It just Breathes a little Deeper and Wades In!

EVER stop to figure why Nature gave you both a nose and a mouth to breathe through?

Your nose, barring colds, does all right for ordinary purposes.

But go up against some heavy exercise—and you can open up your mouth as well and increase the intake of oxygen.

Your 1941 Buick with Compound Carburetion* works something like that.

Its "nose," which is the forward one of your two thrift-size carburetors, does a grand job of supplying "breath" for your engine on normal jobs.

But when the time comes that your engine has to dig in for a tough pull or a burst of power, then your extra foot-pressure on the gas treadle opens up the "mouth" and your engine "breathes" through two carburetors.

Simple, isn't it? Yet look what happens:

Your engine always consumes gas according to the need.

By simply taking it easy when easy does it and breathing deep when the work piles up, your power plant gets as much as 10% to 15% more mileage from the same gasoline.

That, in these days, is nothing to be sneezed at.

So why don't you get the whole story from your Buick dealer?

WALLACE BEERY COMES TO PALACE IN "THE BAD MAN" THIS WEEK END

Wallace Berry as Pancho Lopez, whimsical bandit comes to the Palace Theatre Saturday midnight continuing through Sunday and Monday in his most picturesque characterization since "Viva Villa!" in "The Bad Man" picturization of the noted stage play. Teamed with Lionel Barrymore, he presents a swashbuckling, menacing, but still kindly outlaw, a veritable Robin Hood of the cattle ranges.

The play deals with a group of "tenderfeet", a young girl whom the boy was once engaged, her husband, and a crooked banker seeking the ranch. Into this group rides Lopez and his band. Lopez recognizes the rancher, who once saved his life, and quixotically sets out to straighten out their tangled affairs of the heart and purse by applying his bandit ethics. Screamingly funny situations, some extremely dramatic moments, and thrills galore result.

WANT TO MOVE THE EARTH? HERE'S HOW

Call it a lister or a buster as you like, this Oliver Two-Row Rear Suspended Lister tears right through the soil behind an Oliver Row Crop "70" in a way that is bound to please you and at a rate that means a lot of acres covered thoroughly at the end of the day. There's a four-point suspension connecting lister frame and the tractor for sturdiness. The Oliver parallel link construction which connects the beams to the lister frame makes it easy for the bases or sweeps to be raised or lowered and lets the beams follow ground contour very closely. Beams are strong, heat-treated steel, adjustable over 36 to 42-inch rows. Sweep and middlebreaker standards are adjustable for regulating suck of the sweeps or bases. Bases or sweeps can be raised or lowered by power lift on the Oliver "70" if you wish—hand levers are used for adjustments. See this simple, sturdy, efficient tool at our showrooms NOW.

Ferguson Implement Co., Celebrates First Year In Littlefield

This week marks the end of the first year in Littlefield for Roy Ferguson, who established the Ferguson Implement Co. here.

Mr. Ferguson, who is dealer for the J. I. Case Co., for dealers, he territory, has had an unusually good business the past year, and he appreciates the pleasant associations he has had with his friends and customers.

In the March issue of "The Case Eagle," a magazine published by the J. I. Case Co., for dealers, he received very favorable publicity.

Two pictures, one of the well-kept place of business on Phelps Avenue in Littlefield, and the other of tractors in operation during an all-day farmers meeting, staged by Mr. Ferguson recently near town, appeared in the magazine.

C. L. Akers, assistant manager at Amarillo, gave this report to the magazine, and only one other dealer in Texas was mentioned—the Case dealer at Clarendon and pictures of a demonstration there.

About Mr. Ferguson and his store, Mr. Akers said: "His modern store is well stocked with complete machines and implements salable in that territory. He maintains a well-regulated service shop with a good able mechanic in charge. His well arranged parts bins are kept well stocked with extra parts. Furnishing high class service is a part of his business creed."

"Roy has three consuming ambitions, as follows: First, to sell Case goods and render service; second, to make a reasonable amount of money for himself, and third, to work cooperatively with farmers."

His first year in Littlefield, Mr. Ferguson states that he will also be here next year to serve the farmers in this section.

At his showrooms, he has a new hay baler that is streamlined. The Case hay baler slices the hay ready for easy feeding, while in operation in the field.

He has recently been appointed dealer for the Star Zephyr windmills and Jacuzzi pumps and pressure systems.

He invites you to visit his store and see this new equipment.

These Three Loves

by Louis Arthur Cunningham

CHAPTER 1

There was one little crimson patch against the green wall of Rydal Wood, a gay flamboyant pennon fluttering from the lance of the Autumn's vanguard. Always it saddened Gillian, that little Maple, proclaimed so valiantly among the hosts of now that soon now, soon, the host of the Autumn would advance. Then all the green would fade, and drop its tattered pennons and the wind would whistle around the ancient walls of Rydal House.

Madness always came to Gillian at the end of summer. Not that she had been much joy this year; mainly not at Rydal House, that belonged to the Meades for over a century and had been, a good house to them, for scarcely one of the family had spent a dollar on its upkeep. The ones who could spend, wouldn't; the ones like Gillian, who would, never seemed to have a dollar.

Eight now there was a quarter of some smaller change in the pocket of Gillian's faded fawn riding breeches. And that was about all she owned in the way of worldly wealth. The other Meades, Colonel Meade and young Deborah, wouldn't touch much more affluent. This week, though, would see all that removed. "And you"—she spoke almost hesitatingly to the aged-darkened, named ceilings of Rydal House, "you'll get some long needed attention. And you" she spoke to the walls—"will have new tenants in those empty boxes. And you—" she spoke to the willow-slender, blue-headed girl with the high cheekbones and deep blue eyes, who looked attentively at her from the long mirror on the closet door—"you Gillian Meade, will have Patou modish and mink coats and diamonds—oh, come in!"

The door of Gillian's sun-bright room opened and Colonel Anselm Meade came stiffly in. The room had a great domer window and hangings of ray yellow chintz, a bit faded; and a yellow rug with little flowers, and a white bed and dresser and dozens of photographs. There was one of Colonel Anselm in uniform as an officer of the 6888th Central Postal Directory, with heaps of medals and whatnot adorning his broad chest. Gillian picked it up from its place of honor on the little white table and looked from it to the faded original. "My dream man," she whispered. "Darling Anselm in the flesh—and he hasn't changed a bit!"

"Hasn't he?" One of Colonel Anselm's legs was a bit stiff because he was made of wood, but he was straight and hard as oak and he crossed the yellow rug with the red flowers quite as if it were a parade ground and glared at Gillian as if she was the newest recruit, with her tunic on backwards. "Do you know what Hawtry told me just now when I told him to bring me a whiskey and soda?"

Gillian shook her head and the red bob showered off golden lights like a myriad of little cascades leaping in a crimson sunset. "What did Hawtry tell you, Anse?"

"That there's no whiskey. When I told him to get some, he said he couldn't."

"And shall I tell you why, Anse?" Gillian cocked her head at him. "Because there's no money."

She shook her head. "I don't know where it is Anse. I'm soft. I've had it easy all my life. A great house, fine clothes, servants, motors—a grand life, and I've loved it and I've hated to see it slipping, slipping away. Do you know what I was doing just before you came? I was making up my mind. Come here, sir." She took Anse by the bony arm and led him, tall, gaunt, towering above her.

Anse's gaze was steady on the sweet face, on the firm mouth, the upturned nose with its tiny freckles, the high clear forehead, the wide blue eyes with their lashes of a gold darker than the red gold of her hair. "You said you were making up

"He wants me. He can have me. Gillian Meade's startling reply." "He can pay for me." This was your mind—to what?"

"That's it. Very good indeed, Gillian." Anse slapped his thigh. "I always said you had the brains of the Meades. That's it exactly! No money—those were the words Hawtry used. Money's all spent, eh?"

"All spent, Anse, All we have is Rydal and once more we start to give it for collateral"—she shrugged.

"But Gillian, we have to have money. Meades have always had money. Maybe too much money." He grinned a wry grin.

"That's so, Anse. But, as you well know, Anse, they had big factories too and maybe an odd brewery, and some of them were big shots in the stock market. All that's left now is the infant Deborah, concerned with clothes and sweethearts, the grownup Gillian, who is quite useless."

"You're not useless, Gillian." The old soldier looked fondly at her. "You're a trump, girl—a trump. Real stuff in you—real, solid, gritty stuff in you, Gil."

"To marry."

"Ah! And how is that going to—"

"A man with lots of money—more money than the Meades ever had."

"You mean Jonathan Hillyer?"

"I mean Jonathan Hillyer. You know what it will mean. New life for Rydal House, new life for us all. We're going to have money. Is there anything wrong about marrying Jon Hillyer? He wants me. He can have me. He can pay for me."

"Gillian!"

She turned from the window to which, half angrily, she had gone, and a long yellow sun shaft streamed in and burnished her rippling hair. Even so, Anselm remembered, had her mother, Gillian Crandall, looked, when long ago she had told Anselm Meade she loved his brother. "What do you want to say to me, Anse?"

"I want to ask you a question, my dear. I want you for once, not to laugh at me. Oh, I know as well as you know we've got by this last few years. Bills mountain high never paid. I know all about that. I know you can end it by marriage with Jonathan Hillyer, an eminently practical and desirable match. There is only one thing. It brings me to the question: "Do you love him?"

"How should I know?" Gillian hedged. "Anyway, Anse, why bring that up. How many marriages have it, after all, when the first blush has worn off and he begins to notice the eggs aren't done right and the toast is burnt?"

"You're not answering me, Gillian." Poor old Anse, standing there like a grenadier and talking like a convent girl. Love—what had love to do with this?

"Is it so monstrous—not to love the man you marry? You look like an accusing prophet, Anse. You make me feel, almost, that I'm about to commit a sin."

"I don't mean to, Gillian." Anse looked suddenly tired, looked all of the sixty he admitted. "It's just that I don't want you to be unhappy, don't want you to let yourself in for anything just because you think the show has to go on and this is the only way to keep it going."

She came over to him and slipped her arm around his neck and kissed him on the leathery cheek. "You're pretty splendid, Uncle. Don't want to see me sell my self for filthy lucre. Don't worry. I've thought it all out. I've been in love—I think that's what you'd call it—a number of times. Once, notably. You remember Jaffry Clay, Anse? Everybody does. Drank himself to death for love of Gillian Meade, ruined his young life, destroyed his youth for a woman who—"

"Stop it!" Anse shook her roughly until the flaring nostrils, the wide eyes, the distorted mouth, the signs of hysteria, gave way to serenity and repose. She said "Sorry, Anse. It's the story, you know. It makes a good story. Some smart-alec journalist even made capital of it because Jaffry Clay was a poet. Was that love, Anse? That was a lie and a cruel, ugly thing."

Fire Damages New Home Of Henry Banks

Fire damaged the new house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Banks Wednesday morning of last week. Fire was caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove left in the living room of the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Banks had almost completed the construction of the house in the Duggan addition, just west of the Dr. C. E. Payne home. They had planned to move there about May 1.

The Littlefield Fire Department were able to extinguish the fire before the structure burned completely but considerable damage was done.

A REPORT to America

The Ford Motor Company's business has always been to serve the needs of the American people. In providing them with low-cost transportation for the past 38 years, we have developed one of the country's largest and most useful industrial units. During a national emergency, we feel that these facilities should be devoted without reserve to our country's needs. Toward that end we started rolling months ago, with these results:

- 1 A $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine factory, started only 6 months ago, is nearly completed. Production will start with an initial order for 4,236 eighteen cylinder, air-cooled, double-row, radial engines.
- 2 We are building a new $800,000 Ford magnesium alloy foundry, one of the few in the country. It is already producing lightweight airplane engine castings.
- 3 Army reconnaissance cars—military vehicles of an entirely new type—are rolling off special Ford assembly lines at the rate of more than 600 a month. We have produced Army staff cars and bomber service trucks.
- 4 The government has given the "go-ahead" and work is now under way for the fast construction of an $11,000,000 Ford plant to produce bomber airframe assemblies by mass production methods.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY

5 Several months ago work was started, on our own initiative, on an entirely new 1500 horsepower airplane engine especially designed for mass production. This engine is now in the test stage and plans are being developed for producing it in large quantities when and if needed.

6 A Ford aircraft apprentice school has been established, to train 2000 students at a time.

That is a report of progress to date.

The experience and facilities of this company can be used to do much of the job which America now needs to get done in a hurry.

Our way of working, which avoids all possible red tape, enables us to get results and get them fast. This benefits users of our products and workers who produce them.

We are ready to make anything we know how to make, to make it to the limit of our capacity if need be, to make it as fast as we can go, and to start the next job whenever our country asks us to. And to this end, we know we have the full confidence and loyal support of the workmen throughout our plants.

Legislative Act Paves Way For Road District

Commissioners Court To Call Election For Voting Of Bonds

Obstacles blocking the creation of a road district for the Sudan section were removed with the passing of a special act of the Texas Legislature late Monday.

A petition had been presented to the Commissioners Court asking for a road district and the court had given approval, but due to the existing bonded indebtedness of the City of Sudan, it was impossible to proceed with the completion of the organization of the Sudan road district.

A special act of the legislature having been passed, representatives of the Sudan section may now proceed to bring about an election as planned. The matter will now come before the Commissioners Court, and that body is expected to take favorable action in the calling of an election to vote bonds for road improvement.

It is proposed that bonds be voted for the hard-surfacing of four roads in that territory; the road north from Sudan to the Muleshoe-Plainview highway; one west to the Bailey county line; one south to the boundary line of the district, which is approximately five miles south of Sudan, joining the Littlefield district, and one east to the Amherst road district boundary.

A meeting of the Sudan chamber of commerce has been called Day with your photograph made ident R. E. Doss to discuss further necessary steps toward the bond election.

METHODIST CHURCH

Jim H. Sharp, Pastor

Yes, we started the construction of the new part of the church building last Monday. We are hoping that we can go right along with the work until the building has been completed, and we can if every one who can will help. There is a way for everyone to help some. If you can give money of course we need it, but if you can't and have some materials about the place that you need that we can use we will be glad to get it. We can use brick, lumber and etc. If you can not give money or materials and can donate your labor we will be glad to have you come and work any time you want. If you want to come and work please let us know when you can come. That way we can plan our work better. We will appreciate any help that you can give us in this building program. We hope that you can be with us next Sunday in our service at the Methodist Church. Why stay away from the church. The church needs you and you need the church. Our country needs the church (that has been such a help in the past and will be a great help in the future) in this dark hour of our National life.

Morning Services began with Church School 9:45. Preaching Services 11 o'clock. Evening Services began at 6:30 with the Leagues and Preaching 7:30.

We welcome you to all the services at the Methodist church.

ONENESS PENTECOST CHURCH

We have begun a Revival Meeting at the "Oneness Pentecost Church of Jesus Christ, located on 10th St. in College Heights Addition. Rev. John Veach from Allison Texas is now preaching and will continue until Rev. F. L. Jones of Lometa Texas arrives to take charge of the services beginning Friday night March 28.

We look forward to a real old-time Revival.

We invite everyone to come and hear the soul-stirring Gospel service.

Pastor, Herman H. Helms

AMHERST METHODIST CHURCH

We made an appeal last Sunday for our church publications and we seek to get one or more of these in as many homes as possible. In a year one receives 51 or 52 copies. The total weight of one of these for a year is from 8 to 11 pounds. The total cost of the blank stock, before it is lifted up to the press is about 44c. Postage will be near 50c.

This is a cost before a single name is entered upon a subscription list, before any equipment is bought, or before a single line of type has been set, before the editor has written a word, or before one engraving has been ordered.

We are not pleading for a paper but an institution which in former years has been held as a great factor for the moulding the right spirit in men but which institution is now bdy on the wane.

Our church school survey was delayed again last Sunday but we hope to see it worked out next Sunday from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. Twenty survetors are asked from each church to do the work.

Next Monday night the stewards will meet and the Boards of Education and Missions may be called next Tuesday night.

Next Sunday at 11, "John the Baptist's Message to Us" will be the subject. At night there will be a service on the Hughes and Caperton Memorial.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The Anzacs Are Tough Fighters

THE ANZACS are the hard-fighting soldiers of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps who have taken part in every action of the British offensive against the Italian Army in North Africa. Cocky and independent, the Anzacs bear a striking resemblance to our own Texans, and although they have not yet been fully trained, they have been the spearhead of Britain's successful onslaughts against the Italians.

DISCOURAGE Axis-Partner Japan from further aggression and their homeland in the South Pacific, the Anzacs (boarding transport, above) have reinforced the garrison at Britain's strategic naval base in Singapore. What Australia is contributing to the British Empire's war effort, and how her seven million people are today preparing to defend themselves against Japan's next invasion are shown in the latest March of Time film, "Australia at War", from which these pictures are taken.

Film "Australia at War" has been booked for showing at the Theatre for Saturday night, Sunday and Monday.

Selling Americanism

In these days of committee-forming when every other person you meet belongs to some committee to aid Great Britain, you wouldn't expect much excitement to result from a one-man campaign to arouse a love for America among the people.

Yet this has been accomplished by Sidney Hollaender, president of the Every Ready Label corporation.

In plaque form, his Credo now is on display in thousands of school classrooms and school pupils throughout the country have miniature reproductions of it pasted on their textbooks.

He has distributed millions of copies of his Credo at his own expense. The Credo reads:

"There's No way Like the American way . . . Because

"I can go to any church I please—

"I read, see and hear what I choose—

"I can express my opinions openly—

"My mail reaches me as sent . . . uncensored—

"My telephone is untapped— "I can join any political party I wish—

"I can vote for what and whom I please—

"I have a constitutional right to trial by jury—

"I am protected against search and seizure—

"Neither my life nor my property can be forfeited without due process of law".

Hate

In his efforts to revise the Ten Commandments to fit the modern conditions, one of Benito Mussolini's favorite admonitions to the Italian people is "Hate Thy Enemy". He believes that a major part of Italian reverses in the war have resulted from the people's inability to hate hard enough. And why haven't they hated? The answer is simple:

Until after the war started, the Italian soldiers weren't sure whether they would go in on the side of Germany or England.

Cotton Stamps To Be Issued Farmers Reducing Acreage

Stamps To Be Used To Buy Cotton Goods In Retail Stores

Cotton order stamps to be earned by farmers for participating in the Supplementary Cotton Program will be issued this summer as soon as possible after performance is checked under the 1941 AAA Farm Program, according to W. E. Bentley, chairman of the Lamb County AAA Committee.

This means that in the early cotton-producing counties of Texas issuance of stamps may begin in late June, with the bulk of the stamps expected to be distributed during July and August.

Mr. Bentley said this estimate is based on past experience in checking cotton performance during a normal growing season. A late growing season in 1941 would, of course, delay issuance of stamps to farmers in the areas affected.

Cotton stamps will be issued to farmers who make a further voluntary contribution.

Condition Of Carroll Blacklock Reported Serious

Latest report of the condition of Carroll Blacklock, who is confined in the Baylor hospital, Dallas, was that the doctors there had located a tumor on the right side of his brain, but it was very doubtful if it could be removed, according to Dr. R. E. Hunt of Littlefield, who called the doctor at Dallas Tuesday.

Dr. Hunt said the doctors were to call him, in the event they found they could operate, so he could go to Dallas for the operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Blacklock went to Dallas Tuesday, March 18, and a test was made Friday morning in an effort to locate the tumor, but this test did not show one.

Dr. and Mrs. Hunt went to Dallas Thursday to be at the bedside of Mr. Blacklock, returning home Sunday.

Mr. Blacklock is manager of the Wm. Cameron & Company in Littlefield, and Buster Owens of Altus, Okla., formerly of Littlefield, arrived last week to be in charge of the yard during Mr. Blacklock's absence.

Mr. Owens is assistant manager of the Cameron yard at Altus.

Six Men To Leave Here April 3 For Selective Service

Local Board Reports Sufficient Volunteers To Fill Next Call

As announced by Mrs. Dorothy Cobb Tuesday, two replacements, Granville Randolph Billingsley of Sudan and Glenn W. Gatewood of Sudan, will leave here Tuesday next for selective service.

The local board has another call for six men who will leave here Thursday, April 3.

According to Mrs. Cobb, the local board has more than sufficient volunteers registered to fill the April 3 call, though just which six men of the following eight volunteers will be called, is not known at the time of going to press.

The eight men who volunteered for selective service are: Wood R. Stevenson of Sudan; G. W. West of Sudan; Billy Qualls of Amherst; J. R. Stanfield of Rt. 1, Littlefield; Raymond A. Reed of Fieldton; Andra Elbert Luttrell of Sudan; Louis F. Curry of Sudan; Lawrence Herschel Welch of Sudan, temporarily of Abilene.

These replacements are for one man rejected from Call No. 9, who left here March 21, and for one man already in the service when the call came.

In an interview Monday with Otto Jones, chairman, he said the board has had wonderful cooperation in the selective service program, since out of 1150 men whom the board has classified, only one appeal was made, a record in itself.

Mr. Jones also stated that according to the records, 82 percent of the 1-A men registered for selective service over the country were turned down on physical examination. He explained, however, that some of those men are put in 1-B class, which is a limited military service and can be called out later.

Mrs. Troy Noel of Brownfield was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Jake Hall and Miss Edith Ratliff Tuesday and Wednesday of last week.

Lamb Tops Area In Cotton Ginnings

The final report of cotton ginnings for the 1940-41 season on the South Plains shows Lamb county tops the area, with Hockley second, Lubbock third and Lynn fourth, as totals up to March 1 showed 449,438 bales had been ginned.

Comparative figures for the corresponding date for the 1939-40 season showed 395,706 bales had been ginned, an increase of 53,742 bales or 13.6 percent.

Texas totals showed 3,107,956 bales ginned this season and 2,736,764 bales last season.

Lamb county ranks seventh in the state in ginnings and Hockley eighth. Other South Plains counties in the first 26 counties that ginned above 35,000 bales were: Lubbock, 13th, Lynn 21st, Terry 25th and Dawson 26th.

Merchants Of City Quickly Donating To Worthy Cause

Mrs. J. M. Stokes Is Assisting Capt. Eula Trummell In Work

The local Salvation Army Corps Tuesday received an urgent request from General Geo. L. Carpenter, International Leader of the Salvation Army, for blankets, which will be sent to the war refugees in England.

Capt. Eula Trummell reported that the Littlefield quota was 100 blankets, and local merchants and organizations and individuals are rapidly donating blankets for this purpose.

In a letter from Brigadier Wm. Geo. Gilks, divisional commander, it was stated that at least 5,000 blankets be sent to England at once, as there is so much fog and damp weather, and many towns and homes have been destroyed by fire, and there is much suffering from the cold.

Brigadier Gilks wrote "we are only asking for 100 blankets from Littlefield, but if 200 or 500 are sent, they are so much the better. We are emphasizing blankets, but other warm clothing will be acceptable. Blankets do not have to be all wool, but should not be just cotton—not brand new—but it is expensive to send them to England, and anything should not be sent that will not give adequate service. They must be clean, either new or recently laundered. We are depending on you, and we know that TEXAS NEVER FAILS!"

Mrs. J. M. Stokes, member of the local Salvation Army Advisory Board, is assisting Capt. Trummell and Captain Vera Evans, and they are getting as many blankets as possible today, so that Capt. Trummell and Capt. Evans can take them to Dallas with them Friday morning to the Young People's Congress.

People who wish to send blankets are urged to get in touch with the local Salvation Army or Mrs. Stokes today.

Lamb Boy Wins At Lubbock Show

The grand champion Hereford steer that carried away top honors at the second annual FFA and 4-H Club show in Littlefield, Saturday, March 15, again took top rank at the South Plains Junior Fat Stock Show at Lubbock this week.

Herman Rose, 10-year old fifth grade student of Olton owns the 1,060-pound Hereford steer, and is a member of the Olton 4-H Club. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Rose.

A picture of Herman with the champion steer, and H. T. Duke, assistant Lamb county agent, appeared in the Wednesday morning Lubbock Avalanche.

At the auction at the show Wednesday afternoon, the Lubbock Hotel bought the calf for 40c per pound, V. F. Jones, County agent, and Mr. Duke reported.

Uncle Sam Keeps Office Clean, Says Lumberman

"Uncle Sam has sure kept our office clean," Ed Seely said Wednesday, when he reported that three boys had either volunteered or been drafted who were employed at the local Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber company during the past six months.

Mr. Seely is manager of the local Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber yard, and at last, he says, he has one young man there who can stay a few years anyway, as he was not quite old enough to register. Bill Stenberg, who came here from Canyon, is the name.

Only a few days before all young men in America had to register, back in October, 1940, L. C. Woods, who had been employed at the yard about ten months, volun-

Total Moisture Of 2.68 Inches Falls Over Section

Rains General Over Entire South Plains; Snow Also Reported

Rains over the South Plains provide the best season in the ground "for years", according to a careful check with those of authority this week.

Pioneers of this section expressed their opinion that the recent moisture was the best that had fallen during March in Twenty years. The rain falling slowly as it did, was especially beneficial in providing spring moisture.

A slow rain began falling in Littlefield and territory Friday about noon, continuing until Saturday night, when about one and 29/100 inches fell. Starting again early Monday morning, a heavy rain fell lasting until about noon, which let up for a short time, more moisture falling later in the afternoon, which measured for Monday at one and forty one-hundredths inches, or a total for the week end of 2.69 inches, as reported by L. C. Cawthon, official weather reporter.

Rain was general over the South Plains, and Littlefield and trade territory. T. M. Robinson, Traveling Freight & Passenger Agent for the Santa Fe, reported Monday that rain fell all over the Slaton division, taking in the territory from Slaton to Happy, to Sweetwater, Lamesa, Brownfield, and up to Crosbyton.

In some sections as much as three inches are reported, with Lynn and Yoakum counties receiving 6 and 8 inch snows during the week end.
