GOVERNOR IS WAY AHEAD OF OPPOSITION

Sheppard Wins Senator's Race For Sixth Consecutive Term Of Office

With the sudden upturn of voting expected to reach the million mark, leading candidates, save two in the state primaries, received substantial enough thus eliminating further campaigning for the August 22 run-offs. A total of 253 counties, 188 complete, have filed election returns, the Texas election bureau announced.

Governor Jimmy Allred, seeking his second term of office, stretched his lead over other gubernatorial candidates by 30,000 votes. The Governor had amassed a total of 511,391 votes.

Run-off in the Railroad Commission and Land Commission races are slated. Although Ernest O. Thompson, incumbent, held a lengthy lead over Frank Morris, the run off for railroad commission is expected to be lively. Land Commissioner J. E. McDonald will campaign against George Terrell who holds a considerable lead over the incumbent.

For the sixth consecutive time, Senator Morris Sheppard retained seat in the United States Senate. Sheppard won by a land slide over five other candidates.

George Sheppard serves another term as State Comptroller, winning over two candidates, Bill McDonald was elected to the office of General Land Commissioner, and Charley Lockhart won easily for another term of office as state treasurer.

L. A. Woods was victorious over A. A. Bullock for Superintendent of Public Instruction.

In this congressional district George Mahon, incumbent, took a 3 to 1 victory over the Townsendite opponent, Rev. E. B. Speck. Mahon polled over 30,000 votes.

Generally, incumbents were victorious in the Congressional district races. However, Thomas L. Blanton was forced into a run off in the 16th District with Judge Clyde Garrett.

Governor James V. Allred, George Mahon, representative of the 19th congressional district, and Senator Morris Sheppard were easy winners in Lamb County, Texas, election bureau complete returns reveal.

Complete returns of Lamb County are as follows:

INSTALMENT
 Silas Spelle, high-principled cattle baron, to smash the local band and foreclosure on the small ranches of the Kanab desert country that he can seize their range lands. He is opposed by Ed Spurlock, president of the Cattleman's Bank, and by San Juan Delevan, prominent rancher who has been crippled by a fall from his horse. Johnny Clehoe and his partner, Tex Whipple and his partner, Johnny Clehoe, are cowpunchers employed by San Juan Delevan to fight the rustlers and protect his interests.

The town of Carillion seemed yet asleep despite the climbing sun of a new-born day, when the little cavalcade turned into the single street. Jake Butterfield and Tobe Hansen were the only humans in sight, the former swung wide the doors of his general store while Hansen was lazily heaving up and down to the creaking accompaniment of the rusty pump at the watering trough in front of his stable. Pink Crosby set the brake of the buckboard and skidded the two broncos to a stop at the hitching rail in front of Butterfield's store, hopped out and tethered them. Tex and Johnny dismounted there likewise and tied their mounts.

gave the lie to the rest of his appearance. Those orbs had a cold, crafty gleam. The look he bent on Ronny caused the hot blood to flame in Johnny's face and his fists

"There's the ten thousand," said Tex. "Trot out that morgage."

"Suppose we get right over to the hotel, Miss Ronny," Tex suggested. It'll give us a chance to get our business over with before Spelle knows what it's all about. If I can it'll save a heap of argument an' trouble."

"Just as you say, Tex," nodded Ronny. She jumped lightly to the ground and divested herself of the duster. "I'm ready."

They crossed the street to the single story, false-fronted hotel, Tex and Ronny in the lead and Johnny and Pink Crosby bringing up the rear. Johnny was chuckling. "Bright boy, friend Jake is," he snickered.

Pink grinned widely. "Ole Jake means well, but he's done poured molasses so long his brains got the same kind o' movement. Yuh gotta give Jake time. On a snap judgment he can't tell the difference between a can o' corn an' a box o' thirty-thirties, but yuh gotta give him time. I 'member, a Sovegian sheep herder comin' in to Jake's fer snuff one time an' Jake hands him out some flea powder. The sheep herder couldn't read English but the first sniff he took o' that bug killer shore put him on edge. He chased ole Jake about two miles with a single-tree. He'd a got him too, only he got to sneezin' so bad he couldn't see where he was goin'. He fell into a barrel cactus an' got stuck there. When we pulled him out he had other things to think of besides his nose so ole Jake come through the ordeal all in one piece. But he's done figgered it out that it's safer to keep the bug killer on the other end of the shelf from the snuff!"

Johnny snorted with glee. "Ain't he a wonder?" he sighed.

They climbed the low steps to the porch of the hotel and entered the dingy hallway just in time to meet a paunchy, spry, important little individual dressed with meticulous care. His low cut tan shoes were polished to a glass-like glow, the creases in his trousers were like knife edges, his tie faultless. He had three chins, a puffy mouth, and a tiny blonde mustache. But the eyes behind the heavy rimmed glasses

"I'll be at the bank in an hour." He started to push by Tex brusky but the old puncher blocked the way.

"Yuh're wrong there, Mister Lange," drawled Tex. "Our business can't wait. Yuh're goin' down to the bank with us now."

Lange drew himself up to his full height of five feet four. "Don't be ridiculous, my man," he snapped. "You cannot pull one of your cowcountry bluffs on me. I'll be at the bank at ten o'clock."

"Some gents are shore hard to convince," remarked Johnny casually, stepping close to Lange. "Pink, you get him by the seat o' the pants an' I'll grab his collar. He'll be plumb surprised to find how quick he can get to the bank."

"Why — why," stutered Lange, "That is ridiculous. Don't you dare lay hands on me."

"Yep," drawled Johnny. "It shore will be re-edulous. Don't know when a man looks like a bigger fool than when he's gittin' the bum's rush. But yuh're sure slated for it less'n you use yore head."

The bank examiner looked around in some trepidation. He saw no sign of relenting in the faces of his visitors. Even the slender, extremely pretty girl seemed cool and unconcerned.

"I — I — very well, I'll come," he fumed. "But mark my word—you'll pay for this."

In all his ruffled dignity he marched down to the bank and unlocked the door. The others followed him in and Tex went immediately to the business at hand.

"Yuh got a ten thousand dollar morgage here against Jim Delevan of the Box D outfit," stated Tex.

"We're here t out. It'll be "I—ah—w lar. In fact sputtered Lat Mr. Spelle bank's asset ing paper. business v shortly. Youth And Politics

At any given time, more than half of the people of the United States are considerably under 30 years of age. Somewhere between 25 and 26 years is more nearly the average. Government statistics have figured from census returns. From this some people argue that the young voters hold the balance of power in national elections. That does not follow, however, for while all of the persons above the average age are voters, only those between 21 and the 26-year average can vote.

Nevertheless, the fresh crop of new voters coming of age in each four-year period is a factor of very considerable importance. If all of the 4,500,000 young men and women who reach the age of 21 since the election of 1932 could be influenced to vote the same way, their votes undoubtedly would decide whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Landon is to be elected in November. But there is always about as much difference of opinion between young voters as there is among the elder ones.

This year unquestionably more vigorous efforts are being made than ever before by the campaign managers of both parties to convince these new voters that their futures are safer in the hands of this party or that. That is all to the good. The earlier that political education begins, the better. We are inclined to think, however, that youth today is much more skeptical of promises than the young folks used to be. We have no idea that either party will succeed in winning to its side a considerably greater proportion of young voters than has been the case in the past elections.

Both parties profess to be concerned with the future of the young people of today. That is quite natural and proper. All that the older people can do, after all, is to prepare the way for the young ones who will eventually step into their shoes. The youth of today will have to carry the load of government and of management of affairs tomorrow. Whichever way the election of 1936 goes, we can be sure that if those who will this year vote for the first time don't like the result they will change the whole scheme of things in due course.

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot express our appreciation and thanks to the many friends who so untiringly assisted us in our late bereavement, and for the expressions of sympathy extended ed us at the loss of our dear son, Laurence.

We also wish to thank those who sent the beautiful floral offering.

May God Bless each and everyone of you.

Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Trammell and family.

ONCE AGAIN I WISH TO THANK YOU

As your district clerk, I sincerely appreciate the faith that you have in me. The large vote you gave me, regardless of the fact that I was unopposed, is an inspiration to me. I aim to serve you in the coming term of office in the same straight forward manner as in the present term of service.

I. B. 'Doc' Holt

DISTRICT CLERK

To My Friends and Voters of Precinct No. 4—

I want to thank you for the support you gave me in my campaign just closed. Having been defeated I want all the voters in this precinct to know that I hold no ill feeling against anyone not even those who voted against me.

Now to everybody in the entire community I want you to drop in and visit me at my store, and anytime I can be of service to you, I will be pleased to do so.

Yours very Truly

L. E. KEY

To the Voters Of Precinct 4 Lamb County

I take this method of expressing my sincere thanks to you for the splendid endorsement you gave me in Saturday's primary. I would like to thank each and everyone personally, but you know that that is impossible. Nevertheless I want each of you to know how much I appreciated the large vote I received.

I have made effort to conduct my campaign honestly, sincerely and neighborly. If I have failed to do so in any instance, it was an oversight on my part. I also wish to thank my opponents for the fair and square manner in which they conducted their campaigns.

To those of you who voted for me in the first primary, I will deeply appreciate it if you will go to the polls August 22 and again record your vote in my favor. To those of you who did not vote for me in the first primary I urge you to give my qualification for the office which I seek additional consideration and if you believe me qualified I will appreciate it deeply if you will vote for me in the second primary, August 22.

Please let me repeat:
IF I AM ELECTED I WILL DO MY DUTY WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR, AND I WILL HANDLE THE AFFAIRS OF THE COUNTY AS I WOULD MY OWN.

I pledge to the voters that if I am elected I will give all my time and energy to my duties as County Commissioner.

I also pledge that, at all times, I will be economical in the expenditure of county funds, giving such matters very thorough consideration before taking action.

I will never lose sight of the fact that in the hands of your Commissioner is placed the huge responsibility of handling your money. I have always been conservative in the handling of my own money, and will even be more careful with county funds, seeking at all times to get full value received for every expenditure.

I will appreciate it if you will go to the polls, August 22 and cast your vote for:

J. T. BELLOMY

Candidate For Commissioner, Precinct No. 4. A Pioneer of this Section—One who will Never Betray your trust.

THANK YOU

LITTLEFIELD MISSIONARY BAPTIST CHURCH
Rev. Jno. R. Denning, Pastor.

Several of our friends came to the Open Air Lot last Sunday night, and finding it dark, returned home, not knowing that we were having our service in the Ritz Theatre Building, where everyone present received a glorious blessing. We wish to again call the attention of the public to the fact that at any time the Weather does not permit outdoor services, they will be held in the Theatre building, except when such bad nights might be on Tuesdays or Saturdays, the building not being available to us on these nights.

R. C. Evins, teacher of the Down Town Bible Class, announces that this service begins each Sunday morning promptly at ten o'clock, and earnestly asks that everyone be present at that hour, so as to not miss any of the Bible Study. Be sure to bring a Bible.

The pastor will preach at eleven o'clock in the Theatre, and also at night service in the open air. Next

Thank You!

I am deeply appreciative of the confidence expressed in me by the voters of Precinct No. 4 in electing me last Saturday as Justice of the Peace.

I will be faithful to my duties, and will at all times endeavor to be of maximum service to the people of Lamb County.

Again let me thank you.

Sincerely

M. W. Brewer

State Committee Approves New Soil Conservation Plans

That the eradication of noxious weeds and grasses including Johnson grass, Bermuda, grass, nut grass, blueweed and bindweed will be considered as a soil-conserving practice in Texas and will qualify farmers for a soil-conserving payment acre for acre in lieu of a soil-conserving crop, has been approved by the State Agricultural Conservation Committee.

Two methods of eradication were approved. One consisted of flat-breaking the infested land, followed by intensive cultivation during the months of July, August, and September with a knife cultivator or disc harrow.

The other method that may be used is that the infested land be bedded and rebudded with a sweep or "middle-buster" at intervals of not more than 30 days, followed each time by a harrow in order to expose the roots to the weather.

Eradication can be carried out for payment only on badly infested crop land, location of which is filed with the County Committee before eradication starts.

Fay Cotton, Texas Sweetheart No. 1 To Go To Hollywood

Fort Worth, July 28—Sky-rocketing to stardom with the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial, Fay Cotton, who until her selection as Texas Sweetheart Number One, was a Borger Cafe Cashier, is to get a chance in Hollywood. Rufus LeMaire, Hollywood Film Executive who formerly lived in Fort Worth announced he will take the comely brunette into the movies when she is through in the Sasa Manana Show of the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial. Miss Cotton plays opposite Everett Marshall and in one of her numbers wears the $5,000.00, 18 karat gold metallic dress made by Whiting and Davis Jewelers. It weighs 40 pounds.

Asked what he thought of the Borger girl, he said unhesitatingly: "I'm going to take her to California that's what I think of her. She's beauty and I think she will be a success."

"I wouldn't think of interfering with the show here, but when it is over she will have a contract offer."

LeMaire, who came here for the official opening of the show Saturday, left last night.

"People in Texas don't realize what they have," he said. "Shows that can be seen, here for $1 would be cheap at $5 in New York."

"I've been all over Europe and seen the best shows at Drury Lane, Vienna and Budapest, but I've never seen anything to compare with the Fort Worth show. I'm proud of Fort Worth."

"The colors, costumes and lighting are superb. Texas people have never had an opportunity to see such a show as that in Casa Manana and I don't think there ever has been one like the Last Frontier."

LeMaire and his sister, Mrs. J. Goldgraber, 1315 South Henderson Street, went to Dallas last night to see the Central Centennial Exposition.

P&E'S TACKLE RENFRO'S LEADING FRIDAY NIGHT

LITTLEFIELD SWIMMERS ARE SECOND IN MEET

TH TEAMS SHARE LEAD UNTIL THEN

If Grocers Win, League Second Half Should Be Decided

Unless the Littlefield P&E or the Renfro Grocers have more headaces with second division teams after Friday night, the second half champ should be spelled out after tomorrow night's battle between the two leading contenders.

But after the topsy-turvy, lopsided, up-setting, breath-taking sham battles that have been causing the fans to burst their sides with glee when would-be leaders have been throttled by insignificant challengers, the CCC camp may be the second half winner before the shouting has simmered down to a murmur. Apparently, anything is likely to happen, and nothing, whatever upset may occur, is unexpected.

The Poultrymen have had just as much trouble as the Grocers in trying to keep a notch a head of the other clubs who, seemingly were out of the picture three weeks ago, are getting in plenty of telling punches and dangerous body blows. The Growers, however, they have been pushed over the curb by the ambitious Gassers twice.

The P&E haven't been making any continuous blow about their chances of winning the league flag. They, more than anything else, have been the cautious club, waiting for a chance to give the Grocers the works and then slide into the top position for the remainder of the season. Just how the Grocers will fare once more against the P&E's famous slugging brother combination remains to be seen.

It should be a treat for the fans, and another rollicking good argument between officials, teams and players.

Less important perhaps, but still in the will be Monday night when Pop Watson's Cream Testers tackle the Gassers. The Gassers and Pop's club, both of whom have had hellacious time this half in trying to make up their minds in what division they like best, should draw the customers out for a big fun night. It always is when the Gassers take the field and the Testers start swinging at high balls.

The Littlefield P&E meets those pesky Woodmen in the aftermath Monday.

MULESHOE BOYS COP SWIM TOURNAMENT

The Muleshoe Boy Scouts won the Northwest District swim meet here Saturday at the Rainbow Pool by winning ten first places. Littlefield was second.

Sam Blessing, Littlefield, took major honors by winning four first places and being a member of two winning relay teams for Littlefield.

The Muleshoe team copped the tournament when they dominated eight out of nine events in the intermediate division.

But the poor fielding of the Amherst basemen cost him six runs in the first six innings. Hambricht relieved Minyard with the Reds three runs behind, but he couldn't hit and pitch too.

FOR YOUR EXPRESSION OF CONFIDENCE IN ME

I aim to keep that faith and confidence that you have shown and expressed in me by your votes last Saturday. Throughout my term of office as Sheriff of Lamb County I will exert every effort to be of maximum service to our county.

Once more I say:
My time is not my time. . . . it is the time belonging to this office of sheriff and to Lamb County.

F. A. Loyd

Sheriff of Lamb County

YOUR FRIENDSHIP AND CO-OPERATION HAS BEEN GREATLY APPRECIATED

TO THE VOTERS OF LAMB COUNTY:

During the past eight years that I have been your county Judge, you have given me your utmost cooperation and help. In turn I have endeavored to serve you to the full extent of my ability and knowledge. Willingly, you have assisted me in every way, and I thank you sincerely. As county judge I have attempted to fill my office faithfully, and I will continue to do so until my term of office expires. I feel sure that L. R. Crockett, my successor, will make an able judge; and if you render him the support that you have given me, nothing will keep him from doing so.

I wish to express my special appreciation for the splendid vote which you extended to me in last Saturday's election.

Thanks

Simon D. Hay

Miss Ronny," he said. "An' then if he wants to doubt a lady's word, let him say so."

"I am Ronnelly Delevan," stated Ronny quietly. "My father, as you no doubt know, is a cripple. He was unable to be present so he sent me in his place."

Tex turned a cold eye on Lange. "Satisfied" he drawled, his voice dangerously soft.

"Yu-yes," gulped Lange. "Very irregular, as I said before. But I'll get the mortgage. I won't be responsible for what happens over this. She should have her father's power of attorney."

"Don't know what one o' them things is," stated Tex. "But her word is good enough fer me."

"Yeh, an' me too," chimed in Pink Crosby.

"That makes it unanimous," declared Johnny.

Lange went reluctantly to the vault and began spinning the dial. He was very much perturbed—very much indeed. His dignity was badly ruffled. He wished devoutly that Spelle would show up. Lange knew the history of the Delevan mortgage, knew it very well indeed. And he knew that was the one piece of paper held by the defunct bank that Spelle wanted to get his hands on above all else. He hated to think what Spelle's outburst would be on finding that his chance to take over the San Juan plateau had slipped between his greedy fingers. But apparently there was nothing further he could do. So presently the vault door swung open and Lange came out with the Delevan mortgage.

Tex opened the money belt and began tossing bundles of big denomination bills on the table.

"Count it," he ordered.

"Interest for three months is also due," stated Lange as he laid aside the last bill.

"How much" growled Tex, digging into his pocket.

"One hundred and fifty dollars."

Between the three of them Tex and Johnny and Pink Crosby dug up a hundred and forty-five dollars. It was Ronny who opened her purse and brought to light a final five dollar bill to complete the total.

"Correct?" asked Tex. "All right then—stamp it paid. An' sign yore name an' official title as well. We don't want any comebacks on this thing."

Helpless to do otherwise, Lange obeyed. Tex could scarce conceal his eagerness and satisfaction as he picked up the precious mortgage, folded it and stowed it in his pocket. On second thought he took it out and handed it to Ronny.

"It's yore's, young 'un," he smiled. "Hang on to it."

Ronny was tremulous as she snapped her purse shut about the paper. "Let's go," she murmured. "I won't feel safe until this is daddy's hands."

At that moment a low ejaculation caused them to turn. In the doorway stood Silas Spelle.

Spelle glared around the room suspiciously, his features pulled into a hard, nasty scowl. But for the moment he did not speak. It was Tex who assumed immediate mastery of the situation.

"Pink, take Miss Ronny down to Jake Butterfield's, he snapped. "Looks like an argument is goin' to bust around here. The kid an' me'll take care of this end of it. Spread out, Johnny."

Johnny skipped lightly to one side, his eyes unwinkingly upon Spelle. Pink Crosby took Ronny's arm and started for the door. Spelle squared his bulk in the doorway, his scowl deepening.

"What's the rush?" he snarled. "What is this anyway—a hold-up? Nobody leaves this place until I get an explanation."

Pink Crosby's cheeks paled slightly, but his blue eyes grew hard and bright. He stepped ahead of Ronny and advanced on Spelle. His right hand hovered above his gun.

"Tha-so?" he drawled. "Since when? Git outa the way, 'fore I mow you down at the hocks."

"Atta' boy, Pink," chimed in Johnny. "Make a phoney move Spelle an' I wreck yore belt buckle complete."

"An' what the kids start I finish," added Tex. "Go ahead Miss Ronny, he'll be good."

Ronny was very pale but her little chin was high as she stepped to the door. Spelle wavered. His nerve was slipping. He stepped to one side and Ronny went by him.

"The Delevan mortgage," cackled Lange excitedly. "That girl has—"

The rest of his words were muffled by the hard smack of Johnny's fist. The elegant Mr. Lange went backwards over a chair to light on his shoulders with a crash.
