

AWAKENED WOMAN

by Elinore Barry

Thirteenth Installment

SYNOPSIS

Joyce Ashton, poor stenographer, suffered loss of memory in a riding accident in Chicago. One morning two years later she awoke, after a fall from her horse, memory restored, to find herself, Frills, the wife of Neil Packard, California fruit packer. She declined to tell anybody of her predicament but set about learning what could of her life in the interval. In the conversation of her friends she had been a heartless, pleading young woman. One letter troubled her from a woman calling herself Sophie, blaming Frills for not giving a home to a baby she was caring for. Could it be Frills' baby? Frills wondered! She also herself involved in an affair with a man named Maitland. In San Francisco, where she went while her husband was away on business, she met Robert Ainsworth, a poet whose work she had always admired. When he returned home, she decided to leave her husband for Neil than Frills had. But this line was dangerous, for Neil was pathetically anxious to have Frills' love. NOW GO ON TO THE STORY.

Evening before and cooked a camp supper high up a hillside overlooking the valley. They lingered until it was dark, watching the stars creep out into their places. Joyce, hugging her knees, sat and breathed in the peace and quiet, while Neil stretched out close to her, smoking a pipe and playing with Dickie's ears.

Suddenly Neil had rolled over toward Joyce, and putting his arms around her waist, laid his head on her lap. Joyce leaned back resting her weight on her hands behind her and did not touch him. She had lately avoided every slightest demonstration of affection toward him, for she had come to the disconcerting conclusion more than once that Neil was finding it harder and harder to keep his feelings in check.

She could not help realizing that it was both unwise and unkind for her to slip her hand in his, to smooth back his hair, to lean against him when they sat together, to do any of the dozens of little caressing things which she found herself, in her liking and pity for him, involuntarily and quite innocently inclined to do.

The slightest motion of his sort sent a flame of hope leaping into Neil's eyes.

How long could this go on? It was becoming more and more difficult for them both. Joyce trembled a little to recall the tenseness with which roadster. Joyce, watching surreptitiously, was amused to see the interest with which Neil listened and the appealing little glances Joyce Abbott threw at him from her expressive blue eyes.

"I've got her number," thought Joyce, "she's the ultrafeminine sort who clings and makes the men feel big and strong and masculine."

Thinking over the past month, Joyce was conscious of a baffled feeling of dissatisfaction when it came to her knowledge of Frills' own past.

In another direction also Joyce felt herself checked. She was no nearer accomplishing her purpose of getting back her baby than she had been when she received the first letter from Sophie. A second letter had arrived that morning—exasperatingly vague, very short and again minus an address. Joyce tormented herself trying to solve the problem, but her determination did not weaken.

Her thoughts swung round again to Neil. What was she going to do? To continue indefinitely living in the same house with him as they had been doing was impossible. She had not known what she was undertaking when she made that decision.

"I suppose I should have gone away in the first place," she thought discouragedly; "I can't realize inside of me that I'm married to Neil Packard and I keep having the feeling that there's something all wrong about living with a man so intimately and yet not really intimately. I'll never lose that feeling of uncomfortable shyness and strangeness. I know, until... unless—oh dear!"

There might be among them a few congenial spirits but she did not feel any too hopeful. Yet, after all, what did it matter? She reproved herself sharply for allowing the standards of Robert Ainsworth to influence her. He was nothing to her, she told herself.

As she sat there motionless, she was startled to see a man appear. With a little gasp of amazement Joyce recognized Robert Ainsworth. "Do you remember me?" asked Joyce.

"Oh Lord, how like a woman! Of course I remember you, worse luck!" he added with such profound gloom that Joyce giggled. "You're my public, you know!" He looked at her quickly and broke into a smile. "Here—please let me take your horse and turn her out into the corral."

"But... I was just thinking what ring redwood grove. When she lay down on her back in the warm sunshine and looked up through the leaves at the blue sky, she felt as if she were floating in space.

She lay thinking of Neil, and with a little thrill of satisfaction she decided that he showed no evidence of being the old Frills.

She had now met practically every one who moved in their circle in Manila and had found out enough of their history and circumstances so that she could get by safely in most of them.

The month was not yet up but she summarized her impressions as she gathered. She had given her environment a fair study and was entitled to draw her conclusions and plan her course without further research.

First, as to Neil. She had made a number of enlightening and cheering discoveries concerning him. He was noted to golf but did not care for being liked liquor but never drank to excess, and he disliked risk-stories more than most of his acquaintances guessed. He believed in giving one's part in the life of the community but he would have been happy to stay at home four evenings of a week to enjoy the quiet seclusion of private life.

On her return from San Francisco she had once more been forced to the problem of her relations with Maitland. He had telephoned and several times the first day she was out, and on the second morning, just as she was ready for a ride on Rosita, he had appeared and caught her... Joyce let her thoughts wander dreamily for a moment on Maitland and instinctively she found herself comparing him with scorn to the men—Robert Ainsworth and Neil Packard. Measured by Ainsworth's standards, Maitland had no chance at all—it was almost unfair even to compare them.

Maitland had once or twice attempted to reopen the subject of their love, but Joyce had continued to talk to him with such unmistakable indifference that he was baffled and finally let her alone.

In her thoughts she now came back, with a quickening of her pulses, to the problem of her relations with Neil had finally released his hold on her the previous evening.

Joyce had been curious to see Joyce Abbott, the one woman Neil seemed to like, and the meeting with her had come two days after her conversation with Ethel about the dinner for Rhoda Maitland. It was nearly five o'clock and Joyce, dressed in riding clothes, was waiting for Neil to come home and take a ride with her before dinner.

She had just left the mirror in the living-room when she heard a motor and looking out saw a small, shiny black roadster drive up to the door.

The girl who got out was dressed in white linen with a white felt sport hat and white buckskin oxfords. She was certainly rather pretty, with her big blue eyes and small neat features. Joyce wondered who she was and nerved herself to the ordeal of meeting another stranger who was not a stranger.

"Sorry to bother you, Frills, but I'm out on business this afternoon," began the girl, smiling in a half-apologetic, half-defiant fashion, "and your name is on the list I had given me to call on. We want to raise a lot more money this year for the Orphans' Vacation Camp up in the Sierras and so the committee is planning a big fair and entertainment. We want to find out what you'll do for it. Will you enter the horse show and take on one of the acts in the evening?"

Joyce listened to this appeal with mixed emotions.

"Of course, I'm... I'm interested in it," began Joyce slowly, feeling her way and smiling pleasantly as she spoke, "but I'm not riding any more in shows and I'd rather not take part in any entertainment, but I'm... I'd like to help in any other way?"

Her acquiescence was received with grateful effusive thanks. The girl then rose, hesitated for a moment and said, with a little wistful air which Joyce felt instinctively was not wholly genuine, "I wish we might be friends. I do so like to be friends with every one. If there's anything I can do... I'm so sorry."

Who was this girl anyway? wondered Joyce, slightly exasperated by her sleek manner. There had evidently been some unpleasantness between Frills and her. But before she had to speak she was saved by the arrival of Neil.

"Well, look who's here! Hello, Joyce, how are you?" he exclaimed, shaking hands cordially with her. Joyce Abbott, of course!

"Well, why not sit down? What's your hurry?" went on Neil in his heartiest manner, "what do you know? How's the new car working?"

"Oh, it's just fine! but I must run along now. I just came to ask Frills if she'd help on the affair for the Orphans' Vacation Camp. Good-bye and thanks ever so much."

"Good-bye," said Joyce. She spoke shortly, more because she could not think of anything to say than because she wished to be disagreeable. Neil accompanied the caller out to her

Relieves Women's Pains

Here is an example of how Cardui has helped thousands of women: "I was very thin and pale," writes Mrs. F. H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va. "I suffered from weakness and a severe pain in my back. This pain unnerved me, and I did not feel like doing my work. I did not care to go places, and felt worn, tired, day after day."

"My mother had taken Cardui, and on seeing my condition she advised me to try it. I have never regretted going so. I took three bottles and it built me up. I gained in weight, my color was better and the pain left my back. I am stronger than I had been in some time."

a nice place this was to eat my lunch," said Joyce doubtfully.

"Oh, but wait till you have tasted my coffee," he protested, starting to lead Rosita away. "I'm just going to eat lunch myself and I really can make good coffee."

He was back in a surprisingly short time and said, "I never eat anything except bread and butter and fruit and coffee for lunch but I have plenty of truck in the shack and I can make anything you like. Orders taken until two-thirty."

"Oh, please don't think of getting anything for me except coffee," protested Joyce quickly. "I have my sandwiches which I really must eat or Roxie's feelings would be hurt."

"Well the coffee will be done in a few minutes. Sit down or stand up or do whatever you feel like doing. Just let me present you with the keys to the city."

He put the coffee pot on as he spoke and Joyce asked, "Do the keys of the city include permission to ask questions?"

"On all free admission days, yes. Except, of course, when Claud Alfred is around. He's just a little bit queer that way. Ever since he threw the mother of five children into the brook because she asked him whether he thought a man's necktie should match his socks, I've had to warn casual visitors not to ask him questions."

"Well, I'm glad he isn't around because I want to ask—"

"Oh, I know. You want to ask how I happen to be here. You want to say how extraordinary it is that we should meet here, after meeting in an equally extraordinary manner in San Francisco. You want to get personal. You're perfectly charming, Joyce Ashton, and I'm terrified of you. If I seem to be talking a lot and at random you've only yourself to blame. My well-known poise is shattered—"

He broke off abruptly, and Joyce dropped limply into a chair. Nothing could have surprised her more than to hear Robert Ainsworth talking to her in this manner.

"Well, go ahead and tighten the clamps," he continued. You've heaped coals of fire on my head by your sunny acceptance of everything—haul me over them!" He smiled, but Joyce knew he was in deadly earnest.

"Sentence suspended!" she gravely retorted. Their eyes met with mutual approval for a moment, and then Joyce lightly turned the conversation to the world of books.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars.

The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results.

Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too,—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

HUNDREDS ATTEND FORMAL OPENING OF NEW RED AND WHITE STORE HERE

A crowd estimated at approximately 1000 people attended the opening party of the new Red and White store in Littlefield Thursday night. The store, operated by Payne Wood, was formerly known as the Modern Food Store.

A plate lunch was served to all attending the opening affair, together with various prizes, consisting of groceries, were given away.

The store moved to the new location, next door to the First National Bank, early last month. Previous to the joining of the Red and White organization, the entire building was remodeled, making the store modern in every respect.

Bright Woman Lost 20 Pounds Feels Much Better

"June 28th, I started taking Kruschen Salts. Have lost 20 pounds from June 28th to Jan. 10. Feel better than have felt for four years. Was under doctors care for several months. He said I had gall stones and should have operation. Kruschen did all and more than I expected." Mrs. Lute Bright, Walker, Minn. (Jan 10, 1933)
To lose fat and at the same time gain in physical attractiveness and feel spirited and youthful take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.
A jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at any drugstore in the world but be sure and get Kruschen Salts the SAFE way to reduce wide hips, prominent front and double chin and again feel the joy of living—money back if dissatisfied after the first jar.

LOSING SIDE ENTERTAIN WINNERS
The Sorosis Class of the M. E. church met at the church Friday afternoon for a business and social meeting. This meeting marked the end of a contest. VALLEY VIEW BAPTIST CHURCH
Valley View Missionary Baptist church met in regular service Sunday, June 14th.

The pastor delivered a message on Soul Winning. Text: "He Brought Him To Jesus," John 1:42.
We had the greatest spiritual service in the short history of our little church.
Seven additions to the church. In the afternoon we ordained two new deacons.
Had a large presbytery of ordained preachers and deacons from different churches.
Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, pastor of the First Baptist church, Littlefield, was Moderator.
Rev. C. F. Booth, Littlefield, preached the ordination sermon. Rev. C. A. Joiner, pastor of First Baptist church, Mulleshoe, had charge of the questioning.
The pastor, E. R. Fulton, prayed the ordination prayer, and Rev. Jackson of Littlefield delivered the charge.
Rev. W. T. Wright, member of this church, preached a wonderful sermon at the evening service.
We are having wonderful times at Valley View, and when you want to go some place and don't know where to go you have a hearty invitation to come and worship with us.
Signed: REV. E. G. FULTON, Pastor.

GOOD GAS WITH DEPENDABLE SERVICE

Positively, Conoco Bronze out-performs them all by every comparison

INSTANT STARTING LIGHTNING PICK-UP

CONOCO BRONZE'S claims to superiority have received the most tremendous indorsement ever accorded a new gasoline. Motorists in vast numbers talked and wrote of their experiences with instant starting, lighting pick-up, improved anti-knock, greater mileage and power of Conoco Bronze. They proved its unusual qualities in new cars and old-timers.

Take any motor car manufacturer's claims of car performance... add a plus if you use Conoco Bronze! Where performance counts... or economy is stressed, here is a gasoline whose perfection is greater than the car engineers counted upon.

Users all say it is a great gasoline. At Red Triangle stations everywhere.
