LOCAL TROOPS REPRESENTED AT SCOUT MEETING

Scoutmasters Eugene Latimer and Williard Street Go To San Angelo

Scoutmaster Eugene Latimer and Williard Street attended the Sectional Conference Region Nine Boy Scouts of America, at the St. Angelo Hotel, San Angelo, Texas, Sunday, April 11.

In the forenoon Dr. Ray O. Wyland and H. F. Pote of the National office, New York City, discussed the program to be used at the National Jamboree, Washington, D. C. in July and the personal needs of the men and boys attending the Jamboree, followed by general discussion.

Luncheon at 12:15.

1:00 p. m.—Consideration of Leadership, H. F. Pote, director of the division of personnel, national council, New York.

Among scouting objections discussed: meeting the needs of youth with constant tested objectives.

To meet the needs of youth, the men in scouting must pay the price in service and carrying out of aimed purposes.

Leaders to be trained and to keep themselves informed of the needs of youth. The right men must be contacted and made to see their place and need in a trained group of leaders. Leadership must be more than adequate to growing needs. In this way scouting can and will be offered to ever widening circles.

Some of the requirements for good leaders: integrity, intelligence, coupled with personality, magnetism. Technical skill, physical stamina, faith and loyalty, spirit of the Crusade.

SERIES OF FARM MEETINGS TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK

Engineer Roberts To Explain Federal Rural Electrification Plan

A series of meetings will be held next week for the purpose of acquainting the farmers of Lamb county with the prospects for rural electrification. The federal government is prepared to loan one hundred percent of the money to build lines over the county if as many as three users per mile can be obtained.

The rates for the service will be about the same as those charged in town. A mortgage is taken only on the line and not on any other property and the loan is to be paid off from the profits of the line over a period of twenty years.

Mr. Roberts, electrical engineer, from Lubbock will speak at the following places. The time is 8 p. m. in each case.

Oilton, Monday, April 19, at school.

Littlefield, Wednesday, April 21, at school building.

Earth, Thursday, April 22.

Amherst, Friday, April 23.

Everyone interested is invited to attend.

ANNUAL EVENT WILL BE HELD MAY 3, 4 AND 5

Here's a treat for the women of this city and surrounding territory. The Lamb County Leader has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Mrs. Gertrude Burbank, nationally famous home economist, to conduct its free Kitchen Chautauqua beginning Monday, May 3. The lectures will be held in the Palace Theatre, beginning each afternoon at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Burbank conducted last year's Lamb County Leader cooking school, and is returning to Littlefield by popular request.

She has scientific knowledge gained in laboratory work as well as practical experience in her own kitchen of foods, but her lectures are not the dry discussions of calories, proteins and carbohydrates. She knows what a balanced ration should be, but she also knows that foods should be appetizingly prepared and daintily served in order to be eaten with relish. Her appeal is to the eye and the palate as of prime importance as well as those phases of dietetics with individual metabolism.

NOTICE!

Owing to repairs being made on the water line by the city, it will be necessary that the water supply be cut off tonight (Thursday) from nine until ten o'clock.

ELECTRIFICATION SUBJECT OF FARM MEETING MONDAY

Engineer Roberts and R. D. Burdette Explain Farm Program

A farm meeting was held at Spade school house Monday night for the purpose of acquainting the farmers of this territory with the Federal program in connection with rural electrification.

Engineer Roberts of Lubbock was the main speaker, and explained that the Federal government would loan money to build rural lines at 3 per cent interest, which might be paid back in 20 years out of the profits of the line. He stated that the government would take a mortgage on the line, but no other property, and that three farmers for every mile must sign, and at least 75 miles of line in the county must be signed up before the money would be loaned.

R. D. Burdette, vocational agricultural instructor, of Lubbock, also made a talk.

Committees from each school district will be selected at a series of meetings to be held next week, who will assist in the signing up of the farmers desiring to use the power.

As soon as sufficient farmers sign up a county organization will be formed with seven directors, who will supervise the project.

Attending the meeting from Littlefield were: Judge L. R. Crockett, Joe Hale, T. L. Leach, vocational agricultural instructor of the local high school, J. D. Strickland, agricultural instructor of Oilton also attended.

A similar meeting was held at Fieldton Wednesday night.

Ellen gets Her Man

FINAL INSTALLMENT.
SYNOPSIS: Ellen Mackay, on her way from school at Winnipeg, to join her father at Fort Edson, misses the boat by which she was to travel. Hearing that another boat is to start north in the morning, Ellen goes to the owner, John Benham, and begs him to give her a passage. To her surprise he flatly refuses.

Angry and puzzled, Ellen tells Pat McClatchney, a kindly old storekeeper of her difficulty, and Pat with the help of one of Benham's crew, succeeds in getting Ellen on board as stowaway.

When the vessel is well under way Ellen emerges from her hiding place and faces John Benham, who now cannot help taking her with him.

During the voyage Ellen begins to be strongly attracted by John. But when she reaches Fort Edson she finds her father broken, ill and disgraced, and learns that his troubles are due to one man—John Benham.

Instantly Ellen resolves that she will fight for her father. She will reinstate him with the Hudson Bay Company, his employers, and will show up John Benham for what he really is.

From Bernard Deteroux, and employe of the company, who professes friendship for her father, Ellen hears that Benham supplies whiskey to the Indians. She sets out on a long and tedious journey to obtain proof of this, returns thinking she has got it, and gives information to the authorities.

Trooper Whitlow, of the Mounted Police, asks her to go with him to find Benham and confronts him with her proof of his villainy. It develops that Benham is innocent and the liquor is being supplied by Deteroux.

A desperate battle between Benham and Deteroux ends with the latter's defeat and capture by Trooper Whitlow. Deteroux escapes.

They had talked together then and Ellen had been startled by Benham's appreciation of the beauties of the north country. Most of the men she knew were rough, hardened by the rigorous life. There had been something almost poetic in John Benham's understanding. In some in-tangible way it seemed that a bond of friendship, of common understanding between them was born there at that moment. Now Ellen knew that it was love.

For a long time Ellen had stood conscious of it. She merely sat and looked out towards a future which seemed very drab and very grey and very empty. At length she heard voices approaching. She rose and stepped ashore, her face stony and expressionless.

Whitlow was there with his prisoner. In the background was Moosac and John Benham, with a number of the tribe slinking furtively beyond.

"I'm sorry, Miss Mackay," Whitlow was saying. "But you and Moosac will have to return to the fort in another canoe. I cannot a paddle and sent the frail craft foaming away.

The paralyzed group behind him broke into feverish action. Benham raced away up to the shore to where other canoes were beached, but already, running like a deer, old Moosac was leading him. Whitlow lurched to his feet and shouted for a rifle.

"John!" cried Ellen, despairingly. "John Benham, He'll kill you!" Benham did not hear her. Long before she could reach him he was afloat and hurling all his splendid strength against a paddle. His canoe drove out into the lake with surging eagerness.

But before him was still another of the birch-bark crafts. In the stern of it was a hunched brown figure, with wrinkled, seemed face twisted in a mask of savage hatred. Old Moosac was launched upon some strange trail of retribution.

With perceptible speed he drew away from Benham, and closed in on the fleeing Deteroux. His ancient cunning was stonger than their great strength.

Deteroux leaned on his paddle, and the power he bent into his stroke snapped the overstrained maple, short in his hands, snarling he whirled, whipping up the gun, struck, and Moosac lunged out a great sprawling leap. A moment spread-eagled body hung clear the air, and Ellen saw, in the raised right hand, a length of terying steel.

Straight into the center of the flying body Deteroux flung a bo. But Moosac's desperate lunge ried him through to his goal. E saw him crash down upon Deterou and saw the glittering knife rise there, across the dying campfire flames, staring at this strange, still, elemental man. Her mind seethed with truant thoughts, and words she dare not speak lay close to her lips. Then one of the sleeping Indians had stirred, breaking the spell. She had moved away.

"Good-night," she had called softly. "Good-night—John Benham."

She shivered a little now at the memory. The great disappointment at the later turn of events filled her heart almost to the bursting point. Here was her mate . . . the man she loved . . . and she had so little faith and understanding that she had believed all the false reports and lying stories about him. She had insisted on calling the Northwest Mounted Police and demanding Benham's arrest. To be sure, later events had cleared him of suspicion and trapped the real culprit, but she could well understand why Benham should hate her and refuse to listen to her apologies.

Time passed, and she was uncon-chance your safety by carrying you with me and my prisoner. Deteroux is desperate."

Ellen nodded briefly. "Just as you say, trooper," she answered.

Whitlow stepped up to Deteroux, a tiny key in his hands. "Let's see those cuffs, Deteroux," he said briskly. "I'll see that you earn your passage with a paddle. And make no mistake about it. I'll shoot you dead if you try any tricks."

Deteroux shrugged again and held out his hands. The cuffs fell away.

The next moment Deteroux exploded into movement. One terrific back-hand blow swept Whitlow to the ground, half unconscious. With a swoop that rivalled the speed of a driving fish-hawk Deteroux was upon him. The next second he was erect again, and in his hand was Whitlow's revolver.

"Back!" he snarled.

Whirling, he thrust the canoe out into the lake with a tremendous shove, and by a flying leap settled in the stern of it. Then he caught up

...rise and fall. And when it rose the third time it no longer gleamed in the sun. Then both men tumbled into the water. There was a sudden whirl of foam. A hand appeared—once. In it a knife still gleamed. Then it slid slowly from sight. At this moment the straining Benham drove his canoe surging over the spot. His right arm shot down into the water to the shoulder and gripped something that struggled weakly. Slowly Benham straightened and dragged the limp figure of Moosac over the side of his canoe. His glance seemed to prode the placid depths of the lake again for a moment, then with a gesture of resignation, he spun the canoe about and drove it back towards the shore. Moosac was still breathing when they lifted him gently out, but it was plain that life was ebbing swiftly. He was shot through the centre of the body. White-faced, and murmuring with pity, Ellen cradled the old Indian's head in her lap, and with gentle fingers smoothed back his thin, black, dripping locks. "Moosac," she murmured brokenly, "Oh—Moosac—how can I face Gitchie now? What can I tell her?" Moosac stirred. His eyes opened. Strangely enough, he had heard Ellen's words. "You may tell her our honour is clean, now, little gentle-heart. You may tell her our own Fawn Eyes, who has been long in the arms of the Great Spirit, is smiling again. For, though Moosac was old, his hand was cunning and his arm was strong. "Many, many summers ago it was, when Fawn Eyes danced and sang through all the seasons. She was young and joyous. Her sweetness and beauty was that of the wood violet. Then Deteroux came. "He, too, was young, and good to look upon. Yet even then the man was evil and his tongue was forked. And so there came a day when Fawn Eyes crept home to us. Her spirit was gone and her shame like some terrible disease. And one dark night her spirit went away to the Great Master. "Long—long has Moosac waited. But today the trail ended, and at its ending Moosac's arm was strong and his aim was true. And Fawn Eyes is smiling". Moosac's eyes closed again and, gradually, the harsh, savage set of his features softened into a look of peace. Tears blinded Ellen's eyes and trickled down her cheeks. They fell moist upon Moosac's wrinkled forehead. Ellen felt a hand upon her shoulder, powerful — yet gentle. She looked up John Benham was bending over her. "He was very brave man, Miss Mackay," Benham murmured, "And he shall have a brave man's grave. They buried Moosac when the purple gloom of the forest was massing in the shadows. Then began the flurry of departure. Tepees were stripped of covering, implements of the hunt, and trapping industry were gathered. Bales of furs unsearched. Ellen sought John Benham. She found him at the lake edge—alone.

A single Peterborough canoe rested on the sand. Ellen's pulse leaped, and she looked at the silent Benham shyly. Presently Benham cleared his throat. "I owe you an apology, Miss Mackay," he said, a trifle awkwardly. "I'm afraid I've acted pretty boorishly. But Whitlow told me of the source from which you and your father had received certain—certain misinformation." But Ellen shook her head. "No," she exclaimed. "You owe me nothing. It is the other way round. I was the offender. There are some things in life that simply cannot be. That was one of them, and I should have had sense enough to know it, despite what was told me. I would like you to know, John Benham, that I am bitterly sorry for my unjust words and thoughts. And it is I who apologize fully." "Suddenly she smiled, a gentle, child-like tremulous smile. Benham smiled back at her, his eyes warm and glowing. Ellen laid her hand in his, while her heart fluttered and her breath came fast. But Benham's clasp tightened with spasmodic intensity and he held her hand imprisoned. He laughed—low triumphant. "Ellen," he muttered huskily. "Ellen." Her hands stole upward until her finger-tips were caressing his swollen eyes. "I'm sure your poor eyes would be quickly well again if you would let me kiss them, dear," she said softly. The next moment she was gasping and writhing with exquisite pain, for Benham's arms were crushing her to him, vibrant withes of steel. At last the man and woman stirred and stood slightly apart, their eyes locked in strange glory. The lonesome trail was over. THE END

LOCALS PROMISE COMPETITION IN DISTRICT EVENT

High school track and field performers of the highest grade on the South Plains will gather in Lubbock Friday and Saturday for the annual District 3 Interscholastic Athletic meet.

Definite plans and routine for the meet have been announced by District Athletic Director Berl Huffman of the Texas Tech coaching staff, who believes it will be the best in several years.

This season's records indicate that the race for team honors will be more or less a wide open affair. The Lamesa High school Tornadoes, who have dominated the district, off and on, for the past several seasons, have not demonstrated thus far a definite threat for 1937 honors. The Tornadoes won the team championship last year with a flock of seniors. This year's Lamesa team failed to cut much ice of distinction Littlefield, winner of the Lamb county meet, promises to be quite a threat.

Entries already have begun to pour in at Huffman's office. Among schools filing the largest number of entries are Crosbyton, Brownfield, Littlefield, Floydada and Lubbock. Lamesa will be represented by a large team.

Preliminaries in most events, including tennis and girls volleyball, are scheduled for Friday afternoon. There will be preliminary trials and eliminations in the two hurdle events, the dashes, pole vault, broad jump and discus throw.

Finals in all events are booked for Saturday, starting at 9 o'clock. The Friday events start at 2 o'clock, high hurdles, pole vault, rural pentathlon and volleyball starting at that hour. Tennis for boys and girls starts at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

These improvements, which were done by C. M. Sparkman of the Union Compress, were completed last week.

New office equipment has also been added.

WORK IS UNDERWAY IN ENLARGING PIGGLY WIGGLY AND STONE STORE

Work is underway in enlarging the buildings occupied by the Piggy-Wiggly Grocery and Market and Stone's 1c to $5 store.

The buildings adjoin and are owned by Mayor Pat Boone. Joe Wells is the general contractor.

Both stores are 37 1-2 feet wide and will be extended through to XIT drive, giving each a total depth of 125 feet. At the present time these stores are 70 feet deep.

With the completion of the addition, the Piggy-Wiggly store will have a double front; in other words, display windows on both Phelps avenue and XIT drive.

J. O. Garlington, owner of the Piggy-Wiggly said that the interior of the store will be rearranged and improved. The market will be doubled in size; a ground floor office will be built, and there will be a ladies' lounge over the office.

Mr. Stone said that extensive improvements be made at his store, but that he had not completed his plans at this time.

K. J. CHANEY IS IMPROVING NICELY

Mr. Chaney is also planning on painting the exterior of his home.

FINANCIAL CERTAINTY IS A BANK'S DUTY

MAKING Loans is a very careful business. Clients deposit their money in a bank in the hope that the bankers know enough to take care of it, and that they will use their knowledge to the best advantage. Our many successful years in business and our large number of satisfied and constant customers lead us to believe that we have fulfilled that trust.

Each person who has a deposit with us may rest assured that the security and ultimate value to himself and the community is carefully considered before each loan is made. We like to make loans—it is our business—but they MUST be safe.

WHAT I WISH TEACHERS WOULD NOT DO

Many teachers often wonder what they do that the pupils do not approve of. Well here's a few of the things some pupils class as the first. They are: I wish our teachers would not assign long lessons, speak long sermons, have a long face, and above all write out long lists of demerits when they know it does not help matters one bit. Teachers have a hard job and everything, and we don't expect them to be perfect, but when it comes to giving demerits in oddles and gobs and then missing the one who deserves them—that's what we call a little bad. If teachers have to assign any lessons on Friday let them be short, so we can really take the weekend as a holiday, instead of studying. Teachers! Teachers! I didn't think you would, but some chew gum, after telling the pupil to get rid of his.

WHAT WE WISH OUR PUPILS WOULD NOT DO

Some pupils are very hard to make understand, just who's boss or other things in general. Here are a few things the teachers wish the pupils would not do. I wish my pupils would not be late with assignments, we give just what you've studied, its for your benefit not ours. I wish you would not have to be told to keep the lavatory clean and in order. Do not talk when some one else is talking. You all are given a certain number of study halls, according to your schedule and why not use them, you won't loose a thing, in fact you might gain a few cells of knowledge. Let's all be careful and do not waste our time, also learn to keep the correct posture. Questions are essential, but I wish my pupils would not ask them about their work after the first bell rings at the end of the period. I hate to get after my pupils about chewing gum, but do not chew it during classes. Our school is a very clean and well thought of one but we need people to keep it that way, and its up to you to make it a better one.

every car owner should request one of these self-addressed, postage free cards and should fill it in and mail it at once because information so collected, together with information compiled by other branches of the survey, will be used by the State Highway Department and the U. Littlefield To Be Distribution Point For Conoco Products

A new warehouse 16 by 22 feet will be built at the Continental Oil Co. wholesale agency in this city, according to George R. Sandidge, wholesale agent.

The new warehouse will be an addition to the present warehouse capacity.

The erection of the new warehouse follows a decision of the Continental Oil Co. to make Littlefield a distribution point. Under the new arrangement the Littlefield agency will distribute Continental products to wholesale agents in this territory in addition to handling the products required for the Littlefield wholesale.

Gasoline and other products of that nature have been received by the Littlefield wholesale in tank cars, but oils and greases have been received in less than car lot shipments. Under the new arrangement all products will be received in car lot shipments.

Only 109 votes were cast in the Morton school trustee election held April 3, when voters selected Jim Hill, Johnny Patton and J. C. Cook to serve on the board.

The two men were arrested by Sheriff Tom Standifer after a theft complaint had been made by a farmer living near Morton.

It is a spirited, youthful car, this Oldsmobile Six. So is its companion, the 1937 Oldsmobile Eight.

TECHNIQUE OF HUNTING ARKANSAS RAZORBACKS DESCRIBED BY BURNS

They needed a pig for Bob Burns to play with in "Walkiki Wednesday," the comedy which comes to the Palace Theatre on Saturday midnight preview and continuing through Sunday and Monday, and they made the mistake of getting an Arkansas razorback.

It so happens that razorbacks are among the most ferocious animals on the North American continent and Burns, who is one of Arkansas's most distinguished sons, should have known better. But he forgot, or something, and they tried to make the razorback act, along with Bing Crosby, Martha Raye, Shirley Ross and the two hundred chorus girls who do the hula in the picture, with disastrous results.

There were slashed hands and legs aplenty as the razorback got his stiletto-keen tushes into action, and he had to be substituted with a more docile hog, "Wafford," as the substitute pig is called in the film, is an ordinary little pig of the farmyard variety and he does a pretty good job of acting.

Big Game Job

The hunting of razorbacks, Burns explained, is an organized sport in the Ozarks with a technique all of its own. It requires two sets of dogs, specially trained for their jobs, and a pretty steady hand on the trigger since a wounded boar never hesitates to rush a hunter. Some two or three hundred pounds of wild ham coming at a man at express train speed is not to be taken lightly, especially when the wild porker is equipped with a pair of razor-like spears which he can use with the dexterity of an experienced fencer.

The hunters travel in pair for this reason since one is always ready should the other miss fire or merely wound the animal. There is a pack of ordinary hound dogs, trained to scent a boar and drive him to cover until the hunters arrive, and a pack of mastiffs trained to leap in and grab the boar and hold him. One must be always on the alert while hunting boars, Burns explained, because they generally take refuge in the tall cane breaks of the White River Bottoms from which they rush the hunter before he is aware of their presence.

As a sport, Burns said, razorback hunting can compare with big game hunting in Africa since the boars often take the offensive, they are as large as pumas, as fast as zebras and as ferocious as tigers.

The Arkansas razorback is not a native animal. They are descendants of ordinary barnyard hogs who escaped from early settlers in the Ozark region and went wild. The country is well adapted for them and in the hundred or so years in which they roamed the country they have developed tushes which are six inches long. These tushes bend backward over the mouth and it is from the razor-like edge on the back of the tushes that the animal takes its name.

LEVELLAND MAN ESTABLISHES CAR AGENCY IN MORTON

T. W. Moore of Levelland last fall purchased three lots in Morton, on which he is now planning to build a modern building to house Chevrolet cars, of which he has the associate dealership for Cochran county. LEASING ACTIVE IN COCHRAN COUNTY

Cotton Seed Delinting

BEGINNING OUR TWELFTH YEAR OF BUSINESS IN LITTLEFIELD

Actual experiments have shown that delinted seed saves time and money. Delinted seed can be planted with a corn planter, using only from 5 to 9 pounds to an acre. Delinted seed hastens maturity 10 to 15 days earlier. Less moisture is required. Cotton chopping is eliminated. The process kills all cotton diseases usually carried in the seed, and are thoroughly disinfected and culled.

SEED WILL BE DELINTED ON A CUSTOM BASIS!

FARMERS WHO KNOW RECOMMEND DELINTING!

Farmers throughout Texas and Oklahoma, who have used delinted seed, send many letters of praise concerning this recent economical discovery in cotton raising. They say that delinted seed makes many times as much cotton as fuzzy seed... they say there is less production cost... and they gladly recommend it. We will take cash for the delinting process or will take part of the seed saved for the service.

THE SCHOOL AS A COMMUNITY FUNCTION

By Supt. A. B. Sanders

Continuing the policy of letting people know about their schools, the administration wishes to call attention to some facts concerning the activity of the school as a community function.

The school, like other institutions, is struggling to meet the new needs of the folks in a changing society. In doing this, an unusual portion of understanding, cooperation and assistance is needed from the patrons.

The Littlefield school system has recognized the need of supplying the individual need of each and every pupil. In trying to discover these needs and guide the pupil into activities that will acquaint him with the social adjustment necessary to his success, we find ourselves quite in accord with the challenge of our national leaders in education. This challenge is that each child be fitted with the type of training that

Sports Chain Links Two Americas

Pan American Games Set For Dallas

June 30 to July 3

Dignity of the Olympic tradition is borne out in the official emblem of the Pan American Games, in which athletes of two continents will compete at the international fair in Dallas, Texas, opening June 12.

The design, approved by a smiling Texanite, depicts a modern Mercury, god of speed, skill and strength, testing the "friendship links" of the two Americas in his powerful grasp above the globe of the Western Hemisphere.

Athletes of Mexico, Central and South America will compete with United States' entrants in the Olympic events of track and field, soccer and boxing scheduled for June 30, July 1, 2 and 3.

will best adjust him to life in a nation of democratic principles such as ours.

To meet these needs the local schools have joined unreservedly in the state wide program for the development of a more vital and practical type of school training for our youth. The state has put out a new course of study that has attempted to guide the teachers in training the pupils in a more dynamic or life like manner. The schools have probably been justly criticized for training the youth in a school atmosphere that had little likeness of a true life situation. This new course of study, put out by the state, attempts to correct this weakness in the educative process by suggesting units of work that take the teacher and pupil directly into the community for a study of its problems.

This year our teachers have been earnestly trying to find and use the best and most progressive methods of teaching and guiding our pupils. The more modern method of teaching known as the "activity unit" has been tried and found to have definite and striking advantages. In order that we may arrive at an idea of what that type of teaching is let us review some of the titles of units that have been taught this year. A few of the titles are: How our Community Gets Its Mail; How our Community Governs Itself; How our Community Provides its Clothing; How our Community Transports its Products; How our Community Provides Food; What our Community Provides in Recreation; How our Community Provides Educational Opportunity; How our Community Provides Shelter and How our Community Makes a Living in Agriculture. A glance at this partial list of the Activity Units that have been taught this year will illustrate the type of thing we mean when we say instruction is placed on a "life situation" basis. Things of this nature, we feel, are significant and important in the life of every member of the community. Formerly the pupil spent his time in school learning things that are remote from the community life and waited until he got out of school to learn about what was going on around him. The modern type of thinking is to the effect that a child can learn the fundamentals, Reading, Writing and Arithmetic, more rapidly by coming in contact with them in relation their uses in life than by too much meaningless drill on the processes.

In order that we may get a better idea of what we mean by activity let us review a set of things that were actually done in one of the second grade sections on the unit "How our Community Gets Its Mail." The following are activities:

1. Build a miniature post office with all departments of local post office.
2. Paint stamps of various denominations.
3. Send pieces of mail through room postoffice that require amount of postage of each stamp painted.
4. Make valentines of given sizes (measurement) and mail them with proper postage to people in city, on routes and out of town.
5. Make envelopes for above; address them correctly for mailing.
6. Use top money and real cash in buying and selling stamps in the postoffice.
7. Visit the local U. S. Post Office and listen to lecture by local postmaster on how it operates.
8. Collect old stamps for exhibit chart.
9. Delivering mail on routes laid out in school.
10. Delivering special delivery letters and getting paid for it by room postmaster.
11. Making designs and writing verses for valentines mentioned above.
12. Read all reference materials available, on reading level of children, that have to do with mail service.

These and other activities were initiated by the pupils in the unit of work. If one will notice there is a good situation for teaching arithmetic, reading and writing as well as other related materials in this unit. At the same time the child is learning something about one of the most important government services of the community. Further when occasions arise that show a need for direct drill in a given subject, say spelling, the teachers are required to stop and drill.

The grades of the Littlefield system have served as a laboratory school this year and have served as a spear head in the movement of opening up and trying out this newer way of teaching. Considerable advantage will be realized since our teachers and pupils will be at least one year ahead of the school who has not tried this method as set forth in the Course of Study. At a recent visitation week for the teachers of Lamb county there were some 50 teachers who visited the local schools the purpose of seeing the teachers and pupils at work with this type of instructions.

The high school Course is attempting to meet the changing needs of the youth of today by giving each and every pupil a chance at educational work such as agriculture, Home Economics, Secretarial Training, Wood Work, Mechanical Drawing, Typing, Bookkeeping, Junior Business Training and Commercial Arithmetic. These practical courses along with standard courses

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

of English, History, Mathematics and Science should give a boy or girl a sampling into the field of vocations that will enable him to decide what he wants to work at when he has finished school.

The graduation requirements have been liberalized in order to allow the pupil a greater choice of elective subjects. The only requirements at the present time are that for graduation one must have four years of English, two years of math, two years of history and the remainder are to be chosen by him. About half and half, that is half prescribed and half elective courses.

In making this practical program effective the entire school authorities ask your help and cooperation in applying same to our school organization.

NEGRO GETS—

Cook of Bailey county. Several deputies also were on hand.

Court Room Packed

The courtroom was packed with men, women and children long before 9 o'clock, and most of them remained in their seats after the recess until 1:30 was announced, having brought their lunches with them. A slight tenseness was apparent in the crowd early on the first day of the trial, but no talk of violence was heard, and the spectators soon relaxed.

E. A. Bills of Littlefield and James A. Gowdy of Olton were officially appointed Thursday morning by the court to defend the negro, and were granted a recess until 1:30 o'clock to prepare their defense. At 6:15 o'clock 54 veniremen had been questioned, from which eight jurors were selected. District Attorney Charles A. Dean, who was assisted in the prosecution by Meade Griffin of Plainview, former District Attorney, and Billy Hall, County Attorney of Lamb county, made it plain that he would ask the death penalty.

Deputy Sheriff Hutson was instructed to summon 30 more talesmen to be present at 10 o'clock Friday morning.

Jury Completed Friday

The jury was completed early Friday afternoon, the state rested its case, and one defense witness was questioned before Judge Russell adjourned court until Saturday. Deputy Sheriff Hutson and James Boykin were called by Attorney Dean as witnesses of the shooting, as was O. B. Gordon, negro, whose family Kelly had terrorized with a gun earlier in the afternoon.

Constable Tom Matthews and J. T. Speights, who arrested Kelly were the other principal state witnesses. It was while Sheriff Loyd was attempting to arrest Kelly that the fatal shots were fired.

District Attorney Dean was granted permission to introduce more evidence Saturday morning, after resting his case the day before, in order to refute Kelly's defense plea; That of irrationality of action.

Dr. Ball of Lubbock, who dressed his left arm that had been shattered in the exchange of shots with the officers, testified that he was rational at that time, as did Sheriff Abel. In his talk to the jury, Dean referred to Mrs. Loyd and her children, left without a father, and asked the jurymen if they, as good citizens, could withhold the death verdict with clear consciences.

Testifies in Own Defense

Kelly, on the witness stand in his own defense, stated that he had spent the last several years in West Texas, the last four in Littlefield, coming to this section from the eastern part of the state where he was reared. In relating the events of the day of the shooting, Kelly said that he had been drinking all day, consuming a pint of whiskey and a half gallon of choc beer. He claimed to have passed out while drinking beer, and not to have remembered anything that happened until the following morning when he awoke in the Lubbock jail to be told of having shot Loyd, and that his victim was then at the point of death. Loyd died that day.

The members of the jury which decreed death for Kelly are:

J. R. Kirkendall, foreman and first to be selected, of near Spade; A. A. Wise, 11 miles northeast of Littlefield; Sam Cearley of Earth; Frank Eveding; C. D. Rogers of near Earth; V. A. Dodson; H. F. Hudgins of near Circle; A. C. Brigrance of Olton. These eight men were selected the first day of the trial. The four chosen Friday are H. A. Baughn, Pink Lawson, Dud Kent and W. S. York.

Of the first 60 special veniremen summoned, only 54 were questioned. Three were out of the county and three excused by the court. Eleven of the 54 were disqualified because of their reluctance to affix the death penalty. The defense exercised 10 of their 12 peremptory challenges before the venire was exhausted; the prosecution three of their six. Fourteen witnesses were subpoenaed for the state and 10 for the defense.

Dr. Wyland stressed the necessity of proper sponsorship for troops and meeting places for troops provided by sponsoring group. Troops preferably sponsored by churches. However sponsorship by civic organizations and American Legion units are appreciated. No organization should sponsor a troop and leave it to meet when and where it can. Such troops become an orphan in the sight of the National Council.

After discussions of relationship and needs of local councils by Dr. Wyland and Mr. Pote, The meeting separated in groups for group discussions of different subjects.

The meeting was very interesting and educational, especially the discussion by Dr. Wyland and Mr. Pote of the national office, New York and James P. Fitch, regional scout executive of Dallas.
