedling disease, may damage cotton throughout the growing season.

In 1953 research was started by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station on the use of fungicides in the furrow and covering soil at planting time. From this work, a method of control for seedling disease was developed. The method helps reduce risks and helps take guesswork out of cotton farming. Cotton growers treated 65,000 acres in 1959 compared to 19,000 acres in 1958. They found the practice permitted earlier planting and this, in turn, enabled more cotton to make before root rot and other diseases occurred.

The purpose of using in-the-furrow fungicides at planting time is to provide disease protection for the young sprout before and after it comes through the soil. A combination of captan, zineb and PCNB wettable powder is suggested for general use in all areas. This combination can be applied as a spray or dust. Liquid nabam is applied as a spray

Flame Harvest Tests On Cotton Are Successful

Flame cultivation to control weeds in cotton was first used at the High Plains Research Foundation in 1959, and the results were so encouraging that a research project on flame cultivation was established in 1960. The main objective was to determine the effects of a flame weeding on the cotton while killing weeds.

The research program included tests with the different tractor speeds, pressure settings, cross and parallel flaming, pre-emergence flaming, size of cotton at first flaming, use of both the standard and "midget" burners. The results of the flaming program are being released this week by Dr. T. C. Longnecker, Director of the Foundation.

Pre-emergence flaming was done just as the cotton plants were beginning to break through the ground. Careless weeds, and crab grass were killed 100 percent by this pre-emergence flaming. No difference in the weed kill was detected between the cross and the parallel burner position. Purple nightshade, which made up about 50 per cent of the weed population, was not killed by the flame. Hoing time was cut in half to about one hour per acre with pre-emergence flaming. Two seedlings per acre from the unflamed plots, and almost all were killed. Lint cotton yield varied from 667 pounds to 799 pounds per acre, with different as compared to 679 pounds per acre from the unflamed plots.

With professional actors and actresses doing the reading, the American Foundation for the Blind carries on daily recording sessions to put best sellers into Talking Book form at no charge to blind users. The selections are made by the Library of Congress which distributes the finished records. To De-burr Dogs

Every year, hundreds of good-hearted people are victimized by an old hoax that saving red bands blind people get guide dogs. The American Foundation for the Blind reports there never has been any truth to this hoax and that any blind person who can't afford a dog is legitimately helped to obtain one.

Price, Agricultural Engineer for the Foundation, and will be continued at the Foundation in 1961. The 1960 research program with flame cultivation was made possible by money, materials, and equipment from Gene Bumpus to three per cent of the cotton seedlings had emerged and almost all were killed. Lint cotton yield varied from 667 pounds to 799 pounds per acre, with different as compared to 679 pounds per acre from the unflamed plots.

flaming methods, as compared to 679 pounds per acre from the unflamed plots. The average yield of all the flamed plots was 707 pounds per acre.

This indicates there was no decrease in cotton yields through the use of flame cultivation.

Costs least when you buy...saves more when you drive

Here's the Classic Ford Look at the lowest Ford price. Ford Fairlane equipped the way most people like it is the lowest priced,* full-sized 6-passenger car of all...though you'd never guess it by looking.

But more important still, is the engineering inside. Here are new achievements, new precision, new standards of quality. Here's a car that is built to take care of itself, and the savings mount up as you drive (the box at right shows you how).

Altogether, the '61 Ford is so good that its dealers tripled the duration of the regular warranty.† Other cars followed. But Ford began the trend with the car built to back up its longer-term warranty! See why you say, this is the Ford in your pocket!

HERE'S HOW THE '61 FORD TAKES CARE OF ITSELF

- Lubricates itself—You go 3000 miles between chassis lubrications (which cost only about $1.00 and take about 20 minutes).
- Cleans its own oil—You go 6000 miles between oil changes with Ford's Full-Flow oil filter which cleans better through specially packed linings.
- Adjusts its own brakes—New Shock-Adjusters adjust themselves—automatically.
- Shards its own muffler—Ford mufflers are double-wrapped and designed to last three times as long as ordinary mufflers.
- Protects its own body—All vital underbody parts are specially processed to resist rust and corrosion, even to galvanizing the body panels beneath the doors.
- Takes care of its own fenders—Just wash and clean Ford's new Diamond Luster Finish and it will continue to gleam like new. It never needs waxing.
- Eliminated Warranty—Each part of '61 Ford, except tires, is dealer warranted against defects in materials or workmanship for 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first. Owners remain responsible for normal maintenance service and routine replacement of consumable items such as filters and ignition parts.
