"Robinson Crusoe" Will Be Shown At High School

Classic Adventure Film Will Be Exhibited Friday

What would you do if you were cast up from a shipwreck, on a desert island and had to live there for almost thirty years? And then — one day, you found mysterious foot prints in the sand and discovered that a band of cannibals were on the island with you. The story is familiar, isn't it? And the story will come to life for the students of the Littlefield schools Friday morning, when Daniel Defoe's Immortal Adventure, "Robinson Crusoe," will be shown on a screen in the auditorium. It's all there — the shipwreck, in which Crusoe salvages — his dog and cat and monkey — the wild cannibal tribe — the mutineers and his good man Friday — and it makes a splendid picture. Admission to the students will be ten cents, and E. B. Hobbs, principal, stated that it was a picture that all students will enjoy.

VINTHER HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE SATURDAY

Almost All Household Furniture, Personal Effects Lost In Blaze

Fire completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vinther, nine miles east of Littlefield, Saturday night at 10 o'clock. As Mrs. Vinther started to light a stove in the living room, oil that had leaked on the floor from the tank caught fire, and the flames quickly spread to the other rooms, where the oil had run. Wedding Gifts Burn

Her parents had given the couple a beautiful set of hand painted chinaware as a wedding gift which, with numerous other valuable, were destroyed. Losses Clothes In Fire

TEXAS FARMERS AND RANCHERS TO RECEIVE FORTY-TWO MILLION IN CONSERVATION PAYMENTS

More than 300,000 Texas farmers and ranchmen who adopted the AAA's Agricultural Conservation Program in 1938 will receive approximately $42,000,000 in conservation payments, to be distributed for the most part in January, February and March of 1939, according to current AAA estimates. George Slaughter, Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee chairman, said computation of payments is in full swing at AAA headquarters at College Station and that checks will start going to producers about January 19. He urged those eligible for payment to send in their applications for grant as early as possible, explaining that the state office cannot begin distribution of checks to a given county until at least 25 percent of that county's applications for payment have been received. Total 1938 payments will exceed the aggregate of 1937 checks by about $9,000,000; and the bulk of conservation grants will be issued considerably earlier this year, Slaughter predicted. The money will go to cotton, wheat, rice and peanut farmers who substituted soil-conserving crops for some of their soil-depleting (cash) crops, and for carrying out other soil-building practices, and to ranchmen who have sought to improve and protect grazing land according to AAA range program specifications. Slaughter represented these payments as "at least a step toward equalization of burdens imposed upon the man behind the plow by tariffs and freight rate differentials."

Propose Factory To Produce Many Grain Bi-Products

New Industry Will Be Big Boon To Growers Of Small Grain

W. H. Cunningham and John L. Bowling, will be among the West Texas agriculturists who will attend the Chemurgic session at Gladewater, Texas, next week. The session is sponsored by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce and will devote itself to the study of agricultural bi-products. The main interest of the Lamb county delegation will be in the possibilities for promoting an Agrol plant in or near Littlefield. Mr. Cunningham has been studying closely the progress of the Agrol plant at Atchinson, Kansas, and believes that a similar industrial plant will be the salvation for small grain farmers of this section. By way of explanation—Agrol is a fuel alcohol produced from corn or grain sorghum with protein feed and dry ice as bi-products. Mr. Cunningham states that this industry has long since passed the experimental stage. The establishment of such a plant would—according to Mr. Cunningham's opinion, produce a profitable market and outlet for grain sorghum which is one of the easiest crops to raise in this vicinity. The Littlefield delegation will invite the experts and chemists who will address the Gladewater meeting. (Continued on back page)

We're With You

Into the Lamb county courthouse Saturday, were inducted the new official family. Now that all the useless fussing and fumings of the August and September primaries have become nothing more than gentle political waves, this official family is greeted with well wishes by the vast majority of county citizens.

From justice of the peace to county judge, this official family has a tremendous responsibility. In one sense of the word, they have taken office at an "off" period. Government funds are being cut down, and that means fewer county improvements.

At the same time, the officials will find new problems on their hands. The new officials must "learn the ropes," the old ones who are returning must change in some cases to fit into the new scheme of things.

Yes, the great majority of county folks are with you, county officials. It is up to you to make good. And the citizens sincerely believe you will do it — for the present and future benefit of Lamb county.

Some Cheering Statistics

We're getting richer. That is the gist of the report just issued by the Department of Commerce on the incomes of the American people. We haven't got back to where we were in 1929, when the average income of every American, man, woman and child, was $668, but for the year 1937 the average income was $540, which is a good deal better than the $494 of 1936.

Statistics are boring, and often misleading, but it is interesting to learn that the total national income for 1937 was more than 63 billion dollars, ten percent higher than in 1936, but still a long way below the 1929 record of over 81 billions.

A billion is such a big figure that it doesn't mean much to most folks. It is easier to understand if you think of a thousand towns with a thousand people in each town and every one of them having a thousand chickens. That would make a billion chickens.

One of the heartening things about the Department of Commerce report on incomes is that in 1937 the people of this country earned more than they spent. Not the government, but the people themselves.

We accumulated a surplus in the shape of savings bank deposits and business reserves. Another interesting fact hidden in the long string of figures is that more than two-thirds of all the money spent by everybody in the whole nation in 1937 went for salaries and wages, which is an increase over previous years.

There is so much talk on all sides about the trouble so many folks have in making both ends meet that many of us seem to have been bitten by the "poverty bug." Such figures as those cited should make us all feel more cheerful. America is far from broke.

BE IT RESOLVED

NOTE—In the New Year's Issue (Last Week) we announced that our only resolution for the New Year was: "Not to make any resolutions until we have convinced ourselves that it would be possible to do here to them."

WE OF LITTLEFIELD RESOLVE

- to work closer together, throughout the entire year so that the following projects may be carried through towards satisfactory completion:
-We shall pledge ourselves to complete as much paving as possible even if we do not secure outside help or federal aid.
-We shall promote the improvement of our city park playgrounds, recreational facilities, municipal auditorium and other activities that are needed for social well-being and cultural advancement.
-We shall create an adequate law enforcement set up and institute traffic laws that will reduce accidents.
-We shall further the promotion of at least one large industrial plant. (This plant is definitely under consideration and will do a great deal for Littlefield and all West Texas.)
-We shall encourage and support, the completion of all the building projects that have already been started.
-We shall improve our good reputation as a friendly, progressive, God-fearing community and strengthen the ties that bind our neighbors to us.
-We shall support any movement that will tend to improve the conditions for our farmer friends upon whom we are after all, mainly dependent.
-We shall support the diversification of crops; the development of the livestock industry and contingent raising of feed crops are only a few of the important activities that must be engaged in.
-We shall not rest until these milestones of progress have been reached. It is possible to pass them this year. Altogether — lets earnestly RESOLVE TO DO IT.

TENTH INSTALLMENT SYNOPSIS

Jocelyn Harlowe, raised in a convent, at the age of eight joins her mother, Marcella, in York. Worried about her safety because she is unfamiliar with modern world woman, her most first wish is to get her safely married. Attending her first Jocelyn meets Felix Kent, rich some and nineteen years older herself. Encouraged by her mother, she and Felix quickly become engaged. Alone in her apartment one night, a cripple, Nick Deal, enters by the fire-escape, kisses her that he is her father and that her real name is Marcella. Uncertain about whether she wants to get married quickly, Jocelyn goes to talk over with her mysterious father. As Lynda Sandal she goes to her house, climbs three flights of stairs and enters a room where sitting with several men in the midst of a card game. Later, both Felix and her mother arrive, Jocelyn returns to have a second visit with her father. There she meets Jack Ayleward, gambler, from whom she seeks information about her father's life. She takes her to a restaurant to see her about him, but instead spends their time talking about other and dancing together.

"My jewels," Marcella faltered to Jocelyn's ear. "They're where they should be. You've seen them?"
"I don't know anything about them," she said.
"You must be remembering her silent visit—the visit she called fruitless—and the marks that came and went on her floor."
Marcella kept on urgently saying: "You stood there staring at me. You looked like a walker but I'm sure you saw my jewels. I was so startled that I left the key there in the lock, and the cloth on the wall. Of course after I had gone to bed the place was still, you went in. I am sure you took them, but don't return them."

"I didn't take them."
"Please, Jocelyn, my darling. I won't be angry. It's natural to love jewels. They are so wonderfully beautiful, they seem to be alive. I will forgive you. Don't be afraid of me. Jewels are brave things; they are full of fire. Only tell me . . . for God's sake!"
"Mother, I didn't take them. Truly."

Marcella released her, dropped down at the foot of the bed and rocked herself to and fro, holding her dark disheveled head in both her hands.
"Some one has taken them. I must think." She sprang up. "We'll look everywhere. Don't say a word. No one must know but you and me. You see how I trust you? Get up quietly and help me look. We'll find them. We must find them."

They both looked into impossible places. They both stood and tried to imagine traps and corners and dark spots where they might look with hope.
At breakfast time quite suddenly Marcella regained composure. Her face looked in its passion. Austere, pale, in her accustomed dress with the silver cross again upon her bosom, she rearranged the apartment and bade Jocelyn go into the dining room.
"I can't eat, Mother. I feel sick."

"You must eat. We must not let Mary guess that anything is wrong. No one must know. That is more important than you can possibly imagine. You see, I am admitting you into my confidence. If I can't trust you, my own daughter!"

Jocelyn's eyes fell. She crept in and took her usual place at the daintily appointed breakfast table. Mary, dull and methodical like some clumsy but well-oiled machine, waited upon her.
Jocelyn loved Nick. Even now she loved him; this knowing climber in at bedroom windows, this beaten man whose friends had hard faces and quick eyes—Here pain took her heart in both its hands and squeezed it.
She had herself admitted these men into her mother's house with her own hands. "If I cannot trust my own daughter . . ."

Thoughts came to Jocelyn like this, in sharp stitches through her mind. She could not swallow her breakfast.

Flinging herself away from the breakfast table, she hurried to her bathroom and washed and washed her hands.

She knew the truth now. This was what her darling, her brave adventuring had brought her. The truth. The face of her fear, uglier than fear itself.

Now she knew what name her father and Jock Ayleward carried on the shrewd implacable tongue of the law. She knew the secret of their quick wealth, their sudden poverty. Of their hidden and sordid homes that changed and changed.

Marcella came to her door and stood, cold and grave, on its threshold. She was entirely her old self now.

"I will take steps to discover the chief, Jocelyn, very quiet and private steps. There are reasons which you can't know—ah, she did know, too many reasons—"why I must move very carefully. I will engage the services of a private detective. Meanwhile I entreat you, I command you—to say not a word, not so much as a breath about the jewels and my loss of them."

"I promise you, Mother. On my honor." Was that what honor meant—was she learning it now too late—an undivided loyalty?

"Not a word to any one, not even to Felix Kent."
Felix Kent; the name flourished in her ears with the sound of salvation. He rode life proudly with spirit and spur, knight errant. A warm current of reassurance flooded at her chilled heart.
She would marry Felix Kent. At once.

Felix Kent had already left his Park Avenue apartment. She rang his office. Miss Deal's voice came with a brisk authoritative clinking.
"Mr. Kent's office, yes—Yes, indeed, Miss Harlowe—No, no, not her—He will be back—Yes, Miss Harlowe, he will positively that he would back about noon—Why, yes, Miss Harlowe, of course you may come here and wait for him."

The diamond air of the city sparkled when she came out into it. The atmosphere of Kent's office when she reached it, braced her mood. Miss Deal was briskly cordial:
"You haven't been to see us at our home yet, Miss Harlowe." After that first visit we rather hoped, you know, that you might make a habit of dropping in upon us. You were just like a child at a party, you were so bright! Mr. Kent and I found it so—reflexly. You—ambitious, I mean to say."
Jocelyn had flushed under this eulogy. "I think you must have had a good laugh at my visit. But laugh all you like, I intend when I am married to understand all the business absurdities of you."
"I see you're still curious about our safe," Jocelyn had been staring at the shining gray box in the center. "Has Mr. Kent given you the combination yet?"
"I haven't asked him to," Jocelyn's eyes moved from the safe and sought Miss Deal's ruddy and inexpensive face. This woman must know many of Felix's secrets.
"After all," she heard her own soft voice murmuring carelessly, "I don't believe its contents are as impressive as its outside. There's a good deal of hocus pocus, of bluff isn't there, about these captains of finance, the big business men?"
"Not about our big business man Mr. Kent's the genuine article. I guess there are men living in all parts of the world that could give the eyes out of their heads to see the contents of that safe, Miss Harlowe—Ah!" Her face glittered, teeth and glasses. "There he is now. I hear him speaking to young Arthur."

Kent was speaking to young Arthur in a low hard tone and Arthur's own young voice lifted in reply piped such a tune of abject cringing conviction that Jocelyn's blood came to her face in sympathy.

"What do you suppose Arthur has done?" she whispered.
"He forgot the seraphic!"
Jocelyn threw back her head and laughed.

Felix became aware of her presence in the inner office, cut short his tongue-lashing and hurried to greet her.

"Jocelyn, darling, you here?"
"Yes, I tried to get you on the telephone at your apartment and then here. Miss Deal said you'd be in. I want to lunch with you."

"Splendid."
"Just a moment, darling. I've two letters to dictate; and a couple of papers to sign."

"Contracts, Felix?"
He did not answer. A little hairline shot up between his eyes. So like all the people she loved, he did not like to be questioned, this kind of finance, this great business man.

Jocelyn withdrew to a chair near the back window and waited until he should be through. She looked out from her window. A fire alarm came—her blood went chilly again alone her arm.

Three stories below lay a neat court which opened through an archway in the next building upon a street, no thoroughfare, where vans and trucks were parked. It was an easier fire escape to climb than the one Nick had used to enter her own small bedroom window.

"Hoping that you will see matters in this light and avoid any such regrettable development as will inevitably suggest itself to you upon perusal of this letter, should you persist in your own interpretation of this incident, I remain, etc.—That ends it, doesn't it, Miss Becky?"

"Well, sir, there's that Brent matter."
"Oh, yes. Wait a moment."
Felix rose and walked over to the safe.

Jocelyn turned from the window and watched him with a quickened action of her heart. He touched and twirled the knob quickly and deftly. She tried with all her eyes to watch and to memorize the rapid movements. Impossible of course.

Felix heard her little sharp intake of breath as the thick door swung open, and looked up at her, smiling. "Did that miracle startle you, darling?" he asked.

Inside in metal boxes, each in its compartment and all marked and labelled, lay his secrets, the fates of mines and men. She went over and stood close to Felix. He rose instantly and shut the safe.

"No you don't Pandora. There are a million troubles in that box and not a hope among them."
He sat at his desk and busied himself with papers for a moment. Presently he dismissed Miss Deal, looked at Jocelyn and smiled.

"Now then, let's go," he said. "Where will you lunch with me?"
"Some quiet place, Felix."

On their way, in the back seat of the limousine, Jocelyn spoke quickly: "I want to marry you sooner, Felix. How soon can we arrange it?"
He sat straight, visibly excited. "Dearest—my darling—this goes through me like lightning. How soon? Today?"

"No. No. But sensibly. Will Mother agree?"
"Will she agree? Dearest, why have you changed? I love you!"
"It isn't that I've changed, it's just that I've suddenly grown up. I've graduated from the convent."

"God bless you! You're the loveliest graduate I ever saw. I'm going to kiss you—now!"
"Not here, Felix, please. People on the street—"

"Very well. I'll wait. But after lunch I'll carry you off somewhere and show you—"

"No, Felix, please. Let this be enough, won't you?"
He restrained his rapture instantly. But his face was scarlet and his eyes shone. "Just as you say,

When will it be?"
"Next week, Felix? If Mother can manage it? That's not too soon?"
He smothered her—the people on the sidewalk notwithstanding—and let her go.

"My beautiful, dear wife," said Felix: "you are mine."
"Yes," answered Jocelyn trying to look at him. "Yes, I am—truly—yours."

"There are men who steal things," she thought, "and men who acquire them. I have been acquired."

In the vestibule of Marcella's apartment there hung a round mirror. As Jocelyn came in from her long afternoon with a triumphant lover she was startled by the image of her face. It looked like the sweet composed face of a young nun. All the rich trouble of her own youth had left it.

Through the glass doors which opened from the vestibule to the large living-room she became aware of the murmur of a masculine voice. Her mother had a visitor.

A small thin man with horn-rimmed spectacles, his hair very closely cut, was leaning forward from the soft toward Marcella who, rigid and white, looked an apparition in her carved high-backed chair. The man was in the middle of a long speech. His voice lifted itself for an instant into her hearing: "It can hardly be a mistake, I think, Mrs. Harlowe, she has been seen twice by two different people."

"Going in by the alley entrance?"
"Once, ma'am, yes. And once again just leaving a taxi at the corner of this block; a conspicuous-looking young woman with a big bush of hair under a tam and a full pleated skirt with a tight jacket."

LITTLEFIELD KITTIES HOLD PERFECT RECORD AS THEY DEFEAT SUDAN TUESDAY NIGHT

A fast versatile team are the Littlefield Kitties, who maintained their perfect record Tuesday night of thirteen consecutive games, as they trounced the girls team from Sudan. The Kitties dominated the score throughout the game, the score at the half being 29 to 10, and at the final whistle, 48 to 16.

The Kitties are the pride of the school right now, and the girls in their new maroon and white satin suits, "Christmas gifts" of the school board, are playing the best basketball of any team in this section.

Public opinion is that the Kitties have a wonderful chance to play in the state AAU and state championship games.

But without the alert guards who play steady games, the goal throwing three on the local team could not win.

The Littlefield boys also entered a cage tilt with the Sudan boys Tuesday night, and at the half of the game, the locals were trailing the Hornets 16 to 21. But in the last half, Maxie McKnight and Curtis Anderson, these boys who can star in any kind of ball game, started playing as they did on the gridiron, determined not to be trampled on.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our neighbors and friends, for their many acts of kindness, and expressions of sympathy extended during the illness and at the death of our dear mother. We also wish to thank those who contributed to the beautiful floral offering.

May you have just such friends in your hour of sorrow. Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Cox and relatives.

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot express my thanks and appreciation to neighbors and friends in the Rocky Ford community, who have been so kind to me at the time and since the fire, which destroyed my home, household furniture, and all my personal belongings on December 21, last.

I especially wish to thank the ladies who showered me with so many beautiful and useful gifts Tuesday afternoon at the club meeting. May God bless each and every one of you in my wish. Mrs. Lillie Dixon.

Two Charged In Anton Burglary Last Week End

W. L. Cardwell, about 28, and Robert Hagen, about 26, Saturday formally were accused of the burglary of Telford Lumber company at Anton, according to local officials Wednesday night of last week, and Sheriff Ed Hofacker of Rockley county.

Cardwell was arrested early Friday morning by Sheriff Sam Henson, near Littlefield.

Charges and investigations grew out of arrests based on suspicions of Ralph Goldwater, Lubbock policeman, who, on his "day off" caused the suspects to be apprehended. Burton S. Burks, district attorney, said he took a signed statement from Hagen who confessed to the burglary. Burks said Hagen's statement also involved Cardwell. When Cardwell faced questioners, he denied any connection with the burglary in which a safe containing $9,000 to $10,000 in vendor lien notes and cash was hauled away from the lumber yard offices. The same day the safe was found, along with the vendor lien notes, but approximately $100 in cash was missing.

Sheriff Tom Abel of Lubbock county said approximately $60 of the missing cash was recovered. Maney Gault, Texas Ranger captain, swore two complaints naming Cardwell and Hagen. Complaints against the suspects were filed with J. M. Smith, justice of peace at Anton.

Bond of $1,000 was set Saturday for Hagen when he was arraigned. It was indicated Cardwell nobly would be arraigned Monday. Until bonds are posted, the suspects will be held in the Lubbock county jail.

SILENT

West Texas Gas Company

Jas. P. Posey, chief deputy sheriff, said. The train of events leading up to capture of the suspects began with Goldwater, who had stopped to talk to a friend at a tourist camp when on his way to pay a bill at a filling station. It was Thursday, his day off.

About 1:30 o'clock that afternoon, after hearing of the Anton burglary, Goldwater had stopped at the tourist camp on Avenue H. When there, a taxi sped up, a woman got out and Cardwell met her and assisted her with her bags. They re-entered the cabin. Window shades were drawn.

Goldwater said he had arrested Cardwell twice before and recognized him. Goldwater was in civilian clothes and was not recognized by Cardwell.

Goldwater obtained information that another man in the cabin fitted the description of Hagen and he telephoned police headquarters. Lewis Kittrell of the police department and Posey rushed to the tourist camp, then returned to town to get Gault and Cleve Hawkins, another Texas Ranger, who assisted in arrests.

Cardwell had left the camp when Goldwater had gone to telephone police.

On entering the cabin, officers arrested Hagen and a man and woman who later were released. Gault and Goldwater waited at the camp until about 6:30 o'clock Thursday night for Cardwell to return and they were relieved by Posey and Hawkins.

Dedicates Wonderful Power And Knowledge To The Human Race

By Art Arthur "Man is that he might have joy." — Science has dedicated it

In every phase of its activity we can detect the surge of the human spirit in its quest to create a better world. With that in view we should not hesitate or feel ashamed to seek those benefits for ourselves as science seeks them for the whole.

Keeping pace with the genius of the inventor are the producers. The producer can have only one idea in view, and that is: to gain the approval of the buying public. In return he can expect a legitimate profit, and in order to gain this confidence he must offer a product that will give full service in its proper use. Failing to do this will only bring disaster, for the public is soon wise. Remembering these facts will help to make a wiser buyer, for the things that have endured must have merit to survive our judgement.

The coming of the "High lines" with their mysterious cargo of power, places in our hands, the means by which we can enjoy a richer use of the things that have been provided for us. Our electrical appliance stores are featuring hundreds of labor saving, health giving, and pleasure producing devices. Let us treat ourselves to a visit to these beautiful displays and choose that which will help and please us most. But, remembering to do our buying where we can expect competent service and friendly interest. "Fly by nighters," etc. can only offer us the product and when we have trouble it is all our own, but our local dealer will be available to help us remedy the situation so that service will not be interrupted, and is personally interested in seeing that we do receive the best of service obtainable. Let us not forget that, and we will be sure to realize the fullest benefits from the labors of the Scientist.

FOR SLIMNESS

Darted in for slimmness at the waistline, slightly bloused, with a nice full skirt, this design (F-37) is very becoming to youthful figures.

By all means have one to take back to school with you, or to wear to work (whichever you do) after the holiday festivities have died down and your spirits need a pick-up. In flannel, wool crepe, velvet or challis, it will be so successful that you'll want to repeat it, next spring, in flat crepe or tie silk.

Pattern No. F-37 is designed for sizes: 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. With long sleeves, size 14 requires 2 1/2 yards of 54 inch material.

Pattern 8352 - It's decidedly new, yet it has the youthful charm and simplicity that make the blouse-and-jumper duo a perennial favorite for school girls.

The peasant note, introduced by kirtle and lacings, is enhanced by the perfectly charming, puff-sleeved blouse.

Pattern No. 8352 is designed for sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 requires 3-4 yard of 54 inch material for the jumper; 1-3 1/8 yards of 39 inch material for the blouse. 2 1/2 yards ribbon for neck and sleeves; 1 yard lacing cord.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Littlefield Drive
Sunday services: Bible study, 9:45 a. m.; worship, 10:45 a. m.; meeting of young people, 6:45 p. m.; preaching, 7:15 p. m.

Minister's subject for Sunday: "The Burning Heart" (morning); "What Is the Church?" (evening). The Church of Christ, recognizing that the church is the bride of Christ, wears Christ's name, thus honoring Him. (2 Cor. 11:2; Eph. 5:23-32; Rom. 16:16.) Members of the church wear the name "Christian" instead of denominational names. They acknowledge no authority in matters of faith except the Scriptures alone—no creeds, confession of faith, etc. There are no authoritative and legislative conferences, conventions, synods, etc.

Does a church that practices such things appeal to you?
T. M. Cummings, Pastor.

LUTHERAN CHURCH

W. J. Luecke, Pastor
With the beginning of the New Year we face 365 days of opportunity for the Lord's service. We should consecrate our prayers, our lives, our gifts, to the Lord's service. With the Christ-Child our motto must be: "Wist Ye Not That I Must Be About My Father's Business?"

Information Of Interest To Social Security Tax Payers

In just a few days blanks for mailing Social Security tax returns will be placed in the mail. These returns will be accompanied by a specially prepared folder giving complete, condensed information with respect to the preparation and filing of these returns. This information folder should be carefully kept by each taxpayer for reference not only in filing returns due to be filed in January but also for filing future returns. If this be done, all mistakes and unnecessary penalties may be avoided and the taxpayer saved future annoyance and loss of time, which of necessity follows in cases where returns, if filed, are improperly prepared and executed. During the month of January all persons, except those specifically exempt by law, are required to file Social Security reports under Title VIII of the Act for the last three months of the year 1938, and those employers having eight or more employees on a total of twenty or more days during the calendar year, each such day being in a different calendar week, are required to file and pay unemployment insurance under Title IX of the Social Security Act on their employees, which for the year 1938 is 3 per cent of the total wages payable to employees, and all of which tax must be paid by the employer; however, if prior to January 31, 1939, the employer has paid to the State Unemployment Compensation the tax due the State, he is entitled to take credit on his Federal return, Form 940, for the amount paid into State Unemployment Funds up to an amount not exceeding 90 per cent of the Federal tax. In case the employer neglects or fails to pay the State Unemployment Compensation tax on or before January 31, 1939, the Federal Government will be required to collect the full amount of the Federal tax, and the employer will also be required to pay the full amount of the State tax; therefore, the importance of making all Social Security tax payments, dur-

Old Locomotive To Be Used In Making Movie

El Paso, Tex. — (UP) — When workmen greased wheels that haven't turned since 1908 and polished acetylene gas headlights on "Old No. 1," an 81-year-old locomotive that has become a landmark here, El Paso began worrying about Hollywood.

Southern Pacific railroad officials agreed to lend the locomotive—the first engine to enter Bisbee, Arizona—to a Hollywood movie company for use in the filming of a picture on location at Picacho Peak, west of Tucson. Hollywood scouts asked for the engine after seeing it on the short section of tracks in El Paso park, where it has stood for 30 years.

El Pasoans immediately got worried. They deluged railroad officials with requests for assurance that the engine would be returned as soon as the picture is finished.

While Southern Pacific officials did not know exactly how the movie people would treat No. 1, they believed she would be fired up once more for a run over a two-mile track at the picture location.

And after that, El Paso hopes, No. 1 will be brought home to stay.

Not Naggig Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work organs of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed, and fall to filter waste acid and other impurities from the circulating blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to get rid of excess poisonous body waste. They are antiseptic to the urinary tract and tend to relieve irritation and the pain it causes. Many grateful people recommend Doan's. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Ask your neighbor!

Urges Long-Time Leases On Farms In West Texas

The problems of impoverished lands and poor people, deficient schooling, declining church attendance, and economically unsound communities are closely allied with the short tenure system in American agriculture, in the opinion of Floyd Higbee, farm management adviser, in charge of tenure improvement for the Farm Security Administration in Region Twelve.

"The United States," Higbee says, "recently has become alarmed over the rapid depletion of its soil resources. Most research has been centered on land-use adjustment problems and we have often lost sight of the fact that the only reason we need be concerned about these problems is because of their relationship to human welfare and the security of our business life."

"We have become solicitous about the erosion of the soil and have been willing to spend more time and money in correcting it than we have been willing to spend in assisting the human beings living on eroding land to adjust themselves to a new economy where they can attain social and economic security for themselves and their children."

"Higbee contends that one of the most direct approaches to a new economy for farm tenants is through long-time leases upon their farms, adequate leases to provide for diversification, soil conservation practices and an all around better kept farm. In areas where tenancy prevails there are various individuals who annually ask such questions as "Will my farm be for rent next year?" "Will I have a farm to work next year?" "What kind of farmer customers will I have next year?"

Proper farm management, incorporating the different approved farm practices and the keeping of records are other factors Higbee considers to be of vital importance in establishing a sound economic system in rural America.

He believes the way is past when just anyone can farm successfully. "Successful farming," Higbee says, "is one of the most complicated of all businesses and requires considerable managerial ability."

To further assist in stabilizing both the soil and human elements in agriculture, Higbee explains, the Farm Security Administration is sponsoring flexible farm leases for both landlords and tenants. These leases are said to include all of the desirable fundamentals of all good farm leases in the country. Moreover they are so written that they are fair and equitable to both the landlord and the tenant.

T. Eucl Limer, County FSA Supervisor, announces that free copies of these flexible leases may be obtained at his office in the City Hall building in Littlefield.

Diphtheria Serum Administered To 200 Amherst Children

According to Superintendent Coffey, over 200 children, school children and others, have been vaccinated for diphtheria in Amherst recently, a precaution occasioned by the report of a case of the dreaded disease in this territory. The toxin used to immunize Amherst children and to prevent the spread of the disease was furnished free of charge by the State of Texas and was secured for use of local doctors by Dr. Duke of Littlefield. Dr. Herndon of Amherst donated his services in administering the toxin to the 200 children.

SOUTH PLAINS COUNTIES GIN 434,996 BALES

NEUCES FIRST; ELLIS SECOND; LUBBOCK THIRD

Lamb With 39,252 Bales Ranks Third On South Plains

Nineteen counties on the South Plains up to December 13 had ginned 434,996 bales compared with 883,497 bales for the corresponding period of the 1937 crop. These counties had produced slightly over 14.7 per cent of the state's crop of 2,934,893 bales of cotton for the 1938-39 season, according to the report of the U. S. bureau of the census, department of commerce, received Monday.

Lubbock definitely was in third place in Texas, the 63,998 bales ginned ranking below Neuces with 78,719 bales as first and Ellis with 70,670 bales. Neither county is expected to show much difference when the final check is made early in March. Lubbock may gain a thousand or more bales, but not enough to change rank.

Lynn county with 54,615 bales, takes seventh place this year. Four other South Plains counties rank among the 50 that produced 30,000 bales or more. They are: Lamb, 17th; Dawson, 18th; Crosby, 19th, and Hockley, 24th.

Ginnings for the 1937 crop up to December 13 of that year were 4,625,059 bales; a difference of 1,690,157 bales, or more than 36 per cent less for the 1938 than the 1937 crop. On the South Plains Lamb county ranked third with 39,252 bales, fourth a year ago; Crosby was fifth with 38,429 bales, fifth a year ago; Hockley was sixth with 35,660 bales, sixth a year ago; Scurry was seventh with 27,052 bales, seventh a year ago; Dickens was eighth with 25,370 bales, tenth a year ago.

All counties showed decreases from a year ago which was a record year. However, five counties showed totals close to those of the 1937 crop, with increases that were less than half of the total. Dickens, Floyd, Hale, Motley and Scurry counties were the five counties that did not show heavy reductions.

For the 1937 crop Lubbock county led, with Lynn second, Dawson, third; Lamb, fourth; Crosby, fifth; Hockley, sixth; Scurry seventh; Terry, eighth; Hale, ninth and Dickens, tenth.
