CONSTRUCTION OF MANY HOMES ARE ANNOUNCED

Farmers of Littlefield District Improving Their Properties

One of the first signs of the upturn of business conditions in this section is displayed in the increased building program now underway in Littlefield and trade territory.

Since the first of the year many farm improvements, as well as a number of farm houses have been completed giving work to many carpenters and other workmen.

Work was started last week on a new home on East Seventh Street for Jack Henry, local tailor. The home will be 24 by 26 feet, and modern in every respect.

A two-room concrete house was also completed a few weeks ago for the State highway department and will be occupied by one of the employees of that department.

V. Z. Pinson, of Tipton, Oklahoma, has just completed a new home on his farm, 15 miles north of Littlefield. Construction work is also underway on a new barn on the same farm.

J. I. Morgan of Longview, is constructing a three-room house on his farm in the Enochs community, also a barn on the same property.

J. L. Thornton is building a four-room house on his property in the western part of the city.

W. F. Perry, who resides 14 miles southwest of Littlefield, has just completed an attractive and modern two-room home.

Funeral services were conducted at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the grave in the Whitharral Cemetery by Rev. C. F. Booth, pastor of Lum's Chapel, assisted by Rev. Jackson of Littlefield, and interment took place under the direction of Hammons Undertakers of Littlefield.

Pace November 24, 1912, at Mesquite, Dallas county, and to this union were born ten children, seven sons and three daughters. 50 PER CENT OF CURRENT COUNTY AND STATE TAXES COLLECTED BY FEB. 1

Fifty per cent of the current county and State taxes had been collected to February 1, according to figures compiled by the office of County Tax Collector Clint Griffin.

At the same time last year 55 per cent of the current taxes had been collected.

A total of $74,495.05 had been collected in current taxes to February 1 last year, as compared with $58,426.89 collected up to the same time this year.

The wide variation in totals is largely accounted for by reason of the fact that valuations were lowered considerably.

Duplicating the senate action last week, when it favored submission of a repeal amendment to state conventions by a 63 to 23 vote, the house acted before being in session an hour and a half.

F. M. Burleson Is Slightly Improved

F. M. Burleson, who has been ill at the Lubbock Sanitarium, was moved a few days ago to the Lubbock Hotel, where he is still under the care of the hospital doctors. Though somewhat improved, he is still very ill.

Several Littlefield people visit Mr. Burleson from time to time, and according to Mrs. Burleson Judge J. B. Sikes has spent considerable time at his bedside, which is much appreciated by the family.

Judge Sikes left Littlefield Friday last for an indefinite visit with his brother, Walter Sikes, at Amarillo. But on the advice of Mr. Burleson's physician, he was called back to Lubbock the beginning of this week to be with Mr. Burleson.

Duggan Seeks to Repeal Obsolete Motor Travel Law

Through error the Lamb County Leader stated in last week's issue that Senator Arthur P. Duggan had introduced a bill providing that "the operators of motor vehicles in passing each other on the state highways slow down their speed to fifteen miles per hour."

Senator Duggan, in a letter to the Leader, directing attention to the error, said that the present law requires operators of motor vehicles on state highways to slow down to 15 miles per hour in passing each other, and that his bill is "to repeal that law instead of to pass it." At this time it's a useless, silly law and I simply wanted to get it off the statute books," Mr. Duggan said.

Section 2 of the bill introduced by Mr. Duggan states that "the Supreme Court of the State of Texas has held on several occasions that the speed of 45 miles per hour is a legal rate of speed for all laws."

Charles Touchon, well known resident of the Littlefield section, and father of Max and Albert Touchon of this city, left Monday for Los Angeles by Transcontinental and Western Air Line to visit his sons, Bob and Paul, who reside at Huntington Park, a suburb of Los Angeles.

Mr. Touchon left Amarillo at 2:08 p. m. Monday and arrived at 9 p. m. (Pacific time) that day.

Mr. Touchon was accompanied to Amarillo by Mrs. Touchon, his son, Albert and Mrs. T. S. Sales.

He traveled on the transportation which was awarded Mrs. Max Touchon as one of the contestants in the Lamb County Leader circulation contest, which was conducted several months ago.

of speed in Texas; that such rulings make the statute relative to the 15 miles per hour "inoperative and useless" that the statute relative to 15 miles per hour is never recognized and failure to observe one law creates respect for all laws."

Miss Helen Rumbach, representing the American Legion, was selected by three out of town judges as "Miss Littlefield," at the beauty pageant held at the Palace Theatre Tuesday night. The purpose of the Pageant was to select a representative for Littlefield, as well as a "Miss Lamb County" to represent this section at the South Plains Beauty Pageant to be held at the Lindsey Theatre, Lubbock, March 2 and 3.

Favorable Report Received by Bill On Redistricting

The senate committee on congressional redistricting voted Monday 9 to 2 to give a favorable report to a re-

Senators Arthur P. Duggan of Littlefield and Wilbourne B. Collie of Eastland gave notice of a minority report.

Senator Greer's bill would place one of the new districts in the South Plains area of West Texas, a second in Bexar County and a third in the East Texas oil area.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

The one heroic figure in our national hall of fame, whose memory transcends all partisanship and sectionalism, is that of George Washington. It will be many years before any other great American soldier or statesman becomes such a figure of national honor. Indeed, we doubt whether, even after the lapse of ages, our nation will ever have produced another character commanding such universal respect and esteem.

Yet Washington in his lifetime was the target for abuse and vilification such as few Presidents since his day have had to bear. A British traveler and author, writing in 1795, told how many men refused to drink to the President's health at the celebration of his birthday. When Washington retired to private life at the end of his second term as president, one of the foremost of the newspapers then in existence declared that this was a time for public rejoicing, "for the man who is the source of all the misfortunes of our country is this day reduced to a level with his fellow citizens and is no longer possessed of a power to multiply evils upon the United States... If ever a nation was deceived by a man the American nation has been deceived by Washington."

Very few men in high place escape such calumny. There is something in human nature which resents the idea that one man is superior to others. But it did not take the American people long to realize that in George Washington they had had a leader who was probably the only man who could have successfully led the revolt against British domination and establish our nation on an independent basis so sound that the foundations laid by him have never been seriously shaken.

The wisdom of Washington's warnings and admonitions to the young Republic of which he was the first President become more and more clearly apparent as time goes on. Particularly at this time we are impressed with his warning to the young nation to avoid entangling alliances with Europe. This was not intended, of course, as an admonition to detach America from the rest of the world; it was rather an admonition that we should maintain friendly relations with all the nations and not be allied with some in opposition to others. We think this an opportune time to remind our political leaders and the people of America again of Washington's warning against foreign entanglements.

DEATH ON WHEELS

Three hundred and twenty-five thousand Americans have been killed in motor car accidents in the past fifteen years. That is more than the total number of American soldiers who were killed in the Great War. Last year, according to carefully compiled statistics kept by the Travelers Insurance Company, there were twenty-nine thousand motor vehicle deaths. This is a reduction from the thirty-three thousand five hundred deaths from this cause in 1931, but it must be remembered that there were a great many fewer cars on the road last year than there were the year before. Every death of this kind is a senseless, useless waste of life for no good purpose.

It is not enough to say that fatal accidents are the fault of careless drivers; the situation calls for some way of insuring against carelessness in driving. The best insurance of this is requiring everyone who drives a car to be licensed, after a rigid examination into his or her ability to drive carefully, and then to enforce strictly the laws forbidding any unlicensed driver to sit behind a steering wheel and punishing the licensed driver for any accident which causes injury to persons or property. In the half dozen states in which such laws and regulations exist the proportion of automobile accidents is lower than anywhere else.

Automobile drivers are not always at fault. While 44 percent of the persons killed by automobiles last year were pedestrians who were struck by cars, nearly half of those were killed by their own carelessness, either in crossing streets against signals, crossing diagonally between street intersections, or stepping out into traffic from behind parked cars.

No sane person would think of letting a boy or girl handle firearms without making sure that they thoroughly understood the danger inherent in their use and knew perfectly well how to handle them. But people who shudder at the idea of giving children firearms to play with let them run automobiles without any evidence that they have the necessary skill and presence of mind and intelligence to handle them safely. Ten times as many people are killed every year by automobile accidents as are killed by the accidental discharge of firearms. We have not yet learned how to control the motor car.

Pauline, sentimental, sincere and loving love, engaged and married. Dennis in the belief that their blissfulness will continue unchanged all the years. On her wedding she awakens with a premonition that maybe love, a thought buried in her letter from her closest friend, the night before. Adored Barbara, who had married, was the mother of a child, but now divorced and a life which some of her would not understand. Dennis and Barbara is a seeming personal dislike by both. This after Pauline's wedding, comes for a short stay. Dennis Barbara confesses to that there is a man she really loves, she refuses to tell his name. Dennis suddenly to go home she insists Dennis drive her station. Irritated, Dennis, recklessly, and they are in a car, Barbara escapes injury but leg is broken. As he returns raring, and she put a hand on the mantelshelf to steady herself, and it was at that moment she saw the letter addressed to herself in Pauline's writing.

She took the letter and hid it in the folds of her gown; then she returned. "Come here, Dennis."

He came at once and took her in his arms. He could not speak, and his lips burned as they touched hers. After a long time he whispered: "Do you want me?" She could feel his heart beating against hers. "Do you want me—as I want you? May I stay?"

Barbara closed her eyes, and her whole being seemed to clamour just one passionate word in reply. "Yes, yes, yes—" But something—she never knew what it was—kept her from speaking it aloud.

"Dennis—if tomorrow—you still want me—"

To-morrow! To-morrow never comes," he broke in almost violently. "How do we know what may happen before tomorrow? Don't send me away, my dear. I love you so much. Barbara for God's sake—" She disengaged herself from his arms.

I've sent away the only man I ever loved."

Mrs. Mellish took her hand and patted it.

"He'll come back," she comforted. "He'll come back tomorrow."

Barbara broke away from her sobbing.

"Tomorrow never comes," she wept. "Tomorrow never comes."

She read Pauline's letter sitting up in bed long after Mrs. Mellish had gone comfortably away, believing that Barbara slept.

Darling, Darling, Darling (Pauline began in her extravagant fashion)! I don't know why I am writing to tell you my wonderful secret even before I tell Dennis, something seems to tell me I must. I think somehow I've known it for a long time in the way that people know things—subconsciously, don't you call it?—and that I've been afraid to admit it even to myself. But now I'm sure, and I'm so wonderfully, wonderfully happy that I want to share my happiness with you, because you are my best friend and I love you. Barbara darling, I'm going to have a baby . . .

The little green and gold clock on the dressing table which Jerry Barnett had given to Barbara ticked merrily on—the only sound in a world that seemed suddenly to have grown empty and ceased to live, and at last with an effort Barbara picked up the letter that had fallen from her hand and went on reading.

"If it's a boy . . ." She closed her eyes with a dreadful feeling of weakness.

Of course it would be a boy! a boy with eyes like Dennis's and a smile like Dennis's, like the man they both loved. Oh, Dennis—Dennis!

She was so cold; suddenly Barbara realized that her hands were like ice and that she was shivering violently. She slipped out of bed, leaving the rest of Pauline's letter unread, and crouched down by the fire.

"There is still tomorrow!" It was as if a voice whispered those words into her ear as she crouched by the fire, and suddenly her cheeks flushed and her pulses quickened.

Tomorrow! It was not yet too late. He would come back, and just for once, if never again, she would know the perfect happiness of his love, and then . . .

Across the warm, beautiful room she caught sight of her reflection in a long mirror, and it seemed to her overstrung imagination that a shadow Pauline stood behind her, a smiling, happy Pauline, with loving, trusting eyes.

Her best friend! Barbara fell forward on the floor, her face hidden, her hands clenched as she moaned over and over again in utter self-abasement:

"I can't—I can't . . . be such a beast—such a vile beast!"

And yet in her heart she knew it was not so much for Pauline that she was willing to make her sacrifice as for the sake of a child she had once held in her arms.

Such a little life it had been, but it had yet left something indelible in Barbara's heart, some memory, which recurring now, would not allow her to hurt the child of another woman.

Barbara woke from a troubled sleep late in the following morning to the sound of voices in the little hallway outside her door. Mrs. Mellish's she knew—the quiet, unemotional tones that never varied, and then another—the only voice that had ever had the power to make her heartbeats quicken and her cheeks flush. Dennis! and so early.

Barbara leaned on an elbow and stretched over to her watch. Halfpast ten. Something must have happened to bring him so soon, or was it just that he found he could not do without her any longer? She listened intently.

"Not up yet—very tired after last night. Sleeping soundly." Then Dennis's voice again, impatient, obstinate. He would wait—if she would tell Mrs. Stark. Then the sound of his steps going to the sitting room, then the shutting of the door, and Mrs. Mellish tapping gently on her own.

"Come in."

Mrs. Mellish entered, calm eyes, undisturbed as ever. "Mr. O'Hara. He says he will wait. I told him you were still sleeping."

For a moment she could not answer; then she said with an effort:

"Oh, yes."

"I'll get up. Please get my bath ready."

Barbara got out of bed and looked at herself in the glass. She did not look her best in the early morning, and she knew it.

"I look old," she thought with a pang, and hurriedly turned away. Barbara had never dressed so quickly before.

Why had he come so early? What was he doing now?

She looked in the mirror a hundred times, and at last she went to him without paint or powder on her face.

Dennis was standing looking down into the fire, and he had not taken off his overcoat.

"You are an early bird," she said, trying to speak lightly, and Dennis turned.

"He has heard from Pauline—he knows about Pauline," Barbara told herself, and her hand went to her heart.

"I'm so sorry to come so early. I ought to have rung up, but I—somehow I couldn't I—" He broke off; then with an effort he pulled himself together again and said constrainedly: "You look tired. Won't you sit down?"

Barbara laughed. "Don't you mean I look old?" she asked bitterly.

"Old?" He did not understand; then seeing the pain in her face, he said vehemently: "No—good God, from the mantelshelf and lighted it. no!" Then again the unbearable silence fell. Barbara took a cigarette

With a supreme effort she controlled her thoughts and turned to him. "I had a letter from Pauline last night." Was that the lead he wanted? Every pulse in her body seemed to stand still awaiting his reply.

Dennis said, "Oh, did you?" And then suddenly he plunged forward and took her hand. "And I had a visit from Barnett," he said.

ousness he learns who the that Barbara loves. It's him. Dennis spends several weeks in Pauline. Barbara returns to stay with Pauline, but on one pretext or another fails to visit Dennis with Pauline at the hospital. Pauline stays only one day after Dennis returns from the hospital. Dennis against his will Dennis finds a connection in Barbara, who plays a cool and detached role as a nurse. A fortnight after Barbara's return to New York, she receives a letter from Pauline that she and Dennis are coming to New York for a vacation. Upon their arrival a party of gay entertainment gets underway—throwing Dennis and Pauline into each other's company. Dennis is in love with Barbara. He goes through all barriers and tells her his love. Pauline is called home by illness of her mother. Dennis and Barbara is happy. Both fight for love—but it's over powering. Dennis declares his love and Barbara she loves him. Jerry, married, finds Barbara's flat—and goes into a jealous rage. She orders him out for life forever. Barbara is surprised by a call from her former husband who wants her to return to him.

"Tomorrow, Dennis, if you still want me—I swear—"

In the end she sent him away, how she never knew, and when he had gone she stood against the door that shut him out, her eyes closed, utterly exhausted, and the tears raining down her face.

She loved him so much, and yet she had sent him away. Why? Why? God alone knew.

She was roused by a little sound in the passage, and she looked up to see Mrs. Mellish, in a drab gray dressing gown, watching her with kindly eyes.

"Come to bed, my dear—I'll get you something hot to drink."

Barbara laughed sobbingly.

"I've been a fool, Mellish," she said. "I've been a silly damned fool."

Across the warm, beautiful room she caught sight of her reflection in a long mirror, and it seemed to her overstrung imagination that a shadow Pauline stood behind her, a smiling, happy Pauline, with loving, trusting eyes.

Her best friend! Barbara fell forward on the floor, her face hidden, her hands clenched as she moaned over and over again in utter self-abasement:

"I can't—I can't . . . be such a beast—such a vile beast!"

And yet in her heart she knew it was not so much for Pauline that she was willing to make her sacrifice as for the sake of a child she had once held in her arms.

5 Ways To Save Money In Heating!

... as told to us by a thrifty housewife.

The amount of your gas bill is largely in your hands. During winter months, with house heating needs causing a constant demand for gas, you may make a real saving in your gas bill by following the suggestions given below. Help us to help you SAVE MONEY ON YOUR GAS BILL.

1. Don't turn gas up to a point where the flame goes over the top in open top heaters. This wastes gas.
2. Don't try to heat the breakfast room, or adjoining rooms with the range oven. A small gas heater will do the work better and cheaper.
3. If you keep a fire burning in the bath room, see that it is turned low after the room has become comfortably warm.
4. When shopping, or going out for the evening, close the windows, turning out all gas heaters. The house will retain most of its warmth.
5. Don't open doors or windows to cool the room—turn down the gas instead. A wall thermometer will assist you to keep rooms at a uniform temperature.

History Repeats Itself

Steam driven coaches like the one illustrated were in profitable operation in England more than a hundred years ago. Influential owners of horse-drawn coaches and the first crude railroads induced Parliament to shackle them with taxation.

Before a committee of Parliament it was shown that six steam coaches did less damage to the roads than a single horsedrawn coach, but vested interests had their way. The power to tax was used as the power to destroy. Tolls for steam coaches were made ten to twenty times those for horsedrawn coaches. All but one operator was forced out of business, and to finish him a law was passed requiring that a man carrying a red flag should walk ahead of each self-propelled vehicle. It was sixty years before this law was repealed.

State records show that from 1928 through 1931, truck registrations steadily increased but cost of maintaining highways was steadily reduced. In the former year it cost $500.45 to maintain each mile of State Highways, while in 1931 (with 54,000 more trucks in use) the cost had declined to $368.91. Trucks yield in taxes $861.48 for each mile of State Highways!

Facts support the contention of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads that highways properly built to withstand the weather and fast passenger traffic are not injured by heavy trucks if their gross weight is so distributed that not over 9000 pounds is concentrated on any one wheel.

Transportation costs are a first charge against the products of TEXAS. This charge must be paid before even taxes are paid. After transportation costs and taxes, the remainder may be used for life's essentials and to pay debts. The highways of TEXAS should be used to effect savings for the people of TEXAS. Present restrictions on "payload" of trucks and restrictions that allow only one-way haul in many cases, do not increase public safety or preserve the highways—but they do raise transportation costs. Since these laws went into effect last year, nearly 80,000 trucks have been forced to quit business, as many men lost jobs, and the railroads have made every effort to increase their freight charges. Only competition holds transportation costs at present figures—and they are not now as low as commodity values. TEXAS people own the Highways of TEXAS. Highways should be allowed to serve TEXANS economically.

For the past four years, using Lubbock as a base, research chemists have been working to perfect a new line of cosmetics especially adapted to the needs of women living in the Southwest.

The fruits of their labor have answered the demands of women living in West Texas for a complete line of scientifically prepared cosmetics particularly adapted to their especial needs. This is a challenge to the old idea that cosmetics must come from abroad or from the eastern portion of the United States where the makers are thousands of miles from the climatic conditions that will affect the users of their products.

Leading merchants throughout West Texas and New Mexico are presenting this new line of cosmetics as quickly as this new West Texas plant can supply them. They are for sale by Littlefield druggists.

The company is known as the Gilliam Chemical Company, and is located at Lubbock; the name of the facial line is Charme (pronounced Char-may) and is one of the most carefully compounded lines on the market.

This new line of cosmetics announces many new features in facial care; every woman has her choice of three types of cleansing cream as Charme offers a special cleanser for the dry skin, one for the medium dry and one for the oily skin. The Charme face powder is remarkable for its clinging quality and smoothness, and is free of orris root which aggravates and in some cases causes hay fever.

The organization of the Gilliam Chemical Company is another step forward in the industrial growth of the great southwest. Many salesmen have been given jobs, and a number of people have been given work in various capacities as the wheel of factory continue to move with ever speed.

TRUP AWARD IS PRESENTED TO TRUP NO. 25
The Boy Scouts met Friday night with about 14 mothers and fathers. We would have been glad to have had every parent present, but was glad to have as many as were there. Had a short program and a few games. After the program, had a reading by Mrs. R. E. Riley, a talk on scouting and boys by Professor Heatley, and Committeeman Bill Chesher. Scout Master of Troop 25 tried to explain to the parents the need of their cooperation in working with the boys, the aim of scouting, the need of attendance of the boys and occasional meeting with parents with the boys. After the program the troop award that Troop 25 won in December from the President Hoover program was presented to Troop 25 by W. J. Chesher.
We think we had a nice time and believe the parents enjoyed being present. We hope to have them all out next time. Had plenty of sandwiches and cake.
Troop 26 will meet at the Methodist Church hereafter, and Troop 25 at the Baptist Church. Remember that every registration should be with the Scout Master by Friday night. Hope we can register the full troops this year.

That's Not My Picture, I'm Not That Good Looking. BUT, FOLKS, I'M SMILING!
When the thermometer was dipping way down below zero, when there were more frozen and broken pipes than 50 plumbers could get around to fix up, you folks were very considerate and just went along as best you could until I could rattle up to see you in my whoopee. Many thanks, folks; you don't know how much I appreciated the business.

THE METHODIST CHURCH
Sunday, Feb. 26th

Often times we see this kind of statement, "Trade at home, and keep your money at home."—fine, we believe in this doctrine, and that is a good way to build up a great town, so far as trade goes.

Well, I have often thought that the business world should look at Religion the same way—"Trade at home," some say that I do, I do not go away from home for my Religious enlightenment, and many of them do not even go to the Churches of their own town; they are not trading any where in the Religious business—what a shame!

The church is an asset, not a liability to any town, community, or business. Make better churches, and you build greater business.

Go to church next Sunday, business will be better, the sun will shine brighter, and birds will sing sweeter all the week.

Sunday School 9:45 A. M. There's a place for you.

Preaching at 11:00 A. M. Subject
"The Holy Catholic Church."
Leagues will meet at 6:45 P. M.

Preaching at 7:45 P. M. Subject,
"Light House Christians."

Psalm, while Mrs. J. G. Singer gave the devotional on "Love."

A Valentine box was featured, which created much merriment for the occasion. Gay Valentine colors were also carried out in the salad course which was served to Mesdames

G. M. Shaw, C. E. Barber, Floyd
Wynn, Ira Woods, J. G. Singer, Neal
A. Douglass, B. G. Cloninger, J. S.

lowed by a business session.

Ruby Mashburn will meet with the club members at next meeting, and

CHURCH SUNDAY

All Worry and Care Bundles
Must Be Left at the Door

Strange ruling! Yet a ruling that is adhered to strictly by every church. The bundles in question are WORRY, CARE. They must be left at the door when you enter your church. And when you come out again, the bundles will be gone! No matter how heavy your burdens, no matter how long or far you have carried them, they will be lifted from you as you enter. Remember that! When things are darkest, and you are weary, and the hill ahead looks too steep, and you feel that you cannot take another step, remember your Church.

Leave Worry and Care at Home

Your church offers you strength, rest, courage. Let your church help you. Go often. Go in sorrow, but go, too, in joy. For though the church can make your sorrow less bitter it can also make your joy more sweet. Go to church next Sunday and leave WORRY and CARE at the door.

Chevrolet Sales Show Increase

Chevrolet dealers reported delivering 16,826 new cars and trucks to consumers in the last ten days of January, bringing the total of retail sales for the month to 39,701 units, compared with 35,199 in January of last year, H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, announced here today. This is a gain of 12.8 per cent.

January sales were the largest since June of last year, and the last ten-day sales were larger than any reporting period since June 20—just prior to establishment of a federal excise tax—and compare with 13,438 sales in the last ten days of January, 1932, a gain of 24.2 per cent, Mr. Klingler announced.

Relieves Women's Pains

Here is an example of how Cardul has helped thousands of women: "I was very thin and pale," writes Mrs. F. H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va. "I suffered from weakness and a severe pain in my back. This pain unnerved me, and I did not feel like doing my work. I did not care to go places, and felt worn, tired, day after day. "My mother had taken Cardul, and on seeing my condition she advised me to try it. I have never regretted doing so. I took three bottles and it built me up. I gained in weight, my color was better and the pain left my back. I am stronger than I had been in some time." Cardul is sold by local druggists.

1933 models have been placed in owners hands since announcement of the new line despite the fact that a field shortage existed. With field stocks at normal now, he said he expects February sales to score a considerable gain over February of last year.

In the first ten days of January dealers delivered 10,162 units, in the second ten days 12,713 units and 16,826 in the last period, the increase reflecting the availability of cars for delivery, Mr. Klingler stated.

WOMAN LOST 20 POUNDS IN 4 WEEKS

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years old and weighed 170 pounds, until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just four weeks ago. I now weigh 150 pounds. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drug store—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. (Adv.)

PORCHER PRODUCE COMPANY

Split-second starting at 20° below zero

Now, you can laugh at cold weather starting troubles . . . because the gravity of Phillips 66, the greater gasoline, right now ranges from 65.6° to 80.5°

The red line on the thermometer may sink out of sight, but this sensational high test is more than a match for the toughest blizzard that ever hit town.

Twenty above or ten below, whatever your weather, you know that every gallon of Phillips 66 which you buy is scientifically and accurately matched to its demands. So you always get a gas that gives the peak of performance, guaranteed by the process and principle which the great Phillips organization pioneered: CONTROLLED VOLATILITY.

And here's the big news: This honest high test with CONTROLLED VOLATILITY does not cost a single penny more than ordinary low gravity gasoline. You DO NOT pay any 3¢ premium per gallon. But you do get premium performance on every count, from flashier get-away to longer mileage.

When you read or hear other claims, remember that PHILLIPS IS THE LARGEST PRODUCER OF NATURAL HIGH GRAVITY GASOLINE—and this certainly qualifies us to offer world-challenging value in a high test motor fuel.

Hence we confidently promise you exceptional and outstanding results if you try a tankful of Phillips 66.

Stop the very next time you see the Orange and Black 66 shield. That is where you get extra high test without paying a penny extra. That is where you also get the amazing new Phillips 66 Motor Oil . . . perfect team-mate for instant-starting Phillips 66 Gasoline, because it flows instantly and freely even at temperatures 62° below freezing.

What is CONTROLLED VOLATILITY?

In gasoline, volatility is that quality which makes it deliver perfect performance at any temperature. Since the weather can't be controlled, the only way to insure perfect performance is by CONTROLLING the VOLATILITY—increasing the volatility as the temperature drops. Phillips 66 is the gasoline with Controlled Volatility. That is why it always gives instant action even in below-zero weather . . . faster warm-up . . . flashier acceleration . . . more miles . . . less carbon and crankcase dilution. Phill-up with Phillips and you will feel the difference, because right now—this month—

PHILLIPS 66 HAS 78% MORE VOLATILITY than any other leading gasoline.

REVENGE

By BOBBIE TAYLOR, Jr.,
Fifth Grade Pupil

George Roach had always been a low-down, good-for-nothing fellow. During his grammar school days he had been the class bully. You've seen the kind. The kind that slouches in a rear seat and when the teacher's back is turned, will ban other pupils with staples or spit-balls.

As he grew older he became worse. His family was rich so he did not have to work.

In this same community lived a boy named Alec McDonald. He was just the opposite type to George. He was a nice boy and trustworthy. He attended school all the time; a thing George never did. For some reason George disliked Alec, and no one ever knew why unless it was because Alec was a poor boy and had to work for his money. George never missed a chance to abuse Alec or impose on him.

"You are a low brow," George would say on numerous occasions.

"Never mind, never mind," Alec would reply, "it is wrong to fight and furthermore, I would be getting my hands dirty to lay them on you. But for these two things I would maul you until your head was a pulp. But remember, some time you are going to go too far," then he would go on about his business.

By the time they were grown they were bitter enemies because of the things George had done to Alec.

In later years George heard of some low-brow, criminally inclined, would-be eye specialists traveling through the country who had a remedy which they claimed would cure blindness. They charged a large sum of money for this so-called remedy because it was declared to be a delicate operation. It was a fake, and among those who found this true, but too late, was Mrs. McDonald, Alec's mother, who was partly blind. George had gone in with these thugs and had deceived Mrs. McDonald into believing that he could restore her sight, so she went to him. He not only failed to do this, but he completely destroyed her sight. So she was doomed to a life of blindness for the rest of her days. Alec found this out and swore he would get revenge.

It was a beautiful June morning with the full glory of the sun shining down upon West Side Hospital. Inside on the operating table lay a man who had given his name as Joe Carse. He lay on the table without a sign of life. The nurse had just administered the ether and had left the room momentarily. The doctor (George Roach) had his back turned an instant, when suddenly he heard a startling command from behind, "Stick 'em up!" He whirled and stared into the barrel of an ugly automatic. "My God," he muttered as he recognized his patient.

"You recognize me, don't you? You know what I am here for, don't you? You thought I was asleep, didn't you, and so did the nurse who just left the room, but old fellow you were badly mistaken. I have been experimenting with ether for about a year, first with just a little bit, then increasing the amount until you can't cram enough down me now to put me to sleep."

Roach had stood aghast with his mouth open during which time Alec had been talking.

"Fetch that pencil and paper over there," said Alec. "I'm here for a purpose. Now write down what I tell you."

"This is a farewell note. I have led a miserable life and it has gotten on my conscience. I can't go on. Truth will come to light. My sins cannot be hidden any longer."

"Now, your time has come, George Roach. I suppose you remember what you did to my poor mother, and now you are going to pay for it. But don't ever think I will have to answer for this. There is no human on this earth that will ever doubt for a minute that you committed suicide."

"POW!" The big automatic in Alec's hand roared loudly and he had the satisfaction of seeing George reel backward and crash to the floor.

He got quietly down from his table and, into one of the dead man's hands he put the paper that George had written on, and into the other he put the gun. He then got hurriedly back upon his table as he heard footsteps rushing from all parts of the building.

In the Tiny Tot Revue, Tuesday evening, judges were not used to select the winner, but instead judging was to be done by popular applause from the audience. However the audience seemed not to grasp this until several little girls were eliminated without a "hand."

In Austin town the solons And swear they will go thru. And "Ma" sends them a message. And tells them what to do. She found the treasury empty. 'Tis a sorry fix she's in. For she can't balance the budget. Unless she get's some in.

The farmer has no budget. He calls it "make ends meet." With prices low in Houston. He has scarce enough to eat. The banks won't lend him money. His credit's gone to smash. But if he kills a bandit. The banks will pay him cash.

But oh, to balance the budget. More taxes can be seen. An income or a sales tax. And more on gasoline. They'll tax the cat and kitten. They'll tax the baby's pup. Oh, how to balance the budget. Oh hell, I give it up. —Pa
